SEN. RUSSELL LONG of Louisiana (right), chats with Jack Heffelmeyer, who voluntarily traveled from the East Coast to the Hurricane Audrey disaster area to help out. Heffelmeyer holds one of the three types of civil defense drinking water cartons, which are now used by drivers near most areas to pack and distribute water where needed in disaster relief. BACK FROM DESPAIR

Cameron is coming back.

The town which felt the brunt of Hurricane Audrey's assault on the southwestern Louisiana coastline last June is rebuilding rapidly after being nearly leveled.

CAMERON IS COMING back in many ways—through disaster funds administered by the Federal Civil Defense Administration, and through $3,000,000 from the Red Cross and gifts from many parts of the nation, including even donations of labor by contractors and construction unions from nearby Texas.

Cameron is also coming back through its own efforts. What is one of the nation's first disaster planning commissions has been set up there. It will oversee the rebuilding of most of Cameron within nine months, allocating gifts and other resources as it sees fit.

In time, it should be a better town than it was. In the past, Cameron and its neighboring communities, Creole and Grand Chenier, each had a tiny clinic. Now they will have a new Cameron Memorial Hospital, built with the help of Federal funds, the American Legion, and others. The Junior Chamber of Commerce will build a public library, which the town has never had.

Even 34 college students, whose resources were wiped out by the hurricane, will be able to continue in school through help received from the Louisiana Department of Education.

HURRICANE AUDREY survivor in Cameron, La., greets two Federal officials at the entrance to her new tent house, built by the Housing and Home Finance Administration under the overall coordination of the Federal Civil Defense Administration. Such structures have been constructed pending the completion of more permanent housing, aided by gifts of material and labor. (FCDA Photo)

DEAD ANIMALS were a familiar sight in Cameron Parish (county), La., after high waters from Hurricane Audrey swept over land only about two feet above sea level, and wiped out some 35,000 head of cattle. Farm organizations have made some overtures to the agriculture division of the Cameron Planning Commission toward helping reestablish a foundation herd in the stricken area. (Lake Charles, La., American-Press Photo)

REFUGEE SHELTER and sorting-out center for casualties in the McNeese College gym at Lake Charles, La., was crowded by homeless Hurricane Audrey survivors from the Cameron area. The disaster caused at least 518 deaths, but the toll would have been much higher were it not for heroic action by doctors in the disaster zone, and a 200-bed civil defense emergency hospital set up on the spot in isolated, sparsely settled Creole, La. Background Scripture: I Corinthians 11.

Devotional Reading: Colossians 3:12-17.

IN WORSHIP

Lesson for November 3, 1957

Why do people go to church? There are very poor reasons, such as showing off a new hat, or keeping up a respectable front. There are reasons which are only middling-good, such as enjoying the music, or going to please your wife. There are also very good reasons; the best of these is simply to worship God. There are different ways Christian churches use in worshipping God, and it is rarely that one particular service makes use of one way alone. Hymns are one way, and prayer is another and offering is another. But the way of worship which most churches feel to be most sacred is the observance known by the names of Eucharist, Lord's Supper, Holy Communion.

Long Years, Wide Road

What is the right spirit of worship? In particular, how can we make the most of Communion? Saint Paul offers us some plain and valuable hints in the letter he wrote to the church at Corinth. That church needed some plain-spoken help for two reasons. For one thing the Christian religion was hardly thirty years old. There was no long tradition, no prayer-book, no New Estament to go by. For another thing, many of the Corinthian Christians had been outright pagans till recently, and pagans had some very odd notions about how to worship their gods, such as getting drunk in their temples. So Paul had to make some things clear. One is that the worshippers at the Lord's Table are not alone; there is a tradition behind them, there are hosts of other churches also at worship in this way. We worship best when we are mindful of the whole church of Christ. We are travelers on a road stretching through two thousand years now, not thirty years only - a road wide enough to take in worshippers from every country in the world. Remembering this, we shall be solemnly grateful that we too can share in this age-old Remembrance of Christ.

"In Remembrance of Me"

For this Lord's Supper is a rite of remebrance. How shall we best approach it? To come carelessly, thoughtlessly, is to cut ourselves off from its meaning and its blessing. We should come to it remembering the One in whose Name it is celebrated. But how shall we remember him? There is something more here than simple memory. We do not well remember a good mother's birthday by getting drunk, or by polishing off a shady deal, or by being hateful to members of our family. We best remember Washington not by making speeches about him but by being patriots ourselves. So we can best remember Christ not by being suddenly reminded of him by seeing that this is Communion Sunday, not by merely recalling that once such a Man lived and died. We come and worship in his name rightly when we come remembering and praying for his spirit in our lives. Those who get most out of Communion are usually those who have been keeping closest to their Lord.

Remembering Others

Protestant churches take seriously another thought in Paul's lines about the Lord's Supper. That is, that this is not something we can best do alone. There is room for private worship of God, and a necessity for it. But there is also room and necessity for the public worship of God, and the Holy Communion is public, social, communial, corporate, rather than private and individualistic. That is the way theologians would put it. For the plain worshipper, the point is this: in coming to this sacred high-point of worship, we shall get the most out of it if we give thought to others not less than ourselves. We need to remember the Church in whose company this feast is kept. We need to remember the Body - not only the broken body of Christ, but the Church which Paul (in the very next chapter) calls the body of Christ. We need also to remember those who are in need. Most congregations use the Communion-time for special offering for the poor or otherwise needy. So again, the right way to approach this hour of worship is to come already in the spirit of unselfishness. It is a poor sort of Christian who has to wait for the Communion service to remind him to love his neighbor as himself.

Comets Win Opening Thriller By 47-46 Score

The Riverdale Comets and the Butler Windmills provided their respective fan elements with a lot to holler about as the two basketball teams came to grips at the Waterloo gym last Friday night. Riverdale enthusiasts had more to make noise about when the final buzzer sounded as they posted a thrilling 47-46 win over Butler.

The game was a nip-and-tuck affair with neither team holding a commanding lead at any time. One or two points was the usual margin.

Tension mounted as the last half progressed. As the final minutes of the game arrived, the teams were locked in a 44-all tie. Gerald Lothamer was fouled and he sank two free throws to make it 46-44 Riverdale. However, Butler came back with a bucket tying it up again. Don Donat was fouled with less than a minute to go. He sank the first of a one-and-one situation, missing the second. Butler had an out-of-bounds play thereafter with 3 seconds to go but could not get a good shot away.

Larry Coplin fouled out in the middle of the fourth quarter and it looked as if Riverdale's chances might be lost. Coplin had dropped in 10 fielders and a free throw before fouling out to lead scoring in the game. But the Comets met the challenge and scored their first victory of the season.

The second team made a game of it for the Butler reserves for one half before the Windmills took a 34-22 win from the locals. A cold fourth quarter hurt the Comet seconds' chances as they went without a field goal for several minutes failing to hit on lay-ups and rebounds while their opponents built up a commanding lead.

GAME NOTES—The usual opening game full house wasn't on hand Friday night. A good sized crowd was on hand but not the customary early-arriving full house. — Disapproval of the officiating was evident from the coaches and the fans, though the bad calls probably evened up for both teams by the time the evening was over. Coplin fouled out on a "charging" violation as he went in for a lay-up. Most observers opined that the foul was committed by the defensive player. Strangely enough, Coplin had only 1 of his 21 points on a free throw getting little opportunity to cash in at the free throw line despite the fact that Butler had 3 men on him around the free throw lane on many occasions as he shot. — Don Donat was the hero of the game but could have been the goat. He had lofted several shots during the game but couldn't sink a single field goal. But his game-winning free throw came with another charity toss to make 2 of the biggest points a Riverdale fan would want to see.

Grades To Hold Open House Next Thursday

The lights will be burning next Thursday evening, November 14, at the school at Spencerville when the grade school holds its annual "open house" for parents and patrons.

With the first grading period now over, students have had ample time to adjust to advanced school courses and have prepared exhibits showing the work which they have done thus far in the 1957-58 school year. Any difficulties or proficiencies have probably come to the fore and teachers are prepared to discuss these subjects with parents.

The open house will be held from 7:30 p. m. to 9:00 p. m. CDT. The community is invited to inspect students' work and discuss the school program and its related problems on an individual or general basis.

SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club held its October meeting at the home of Sharon Bowser.

The meeting was called to order by the president with the members repeating the club collect. Devotions were given by Mary Ellen Beaty by reading an article on how prayers are answered.

The song of the month was Indiana, Our Indiana, and it was sung by the members. The history was given by Connie Hollabaugh.

The business meeting consisted of reports of the refreshment and entertainment committee for the Garrett Homemaker Club which will be entertained in November.

During the social hour, entertainment of the spooky variety was given. Some members came masked. Taffy apples were made and lunch served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clauser, Jr., and daughter, Susan Kay, of St. Joseph, Mich., were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clauser, Sr.

Rain aided Auburn firemen in extinguishing a fire at the Robert Ruppert residence in Jackson Township on Wednesday of last week. However, damage to the house was estimated at $400. A steady rain kept flames from spreading on the roof after it broke thru from the attic. St. Joe firemen were called to the scene but the blaze had been extinguished by the Auburn firemen.

Donald Kinsey and mother, Elnora Blue, were Saturday night and Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hancock of Bryan, O.

Funeral services were held Saturday at Fort Wayne for Benjamin F. Ruch, Sr., 74, who died at 12:15 a.m. Wednesday of last week in Sacred Heart Hospital. Survivors include the widow, Hazel; six sons, Glenn of Butler, Elbert, Benjamin, F. Jr. and Paul of Fort Wayne, Delbert of Saint Joe and Robert of Waynedale; four daughters, Mrs. Catherine Schoeneman and Mrs. Elma Niswonger of Fort Wayne, Mrs. Luella Swank of Garrett and Mrs. Etta Becraft of Waynedale; three brothers, Ralph and Russell of Fort Wayne and Chester of Long Beach, Cal.; a sister, Mrs. Abbie Schoeneman of Fort Wayne; 31 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

The local collection of gifts for mental patients was under way last week, following announcement of the local chairman of this project. Mrs. Paul Walter of Auburn was named last week by county mental health president Isabella McClellan to assist her with the collection of gifts in this area. Mrs. John Kirkpatrick of Delphi, state chairman of the annual Christmas gift collection program of the Indiana Association for Mental Health, lauded the selection, explaining that there is a great need for civic leadership of Mrs. Walter's caliber as well as an acute need for generous contributions to make this program a success. Each year, sororities, church groups, clubs and civic organizations seek gifts from their members and from other interested contributors. The gifts are distributed to patients at ward parties in mid-December in the Fort Wayne State School Hospital. Each county has been given a quota of gifts to secure. From the response to letters sent to all organizations in DeKalb County, the local organization hopes to meet its quota.

Sunday afternoon callers in the Elnora Blue home were Mr. and Mrs. George Fredricks of Fort Wayne and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Cook of Hicksville.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clauser and son, Bob, and Mrs. Jerry Baker were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Liechty and family of Berne at a birthday supper for Warren on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Ridgway and Mrs. Harry Loucks attended the funeral of Benjamin Ruch at McCombs Funeral Home in Fort Wayne.

The St. Joe Valley Home Demonstration Club will meet with Mrs. Albert Wade on Friday, November 15, for an all-day meeting with pot luck dinner at 12 o'clock.

The 58th annual International Live Stock Exposition will be held November 29 to December 7 in the International Amphitheatre of the Chicago Stock Yards. In addition to the top quality exhibits of breeding and fat stock in the arena, show rings and stock yard pens, top-flight entertainment will be presented - Arthur Godfrey who will appear at every performance of the exposition's horse show.

The St. Joe Lions Club entertained their wives at Ladies Night October 28 at the Masonic Temple in Spencerville. District Governor Gingher was present with his wife to address the group with a few remarks concerning the work of Lions clubs. Dr. Bonnel Souder then showed colored slides and gave a descriptive narrative of her trip around the world.

HALLOWEEN

Did you ever see a pumpkin smile?
Like an old man, putting on the style,
With eyes glaring and a three cornered nose,
And cheeks the color of a yellow rose.

At Halloween parties, you see pumpkin faces,
Sitting around in several places,
And some old black cats, with whiskers long,
While an old witch sings a weird song.

The ghosts and goblins with shoes that squeak,
Make the muscles in your legs begin to feel weak.
Then before you have a nervous fit,
You hunt up a chair on which you can sit.

They bring you a lunch, with apple cider,
And a piece of pumpkin pie, beside.
You eat until you are in pain,
And then you return home again.

Rainbow Girls Install Officers

Jean Zimmerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Zimmerman of Spencerville, was installed as Worthy Advisor of Spencerville Assembly No. 104 Order of the Rainbow for Girls, on September 30 at the Masonic Temple in Spencerville.

The Order just completed a successful term under the direction of Worthy Advisor Judy Miller who presided over the 7 o'clock meeting prior to installation. Installation services were open to the public at 8 p.m. About 80 members, parents and friends of Rainbow Girls witnessed the ceremonies under the direction of the Mother Adviosr, Mrs. Marge Brattain.

Installing officers for the evening were Worthy Advisor, Mrs. Louise Zimmerman; Installing Marshal, Mrs. Donzella Graham; Installing Chaplain, Mrs. Ilef Ringenberg; Installing Recorder, Mrs. Victoria Means; and Installing Organist, Mrs. Pauline Baumgartner.

The new Worthy Advisor was presented at the altar and received her charge and jewel, then escorted East by her father through an aisle of Rainbow Girls holding arches covered with red roses while Phyllis Baker and Esther Fetters sang. She was received in the East by her mother, the Installing Officer, who presented her with a bouquet of red roses from the assembly. Other officers installed were: Worthy Associate Advisor, Mary Jane Baker; Charity, Barbara Conley; Hope, Judy Waters; Faith, Phyllis Baker; Chaplain, Sharolyn Spiece; Drill Leader, Esther Fetters; Love, Lynda Fisher; Religion, Joy McNabb; Nature, Ruth Washler; Immortality, Judy Coddington; Fidelity, Karen Chapman; Patriotism, Sharon Beaty; Service. Nancy Brown; Confidential Observer, Marie Woodring; Outer Observer, Sharon Timmerman; Musician, Vicki Crow; Choir Director, Carol Baker; Rose Lecturer, Judy Miller; Historian, Randa Keeler; Staff Member to Hoosier Promise, Carol Graham; Prompter, Judy Furnish; Choir Members, Darlene Timmerman and Frances Waters.

When the new officers were in their station, the American Flag was presented at the altar, the pledge was given and the assembly sang The Star Spangled Banner, after which the flag was returned to its station. The Installing Marshall then declared Spencerville Assembly No. 104 duly installed for the ensuing term.

The new Worthy Advisor then assumed her station and introduced her family, her great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Roll Conwell of near Muncie, her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Hearsel Shockley, and Mrs. Ray Zimmerman and an aunt, Mrs. Gaylord Rediger, of Spencerville. She thanked the assembly for their confidence in her and expressed the need for them to work together to make this term a successful one. The gavel with which she will preside was presented to her by her mother, it being the one she had presided with when Worthy Matron of the Spencerville Eastern Star Chapter.

Rainbow Girls receiving bars and badges for various achievements were then presented behind the altar by the Marshall and were presented their awards by Mrs. Fara Lee Baidinger, Associate Mother Advisor.

The Past Worthy Advisor, Judy Miller, was also presented at the altar and signed the Bible. She was then presented her Past Advisor's pin by her mother, Mrs. William Miller.

Past Mother Advisor Donzella Graham then presented the Assembly with a floating Worthy Advisor's pin, to be worn by each Worthy Advisor during her term in office and then handed down to her successor.

After the meeting adjourned refreshments of cake, coffee and punch were served by members of the Advisory, Board, Mrs. Lois Fisher, Mrs. Pauline Baugartner, Mrs. Fara Lee Baidinger and Mr. George Luker, with Jean Zimmerman presiding at the punch bowl and the Associate Advisor Mary Jane Baker at the coffee service.

The first meeting of the new term was held October 10 with most officers in their stations. The flu bug prevented a few from being present. The two officers who were not installed at installation were installed, Judy Waters the station of Hope and Ruth Washler the station of Nature.

The second meeting found most of the girls present except two who had to attend Senior play practice. Bars and pledges were presented to those who had not received them at installation.

ST. JOE VALLEY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Saint Joe Valley Home Demonstration Club met Friday, October 18, at the home of Emma Trenary. The meeting was called to order by the vice president, Cora Funk. The home coocreed was repeated in unison. Devotions were led by Edna Jenkins. The history of the song of the month was read by Edna Kaufman.

Response to roll call was my favorite hymn, answered by 14 members and 3 children.

The resignation of Cora Funk as president for next year was not accepted by the members. The resignation of Doris Yeiser as secretary for next year was accepted due to her plea of ill health. Audra Walter was then elected secretary for next year.

The meeting closed with the singing of the club prayer.

Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by co-hostesses Mary Trenary and Mary Krise.

Local News

Norman Lee Griffin, 24, of Rl, St. Joe, has been committed to the Dr. Norman M. Beaty Memorial Hospital at Westville as a criminal sexual psychopathic person, on order of the DeKalb County Circuit Court. Griffin had been arrested upon complaint of parents of one of a group of boys upon whom he had committing unnatural sex acts.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hall and daughters of Fort Wayne were recent afternoon visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn.

A course in home care of the sick started November 5 for DeKalb County residents, sponsored by the American Red Cross in the county. The 17-hour course will be offered at no charge for all those interested in the fundamentals of home nursing. The course will be held in Garrett on the second floor of the city hall. Sessions will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays, either afternoons or evenings. The afternoon classes will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. and evening classes from 7 to 9 p.m. All materials for the course are supplied by the Red Cross and teachers have donated their time.

53 students from DeKalb County are enrolled this semester as full time students in Indiana University. Students from this area include those from Ashley, Auburn, Butler, Corunna and Garrett. Enrollment is up 3 per cent this fall although high school graduations were at a low point last spring.

The executive secretary of the Board of U.S. Civil Service Examiners for the Department of Agriculture, 623 North Second Street, Milwaukee 3, Wisconsin, has announced that applications will be accepted until further notice for positions as soil conservation aid, with starting salaries of $2960 and $3415 a year. The positions are in the states of Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

NEWVILLE TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The meeting was opened by the president, Lois Guiff, who welcomed the guests. Devotions were given by Leta Shaffer. Several songs were sung and the history of the song of the month was given by Edna Milkelson.

At roll call guests were introduced. Also present were Laura Washler and Leila Wright who helped present a play. After the social hour refreshments were served by the hostesses.

The next meeting will be held November 13 at the home of Delores Inlow for an all-day meeting.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

On Wednesday evening, October 23, the Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Weldon Shafer. The collect and pledge to the flag were led by Mrs. Harold Baker.

Mrs. Frank Shull gave an excellent lesson on "Knighthood in the Middle Ages." Feudalism and its decline were very well covered in the lesson.

The Parliamentarian, Mrs. Claude Laub, conducted a parliamentary review.

Mrs. Cora Curie was in charge of entertainment and the group participated in a game. In closing Mrs. Curie read a very appropriate poem entitled "Friends."

Roll call was taken with 16 members responding. Mrs. Allen Haller, Jr., was a guest.

Mrs. Carl Carpenter, critic, gave as her report the club customs.

After adjournement, the hostess served light refreshments.

"When you feel down in the mouth, think about Jonah. He came out alright."

We're not down in the mouth but we here at Ort's have been thinking that with November here local citizens will begin thinking about Christmas shopping. With the coming of the holidays the merchants in the big city will soon be beckoning for everyone to come to the big stores to shop.

We don't want to discourage anyone from having a good time but we feel that there are some good reasons why Christmas shoppers should try Garrett as their shopping center.

Most important, of course, are the "Dividends" earned by patronizing the local merchants. By shopping in Garrett the local citizen is actually doing his part in building and bettering his home community because a part of every dollar he spends with his local merchants goes toward the improvements necessary in any community.

The taxes the local merchant must pay go into the building of better parks, schools, employment and enjoyment centers.

A bargain means top quality, recognized brands and above all, the reputation of a reliable dealer to back it up!

We at Ort's are glad to be a part of the Garrett community and are ready to serve you and help you with your needs. Come in and look around at your leisure.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Background Scripture: 1 Corinthians 12—14.

Devotional Reading: Ephesians 4:4-16.

GIFTS OF GOD
Lesson for November 10, 1957

The tiny patch of Paul's letter printed in most Sunday school quarterlies this week is not nearly enough to give the full idea of what he meant to teach on our subject. For this, the three whole chapters should be read. The reader will please notice that the famous chapter 13 is tied in both to the chapter before and the one following. However, there's enough in the first baker's dozen of verses in chapter 12 to give any one food for thought.

Every Christian Has a Gift

The problem in the Corinthian church, to which these three chapters turn our attention, was the matter of "spiritual gifts". Some of the church members had some rather spectacular gifts like working miracles or speaking with tongues; others were good at administrative jobs, and so on. Everybody with a special gift was inclined to look on his own as a mark of God's favor, something that set him "a cut above" other Christians.

All these people combined to despise the poor ordinary run-of-mine Christian, who in Corinth (as in your own home church) had no special gift at all. Coming out to church once a week and staying awake, was about all that could be expected of him.

Paul points out, in effect, that every Christian has SOME gift of the Holy Spirit. Well, what about these church-goers who don't seem to have anything special about them? Paul would be asked "No one can say 'Jesus is Lord' except by the Holy Spirit," Paul says. Now that is the mark of all true Christians, that they accept and confess Jesus as their Lord. Every child, every new member, from the humblest unskilled worker right up to the President of the United States, on entering full church membership is required to acknowledge Jesus as Lord. Now, says Saint Paul, whenever that is said sincerely, there is evidence of the work of the Holy Spirit. You may call this the Grace of Believing, or the Grace of Confession; whatever you call it, it is a gift of the Holy Spirit.

For the Common Good

There are two wrong notions, among others, about gifts of the Holy Spirit, against which Paul sets the simple truth. One of these notions is that gifts of the Holy Spirit are bound to be something sensational, miraculous, spectacular. On the contrary, the truth is that the Spirit's presence is shown by such simple things as confessing Christ as Lord, or teaching, or simply having faith. The other notion is that if I have a spiritual gift, something supernatural, direct from on high, that is a sign of special favor to ME; that the gift is mainly to benefit myself.

On the contrary, Paul points out, "to each is given the manifestation of the Spirit FOR THE COMMON GOOD." (That is the R.S.V. translation of verse 7.) Any gift of the Spirit is like money put into our hands to be used for some good cause; if we keep it, hoard it or use it selfishly, we are bad trustees.

One Spirit, Many Gifts

Why doesn't the coming of the Holy Spirit into people's lives affect them all alike? Why all the variety of gifts that Paul mentions? Well, the reason is not hard to see; all these gifts are needed, in the church and outside. But one thing Paul emphasizes is that there is only one Spirit, and that all spiritual gifts, even the "humblest," are divine gifts. No one has any right to look down on any other Christian, certainly not if the other Christian is using "for the common good" the gift God gave him. A man complained to D. L. Moody, a not too well educated but very successful 19th century evangelist, that his grammar was bad. "Brother," said Moody, "you've got plenty of grammar. What are you doing for the Lord with it?"

No one should read the 12th chapter of I Corinthians without reading straight on into the 13th, which brings all this to a point. No matter what a person's gifts may be - they can be miraculous as moving mountains - one and all, if there is no love in the heart the most gifted Christian is a Zero, no Christian at all. It is love that gives life to all else.

An intelligent plan is the first step to success. Planning is the open road to one's destination. If one doesn't know where he is going, how can he expect to get there?

They're here! Mr. Sithen and his helpers got here Monday morning and closed us in. There's a great big old wooden front around the front of our jewelry store, keeping all of you folk out. Don't you stay out tho, for we want you to come in thru the furniture store entrance. He got here just in time to keep our windows from getting all soaped up for Halloween. Are we ever dirty! It's about knee deep. I didn't know that three men could make so much dirt, but they can.

Come see us during this construction time, then you'll appreciate our store so much more when the work is all done and we are cleaned up.

Barney (that's Mr. Sithen) says that he'll be thru in less than three weeks. We want you folk to help us keep him on the job and see that it doesn't take any longer.

It takes just as much energy to hope as it does to plan.

U. S. Observes Second Civil Defense Week

Towns and cities across the nation participated in the second annual National Civil Defense Week September 15 thru 21, with President Eisenhower inaugurating the observance on radio and television.

This year's observance placed emphasis on the role of State and local governments in meeting both man-made and natural disasters.

Some 400 natural disasters are reported each year in the United States. Unfortunate though they have been, many have provided valuable training for government services for the same kind of emergency action that would be essential in case of an enemy attack on the nation.

To help spotlight National Civil Defense Week, officials of the Federal Civil Defense Administration set aside for special observances Sunday, September 15, in churches; Monday, in places of work; Tuesday, in schools; Wednesday, in clubs; Thursday, in cities and towns; Friday, in rural areas; and Saturday, September 21, for reviewing points stressed during the week.

Civil Defense Week 1956 was observed in some manner by 901 governmental units in 42 states and five territories.

FALLOUT FACTS

The possibility of injury from beta particles resulting from radioactive fallout may be reduced greatly by merely bathing and changing clothes, providing the clothing and water itself have not been exposed to fallout.

Even a cellophane wrapper, if unbroken, can prevent food from being contaminated by radioactive fallout, according to the Federal Civil Defense Administration. Radioactive materials may be washed off the cellophane, allowing for safe use of the food.

New Booklet Tells Fallout's Farm Effects

Radioactive fallout could blanket almost any farm area in the United States if the nation were attacked.

To meet this new threat to the nation's farm families, livestock and crops, the U. S. Department of Agriculture collaborated with the Atomic Energy Commission, the U. S. Public Health Service and the Federal Civil Defense Administration in producing a new booklet called "Radioactive Fallout On the Farm" (Farmers' Bulletin 2107).

Not everything is known about fallout. But much of what is significant to farmers is written in brief, non-technical language which they will find right to the point.

How do you protect, feed and water livestock in a fallout area, which is usually undetectable by human senses? What foods and crops would be least contaminated by fallout, and thus more edible and marketable after attack? Could cropland and rangeland be made useful again after fallout contamination, and if so, how?

These are just a few of the questions which are answered for the nation's food producers to the best of available scientific knowledge. Similar survival information is included on how the farmer may protect himself and his family from fallout.

Copies of the booklet may be obtained at 10 cents each from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C.

UPENDED AFTER SECTION was all that remained intact of an unmanned U. S. Navy airship which was cruising more than five miles away when a recent atomic test device was exploded in Nevada. The remains of the forward section are on ground at left. Among the experiments conducted during the current Nevada atomic series, called Operation Plumbbob, are tests of nuclear effects on shelters, doors, vaults and buildings which could serve civilians in time of attack. (NTD-Lookout Mountain Lab Photo)

New Rearch To Aid U. S. Fallout Defenses

Radioactive fallout studies underway at the University of California's Institute of Engineering Research will aid progress toward a nationwide system of radiological defense which would include rural areas where fallout is the chief threat.

Under the sponsorship of the Federal Civil Defense Administration, the research program, called Project Civil, includes investigation in several fields. Among these are studies in 11 western states on the most probable fallout areas after an attack and the likely radiation intensity of the fallout. Also included are the shielding effect of buildings and additional means of transmitting radiation readings.

Further Project Civil research deals with radiological decontamination, the medical effects of radiation on humans and a contemplated study of radiological monitoring instrument requirements.

UPROOTED RESIDENTS of the Hurricane Audrey disaster area are evacuated to less exposed places where shelter and food are available. Mobilized government and civil defense forces played a vital role in such rescue and evacuation movements, while the Red Cross concentrated on caring for the personal needs of the refugees. Comets Drop Double-Overtime Thriller, 58-56

For the second Friday in succession, the Riverdale Comets engaged in a thrilling basketball court battle, this one going to a double overtime. However, the ending was not a happy one as was the case a week before when the Comets downed Butler by one point. Last Friday evening at the Waterloo gym, the Waterloo five came out on the long end of a 58-56 score, the winning bucket coming as "sudden death" after the two teams had battled to a tie in regulation time and had continued to a tie at the end of the first overtime period.

Both teams had held 4 to 6 point leads in the second half before the Comets appeared to sew the game up as Larry Coplin drove in for a lay-up to make the score 54-49 with only a couple of minutes to go in the game. He was fouled on the play, thus giving an opportunity to extend the score. But in the excitement of his drive-in shot, the noise overwhelmed the whistle of the second official who caught Don Donat committing a foul as Coplin drove in. This nullified the basket and the foul on Waterloo and turned the score back to 52-49. Waterloo thereafter tied the game up to send it into overtime. Donat fouled out on the play that broke the Comets' back.

The second overtime ended quickly as Waterloo got the tip, got the first shot and got the first two points.

GAME NOTES—If any more Riverdale games give as much excitement as the first two, for safety's sake it might be a good idea for fans to take a physical to make sure they are in good shape. - Attendance was better for this game with seats rather hard to find. - Scoring in the first quarter was phenomenal, almost 100 per cent accurate with both teams hitting on long shots, Gerald Lothamer hitting particularly well for the locals. If the scoring had continued at a pace similar to that up to the first time out period called in the first quarter, the final score would have been something like 96-88. The writer fails to remember who would have won. - The foul on Donat really hurt as he had been rebounding somewhat spectacularly during the game. When he fouled out, the Comets visibly missed his height. Though it was a disappointing call on him and fans might have felt justified in howling as they remembered the officiating in the game a week before, the referee who called this one is a veteran who has worked many games, and if he said there was a foul on the play, there must have been one.

Low Bids Taken For Township Fire Truck

Walter Morr, Concord Township trustee, and the township advisory board, including Ralph Keeler, Bill Sible and Frank Sechler, accepted low bids Monday evening on the purchase of a new fire truck and fire fighting equipment for the township. The meeting was held at the town hall in Saint Joe at 8 p.m. Also present were members of the fire department, including Chief Andy Monroe, Mose Yeiser and Ted Haberkorn. Derwood Ridgway represented the town board.

Specifications were recently advertised for the new equipment and bids were received Monday evening from four firms interested in furnishing the fire truck chassis and from two firms who bid on the equipment. The low bids were presented by Auburn Auto Sales of Auburn who offered to furnish a Ford truck chassis according to the designated specifications for a price of $2608.12. The low bid for the equipment came from the Howe Fire Aparatus Company of Anderson, Indiana. The bid was $6395.00, for equipment according to the advertised specifications. After further discussion with a representative of the Howe Company, during which the suggestion was made by the representative that the width of the bed be reduced from 84 inches to 70 inches, the change was made resulting in a reduction in the bid of $445.00, making the accepted bid for the equipment a total of $5950.00.

The bids were as follows:

CHASSIS

Antwerp Sales, Antwerp, Ohio, (Ford) $2693.30.

EQUIPMENT

Richmond's Machine, Montpelier, Ohio, $6749.00.

Delivery of the new truck complete with equipment installed is expected in two to three months.

Child Behavior Director To Address PTA

The November meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. will be held next Tuesday evening November 19, at the high school gym in St. Joe. The meeting will start promptly at 7:30 p.m. DST.

Of interest to all residents of the community will be the subject chosen by the speaker for the evening, Miss Louise Brumbaugh. Her topic will be, "Why Don't They Learn," and will describe the methods used to help students who for certain reasons cannot or will not learn as rapidly as their classmates and, therefore, present a problem within their age group.

Miss Brumbaugh is director of the Bureau of Research and Measurement of the Fort Wayne Public Schools. She served for 10 years on the State P.T.A. Board, 6 years as Mental Health Chairman and 4 years as Exceptional Child Chairman. She also has done some part-time teaching in the Purdue University Center at Fort Wayne and last summer taught on the campus of Indiana University at Bloomington.

Scholastically Miss Brumbaugh has earned A.B. and A. M. degrees at the University of Illinois and has over 100 hours credit since then at Columbia University, New York University, The University of Chicago, Indiana University and The University of Wisconsin.

In carrying out the duties of director of the Bureau of Research and Measurement, Miss Brumbaugh sees about 1000 children individually every year who present learning, behavior or personality problems to their teachers and-or their parents.

Because Miss Brumbaugh's appearance in St. Joe is of interest to everyone, an invitation is extended to the entire community to attend Tuesday night's meeting. Included on the program will be entertainment by the 5th grade from the elementary school at Spencerville and the Junior Class from the high school at Saint Joe.

Funeral arrangements were not yet complete at this writing. Her body will arrive at the Hurley Funeral Home in Hicksville sometime Friday morning. Mrs. Walt was the mother of Olen Waltz of Bluffton and Harold Waltz of Chicago. Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Ira Hook of Rt. Saint Joe.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sechler enjoyed several days' traveling last week through southern states.

Clair L. Foust, 65, of near Hicksville, father of Donald Foust, former pastor of the Saint Joe Church of Christ, died Tuesday in the Community Memorial Hospital at Hicksville where he had been taken Monday following a heart attack. Services will be conducted at 2 p.m. Friday in the West Milford Church of Christ with his son, William Lower of Fort Wayne and Lloyd Turnbull of Hicksville officiating. Burial will be in Six Corners Cemetery.

Mrs. Lela Northrup entertained a group of ladies to Tuesday dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hull called on the Ray Moore family Sunday evening.

Thieves Enjoy Second One 'On The House'

The D&H Tavern, located at the east edge of Saint Joe, was burglarized the second time in recent weeks last Wednesday morning. The thieves took an estimated $45 in cash.

Harry and Dick Loucks, proprietors of the tavern, said the tavern had been locked at 1:15 a.m. Wednesday. The burglary was discovered when the building was opened Wednesday morning.

Entry was gained by breaking a window pane at the south side of the building and reaching in to release the lock. A cigarette machine was pried open and an estimated $38.25 taken from the cash drawer on a pin ball machine. Nothing else was molested.

CENTER OF FAITH

Lesson for November 17, 1957

Where is the center of Christian faith? What is it that if we don't believe, we can hardly believe anything else? Every one would agree that the center of Christian faith is Christ. The religion called by his name is not by any means firts of all a philosophy, a collection of ideas, a system of thought, a set of rituals. It is first of all a Person, and then it is the lives of other persons who have been touched by this Person. But what is central about Jesus? His virgin birth? His teaching? His cross? His character? Nowhere in the New Testament is his birth mentioned except in two Gospels, so we have no reason to say that the early Church considered his birth, or the manner of it, highly important. His teaching is referred to in most epistles, but only in a rather sketchy way. We have to go back to the Gospels to find what Jesus taught. Much stress was laid on the cross by the early Church, but even this takes second place.

Central for the Church

In the Greek New Testament, in the part outside the Gospels - that is, the part that contains the early Christian preaching and teaching - there are 11 specific references to Christ's cross and nine to the crucifixion - a total of twenty. On the other hand there are eight references to the resurrection of Christ, and the expression "God raised him from the dead" or equivalent phrases, will be found 32 times - a total of forty. From the data we have in our New Testaments, therefore, we can say that the resurrection loomed twice as large, in the mind of the early Church, as did the crucifixion. Paul in his Corinthian letter uses the words meaning "of first importance" about Christ's crucifixion and resurrection; but he dwells on the resurrection at much greater length, as any reader can see for himself.

Central for Faith

Consider what the situation would be if Christ had not risen from the dead. In the first place we should not have had the Church. It is on record that the disciples forsook the crucified Jesus, but the risen Christ drew their strongest and undying loyalty. It was the resurrection that changed a band of timid men, even cowards, into the beginnings of a mighty army to overspread the earth.

Someone asked a French statesman what it would take to start a new religion. Very simple, said the old man. Just get yourself crucified and then rise from the dead!

If Christ had not risen, what would be remembered of him? Some of his teachings very likely; but there would be no essential difference between him and other teachers of the past. If Christ had not risen, we might have admired his thoughts and the way he expressed them. The risen Christ challenges more than admiration - devotion. More than once in the New Testament the resurrection appears also as the one single event more than any other which carried the first Christians' minds to heights of faith.

His Life and Ours

Men did not arrive at belief in Christ's deity by pondering the crucifixion, rather by meditating on the resurrection. It is the resurrection that gives the crucifixion its meaning.

Besides all this, it is clear in the New Testament that the resurrection of Christ is our best way of understanding what our own destiny will be. There is a great deal we do not understand about this. Not all the New Testament together answers all our questions. But Paul sees the Easter story as so important that if it had not happened our whole faith is vain. Furthermore, the best reason for believing that death will not make an end of Christ's people is that death did not make an end of him. If he went on living, changed yet the same, so we may believe that after this present life is over and our work here done, we too, in ways of which only God knows the secret, will go on living, changed - bearing "the image of the man of heaven" - yet still our very selves with the weakness and the darkness gone, imperishable and victorious, sharing his conquest of death.

Around the Town

With the Editor

It's been long-time-no-see for Leo Gaff who is resuming the evening mail route run. Leo has had a rough time of it for the past several months, having been severely burned early this year necessitating prolonged hospitalization for skin-grafting.

Now he's back on the job. It must get in your blood - the mail must go through.

What keeps things perkin' in a small-town community is things like the fish fry the Legion sponsored a couple of weeks ago. It sorta keeps a little life in the place. We could use more such activities, just to keep in practice.

Legion members admit they didn't make any money - they had to repair the windows in the Legion home broken by who-knows-who. And there was little left in the till after that was done. But I guess they had fun doing it - and they definitely had deee-licious fish that night.

It doesn't take long.

As I conversed with Butch Dunten Monday in his store, he was opening candy, gum, etc., boxes to put on the shelf. One of them contained satellite bubble gum. The previous bubble gum creation was some kind of atomic deal. I suppose that was the kind that blows up in your face.

I suppose the next thing will be Parrots or Eckrich replacing their hot dogs with muttniks.

Two old coon hunters were swapping tall stories about their dogs. "Why," said one of them, "I had a yaller hound oncet and every time just before I went hunting I'd whittle out a board in the shape of a coon hide stretcher, just to show him the size of the one I wanted, then I'd set it outside where he could see it. Well, sir one day my wife set the ironin' board outside and that critter ain't come back yet!"

Local News

A pick-up truck driven by Homer Deventer of Spencerville and a car driven by Kenneth Coburn of near Saint Joe collided at the right angle curve in state road 1 at the west end of town Tuesday afternoon. Both men escaped injury. Damage to the truck was estimated at $200 with $100 damage to the car.

The Butler city council has passed an ordinance awarding the franchise for natural gas distribution in that city to the Northern Indiana Fuel & Light Co. of Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Walt Bilcer and granddaughter of Fort Wayne spent Sunday in the Ray Means home.

Mr. and Mrs. Hagan Collins and son, Dennis were Saturday evening guests of Henry and Helen Ferguson of Saint Joe. Hagan enjoyed a good coon hunt with Henry. All are planning a trip down south at Christmas time.

Mr. and Mrs. James Clauser and son, Gary, of South Bend and Mrs. Larry Liechty and daughter, Dianne Kay, of Berne were Friday supper guests of the Clauser family. Mrs. Liechty and daughter remained over the week end.

Funeral services were held Wednesday for the 3-day-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Akey of Spencerville. The baby was born prematurely on Sunday and died Tuesday. Services were held at the Walter Funeral Home.

Driver license suspensions include that of Earl James Ewart of Auburn, 1 year for drunk driving.

The Universal Co. of Butler is sponsoring a Record Hop this coming Saturday night, November 23, to be held at the company's recreation grounds. Invited to the hop are students at Riverdale, Butler, Hamilton and Waterloo high schools. Walter Weaver of radio station WONW in Defiance will be the master of ceremonies.

Mr. and Mrs. Merl Guilford and Mr. and Mrs. Don Keller were Sunday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Means.

Miss Helen Carr and Mr. Evern Davis of Toledo spent Tuesday with Mrs. Lillian Buckingham, this being their annual indoor picnic day.

A single performance of Bizet's "Carmen" will be given by the New York Opera Festival on the stage of the Fort Wayne Civic Playhouse on Thanksgiving eve, Wednesday, November 27, at 8:30 p. m. The performance will feature a cast, chorus, corps de ballet and orchestra numbering 75 of the finest young singers, dancers and musicians in America today. Headlining the cast are Charles Curtis as Don Jose and Maria Russo as Carmen.

The International Live Stock Exposition opens November 29 for a 9-day run through December 7 in the International Amphitheatre in Chicago.

Marlyn Funk of Concord Township has filed a complaint in the DeKalb Circuit Court seeking a limited divorce for five years from Orville Funk. She alleges that constant strife in their home has resulted from his cruel and inhuman treatment. She accuses her husband of being indifferent to his marital duties and obligations and complains that he refuses to live with her and the children. The couple married December 25, 1949, and separated October 18, 1957.

Funeral services were conducted Nov. 14, at 2 p. m. for Mrs. Pearl Richmond, 72, of Newville, wife of Omo Richmond. Mrs. Richmond died at 8 p. m. Nov. 11 of complications from a stroke of paralysis. Harry Farrer, pastor of the Newville Church of Christ, officiated at the services. Burial was in Newville Cemetery.

3 Hurt, One Seriously, In 2-Car Collision

Mrs. Phyllis Fackler, 18, of Saint Joe was seriously injured at noon Monday in a 2-car collision northwest of Saint Joe at a narrow bridge just west of the Wabash Railroad underpass. Mrs. Fackler was riding in a car driven by her husband, Roger, 19. The couple were driving east in a 1955 Chevrolet when they approached the bridge. He saw a car operated by Darwin Baker, 18, approaching and attempted to brake his car. As he did so the car went into a skid on the wet blacktop. Baker told police he accelerated his car to clear the bridge before Fackler's vehicle entered the narrow span. The Baker car slammed broadside into the right side of the other auto and the impact threw Mrs. Fackler through the windshield onto the pavement. Both vehicles were demolished.

Mrs. Fackler and the two men were taken to an Auburn hospital for treatment. Mrs. Fackler suffered a sever head injury including an 8-inch laceration on the top of the skull, chest and back injuries and shock. Fackler was treated for cuts and bruises on his face and body. Baker sustained a cut over the left eye and bruises. The woman's condition was still listed as serious on Tuesday.

Wolf Lake Drops Local Five, 54-49

Larry Coplin dropped in 24 points and Gerald Lothamer accounted for an even dozen, but the remainder of the Riverdale Comets' squad could muster only 13 points among them as the locals dropped a 54-49 game at Wolf Lake last Friday evening.

The game was not as close throughout as the previous two encounters with Butler and Waterloo. However, the closing minutes brought a closer game than the final 5-point spread indicates. The Comets pulled up to trail at only 51-49 with a minute or so remaining. Wolf Lake tallied a bucket and a free throw as the game ended to take the win.

The prelim was also won by Wolf Lake.

GAME NOTES—The parking lot in front of the Wolf Lake gym was a mess. About 3 inches of "gravel" (it looked more like sand) had been applied and heavy rain made a sea of dirty walking. But this inconvenience was overshadowed by their bright building and gymnasium. It created an atmosphere of "Coliseum" dimensions. — A grand total of 3 points were scored in the first 3½ minutes of play by both teams. — Coplin showed his usual willingness to shoot and his usual accuracy when he does shoot. He dropped in basket after basket and had local fans not only cheering but shaking their heads in amazement. — A recognizable trait of Comet teams the past 2 years, this year in particular thus far, is the never-say-die attitude the boys show. A few quick baskets by the opposition and this team DOES-N'T fold, a tribute to the coaching efforts of Price Brookfield. The teams chant of "all for one and one for all" in their huddles just about sums it up. — Several long fielders in the second half by Prickett of Wolf Lake really hurt.

Sp'ville Man Dies In Crash

Robert G. Edgar, 27, of near Spencerville, was killed at 5:15 a.m. Monday when his car skidded into the path of a tractor-trailer auto carrier on state road 427 4 miles north of Fort Wayne. Officers investigating the accident said the 27-year-old truck driver for Seyfert Food Products of Fort Wayne apparently lost control of his 1953 Ford on wet pavement when he rounded a curve and the wheels dropped off onto the berm. The car skidded broadside into the path of the truck operated by Joseph A. Reynolds, 48, of Detroit. Reynolds was treated for lacerations on his forehead and left hand. Edgar died of a fractured skull and other multiple injuries.

Edgar was married and the father of 3 children. The family resided in Fort Wayne until moving near Spencerville early this fall. Edgar was the son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fankhauser of Spencerville.

CULTURE CLUB

The November 6 meeting of the Culture Club was held at the home of Mary Lou Brookfield with Mrs. Mabel Sherritt as hostess.

The meeting was called to order by president Marian Furnish. The club commandments were given by the members and the pledge to the flag. Mary Lou read "One Little Secret for a Happy Life." for devotions.

The lesson was given by Marian Furnish on resources industries, trade transportation and principal cities of South America.

Marian showed slides on the lesson. Critic's report was given and roll call taken.

Business included a report on the book selected by Mrs. Mann, school librarian, donated by club and given in honor of Pluma Hamilton. Alice Reidenbach gave the report.

Brass Tacks - 7th In A Series

Disappointments are many in a prosperous nation. Oh yes, more people have more of everything. But the pursuit of beliefs which brought those plentious things can easily be forgotten when the money rolls around as it is these days. The disappointments are not for those enjoying to the utmost the fruits of apparent prosperity, however. The disappointments are for those who see comparable events in history, comparable prosperous times in the affairs of nations of the past, long past and unfortunately quite forgotten, events which led to ultimate decay, corruption and destruction.

It is strange that men who enjoy the privilege of expressing belief in God can so easily forget the life of principle which they presume to assume when expressing that belief. It is not possible for a human being to be sincere in his belief in the Almighty and live at the same time in belief of the almighty dollar. It makes it even more difficult to bring a message of freedom in one's whole life, pointing out the need for principles, when at the same time that life is not abiding by those principles.

There are many examples that could be taken from life in these United States of today to point out human failings - American failings, more specifically - that tend to blot out any mark of sincereity which might be contained in our broadcasting to the world the glories of principled freedom. The latest example to prick the balloon of principle is from events of recent weeks. When our "enemy" tossed an object into outer space, beating us and everyone else to the punch, our leaders reacted quite strangely, some of them at least. Here in the land of Christlan goodness, where people have other ambitions than for mere money (somehow that sounds funny), where people believe in the attainment of higher qualities of character more than in attaining higher sums of material wealth because they are a Christian nation and as such assume those higher ambitions, some of our leaders come forth with the disappointing fact that now we will have to spend more money for defense, or research, or whatever you want to call it. Whatever you call it, it means that the spiral of government spending goes on. Just because someone else has been first into outer space, we've got to spend more money.

This doesn't sound very principled. In the first place, isn't it significant that money, or more money, is looked to as being the cure for our "ills"? We're sick because the Russians did it first. Isn't it strange that this principled nation time after time takes comfort in another billion dollars for defense, that when we think we're behind in something, we toss another billion on the fire and we're all set?

In the second place, what about all the billions for defense we've been assessed for through taxation in the past? Did someone make a miscalculation when our efforts became directed more heavily toward things other than extended research into space travel? If so, why can't we pass it by as one of those things and realign our sights and continue on in orderly fashion? Why will it take more money for satellite research? We've been shooting off atom bombs right and left. We know pretty much of their destructive power. If those tests give more data than destructive results, the public doesn't know about it or how important it may be. If getting to outer space is so important, why don't we reduce the atom bombing and increase research in space travel? Surely we haven't been completely left behind in this category and it won't take a vastly new financial program to bring quicker results.

But then there is that old security we feel in money. If we reduce our atom bombing, we will surely leave ourselves open for somebody's Sunday punch. Does this sound appropriate - quote - it will endanger national security to reduce such spending at this time - unquote? We can hear it now. It's been heard before. It appears that it isn't how well we use the money, it's how much we spend that brings security. Does this sound very principled?

We wonder what reaction peoples of other nations show when they read of our proposed solutions to our problems. We wonder if the selling of freedom to others isn't made so difficult because - we aren't sold ourselves.

ASIAN INFLUENZA

Within recent months we have heard and read much concerning Asian influenza, its rapid spread throughout the world, and the fact that a vaccine is being produced as rapidly as possible in order ot prevent the pandemic - or world wide - occurence of the disease.

Outbreaks of this disease began to occur in Hong Kong and Singapore in April of this year and then, in rapid succession, almost simultaneous epidemics occurred in Taiwan, the Philippines, the Malayan States, Indonesia, Japan and India. Here in the United States we have already had reports on some 350,000 cases of suspected Asian influenza.

There are four major types of virus which are known to cause influenza. These types are indentified by letters of the alphabet, A, B, C, and D, and the Asian variety is considered to be a member of the Type A family. Scientists have discovered that within each type, there are several sets or strains of virus. Type A had produced three strains prior to 1957, including the one which apparently caused the 1918 world wide epidemic of influenza.

Each strain had appeared and vanished, and this pattern had occurred often enough (approximately ten year cycles) for investigators to expect it again. Reappearance of a Type A influenza virus occurred in May of 1957, when throat cultures of what is now called Asian virus A, were brought here by researchers from flu victims in Singapore. Within a matter of weeks, the type and strain were isolated, identified and manufacturers began work on a vaccine which would prevent the disease. This is one instance where vaccine was in production before we had any serious outbreaks of the disease in this country .... a real milestone in preventive medicine.

Despite the notoriety achieved by this Public Health Enemy, we must remember that "flu is flu" and the Asian variety is simply a new strain of the Type A influenza virus that has been with us for many years. Those who recall the 1918 flu epidemic in the United States should also remember that our position in 1957 can hardly be compared with the situation which existed at that time. Then - we had no advance warning. Today - with communications and transportation being what they are, we have advance information on the possibility of an influenza outbreak. Then - we had no preventive substance. Today - a vaccine is already in production, and is being used to immunize a great many individuals. Then - we did not have the great variety of drugs and antibiotics to curb the deadly complications, while to day we have specific drugs to deal with these harmful after-effects.

Influenza, as it has been pointed out, is not a new disease. It has been on record since the 16th century. It has been called the "Jolly Ramp", Gallions, and the Fashionable Illness. Deaths are infrequently caused by flu, and these usually occur in the very young and the very old. However, the flu epidemic of 1918 was an exception in that it seemed to be most severe in the young, healthy male. Deaths which occurred at that time were usually the result of bacterial complications, rather than the result of the flu virus alone.

Asian, and other types of influenza, are characterized by rapid onset, fever of 102 to 104 degrees, chills, muscular aches, running nose, dry cough and sore throat of three to five days duration. Reports indicate the degree of prostration is such that patients become bedridden within a short period of time. The fever generally lasts from three to five days, followed by general weakness for several more days.

Experience gained in the epidemics of the Far East indicates that the attack rate is approximately 20 per cent, with a death rate of about two-tenths of one per cent. Assuming an attack rate of 10 to 20 per cent in this country, this would mean that in a city of 1 million persons, there could be 100,000 to 200,000 cases. An attack rate of 20 per cent in Indiana would mean that approximately 900,000 persons might be ill of this disease.

For several years now, Indiana has experienced an increase in the number of cases of influenza beginning in October, and steadily increasing through the months of March and

April. If this condition prevails each year with a strain of the virus for which many individuals already have developed a natural immunity, it seems plausible to expect additional difficulties this year with a new virus strain having been introduced into the population.

A vaccine to prevent Asian influenza is now being produced by six manufacturers, including two Indiana pharmaceutical companies (Eli Lilly and Company, and Pitman-Moore Company, both of Indianapolis). According to reports from the U. S. Public Health Service, the six manufacturers have set a production goal of at least 60 million doses by February 1, 1958.

A NEW TWOSOME

Of all the widows in the town,
None seemed as dear as Cora Brown.
We both had walked the path of grief,
And only a companion would bring relief.
Our mates have gone to meet their God,
And each one, alone, our path we trod.
It seemed that it would be much better,
That we spend the rest of our days together.
We had spent our lives, each on a farm,
Born with a milk pail on our arm.
Loved our Lord, and nature too,
Want to go to Heaven when life is through.
We hope, on that other shore,
To meet our former mates once more;
And we'll have a foursome, yessirree,
Cora, her husband, Fern and me.

GERMANY AND PRIVATE ENTERPRISE
(Glenn Green dispatch from Europe.)

Frankfort, Germany.—Dear Dr. Benson: The events happening here in Western Germany, a wedge of geography about the size of Kansas reaching down from the North Sea southward into the heartcenter of Europe, are of great educational value to the world. This is the only major nation of Europe whose people are giving the private enterprise system an unfettered chance to work. And it is working miracles.

In less than 10 years the powerful incentives and dynamic impulses inherent in a private enterprise system have lifted Germany out of the rubble and stagnation of shattering defeat to an economic position far stronger and more promising than that of any of the socialistic European Welfare States which surround her. Thus here in the center of Europe is a dramatic lesson for all mankind - not from textbook, or classroom, or lecture platform, but in actual being.

The nations which have a common boundary and a war experience in common with West Germany - The Netherlands, Belgium, France, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Communist East Germany and Poland - all are socialistic Welfare States of varying degrees, with Socialists or Communists at the helm of their governments. In each case the living standard of their people is below that of the West Germans, the economic strength of each is low in comparison, and the promise that can be held out for the future is indeed dim compared to West Germany's.

I came into Germany by train from the north, down through the industrial Ruhr and into the Rhine valley. For mile after mile we traveled through industrial communities with thickets of tall belching smokestacks fanning far out into the distant landscape. The industrial concentrations along this main Ruhr artery were among the most heavily bombed by our big fleets of B17's and B25's - Dortmund; Essen, center of the biggest Krupp works; Dusseldorf, and Cologne. Evidence of the paralyzing destruction is everywhere. But the dominating sight today throughout the half of Germany I have so far seen is the rebuilding.

Cologne, queen city of the Ruhr, was 75 per cent destroyed, large sections of it flattened into smoldering rubble heaps scarcely more than 12 years ago. Cologne today is a bustling, thriving metropolis of 700,000. Where the destruction was worst, brand new streets have been carved out and whole blocks of new buildings erected. Throughout the city, draglines, towering steel cranes, bulldozers and construction crews work unceasingly. The surrounding industries were rebuilt first.

This is the picture too, in Weisbaden and Frankfort, both ravished by blockbuster and fire bomb raids. But it is in the industrial sections, out among the smokestacks, that the basic miracle of Germany's recovery has been performed. Ten years ago when a dazed Germany was sorely beset with out-of-hand inflation, widespread fear, desolation and hunger, two leaders arose to aid in the formation of a new German Federal Republic - Ludwig Erhard and Konrad Adenauer. Erhard became Economic Minister, Adenauer the Chancellor.

Both believed uncompromisingly in the advantages of private ownership and the competitive market; both coldly rejected the claims, the urgings and pressures of the Socialists.

The first step toward stability and reconstruction was an iron-fisted halting of inflation. Overnight a new Deutsche mark was issued and every monetary asset in West Germany - currency, coin, mortgage, private contract, etc. - was reduced by law to one-tenth of its former value. The only exception in the nine-tenths cut was bank deposits; they were reduced to 6.5 per cent of former value. This severe step stabilized the currency and put buying power in better relation to available goods. The second history-making move by the government was to give capital and private enterprise every possible aid and encouragement in building back the production establishments of Germany. Quickly production for export and domestic use began to create new wealth and now the wealth is literally building a new nation.

Not only the enterprisers but the wage-earning men and women of Germany, in large majority, have pitched in with enthusiasm. The less-than-10-year's results are amazing. Productivity - the rate of a factory worker's personal production - has set a thumping record in Europe; thus the wage increases that have come steadily have not been offset by rising prices. The living standard has had a whopping genuine improvement. National production today is four times greater than the post-war total! The recent election endorsement given by the German people should serve as further stimulation for sound progress. —G. G.

East Berlin, Germany (Soviet Zone) — Dear Dr. Benson: It is a shocking experience to come into this Communist-ruled city after having seen the teeming, thriving, rebuilding city of capitalistic West Berlin. Although they are parts of a dismembered original city, today they are two distinctly different communities, with Russian Communism's Iron Curtain separating them. One (West Berlin) symbolizes the lively progressive surge of freedom. The other (Soviet Zone) is a somber, chilling graveyard whose hollow-eyed, charred and gutted buildings stand like skeletons mocking the passersby.

At least that is the way this Communist-blighted place has affected me. I came into East Berlin by train from West Berlin. As we moved toward the Iron Curtain our coach was a normal hubbub of people talking. Suddenly the talking stopped. I looked around. The scene was erie. People had ceased talking to each other. They gazed straight ahead. Without moving his head, my German companion whispered: "We're in the Soviet Zone." People in the Soviet Zone find it healthier not to be caught talking to each other. You can't trust anybody. The Secret Police and their spies are everywhere, listening, checking up.

We walked from the station to Unter den Linden which 15 years ago was Berlin's palatial world-famed Avenue of State. Everywhere along our route was spread the bomb destruction and desolation; untouched, untended by the Communist bosses. The three or four buildings left standing in a mile-wide sector are now Communist Party headquarters. As we walked through the barren, silent Unter den Linden I saw Party functionaries peering down at us from these offices. We walked on - to the big Berlin amphitheater square where Hitler used to rant and rave as his Nazi hordes cheered. The Reds have renamed it Marx-Engels Place. The whole area today seems as dead and as old as an ancient Roman ruins.

A mile deeper into the city we came to one of the two main shopping centers - Alexander Place. Here we found a sprinkling of people on the street, most of them shabbily dressed. The shop windows were starkly barren; some were boarded up; only a few displayed merchandise and all of it was extremely shoddy.

On a grass plot in the center of Alexander square three women worked pulling lawn mowers, with improvised harness, like draft horses - men following behind, guiding the machines. On the other side of the square a section of the street was being paved. The workment were on their knees spreading the hot asphalt with hand tools. I sneaked shots of all this with my movie camera, then began worrying whether I'd even get out with it.

Further on we reached Stalin-Allee where the Communists have built tiers of tall, gleaming-white apartment bulidings with shops on the ground floors - "an example of what the new Communist world will be like." One of the shop windows displayed a cheaply-built settee which would sell in America for perhaps $75. The price, in East German marks, was displayed - the equivalent of six months' wages for the average East German industrial worker! Stalin-Allee is a sham. The cheaply constructed buildings are cracking, shedding their mortar. The shops have very little merchandise, very little merchandise, very little business. Communist Party functionaries live in the flats. The whole project is surrounded by slums, where the wage earners (who are supposed to be the chief beneficiaries of Communism) live in relative poverty.

From West Berlin my next dispatch will report on my interviews with three families who live and work in the Soviet Sector of Germany, behind the Iron Curtain. I have had rendezvous with them at different points in Germany. Several millions of their fellow countrymen in East Germany have escaped to the West. Now the stream of escapees has about dried up. The older people, and the people with loved ones who won't take the chance, are remaining behind the Curtain. And the Reds have managed, with many special favors, to keep some of the young generation pacified.

West Berlin is a small island of freedom completely surrounded by the Soviet Zone. East Germans who manage to get to West Berlin still are prisoners, for Soviet uniformed police stand guard and have charge of passports at every transportation terminal in West Berlin. To slip out of West Berlin in a northern or southern or western direction would merely mean slipping into Soviet territory. Thus several hundred thousand Germans still live here in Soviet East Berlin, their lives completely directed by the Red Masters. In 12 years the masters have made scarely any genuine improvement in their city of rubble heaps and silent streets. It remains a chilling graveyard for human hopes. —G.G.

The Sputnik dog and other animals were arguing about who had the biggest litters. Some talked big about their twins and triplets, some bragged of a dozen. Finally, they asked the Lioness, who rather quietly replied, "Only one - but that one is a lion."

Quality is never an accident; it is always the result of high intention, sincere effort, intelligent direction and skillful execution; it represents the wise choice of many alternatives, the cumulative experience of many masters of craftsmanship.

Quality also marks the search for an ideal after necessity has been satisfied and mere usefulness achieved.

We here at Ort's shop the markets for quality products in jewelry and furniture. Occasionally, even the master craftsmen that we buy from make a mistake. However, when that happens, we are happy to make whatever corrections are necessary.

Our crew of efficient repairment are quite capable of giving you complete satisfaction on any adjustments they may have to make.

GIVING?

Lesson for November 24, 1957

Preachers talk too much about money, some people complain. It is very seldom that this complaint has good reason behind it. If you don't like a religion that talks about money a good deal, you'd better hunt up some other religion besides Christianity. Read the parables of Jesus and see for yourself what a large number of them have to do with money.

The Christian religion is a religion of love. Now love always involves giving. Selfish, tight-fisted "love" is a contradiction. Everybody would agree to that. The arguments or the misunderstandings begin at this point: WHAT IS GIVING?

Substitutes for Giving

There is really no substitute for giving, but people do try to run substitutes under that name. When time comes for a missionary offering, in almost any church you can hear some one sourly speaking: "Why should we give to people who never give to us? Why must it all go one way?" As a matter of fact, missionary gifts don't go all one way; but let that pass. The objection just quoted shows that the objector doesn't want to give, all he wants is exchange. But exchange is not giving. Here we are nearly at Christmas time, and all around us are people who talk about Christmas "gifts" when what they really mean is a Christmas exchange.

Another substitute something like this is investment. People talk about dividends from the mission field, they like to feel that by upping their contribution ten dollars they will get a dividend in the shape of one more soul saved. But the work, the true work of the Christian church, is not like that of a business. A railway can cut off a train that is not making money; but a church has no right to cut down a missionary's salary because he can't show as many conversions as the next missionary down the river. An old cripple who can never be cured is just as worthy an object of Christian giving as a crippled child who can be cured.

Prying It Loose

Parting with your money isn't giving it. If you are being held up and are relieved of your wallet, you don't take credit for being generous with bandits. If you sit down and write the government a large check about the middle of April, nobody can be fooled into thinking you are giving the United States anything; you are merely paying your tax. And maybe you wouldn't even do that if you didn't know it was a case of pay - or else. . . . And yet people in the church will take credit for being generous when they are only parting with money they'd much rather not part with. This is not to say that the church ever robs any one. But sometimes a church will assess its members so much a member. It will be known who pays and who doesn't, so the man pays; but he's really being held up, he is paying only because he can't help it. What has to be pried out of a man is never a gift!

True Giving

"Let all that you do be done in love," Paul said. This holds for giving as for anything else. In I Corinthians 13 Paul already had said that if a man actually gave away every single thing he owned, even if he presented his own body as a sacrifice to be burned on a great altar; but did this without love, it would amount to nothing at all. The love of which Paul speaks is not a natural thing, that is to say, without the Spirit of God this love cannot exist. Ordinary love is so different from this that the New Testament uses a different word for it.

There is an ocean of difference between "love"that demands some kind of return, some reward, some dividend, and love that pours itself out without even asking for return. Such love is a rare sight, you say? To be sure it is, and that is why true Christian giving is so rare. This is not to say that a church should run each of its contributors through a third-degree examination - "what was your motive?" - before it will accept a cent. But every church ought to be working to educate its people out of being exchangers, investors, prestige-grabbers, quota-fillers, Lady Bountifuls, into the joy of giving from pure Christ-like love.

Milton McGrath Now Mayor Of Florida City

Milton T. McGrath, former resident of Spencerville, was recently elected mayor of Eau Gallie, Florida, according to a news story sent to this paper by Mrs. Audrey Wade, mother-in-law of Mr. McGrath. The election was held Tuesday, November 12. An account of the election is carried in the Daily Times of Melbourne, Florida, with a two-column photo of the newly-elected mayor.

The story reads in part:

"Eau Gallie — Mfilton McGrath was unanimously elected Mayor of Eau Gallie at last night's city council meeting.

"James T. Chapman and J. William Woodson were sworn in as new members of the council.

"Mayor McGrath immediately named the chairmen of the various committees and asked them to supply the council with a list of their committeemen at the next meeting.

"The mayor requested and received approval of his suggestion that the City Attorney read all resolutions and proposed ordinances. City Attorney Charles Williams then read and the council passed a resolution delegating the First National Bank of Eau Gallie as the legal depository of certain city accounts, and another routine resolution empowering the proper officials with access to the city's safety deposit boxes at the bank. . . ."

Mr. and Mrs. McGrath resided at Spencerville until a few years ago when they moved to Florida to make their home.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Stanley Means Wednesday evening, November 6. Mrs. Carl Carpenter led the group in reciting the collect and pledge to the flag.

"Juvenile Delinquency" was the lesson given by Mrs. Allen Haller. The causes and cures of the juvenile delinquency problem today were well covered. Mrs. Weldon Shafer presented "Fifty Years of Protection" which consisted of reasons for the food and drug act and how it effects us today. Both lessons were most interesting and informative.

Sixteen members responded to roll call and Mrs. Ray Means was a guest. Mrs. Charles Krise was added to the emeritus members of the club.

Members were reminded of the next meeting which will be with Mrs. Walter Ferris of Hicksville, an honorary member of the club.

After adjournement, the hostess served refreshments.

We must take time, take pains, have a plan, form spiritual habits, if we are to keep our souls alive; and now is the time to begin! A man to whom religion is a reality, and knows what is meant by "the practice of salvation" keeps his balance, because the living center of his life is spiritual. He cannot be upset, nor shaken. The same hard knocks come to him as to others, but he reacts to them by the central law of his life. He suffers deeply, but he does not sour. He knows frustration, but he goes right on in his kindness and faith. He sees his own short-comings but he does not give up, because a power rises up from his spiritual center and urges him to the best.

—Joseph Fort Newton.

That is a beautiful portrait of the kind of person we'd all like to be, isn't it?

YEAR END TAX TIPS NUMBER 1

Act Now To Trim Your Federal Income Tax Bill

This is one of a series of four articles on federal income taxes. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Indiana Association of Certified Public Accountants

You still have time—but not much time—to do a little year-end tax planning and assure yourself of the best possible break when you file your tax return next April.

Millions of high, low and middle income taxpayers, realizing that careful planning of their financial affairs between now and the first of the year can pay off handsomely when the tax collector calls next spring, have already begun to establish those extra deductions and special exemptions that will reduce their tax bills.

You can do this too, but you must act no later than December 31

To alert you to the tax-saving steps you may be able to take before the end of the year, this newspaper is printing a series of articles prepared with the help of the national and state organizations of certified public accountants. These articles—if you keep them and follow their advice—can save you money.

Evaluate Income Prospects

If you are like most individual taxpayers, your goal at this time should be to level out income for this year and next year. Needless or careless bunching of income in either year can be costly. The sharp bite of today's progressive tax rates —which you can assume will be as high or possibly only slightly less in 1958—makes it much better to have an income of $8,000 in each of two years, rather than $6,000 in one and $10,000 in the other.

Taxpayers who are in danger of being whiplashed from one tax bracket to another because of wide fluctuations in their 1957 and 1958 income should act before December 31 to try to average out their taxable earnings. This can be done by careful shifting of income and deductions from one year to the next.

How to Shift Income

For example, if your two-year income estimate shows that your income for this year will be significantly higher than next year's, you should take immediate steps to throw as much income as possible from 1957 to 1958. At the same time you should speed-up the payment of all expenses that can be deducted on your 1957 return. By concentrating deductions in the higher year and switching income to the lower, you will keep your taxes for both years in the lowest possible tax bracket.

Should you be faced with the more desirable problem of a sizeable increase in your 1958 income, reverse this procedure — delay expenses and speed-up income if you can.

Timing income and deductions to gain a tax advantage is not too difficult for the millions of taxpayers who file returns on the basis of cash receipts and cash disbursements. "Cash basis" business and professional men can shift income by simply delaying or speeding-up the collection of accounts receivable near the end of the year. Salesmen and contractors can do the same thing by extending or closing deals that may be pending in November or December.

Farmers who operate on a cash basis can accelerate or postpone income by proper timing of the sales of their crops or livestock. While their income will be taxable in the year cash is received, the full costs of raising crops or cattle are deductible for the year in which the costs were paid.

Special Income Situations

There are special situations in which it can be advantageous to bunch income in a single tax year. For example, a husband and wife can file a joint return to gain the benefits of income-splitting. Should one of them die, the survivor may file a joint return for the year in which the spouse died and also for two succeeding years under certain conditions. Thus, a widow or widower may profit by throwing more income into this year and less into next if his or her spouse died in 1955, since the privilege of filing a joint return will be lost in all cases in 1958.

If you are planning to be married in 1958, remember that the income-splitting privileges you gain will act like a rate cut for you. At $7,000 of income, your taxes will be $240 less than if you were single, assuming that you take the standard deduction and claim only exemptions for you and your wife. For this reason, young couples planning marriage might consider postponing income from 1957 to 1958, while accelerating deductions from 1958 to 1957.

The Saint Joe News

VOLUME LXXII — ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. — Thursday, November 28, 1957 — NUMBER 48

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

Anybody want a couple of tickets for the livestock show at Chicago? They're yours for the using - just ask.

If Dick and Paula Roberts are seen casting glances of some sort - I can't think of the word - at the News Office occasionally, it's understandable. Only they know how many times they've answered the telephone in their home to be asked, "Is this the News Office?"

Printers are terrible people, you know, and they do the darnedest things - like printing the telephone directory with the News Office number listed in the yellow section as "26-52" when that number belongs to the Roberts household.

The News Office number is 2625 - it is listed correctly in the front of the phone book.

Well, at least I know SOME people read this paper. After the boo-boo I pulled last week, unthinkingly reporting that the Riverdale reserve team also lost to Wolf Lake, some sort of apology is in order I suppose because the boys won that game - and last Friday's - and this last Tuesday's.

Before many hours had passed last Friday, I had been informed no less than four times about the mistake. I suppose there were many more who wanted to raise the same protest - all members of the basketball team.

Sorry fellas.

Anne Beebe is being saved from getting clobbered by son Richard thru this item. She doesn't send in enough of them to suit him. So the News IS good for something once in a while.

Richard unexpectedly met Charles McCreery, formerly principal at St. Joe, at Gaithersburg, Maryland, where Richard is stationed. "Chuck" was evidently with a group making an inspection tour of the base and ran into Richard in the mess hall.

I hear from the boys that Billy Hablawetz is confined at home with rheumatic fever. He's been in now for a few weeks and reportedly will be kept inactive until April. That's a long time.

Got a cheerful greeting card laying around that you aren't using? Billy might like it.

Comets Split Pair, Win 61-51, Lose 64-57

The Riverdale Comets split a pair of games during the past week. They defeated Bellefountain (Hamilton) at Hamilton last Friday by a 61-51 score, then dropped a 64-57 contest to the Leo Lions at Leo on Tuesday evening of this week.

The reserve squad meanwhile won both of their games and now have a victory string of 3 straight.

The locals came from behind at Hamilton, trailing by a 26-21 score in the second quarter, to take a half-time 33-31 lead. They started off the third quarter with a bang pulling to 39-31.

The score at the end of the third quarter was 48-41 Riverdale. Bellefountain pulled up to within 5 points at 54-49 but the Comets again put on a scoring spurt to make it 61-51 at the game's end.

Larry Coplin ran into early foul trouble picking up 3 in the first quarter. Cliff Warstler took over scoring honors for the game with 15, followed by Coplin with 12. A balanced scoring attack helped to win with seven players in the scoring column, all with at least 6 points.

At Leo two boys named Willits and Garman made the difference as they scored 45 points between them to lead the Lions in victory over the Comets. Only two other players got in the scoring column for the Lions.

Leo led through most of the game, having leads of 11-6 and 20-11 before the quarter ended at 20-13.

The locals came within 3 and 4 points in the second quarter with scores reading 26-22, 29-26 and the half ending at 31-26.

The difference of only a few points continued in the third quarter, with Leo leading at 35-31 and 44-39. The third quarter score was Leo 44, Riverdale 40.

Leo's acuracy in shooting was particularly effective in the final period. After the score read 48-44 with the Lions out in front, they pulled out to a 9-point 54-45 margin. They led still by 9 at 62-53 before the final 64-57 score was posted.

The Comets again had a balanced scoring attack, but it just wasn't enough.

The seconds won handily as they jumped to a 15-4 first quarter lead. The Comet sputtered in the second period, however, and Leo closed the gap to 20-15 at the half. The locals were missing badly on lay-ups to help Leo's cause.

The Riverdale team came out with a bang as the third period started and they ran the count to 30-15 before their opponents could score. The third quarter ended at 33-21.

The final period was marked by excellent team play on the part of the Comets. Scores in the final frame were 39-29, 46-34 and the final 48-35.

GAME NOTES—After goofing on the Wolf Lake reserve victory, reported as a loss, perhaps the writer should keep quiet with one statement offered: "I WAS there." — The seconds were really hot at Hamilton and doubled the score on their rivals in the third period. — The gym was crowded at Hamilton with seating capacity as limited, or more so, as it will be when the Comets play at Saint Joe on December 6 — The band was practically sitting in spectators laps', or spectators in the band's laps. — In the Leo reserve game Jerry Vinson was a spark plug, his first and third quarter appearances obviously making a big difference in the attack. — Teamwork in the 4th quarter made it appear that the second squad all have split vision - one eye on the bucket and the other looking for an open man. — Leo's accuracy in the second game hurt Comet chances. The Lions in the 3rd quarter and the final frame were shooting from outside and hitting. The locals were content to work the ball around, though behind by 9 points, then couldn't find the range when they did shoot. — Larry Friend helped with a relief job in the second half, getting 4 buckets from close under. — About the time it appeared the Comets were going to start rolling and overcome that persistent 4-point deficit, the Lions cooled them off with a bucket or two.

On This Day

The turkey on the table, the bright and perhaps new clothes worn by members of the family as they gather around the table to enjoy the Thanksgiving dinner, the bright and perhaps also new autos parked outside the family home of Mom and Dad, the comforts and conveniences and luxuries which all enjoy as they gather together on a festive occasion, all these things themselves, each one, are reasons for Americans to be especially thankful. With the revelations of the past few weeks concerning exploration of the universe, indicating the progress of science, the frequent revelations of improved ways of doing things, the general advance in man's seeking out greater knowledge in all things, it is necessary to be thankful ever more and at the same time to be conscious of a greater need for wise use of this expanding book of knowledge called living.

It would be perhaps more convincing to the Almighty if men were more consistent in their thankfulness with more than a day's enjoyment of a big dinner and a bowed head to give brief thanks. These short times of reverent prayer, these special days which have come to be so significant, actually become less significant in the light of our use of the things which have been placed in our hands. A highly spiritual life is not one which uses one day a week to be more thoughtful of Godly revelations, nor one which uses a few occasions throughout the year to be particularly reverent. A truly spiritual life is one which utilizes every living moment, as much as is humanly possible, to be an example of those high standards which have been given to man as representative of a God-fearing and God-loving individual.

If men and women, young and old, of this nation are really sincere in their thanksgiving, they will also use Sunday worship as a means of thanksgiving. They will use seven days a week as a means of thanksgiving. They will live as a means of thanksgiving.

FROM BEHIND THE IRON CURTAIN

MUNICH, GERMANY — Dear Dr. Benson: At places in West Germany which I shall not identify I have interviewed people from three families who are working and living today as virtual prisoners of the Communists in the Soviet Zone of eastern Germany. They all are Germans, and they detest the life they are obliged to live under Communist rule; but for various understandable personal reasons each feels impelled not to try to escape.

I met each of them at a different location. All talked for a time freely and frankly. Then in each case fear of the possible consequences caused them to cut short the interview. Even a suspicion by the Communists that they had "talked" would result in their being labeled "Enemy of the State," and this could mean imprisonment or even death. Therefore, with their permission I will quote them; but carefully conceal their identity and place of residence inside the Iron Curtain.

The first interview was with a person whose family resides in an East German city. We'll call this person Number One. Number One said that living conditions had grown worse in the last three years. Meat, sugar, butter and some other food staples are rationed and money is scarce. I saw Number One's ration card issued by "The German Democratic Republic" for a month. It permitted purchase of 3 pounds of meat for the month, if the meat were available, and the purchase price was at hand (which it seldom is). The month's ration in sugar was 2 pounds 10 ounces.

"Like the meat ration, the butter ration doesn't matter," Number One said. "It costs $2 for nine ounces when available, but seldom is it available." Children rarely see fruit, a family rarely has fresh vegetables. An off-brand coffee is $2.50 a pound -"and horrible." A quarter pound bar of chocolate costs $3.50. Clothing for children and adults invariably is hand made at home. Shoddy cloth for a suit costs $5.80 a yard.

The work week is from 45 to 50 hours: Number One's wage is 28c an hour. "We have to work a 10 hour day to buy a pound of coffee," said Number One.

The family's sustaining diet is made up largely of potatoes, bread and soup.

The Communist regimentation is oppressive and sometimes frightening, said this person whose family nevertheless must continue to make the most of its tragic plight.

From Number Two I learned some facts about farming in Communist East Germany. Most of the farmers fare no better than the city people. The Communist officials openly dislike small farmers who resist collectivisation. Number Two said: "They give the small farmers norms to fill, and when they produce above the norms they can eat what's left. But few can meet the high norms! If they can't meet the norms regularly, they can't eat regularly, and the State takes the property.

"If the small farmer persists in continuing his individual operation, the Government will see that he does not get feed, seed and fertilizer sufficient to reach his norms . . .

"A neighbor of mine kept laying hens. The Government set a norm for egg production. Lice got into the hen house and killed some of the hens. But still my friend had to fill the norm. The friend bought sufficient eggs from a neighbor to reach the norm, but the friend had to pay 40 fenigs each for the eggs, and the Government took them for 9 fenigs each. My friend had to give up. . .

"Meat is not available to Germans in East Germany because the Russians take all the beef production, take it up to Rostock (East Germany), take out the best quality for Russian use, then can the remainder and distribute it through East Germany under Russian labels - and at prices nobody except the Communist bureaucrats can afford. The Russians have bled East Germany of its resources and money."

Number Three said: "There is no political freedom in East Germany. In the voting places, there are booths for 'secret' balloting. But nobody uses them. The voter is given a ballot with a list of the Communist candidates. He votes the straight ticket - or next day he and his family may disappear. Whole families have disappeared after one member of it had voiced opposition at a meeting. The police come in civilian clothes, say: 'Come, you are wanted.' The whole family must go. That's the last of it. If free elections were held, not 10 per cent of the people would vote for the Communists. . .

"Unless a person in East Germany has good political recommendations and is active in the Communist Party work he can't expect to get a good job. . .

"In my city the Russians have not cleaned up and rebuilt the heavy bomb damage. They use it as propaganda. They point to it and engender hatred against America and Americans - saying the bombings were ordered by America over the objection of Russia."

C.G.

—Dr. George S. Benson, Director, National Education Program, Searcy, Arkansas.

THANKSGIVING

At Thanksgiving time there is much to say,
When you live in the good old U.S.A.;
We have freedom of worship, freedom of speech,
And plenty of food within our reach.

The Lord has blessed us with wealth untold,
And all that he asks is, we come into his fold.
Why shouldn't we be thankful for this wonderful land,
With hill and valley and mountains so grand.

Our enormous cities, with factories there,
Bring laborers reward beyond compare.
So let us remember on Thanksgiving Day,
To thank the Lord for our U.S.A.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday School Lessons
BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Background Scripture: Philippians 1.

Devotional Reading: Philippians 1:3-11.

FULL COURAGE
Lesson for December 1, 1957

Some of the best of the Bible was written in jail. In fact the Bible was mostly written not only about but by and for people in trouble. When Saint Paul wrote his famous little letter to the church at Philippi, he had been in a Roman prison for some time. If his trial went against him, he had nothing to expect but a death sentence. He was well along in years, too; just at the time of life when a man welcomes comforts. Paul had to get along without them. Paul needed the prayers of his friends, the help of the Holy Spirit. But he was also confident that with this help, he would honor Christ "with full courage," whether in living or in dying

Never Easy

It is almost never easy to stand up and be counted as a Christian. Easy enough when nothing is involved; but when being a Christian gets one into trouble, or even laughed at, that's different. The people these days who need our prayers and deserve our honor are the Christians in countries behind the iron curtain. We sometimes may think they are not as good Christians as they ought to be, but they are better than some of us would be in their circumstances. Take a high school boy in East Germany, for example. If he goes to church on Sunday, he will have to cut a youth meeting, set by the government at church time, on purpose. His absence will go on record; and when he applies for a job, or wants to go to college, he will find doors closed against him, because he was loyal to the church and not the government. You might think that going to church once in a week is not much of a "witness for Christ," but in a situation like that it is nothing short of heroic.

Everything Against Him

"Joining the church" calls for some stiffness of backbone, even in America. Young people who do it know that on the fence there is a gathering of vultures waiting for them to make their first mistake, commit their first sin, as church members - waiting for the chance to make fun, to say "I told you so." But it takes even more courage to confess Christ in a country where Christians are thought to be unpatriotic, and Christianity a "foreigners' religion." It takes most courage of all in a fanatic world where a person who becomes a Christian runs a risk of being killed for it.

Paul would understand this, for he had everything to discourage him. On the outside of his jail there were some "Christian" preachers who had their knives out for him, character-assassins as they were. And inside the prison, all the company Paul would have were other prisoners and Roman soldiers - no very sympathetic congregation! Yet Paul went right on being a Christian and speaking a good word for Jesus. It was a situation that had everything to dishearten him. Many another in the same fix would have thought: What a glorious testimony I can give when I get out of here!

God Brings the Best

We know (from Romans) that Paul had wanted very much to visit Rome and preach there. But he hadn't the slightest ambition to go to jail there. He was eager to give a Christian witness; but it hadn't occurred to him that God would provide for him a very small church and a mighty unpromising congregation: a church house no bigger than a jail cell, a congregation mostly criminals and prison guards. And yet - faced with this, he made the brave best of it, and was actually happy over it. God knows best; he brings the best out of the worst situations, the least likely people.

For one thing, the Gospel had made its way, only a beginning, but still a real start, in circles that would have been very hard to crash from the outside. The Praetorian Guard was made of hard men; but they were beginning to catch on to the Gospel. Timid Christians, one suspects outside the jail as well as in, were lifting their heads, catching the contagion of Paul's courage. And suppose the death-cell is ahead? Paul is not afraid. In death as in life, Paul says, "I shall not be at all ashamed."

How To Plan Federal Income Tax Deductions

This is one of a series of four articles on federal income taxes. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Indiana Association of Certified Public Accountants

By waiting until after the first of the year to decide whether to itemize your deductions or take the standard 10-per cent deduction, you run the risk of losing your greatest tax-saving opportunity.

When you are forced to take the standard deduction because your deductible expenses are less than 10-per cent of your adjusted gross income, you literally "waste" your expense deductions, for tax purposes. Don't let this happen to you every year. Plan your expense outlays so that you go over the optional 10-per cent deduction occasionally. This can be done by pyramiding two years of actual expenses into one.

For example, assume that you expect to have an adjusted gross income of $7,000 for this year and actual deductible expenses of about $600—or $100 less than what you would be entitled to deduct if you took the standard 10-per cent deduction. Not included in your actual expense estimate, however, is $250 in state taxes and $100 in home-loan interest charges that will have to be paid in 1958 but which can be paid in advance.

Beat the Standard Deduction

If you act quickly and pay these expenses before December 31, you can bring your total allowable deductions for 1957 up to $950. By itemizing deductions this year and taking the standard deduction next year—when your actual expenses should be somewhat less because of what you have prepaid—your total deductions for both years will be approximately $1,650. Had you taken the standard 10-per cent deduction in both years, the total would be only about $1,400.

A salaried worker who has difficulty finding enough deductions to make itemization worthwhile might consider carrying the pyramid plan one step further. He could set up a system of "lending" and "borrowing" year-end items that would make it possible for him to throw three years of deductible expenses into one.

Timing Deductions

You can begin your own three-year pyramid by postponing payment on as much 1957 deductible expense as possible and planning to take the standard deduction on this year's return. The expenses you have postponed—or "loaned"—will increase your 1958 deductions, and in the final months of 1958 you can "borrow" from 1959 by speeding-up the payment of deductible items.

As a result of your pyramiding, you maximize your expenses for 1958 (when you should be able to beat the standard deduction by itemizing), and minimize your deductible items for 1957 and 1959 (when you will take the standard deduction and waste your actual expenses). The general rule to follow when you are trying to make the most of your actual expenses is: keep outlays as low as possible in the years in which you take the standard deduction and pyramid them as much as possible in the years in which you itemize expenses.

Pyramid Medical Expenses

Most taxpayers need look no further than their family medical bills to find a deductible expense that can be pyramided to gain a welcomed tax advantage. The section of the tax law governing the deductibility of medical expenses states that unless you or your wife will be 65 years old by January 1, 1958, you may deduct only those medical expenses for 1957 in excess of 3 per cent of your gross income.

If you find that you are near or over the 3 per cent minimum and you are going to itemize deductions this year, you should pay as many of your medical bills as possible before December 31. And since medical expenses can be deducted only in the year paid (but cannot be prepaid), you might even consider speeding-up and paying for the dental work, eye examinations and general physical check-ups your family will otherwise be having in the early part of 1958.

Taxpayers who had low medical expenses for 1957 should reverse this procedure, postponing the payment of their year-end medical bills until after the first of the year. In this way, they may be able to exceed the minimum requirement in 1958 and to gain a benefit from a payment that would otherwise be lost on their 1957 return.

Plan Premium Payments

The premiums you pay on your health, accident and hospital insurance policies can be deducted as a medical expense—so plan your payments accordingly. To give you greater flexibility in the shifting of medical deductions from one year to the next, you might arrange to have these premiums fall due in January.

As we enter the Thanksgiving season, we are reminded of the fine thoughts of others, as expressed in their writings, of how thankful we should be for all our blessings.

Lillo said, "When thankfulness o'erflows the swelling heart, and breathes in free and uncorrupted praise for benefits received, propitious Heaven takes such acknowledgment as fragrant incense, and doubles all its blessings."

H. W. Beecher said, "Pride slays Thanksgiving, but an humble mind is the soil out of which thanks naturally grows. A proud man is seldom a grateful man. For he never thinks he gets as much as he deserves."

Isaac Walton said, "God has two dwellings: one in heaven and the other in a meek and thankful heart."

We say, "Thank you for being such nice people and such good customers. You continuously make our cups of joy and thankfulness fill to overflowing."

We Probe the Mystery of Lightning to Help You Live Better . . . Electrically

I&M research engineers are constantly searching for ways of improving service to customers under all kinds of weather conditions. Among research projects currently being carried on is one concerning lightning, the mysterious element which occasionally plays havoc with electric transmission lines during unusual storms. This research project, which is being conducted by engineers from I&M and the other companies in the American Gas and Electric System, the General Electric Company and the Ohio Valley Electric Corporation, has as its objective the study of the characteristics of lightning. With the help of specially designed instruments, researchers record lightning strokes up to one-millionth of a second. These measurements of the rate at which a lightning stroke builds up to full power will help find ways to prevent lightning damage to high-voltage equipment, thus eliminating the possibilities of outages.

This lightning-research program is but another way I&M is continually striving to improve the dependability of your low-cost electric service so that you may continue to live better . . . electrically!

MARTIN SCHMUCKER WRITES BEST FIELD TRIP REPORT

Members of the Future Farmers of America at Riverdale High School were recently given an assignment of writing a report on a field trip taken by the group under the direction of the vocational agriculture instructor, Mr. Russel Guinther. The following report, written by Martin Schmucker, was judged the best report submitted.

Agriculture Field Trip

On Thursday, October 31, we had a field trip to Wauseon, Ohio, to see the new solar poultry house. There were 27 pupils on the bus, and most of them were from the Freshman and Sophomore clases, although there were three Seniors that went along. We took Mr. Goldsmith's bus, and Mr. Guinther drove it. He got Mr. Witt to go along with us, as he has poultry.

When we got there, we saw that it was a rather large building, 235' by 30'. It had large windows along the south side to allow sunlight to enter in the winter. The windows were made with double panes with an inch air space between the panes. This served as an insulation, keeping the house warm in the winter. There was also an overhanging roof over the windows to keep sunlight from entering in the summer.

Inside we saw the automatic feeders and waters. There were 2 feeders along each side of the central portion of the house about 10 ft. from the windows on the south and 10 ft. from the laying nests on the north. There were 2"x2" 's for roosts by each feeder. There were only 2 watering troughs in the house. These were below the feeders. Beneath the roosts was a manure pit which had an automatic apparatus to clean out the manure daily. It carried the manure outside on an elevator, which disposed of it into a manure spreader.

On the north side were the laying nests. Inside each was some padding, with a plastic screen over it. The eggs would roll downward to a collection compartment, and then the egg gatherer could easily gather the eggs. The egg baskets were upon hooks, which were attached to a track. These hooks carried the egg baskets, which could be pushed from one end of the house to the other.

The house also has ventilators which take out the moist air thus leaving the litter loose and dry.

The cost of this house, with all the power choring equipment and everything, is $33,000. Such a house can house 5,000 laying hens, all of which can be taken care of by one man.

After we left the poultry house, we went to the Lugbill Packing Plant at Archbold, Ohio. We watched the employed workers kill and butcher steers and hogs. They used a knife to kill hogs, which were hung up by their hind legs. The steers were shot and were also hung by their hind legs. Then they were allowed to bleed, thus keeping the meat from being bloody. There were several men working here and they were all busy. Some of the men killed the animals, while others skinned and cleaned them, packed the meat, and drove refrigerated trucks.

The stockyard was connected to the slaughter house, and several of us went into the yards and looked at the cattle, hogs, and sheep. We also watched an auction, which is held twice a week. While we were there, they sold sheep, the highest price being 22c per pound, and the lowest price 15c per pound.

Leaving the packing plant and stockyard, we went to the Yoder and Frey Implement sale yard. Because it was almost time to start home, we all stayed inside of the bus, and Mr. Guinther drove around the yard. It contained all kinds of farm machinery and equipment.

After we left this place, we came back to school. I think we had a good trip and that everyone enjoyed it very much.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS OF ADDITIONAL APPROPRIATIONS

Notice is hereby given the taxpayers of Riverdale School Corporation. DeKalb County, Indiana, that the proper legal officers of said municipality at their regular meeting place, on 16th day of December, 1957, will consider the following additional appropriations which said officers consider necessary to meet the extraordinary emergency existing at this time.

SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club held its November meeting in the basement of the Lutheran Church in Saint Joe.

The club had as guests six homemakers of the Garrett Homemaker Demonstration Club.

The president opened the meeting leading members and guests in the club collect. Devotions were given by Carol Honsker, and Dorothy Chrisman and Connie Hollabaugh sang a duet.

Connie Hollabaugh read the history of the song of the month, and the song was read by the president. Roll call was answered by 15 members and 11 guests. Secretary's report was read and approved.

The club prayer was sung and the meeting was turned over to Maxine Harter, Gladys Akey, Sharon Bowser and Mary Ellen Beaty. A short skit, It May Be You, taken from TV, was very surprising to some members and guests.

Mrs. Kruse and her son, who is a magician, gave an entertaining act which everyone enjoyed. The two small daughters of Mrs. Eula Mansfield sang a song.

The refreshment committee served a delicious lunch and everybody had a good time.

This motto is inscribed over the doorway of each Shrine Hospital for Crippled Children: "No man ever stood so straight as when he stooped to help a crippled child."

James Russell Lowell in "The Vision of Sir Launfal" has this to say: "The gift without the giver is bare; who gives himself with his alms feeds three - Himself, his hungering neighbor, and Me."

As we approach the Christmas season such thoughts as these seem to prevail in our minds. We are sure that whatever we do or give during the Christmas time, only the gifts with the proper thought and love accompanying them will be worth receiving.

Gifts need not be terribly expensive to be appreciated. We have amassed a great selection of gifts for you to select yours from.

We have a little catalog just crammed full of unusual gift items, and most of these gifts are on our shelves right now! If you haven't gotten your gift item catalog yet, stop in for it. Uptown, please.

Naturally, since we employ the heads of ten families, we are glad to sell the larger or more expensive gift items, also, to those who want them.

Whatever your needs, may we see you? Thank you!

YEAR END TAX TIPS NUMBER 3 — More Tax-Saving Deductions And How To Time Them

If you are one of those individual taxpayers who is constantly being collared and dollared for charitable contributions, you may save money by paying particular attention to the timing and planning of your year-end donations.

Before paying-off on any more 1957 pledges you might have made, remember that you will not receive a tax credit for your charitable contributions unless you itemize deductions on your return. You can't take the standard 10-per cent deduction and a special deduction for donations to charity. You may take only one or the other; so plan your year-end pledge payments accordingly.

Planning Charitable Gifts

If you will be forced to take the standard 10-per-cent deduction this year, your best tax move would be to defer payment on your outstanding pledges until after January 1, pyramiding them into 1958 when you may be able to itemize deductions. However, if you have had a better-than-average income year and are trying to bunch itemized deductions on this year's return, you should pay not only the pledges you have made but possibly the pledges you would ordinarily make in early 1958.

Here is an important point to keep in mind as you plan your year-end pledge payments: a charitable contribution will be considered paid —and therefore deductible—in the year when the check is delivered to the charity and not when it is actually cashed.

Property Donations

A gift does not have to be in cash to entitle you to a charitable deduction. It can be in property, and since you can claim a deduction for the full market value of a property gift, it may actually pay you to give away items that are now worth more than they cost.

For example, suppose that you own a few shares of stock that cost you $100 a few years ago. Today the stock is worth $150, and apparently fully priced. If you know you are going to be approached by a church, charity, college or the like for a sizeable donation within the next few months, you might consider contributing these securities before the end of the year.

By giving this property away, the organization you care to favor will benefit by receiving property which they may hold or sell, and you will establish a $150 charitable deduction for your 1957 tax return. Furthermore, you avoid paying a capital gains tax on the profit.

If you must dismiss the idea of giving away a piece of real estate or a block of stock within the next few years, don't overlook the opportunity of building up your charitable deduction by donating such "property" as used furniture, clothing, books and toys to a worthy charity. The value of these items is deductible, too.

Prepaying State Taxes

The state and local taxes which you pay are also deductible items that often can be pyramided to give a tax advantage. Some taxes that fall due early in 1958 can be prepaid to give you an additional deduction on this year's federal tax return. On the other hand, it may be to your advantage to delay payments until 1958. Be careful when you do this, however. You may incur a late payment penalty.

Farmer Tax Tactics

While businessmen and farmers can do everything that a salaried worker can do to cut their tax bills, they also have special opportunities to time year-end deductions.

A farmer, for example, who reports for tax purposes on a cash basis, can deduct his expenditures in the year paid. By purchasing his 1958 grain requirements in December, he can increase deductions on his 1957 return. If he borrows money to make this purchase, the interest paid on the loan during the year is also deductible.

A businessman, whose year-end tax plan calls for bunching deductions on this year's return, can time the sale of used equipment to establish loss deductions. For example, by selling a truck that has a depreciated value of $800 and a real market value of $500, a businessman may claim a tax credit for his $300 "loss." If he sells the truck before December 31, he can take this deduction on his 1957 return.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

WHAT CHRIST MEANS

Lesson for December 8, 1957

What does America mean to you? Ask that question of a hundred Americans and you will get some lame answers, and maybe some good ones. But you would say that the truest answers are not the lamest ones. What does Christ mean to you? Ask that question of a hundred Christians and you will no doubt get some lame answers. But let us ask the question of one of the greatest Christians who ever lived, the Apostle Paul. What Christ actually meant to him, he can mean to every Christian. His language may seem strange, but as D. G. Barnhouse says, instead of complaining about the New Testament vocabulary, wouldn't it be worth while to cultivate the experiences for which the New Testament would give us the right words?

"Christ Jesus Has Made Me" His Own"

The first and central point is, in Pauls' words (we follow the RSV translation), "Christ Jesus has made me his own." We turn the thing around too much. We speak of "decisions for Christ." Paul had indeed decided for Christ; but that was never for him the main point. Christ had decided for him! He belonged to Christ by Christ's choice first: intimately, inseparably. With this go two other points. One (as Paul puts it) is the eager desire that "I may . . be found in Him." This meant that when God looked at Paul, Paul hoped God would see him in Christ. Paul is not any longer a separate, lone man, he is so truly in Christ that when God looks at him, he sees Christ. Along with that thought, and a part of it, is another: "not having a righteousness of my own, but that which is through faith in Christ, the righteousness from God that depends on faith." This is so opposite to what the ordinary person, all religious but ours, and indeed many Christians understand, and aim at, that it seems too strange to believe. But this is what Christ can mean, my righteousness. The true Christian character is not something built up by the Christian's own efforts and offered to God; it is something accepted from God. If it is true that when God looks at the Christian he seess Christ, he sees the Christian (as one of our songs puts it) "clad in His righteousness alone."

"The Power of His Resurrection"

Christianity is a supernatural religion. Any one who takes it for less is like a person owning an airplane who never fills it with gas nor takes it out on the runway; like a person who has a fortune in the bank but never writes a check. How often a Christian says to himself, "I can't!" - and he is quite right, as a rule. Much is demanded of a Christian that is impossible; which doesn't make sense till the Christian discovers that the answer ought to be: "I can't but Christ can." Paul not only here but in other places testifies that the same power that raised Christ from the dead is actually available to the Christian. It does not come all at once; Paul is expressing it as a hope only partly realized; but it makes sense - spiritual, supernatural sense if you must put it that way. A Christian can rise above his ordinary earthbound self, by the same power in which Christ triumphed over death.

"We Await a Savior"

Once more, Christ for Paul means the Savior, one who comes to his rescue. But while Paul can speak of having been saved, he can also talk of salvation in the future. The same Paul who cherished the phrase "This do in remembrance of me . . ." could also speak of "awaiting" a Savior. There are two great things part of what is meant by "salvation," which Paul expects Christ yet to do, in the future. They are closely connected. The first is that Christ will come to bring him and others to the "heavenly city" - the commonwealth the Christian has never seen but where his citizenship papers are already made out. The other thing Paul expects is to be changed: his "lowly body" is to be "like (Christ's) glorious body." Paul does not make this fully clear; he had not yet had the experience. This is the language of hope. But one thing is plain. For Paul, Christ is not only the Savior from sin, but the Savior from death. Paul no longer feared death, as he might have when a boy.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Mrs. Herbert Miller passed along a poem offered by Mrs. Lillian Buckingham who has been ill for the past few and unable to get outside herself to bring it to the News Office. We'll have to save it for next week's issue.

Town clerk Bill Hurni asks that whoever borrowed his water wrench please return it as it is needed.

—Must have some water that needs tightening.

We saw a lot of the family and heard of them last week on TV and radio. A niece of ours, Ellen Hall, was included in the group of school children who appeared "in class" on TV last week. And one noon as the man on the street program was in progress on WOWO, I thought a voice sounded familiar. It turned out to be Tom Hall (another one of the Hall clan) who not only has a distant connection with us (he is a brother of Esther's sister's husband) but also was a schoolmate of mine back in South Side High School in '41 and '42.

One of Tom's habits, as I remember, was to borrow lipstick from the girls to clean his glasses. One of the girls occasionally supplying the lipstick later turned out to be Mrs. Tom Hall. In the good old days she was Ruth Hageman.

One thing I liked about last week was that so many contributed items for the paper. That's one way I like to be snowed under - with items.

Richard Shook, who now resides over in Washington, D.C., stopped in last week and renewed his "contract" for The News for a couple of years. He's been back to Saint Joe a few times before but this was the first time we made connections.

Watch for the Boy Scouts. They're showing us how to do it - undertaking to raise $355 to purchase a resuscitator for the community. The Mom Scouts are doing their part by baking cookies which makes it sort of a family affair.

—Dad does the buying completing the cycle.

It's still a ways off, but you music lovers might be thinking about the date January 19. That's the date when the Fort Wayne Barber Shop Quartet chapter presents a program of song at the Civic Theatre. A great program has been arranged, including the 1957 International champions, the Great Scots, and two past International champion quartets, the Mid-States Four and the Schmitt Brothers.

Anyone who has ever attended one of these shows knows the quality of entertainment and harmony that is presented. This one ought to be a lulu.

I've got a few tickets if any one would care to get a good seat reserved right away. I guarantee you'll be satisfied.

Scouts Seek $355 To Buy Resuscitator

The Saint Joe Boy Scout troop, under the direction of Scoutmaster Frank Sechler, has embarked on a project of great interest to the local community. The young men in the troop have undertaken the task of raising some $355 to be used to purchase a resuscitator to be used in the community for public assistance by the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department.

In cooperation with the scout troop, the fire department held a special meeting last Thursday at the fire hall at which time the use of the resuscitator was demonstrated for members of the fire department and the scout troop. A representative of the firm which supplies the units used by many communities was on hand to give instruction on the proper use of the resuscitator. The units can be used for such emergencies as those encountered when firemen are overcome by smoke, sudden case of polio, drownings and other instances where breathing becomes difficult or stops.

The first project of the local scout troop will be the sale of homemade cookies made by scout mothers. Scouts will be selling the cookies this coming Saturday, December 14. Another project will be carried on at the same time, this being the sale of Christmas trees. It is planned to solicit for these sales also on Saturday. Money received from all projects in the next several months will go toward the purchase of the resuscitator to be turned over to the fire department.

The Riverdale Comet fans got a chance to see their team in action on their home floor last Friday evening and came away with smiles. The final score read: Riverdale 67, Salem Center 31.

Though the Comets won easily, the game was an odd-scoring affair at the start. In just under 4 minutes, both teams scored a grand total of 4 points at 2-all. The locals then opened the gap to a dozen or more points before they cooled and Salem began to creep up. The visitors got within 6 points at 21-15 before the Comets again caught fire and took leads of 20, then 25 points before running the spread to 36 points at the final 67-31 score.

The reserves won again and now have taken 4 straight.

GAME NOTES—Though the home team won, the game was not too exciting for 2 reasons: (1) the floor was too small, showing how in a few years time the syle and speed of the game changes; (2) Salem did not have an effective offense. Playing on the local court was a good way of showing school patrons the handicap not only in accommodating a crowd but in presenting an interesting game in a small gym. Salem was content for a good portion of the game to pass back and forth between the guards appearing not to have many plays mapped out on offense. Or else it was the small floor that hindered them. — Even though seating facilities are limited at the local gym, there appeared to be plenty of room for more fans. Some possibly stayed away fearing that no seats would be left for them. — The reserve squad had a romp in their game, everybody looking good on occasion and enjoying themselves greatly.

Program Of Christmas Music For Tuesday PTA

A program of Christmas music will be featured at the next meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. to be held Tuesday evening, December 17. The meeting will be held at the high school gym in Saint Joe.

Mr. Robert Lowry, music director in the Riverdale schools, has prepared a program featuring the band, chorus, brass quartet and soloists. The band will present several selections as will the chorus. The brass quartet, composed of Andy Crow and Ralph Noragon, cornets; Donald Noragon, french horn; and Wanda Holman, trombone, will play three Christmas carols. Priscilla Mayer will sing "O Holy Night" and Carol Baker will present "White Christmas" as a vocal selection.

A short business meeting will be held before the program of music is presented. Included in the business will be consideration or approval of projects suggested to the officers of the organization and reviewed at a meeting held Wednesday night of this week.

The community is invited to attend the meeting and enjoy the presentation of music for the Christmas season.

Meeting time is 7:30 p.m.

Ransom-Holman

Miss Gailanna Ruee Holman became the bride of Eddie Allen Ransom in a double-ring ceremony read Friday night in the Saint Joe Church of Christ. Rev. Donald Foust and Rev. James Beck officiated at the ceremony at 7:30 p.m. following a musicale by Mrs. Grant Strong, pianist, and Mrs. Dallas Zimmerman, vocalist.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron O. Holman of near Saint Joe are parents of the bride and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Ransom of Spencerville.

Miss Karon Holman attended her sister as maid of honor and Miss Wanda Holman, another sister, and Miss Andrea Carr were bridesmaids. Pamela Holman attended as flower girl and Cheryl Ransom, sister of the bridegroom, carried the rings.

Roger Ransom, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man with Tom Powell of Hicksville and Johnny Smith of Auburn ushering.

Assisting at a reception in the church recreation rooms were Mrs. Lloyd Dixon of Auburn, Mrs. Robert Musser of Saint Joe and the Misses Janice Mickelson of Hicksville, Nancy Barnhart of Auburn and Madeline Kess of Harlan.

The newly weds will make their home near Grabill.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vogt arrived Saturday from Schenectady, N.Y., to visit the Richard Fankhausers. Mr. Vogt left for Chicago Monday on a business trip while Mrs. Vogt visits her sister and family for a while.

This Saturday December 14, the Cub Scouts will have a paper drive. Please have all your papers ready and the boys will be there.

Mr. and Mrs. Clair Timberlin and son, Michael, were Sunday dinner guests of the John Weidners.

Mr. M. H. Hollabaugh represented Spencerville at the dinner sponsored by the Auburn Lions Club on Tuesday evening. The purpose of the meeting was to arouse the interest of the people in DeKalb County to the need for a new modern hospital.

Mrs. Agnes Baker was a recent all-day guest of Mrs. Edith McNabb.

Brass Tacks - 8th In A Series

Living in a small town is one of the joys of life. It is also one of the most exasperating and oftentimes disappointing "joys". As it is said, a small town is a place where everybody knows everybody else's business. This may appear to be true; Saint Joe'ers themselves probably have such an opinion. But a closer look might show that a small town is a place where many people THINK they know everybody else's business, and they tell their own acquaintances about that business, giving details that are oftentimes taken as complete truth but are mostly mistaken conceptions, misinterpretations or purposely or maliciously distorted reports of incidents.

It's amazing how many problems of other people many of us humans have solved in our minds and how easily we have made the solution. Right now we may be thinking of our neighbor or a friend just passed on the street whom we think needs a little advice on this or that problem which we happen to know all about, and we wish we could come right out and give him or her the solution. And the strange part is, at the same time we have a problem all our own which has not been solved. The standard reply would be: "Yes, but my problem is different."

How easy it is to analyze the affairs of others and know a better way for others to be acting, reacting, responding, etc. The sad part, in a small town, is that these problems become a matter of community knowledge rather quickly and, since everybody knows everybody else, it often occurs that a general opinion is made of a person or persons which is unjust and unfair. Generally speaking, people are quick to agree that you can't believe very much of what you see and even less of what you hear, but it is a most difficult task to live that belief. A self-test on this point would be: the next time something is "heard" about someone known in this area and the first time that person is seen thereafter, see if what was heard doesn't dampen the desire to say "hello" or even to look that person in the face. See if what was "heard" doesn't pop into mind and become the basis for a dislike of either permanent or temporary nature.

A lot of people are living under the condemnation of their neighbors because of what has been heard. And unfortunately many of those doing the condemning are those who should not be doing it at all, the ones who are quite church-minded and consider themselves Christians. We pick on church people in this instance because the first confession a Christian must make is that he is a sinner. Trouble arises on this point because the term sin is not taken as a general classification of all acts which violate the will of God but as a reference to certain acts which have been mistakenly considered to be more sinful than others. To some people, because the acts are more sinful, those committing them are less desirable than those who do not commit such acts; and certain so-called Christians then judge that certain other men are somewhat lower than they on the ladder of morality.

This community had occasion to witness some of this small town judging during the past summer. It was significant that the person involved will become an ordained minister within the next few months. Quite by coincidence at the time of his arrival the hearings on the opening of the local tavern were about to be held and the church, or churches, he served for three summer months became indirectly involved, and somewhat directly as far as he was concerned, in the "controversy" over the tavern because of the active anti-tavern participation of some of the members of his church. As a result of the dust raised during the ensuing weeks, during which the young man justifiably pointed out the teaching of his particular church with regard to what men do or do not do, a few tongues which did not like his actions caused many people to form an opinion of the young man that was far from complimentary. The tongues even went so far as to pass the story that the young minister-to-be "dedicated" the tavern with a scripture reading and prayer and asked to be served the first drink. We have no doubt that many readers scanning these lines at this moment heard stories about the young man and formed an opinion which was based purely on hearsay. It is unfortunate that in a matter concerning the church, when actions of Christians become a matter of record, a supposed Christian church in this small town spoke of one of its own in such debasing tones, said so much about entry into a tavern and paid so little heed to the work of the church done by the man while he served for three short months.

This tavern business is an interesting matter. For those who condemn this young man might as well condemn all men who enter such an establishment. There is nothing in Christianity which denies those preaching and teaching the will of God enjoyment of worldly pleasures with proper useage. Christians who condemn someone who drinks are mocking the faith they profess because they have singled out drinking - or smoking - or dancing - or card playing - as being "sin". Because these certain people do NOT do such things, they are quite sinless, in their opinion. It is not to them a matter of how much, but is it done at all.

A Christian is to abstain from that which is evil; man has unfortunately come to judge alcohol, among other things, as being evil in itself and has overshadowed the very first verses within the Bible which state that God created only good. If we are to conclude that alcohol is evil because SOME men abuse its use, then we must all, or most all, go back to travel by foot . . . do not SOME men abuse the use of the automobile, did not SOME men abuse the use of the horse and buggy in its day? And more significantly, we must all become forever silent, for do not all men abuse the use of their tongues occasionally?

What made the local situation more difficult after the past summer was that in this church controversy it was not the church that prevailed in spirit but the will of man. It would be unfair to go on like this picking on one local church, because there are other churches, close to Saint Joe and far removed from here, which occasionally have the same situation but different circumstances. And the difficulty comes from the unfortunate fact that many who appear to have one opinion in such matters actually have an opposite opinion, but they don't want to have any trouble or controversy in the church and therefore take no stand on what they really believe to be just and proper. In the local situation it was possible for the young minister-to-be to be called to serve but he was not called simply because he took a stand which he based on the teaching he had received in preparing for the ministry and he tried to live as he had been taught. He went a little further and attempted to be a leader for those whom he considered his responsibility by pointing out to them their responsibilities. As in other churches where occasionally the pastor is not afraid to preach what people ought to hear, such frank words were not acceptable to some and others went along with the non-acceptance. How many readers know of a church that released its minister because he did not preach what the people wanted to hear?

If there is one reason why there are not more people in church on Sunday in Saint Joe and everywhere else it is this - that too many ministers please the will of the people and go too lightly on the will of God. In this instance, where one small act is involved, the matter of drinking and a tavern, when the will of the people who judge their fellow men on such small parts of the vast area of living is allowed to prevail, many good citizens refrain from activity in the church because of this condemnation. It should be the purpose of a Christian to judge not his fellow man but seek to help him when temperance in anything has been cast aside. Can it not be said that those who condemn a person, minister or not, for going into a tavern or for taking a drink are themselves condemned, not by men but by the Almighty? Is not judgment reserved for God alone?

As we said some time ago, living in a small town is one of the joys of life. It can be exasperating and disappointing. A little more "temperance" in talk would go a long way toward putting joy in the over-balance.

GOOD EVENING

The Russians concentrate on teaching science to their children and are leading in the missiles race. Therefore, we should teach our children more science. That sort of syllogism makes sense to many Americans, but I prefer the same kind of syllogism which says: all Russians drink vodka, the Russians lead in the missiles race, therefore we should all drink more vodka. With more Americans drinking vodka it may not help us in the missiles race, but it will make a lack of logic in such as the above syllogisms more tolerable.

Presumably, the Russians don't include much, if any, logic in their educational courses. Logic is not science in the Russian point of view, which is the proper attitude for Russians to take, because if the Russians ever take up logic, Communism is done for, at least in Russia.

This present campaign to make the people of the United States appear to be illiterate savages and to make the Rusians seems like a collection of geniuses would be exceedingly funny, if not so tragic. It reveals the effectiveness of Communistic propaganda and an epidemic in this country of the sort of self-abasement which leads the Communists when in trouble to confess everything right back to Adam's yielding to the temptation presented him by Eve.

Uncle Sam is in need of a psychiatrist who would probably begin his treatments by saying, "Hey, Unc, pull yourself together. You're no dumbbell, your health isn't shot and you have money in the bank. Maybe you can't lick the whole world, but so far you haven't been licked in a war by anyone except by Chinese in Korea and it may have been that you were not licked there but betrayed at home. You're the guy that discovered atomic energy - remember? You're the fellow that developed the first atomic bomb and led in the world in all sorts of scientific advances. You've got muscles that you haven't even used yet."

I think one of our troubles in this country is that nobody thinks it necessary to run anything anymore, even the country. We have become so used to automatic machinery and automation that we think the country can be run the same way. We expect a bunch of automatic controls to start working in the White House as soon as a national trouble begins. Actually, no matter how automatic living becomes, there will always be a need for someone to take charge of things and run them, even the government of the United States.

If General Motors or some other big American corporation had been given an order a few years ago to build and launch a satellite, it probably would have been done on schedule, but being the kind of government we are, thank God, government is run differently. In Russia, the government has the same power to get things done that the General Motors Company has, but that same power can be used to destroy freedom when ti is used politically. A dictatorship is the most efficient institution known to man, if you are only thinking about having orders obeyed, but there isn't a dictatorship anywhere that can get a life insurance policy even at the highest rates. The mortality rates of dictatorships is worse than that of rabbits in a cornfield on a fall afternoon. Long after Russian kids start saysing, "Krushchev - who was he?", Uncle Sam will still be doing business.

"STILL CLINGING"

I was just reading an editorial by Mr. Curtis R. Frankart that was published in the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel a few weeks ago in which he said, "It is difficult to imagine anyone in this day and age still clinging to the Genesis account of creation." He holds the position that he was evolved (developed from an ape) rather than created by God.

I'm one, though difficult to imagine by Mr. Frankart, who still clings to Genesis 1:1 - "In beginning God created . . ." I might add that it is difficult for me to imagine an evolutionist saying that an automobile had to be created (made by somebody) and then deny that the world and mankind came into existence without a creator. How can they explain it?

Those holding to the theory of evolution argue that man, as he is today, is the descendant of the ape beacuse of structural similarities. The ape exists today. We can go to almost any zoo and see our "first daddy" in captivity. If we are descendants of the ape, then this makes him the more ancient of the two. This gives the ape a longer period of time to develop his resources, abilities, and achieve his man-like apehood. What progress has the ape made? He still stands today where his ancestors stood before him - grunting for speech. In short, he began as a brute and remains thus to this day. What about man? He may have begun by dwelling in a cave, using trees as his mode of transportation, eating wild berries of the field (still appealing to the appetite), and may have plundered as the ape, but what progress has man made in comparison to the ape? Having looked at both histories, what major difference is to be found? Isn't it intelligence? Both man and ape were created, not evolved, by God, but man was made in the "likeness and image of God" meaning that he is a reasoning, thinking, being with power to consider, choose, act and be progressive. Where is your "perfected ape"?

Outside of revelation one can't prove there is a God, but hasn't God revealed himself? His revelation is clearly seen through creation. As we read in Romans 1:20 - "For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse." We also read in Psalm 24:1 - "The earth is the Lords and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein." It's a true saying that "from nothing, nothing can come." If life only comes from life, from whence did first life come? In reply, Genesis 1:1 remains unshaken.

In former years, infidels on their deathbed admitted this truth. Voltaire in 1778 said, "I'm abandoned by both God and man. I will give half of what I'm worth if you will give me six month of life." Gambetta in 1882 said, "I'm lost and there is no need to deny it." Oh that others might awaken and turn from Darwin and evolution to their maker and redeemer. Yes, I'm still clinging! What about you?

—J. Paul Hill, Minister, Coburn Corners Church of Christ.

THE FREE ENTERPRISERS

Neu- Gablonz, West Germany — In this amazing little city on the doorstep of the Bavarian Alps southwest of Munich I have found a wonderful story and a mighty advertisement for private enterprise. Thirteen years ago the Nazi Panser divisions kept an ammunition dump here on a wooded knoll. Twelve years ago the U.S. Army swept in and took it. Eleven years ago, with the war over and a detachment of U.S. occupation troops settled at the dump, two bedraggled men walked into camp and asked to see the Commanding Officer.

The men were hungry and footsore. Their only belongings were a handful of personal effects carried over their shoulders in crude cloth knapsacks. They had tramped all the way from Gablonz in the Czechoslovakian Sudentenland, searching for a place to make a new home. The Army C.O. referred them to a refugee camp down near Landsberg, some 15 miles distance. But the two Czechs didn't want refugee camp life; they liked the looks of the country surrounding the ammunition dump.

The two men begged shelter for 14 persons in one of the unused frame buildings at the dump, and the privilege of earning their "keep" by day and working at their craft by night. They said they were decorative glass and jewelry artisans. They said they had 12 companions straggling on behind. They told the C.O. they wanted to establish an industry that "soon will be selling merchandise all over the world."

The skeptical American officer gave them shelter. Then he sought through Army channels to authenticate their story. It was true. For two cenuries Gablonz, in northeastern Czechoslovakia, had been world famed in the glassware and costume jewelry trade. It was a city of 25,000 highly skilled artisans whose products from several hundred small workshops were in great demand throughout the world. But Gablonz had fallen under the control of the Communists. And the Gablonz free enterprisers couldn't knuckle under to the Reds. One day the Communist militia came and drove the people from their homes and workshops.

The Gablonzers had to leave behind their priceless tools, their property, virtually everything they owned. Gablonz became a ghost town; its people scattered and fleeing westward toward freedom.

The U.S. Army Officer improvised housing and shop arrangements for the 14 Czechs. The industrious refugees earned their upkeep, and they began working at their creative art. Other Czechs from Gablonz came to the old ammunition dump. When the Gablonzers began to merchandise their wares, U. S. authorities helped a little with housing and leased them land space on the dump. The men borrowed axes, felled trees, hauled them and had them cut into rough timber for their expanding needs. In 1947, when the U.S. Army unit moved, there were four four firms of Gablonzers, working 22 people. The Army C. O. shook his head, unbelieving: the four firms were selling merchandise as far away as America.

Two years later many more Czechs from old Gablonz had arrived; there were by then 156 firms with 1,470 people working.

Today the ammunition dump has disappeared; so have the first crude buildings of the Czechs. On their sites the Czechs with loving care have built a model little city, one of the most colorful in the world. Neu-Gablonz has a population of 15,000 of which 6,000 are artisans working in more than 300 small shops. Other of the original artisans of old Czechoslovakian Gablonz have settled in adjacent Kaufbeuren. And there is a third Gablonz industrial community at Markt Oberdorf.

I spent a half day here, talking with Max Wabersich, one of the original bedraggled 14 who is now chairman of the Gablonz Industries Association; with some of the shop owners and artisans; and viewing the glittering array of jewelry and beautiful glassware. The Association's books were opened for me. These irrepresible enterprisers exported more than $25 million in products to 45 countries last year, about $8 million to the U.S.

"Free enterprise and our faith in our own ability have combined to build our new life and our new city," said Wabersich. Neu-Gablonz is a living testimony to the power of free

BROADER OUTLOOK WOULD BENEFIT P.T.A. UNITS

Most schools have a Parent-Teachers Association. Most groups are associated with the state and national organization of Parents and Teachers. The state and national headquarters, among other things, provide ideas and instruction which local chapters can follow.

Some teachers are quite bitter about the PTA and think schools would be better without these organizations.

A graying, sleepy man stands in front of a college library door. He says, "I am waiting for the library to open. I will be late to my graduate class but I must get an assignment done. Last week I was out six nights on PTA business."

A lady teacher writes: "I am a feather in the breeze. This new school has only a father's club. No PTA to bother me. No more foolish, silly meetings, No more long, drawn-out conferences about the merits of blue drapes or red curtains for my room. Oh, it is wonderful."

Another woman teacher says, "I was bone-tired when I got home. It has been a long hard day but I could not rest. There was a PTA carry-in supper and I had to get supper for my children then rush back. It was in our honor, but I didn't want to go. Don't the parents know we have work to do - that our evenings are full?

Such responses as those given above probably do not reflect the typical attitude of teachers. Teachers, however, do not feel, in most instances, any great wave of enthusiasm for the PTA. The teachers do appreciate work done by individuals and groups in the PTA, but they have mixed amotions about the value and necessity of the whole program.

Teachers probably might vote to continue having a PTA, but they would not attend meetings if they did not feel forced to do so. One personal observation I have made is that often the best workers in the PTA have far more to do than many of the teachers.

What do PTA organizations do? In spite of national and state direction the local units do so many different things that any general statement might be unfair and untrue.

If, however, one could describe a typical PTA, it might fit this description:

Membership, most women and mostly mothers of children in the first three or four grades. Meetings, dull - too much time spent on routine reports of other meetings attended, reports of secretary, treasurer, etc.

Program for year, some project which will involve buying something (generally in the form of material objects - radios for rooms, books for library, TV sets for auditorium, etc.) for the school. Money for this project to be raised by a carnival, dinner, etc.

School interest, providing services which someone has said will help teachers or children.

Important object (rarely achieved), to get better acquainted with the teachers and the learning program.

What should a PTA do? The following is suggested as items worthy of consideration:

1. Be more than just a mere money-raising outfit. Bring more men into the act and study local tax rates, loop-holes, ways to collect more taxes, ways to raise more money locally from taxes.

2. Be fair to administration and to teachers, but spend more time getting better acquainted with teachers as individuals. Don't be a part of a political machine for existing school administration.

3. Don't try to tell the school how to teach. Study the learning situation. Gather facts to refute wild charges that children aren't learning or that learning is perfect.

Set up study groups to identify both strengths and weaknesses in the learning situation. Recognize how silly it is for any PTA group to know nothing about the product being produced.

4. Don't feel so bound to state and national ideas and suggestions. All rules and ideas should be interpreted and carried out at the local level to fit local needs.

5. Don't spend a thousand dollars worth of time and effort on a 10-cent project or product. Subject everything in the program (including the meetings) to a searching question as to its necessity and its value.

6. Don't be an excitable group of extremists. Be calm, gather facts, and be conscious of your great power; power for good and power for evil. Remember that our schools constitute a very necessary and important part of our hopes for progress.

—Dr. Walter Manning (released by The Register and Tribune Syndicate, 1957.)

HELLO!

The boy rang the telephone,
And the girl answered, "Hello!"
And then he says, "My Dearie,
May I take you to the show?"

She answered, "I am sorry,
But you have called too late,
For just a little while ago,
I made another date."

"But please call again sometime,
And happy I will be,
When I open my front door,
And your face there I see."

WHY IT CAN'T BE DONE

If you are looking for reasons why "It Can't Be Done", here is a helpful list prepared by Bib Brownold of the Grey Advertising Agency:

1. We tried that before.
2. Our place is different.
3. Probably costs too much.
4. That's beyond our responsibility.
5. That's not my job.
6. We're all too busy.
7. It's too radical a change.

LIVE WITH JOY

Lesson for December 15, 1957

Nobody wants to be unhappy. The trouble is, people look in the wrong places, or in the wrong ways, for happiness. They look for it under the Christmas tree, or at the race track, or in the taverns, or in books . . . They think happiness is something you can pay for and pick up like a ticket to New York. Well, you can get short-lived happiness, of sorts, in many of these and other ways. But why is it that so many old people not only look sour but are sour? Isn't it because they are disillusioned about happiness? It's something they chased but never caught; or if they caught it they could not long keep it. Happiness is always the big fish that got away.

For Now and For Always

Realizing this, many Christians have worked out another scheme in their minds. They figure that happiness, or joy, is not to be had in this life, only in the next. Indeed some have gone so far as to believe that the unhappier you are in this world, the more happiness will be piled on your plate at the heavenly banquet. And so they will even go to a lot of trouble to make themselves as miserable as possible, like doing without proper food and clothes, wearing hair shirts and heavy chains around their bodies, so earning happiness in the future life.

All this is quite off the Bible's beam. The worldly man is right in thinking happiness is to be found here and now. The hair-shirter who wakes up at 3 A.M. to beat himself with a whip while he sings a mournful Psalm is right in thinking real happiness ought to be a lasting thing, proof against pain and disaster. But the worldling is wrong in thinking happiness is the same thing as "kicks" and that just anybody can have it, and the hair-shirter is wrong in thinking you have to wait for death to usher you to the land of joy. The Bible tells of true joy, and it is something for now and for always.

The Quality of Joy

Bible religion, especially when we come to the New Testament, is a religion of joy. The very word "Gospel" means "Good News". One of our Lord's final words was "—that my joy may be in you and that your joy may be full" (John 15:11). Paul, in writing to his friends at Philippi, was writing in circumstances which could hardly be cheerful. He was getting older and felt his age; he was not and perhaps never had been a completely well man; he was so poor he needed the help his friends sent him; and furthermore he was in jail. Yet it was precisely in those circumstances that he wrote the classic passage about joy, in Philippians 4, beginning "Rejoice in the Lord always."

A thing like joy never exists by itself. It is always in somebody. it is a name for the way some people are. So it can best be observed and studied not as if you could put it into a test tube or under a microscope. You can see what joy is by watching the people who have it. When Paul talked about love, and joy, and faith, people paid attention, they did not throw the letters into the wastebasket, because they knew he had lived these things before he wrote about them. They knew that in his life there was no fear, they knew that he had "learned the secret" in whatever state he was to be content.

How To Have It

Paul did not "have" joy as you might have a parakeet which you let out of its cage to play with now and then. He "lived" in joy, it was the atmosphere of his life. But with Paul, as with all Christians who have learned the same secret, joy did not come alone. The Christian's joy is a treasure beyond price.

If it is not the "joy of the Lord," it is not genuine. So it is always found only in those who have the Christian faith, and the Christian love. The selfish life, the loveless life, never can know what joy is. This is one great reason why true happiness - and the only true happiness is the joy of the Christian - cannot be found by chasing it. For the person who seeks joy for his own benefit is still selfish; and selfishness and joy are eternally strangers.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS OF ADDITIONAL APPROPRIATIONS

Notice is hereby given the taxpayers of Riverdale School Corporation, DeKalb County, Indiana, that the proper legal officers of said municipality at their regular meeting place, on 16th day of December, 1957, will consider the following additional appropriations which said officers consider necessary to meet the extraordinary emergency existing at this time.

SPECIAL SCHOOL FUND
B-8 Other Expense	$200.00
C-2 Medical and Dental Expense	150.00
TUITION FUND
B-3 Pay of Teachers	$600.00

Taxpayers appearing at such meeting shall have a right to be heard thereon. The additional appropriation as finally made will be automatically referred to the State Board of Tax Commissioners, which Board will hold a further hearing within fifteen days at the County Auditor's office of DeKalb County, Indiana, or at such other place as may be designated. At such hearing, taxpayers objecting to any of such additional appropriations may be heard and interested taxpayers may inquire of the County Auditor when and where such hearing will be held.

YEAR END TAX TIPS NUMBER 4

Steps That Could Save A Dependency Exemption

This is one of a series of four articles on federal income taxes. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Indiana Association of Certified Public Accountants

As you check over the list of people you intend to claim as dependents on your 1957 tax return, keep this phrase in mind: more than one-half support.

This is the test of dependency. Unless the money you have contributed during the year is enough to make up more than one-half of a dependent's living costs, you might as well cross that person off your list. He or she will not qualify as a dependent for tax purposes—and you will lose a valuable $600 exemption on your 1957 return.

Taxpayers with children who work part-time or during the summer should watch this angle closely. It's not how much your child earns during the year—it's how much he contributes to his own support. The law specifically states that a parent may claim an exemption for a child, stepchild or adopted child under 19 years of age, no matter how much he earned, provided the child depended on the parent for more than one-half of his support.

Bank Child's Earnings

Here is an important point to remember when you are trying to decide whether you have contributed the necessary amount: the money a youngster banks or invests is not considered to be a contribution to his own support costs. Check carefully to see how much of your child's earnings has gone for his support. You may find that it will save an exemption on the family return if you have him bank his earnings for the rest of the year.

Supporting a Relative

If you have helped support a relative during the year, see to it that what you have contributed is enough to permit you to claim an exemption for this dependent. For example, you may have paid approximately $650 of your mother's $1,400 living expenses. By contributing another $55 or $60 to her support before December 31, you can push the total over the more-than-half mark of $700 and gain an additional exemption.

Or if you shared with others in the support of a parent, take steps now to insure that one of you can qualify for an exemption. Make sure first of all, that your combined contributions were enough to total more than one-half of the parent's living expenses. Then, have all the members of the group that contributed 10 per cent or more of the parent's support sign Multiple Support Agreements, granting one signer of the agreement permission to claim the full exemption.

Claim All Exemptions

Exemptions cannot be juggled, shifted, bunched or pyramided to gain a tax advantage—but they can be overlooked. Be sure to claim all the exemptions you properly can, because each one reduces your taxable income by $600. Remember that to qualify for an exemption a dependent must:

(1) Have received more than one-half of his support from you, unless you file Multiple Support Agreements (which may be obtained at any Internal Revenue Service).

(2) Have less than $600 gross income for 1957, unless he or she is your child and under 19, or a full-time student.

(3) Not file a joint return.

(4) Live with you (absence while attending school does not interfere), or be a close relative as specifically defined in the official instruction book, or be a cousin receiving institutional care for a mental or physical disability who had lived with you before going to the institution.

(5) Be either a citizen of the United States or a resident of the U. S., Canada, Mexico, Panama and in some cases, a serviceman's child living in the Philippines.

If you are supporting dependents but are not able to file a joint return because you are unmarried, you may be able to qualify as the "head of a household" and be entitled to use a special schedule of tax rates that gives you half the benefits of income-splitting. In a situation where, say, a son lives with his widowed mother and shares expenses equally, the son may have to contribute a few extra dollars before the end of the year to qualify as the head of a household.

Each year millions of taxpayers put off filing their tax returns until the April 15 deadline. The last minute rush to avoid a late filing penalty produces not only long lines at Internal Revenue Service offices, but also many careless mistakes by taxpayers. Prepare your tax return carefully and file it early. Help is available from the I.R.S., which urges you to consult a properly qualified advisor if you need outside assistance.

According to James Bridge, county assistant agricultural agent, enrollment for all beef and dairy projects should be in the county extension office by January 1, 1958. Enrollment cards may be obtained from that office, extension leaders and 4-H leaders. Any boy or girl in the county who will be between the ages of 10 and 20 inclusive during 1958 is eligible to be in 4-H. However, only those who live on a farm and have the facilities to handle livestock are encouraged to take the beef or dairy projects.

Mrs. Amanda Klopfenstein of Grabill observed her 90th birthday on Wednesday, December 4, as guest of honor of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Klopfenstein at a surprise birthday dinner including members of her Sunday school class. There were 28 guests present. Mrs. Klopfenstein was again honored at her home on Thursday evening, December 5, with a surprise party at 7:30 p.m. Guests included close friends and relatives of Mrs. Klopfenstein. Out-of-town guests were Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Beams and daughter, Rebecca, of Fort Wayne. Hostesses for the party were nieces of the honored guest, Mrs. Ralph Klopfenstein of Grabill and Mrs. William L. CHRISTMAS

Anno Domini - 1957

We may not have a sputnik
And we may not have a mutnik,
And we may not have the pow'r to shoot the moon;
But 'mid all the omens baleful
There's a star still shining faithful
For 'tis Christmas; none can snatch from us its boon.

Let us have no fear or trembling,
Let us cease all our dissembling
And appraise in truth man's objects in the sky;
For despite sneers of the scoffers
They can never hope to offer
Aught so lasting as our trust in God on high.

—T. E. Haberkorn, Sr.

Around the Town

With the Editor

You sometimes wonder how some things happen.

Last week Margaret Chaney revealed that she found a very unusual item lying on the floor of her restaurant on Monday morning - the lowers to a set of false teeth!

"In the fall, why do wild geese fly south?" the teacher asked, and in seven words Bob Clauser solved one of nature's mysteries. "Because it's too far to walk," he said.

Doc Wills answered the call when Ed Hauke's wife was suddenly taken ill. He went upstairs to the patient's room. In a few minutes he came down to ask, "Have you a cork screw?" He took the cork screw and ran upstairs again. But several minutes later he was back down a second time. "Got a screw driver " he asked. And bounced upstairs again with the screw driver in his hand. Almost immediately he was back down again to call: "A chisel and hammer, quickly."

Ed couldn't take it any longer. "For heaven's sake, doc, what's wrong with Mary Ann?"

"Don't know yet," Doc Wills replied - "can't get my bag open."

Richard Musser, when in church for the first time, watched the ushers pass the collection plates. When they neared his pew, the boy piped up so every one could hear - "Don't pay for me, Daddy. I'm under five."

This item appeared in the papers this week - or last- with the headline - "This Could Get To Be Expensive."

"Baltimore, Dec. 13 (AP) — Pimlico truly lost money yesterday when it cancelled horse racing for the rest of the year.

"It refunded the price of admission to all those at the track when the program was called off. It found out it had given 300 more refunds than it had collected in admissions."

—You think you got troubles.

CONCORD JUNIOR HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Concord Junior Home Demonstration Club held its December meeting at the home of Gertrude Reinhart with Dorothy Simanton as co-hostess. The meeting was opened by the president, Ellen Fetters, then all the members repeated the club collect.

Devotions were given by Phyllis Uhlein. Betty Rediger gave the history of the song of the month, then all joined in singing the song.

Eighteen members responded to roll call and one guest was present. All enjoyed nice Christmas refreshments and an exchange which followed.

The next meeting will be on January 6 at the home of Dorothy Fetters.

Local News

Mrs. Carl Perkins, D. B. Ridgway and M. H. Hollabaugh are serving on a committee investigating the possibilities of constructing a DeKalb County hospital. A meeting was held December 17 at the invitation of the Auburn Lions Club which is conducting a preliminary survey of public opinion. The 9-man committee was appointed to continue study of the proposal.

The Christmas program of the Newville E.U.B. Church will be presented Sunday evening at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Marcel Pugsley suffered two broken bones in her hand Saturday night as she left the Angola gym following a Riverdale basketball game. The injury was suffered when she turned to speak to another person and bumped into a brick wall. The jolt knocked her down and the force of the fall as she landed on her hand caused the broken bones.

The Concord Methodist Church cordially welcomes the community to its Carol and Candle Lighting Service on Christmas eve at 8 p.m.

Mrs. O. E. Inlow and Irene, Mrs. A. D. Inlow and two daughters and Mrs. Paul Inlow and two daughters spent an afternoon last week in the Marvin Keppler home near Edgerton, Ohio.

Mrs. John Arrants and children and David Fergusen of Butler were recent callers in the O. E. Inlow home.

Bad weather held the gathering of parents and teachers to a minimum at Tuesday's P. T.A. meeting. During the business session, $60 was given to the elementary grades for purchase of indoor games. Richard Crow and Harold Kagey were appointed to complete the purchase of a mixer for the high school cafeteria. Other projects were discussed with no action taken. The music department presented a program of Christmas music to conclude the program. The January meeting will present a panel discussion based on questions to be submitted by school patrons.

The Culture Club met at the home of Lois Fisher on December 4. The lesson was given on Brazil by Virginia Laux. Business and roll call followed and the meeting adjourned. The next meeting will be held at the Pagoda Inn at Fort Wayne on December 18.

In a Bi-County Basketball Tourney, Riverdale will play Pleasant Lake at Fremont on Thursday, January 2, at 7:00 p.m. In one more game before the holidays the Comets face Ashley at Ashley Saturday night. Last week end they defeated Woodburn and lost to Angola.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Rinard of Fayetteville, N.C., are the proud parents of an 8 lb. 2 oz. son, Richard Erwin, born Monday, December 16.

Carl Carpenter will be heard on a tape-recorded interview on Saturday, December 21, at 12:30 p.m. The interview will be presented on radio station WOWO with Jay Gould asking the questions.

Little Terry Inlow, two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Inlow, was a patient in the Cameron Hospital in Angola on December 9 where he underwent removal of his tonsils and adenoids. The little fellow was also treated for a minor lung ailment at the same time.

The Christmas program of Mt. Pleasant E.U.B. Church will be given Monday evening, December 23, at 7:30 p.m.

DECEMBER

December is the best month of the year,
It brings a lot of Christmas cheer;
It brings Santa and his reindeer too,
And memories of Christ's birth to you.
So, let us be happy, merry and gay,
And spread Christmas cheer along our way.
If you listen, you'll hear sleigh bells jingle
And down the chimney will come Kris Kringle;
He'll bring some candy and a toy,
To every good little girl and boy.
But let us remember, God gave his son,
As a Savior for each and every one.

WHAT IS Christmas?

Christmas is many things. It is the biggest thing there is and a lot of little things, too. It is festive and sober, ancient yet always new. Christmas means reunion and communion with one's own. Still it is not Christmas, really, unless there is a reaching out also to all men everywhere. It is personal yet universal. You can see Christmas in the sparkle of youthful eyes, in the mist of older ones. You can hear it in gay carols and in sermons and in prayers. You can sense it in a thousand ways. You can do just about everything with Christmas but put it into words, for Christmas stems not from tongue or pen but from the heart. From the heart then—and taking thought for all the many things that Christmas is—may we extend our fervent hope that yours will be a reflective and a very joyous one.

The Bible Speaks

by Dr. Kenneth J. Foreman

Background Scripture: Philippians 2; Luke 2:8-20.

Devotional Reading: Colossians 1:15-23.

TO SHARE OUR LIFE

Lesson for December 22, 1957

The baby Jesus we have been seeing everywhere these days. His picture is on the greeting cards, songs about him are sung (mechanically for the most part) on every street. Fresh candles are lighted in front of his statue in many churches. Luke 2 is memorized in a thousand Sunday schools. Now that is about all some people ever see or think about Jesus. He is the baby we have to hear about once a year.

Christians know better than this. Indeed Christians from very early times never saw only a baby in the manger at Bethlehem. Here is no ordinary child, made romantic by the hardships of his birth. He is more than a symbol and example of the sweetness and helplessness of all babies in the world.

"Who For Us Men Became Man"

The Child of Bethlehem is THE event of all time. For this child is the Son of God made man. What men have often longed for, what poets have dreamed, what every man needs, here it is . . . only not as we expected. What we want is a God who is near us, nearer than heaven, nearer than Mount Olympus, yes nearer than the nearest temple. If posible - and who dared it could be? - we want God in human form. But what we might have expected is a very grand human figure, some super-man, born to power and majesty. What God has sent us is quite different: just a baby. A baby who cannot talk nor walk nor live without help, a baby born to displaced persons in the poorest if circumstances, with no very bright future likely. Yes, this is He. When God became man he came all the way. He came to share our life.

Sharing Struggle

Theologians say that Christ had a human "nature" and a divine "nature." The Bible seldom if ever uses such language. The New Testament just calls Jesus "He." Jesus himself called himself Son of God; he also called himself a man (John 8:40). The Nicene Creed, one of the most ancient and widely used creeds of the church universal, says that the Son of God "was made" (i.e. became) man. We can make this clearer to our minds if we simply say that Jesus shared our life. He shared it to the full, he identified himself with mankind. He shared the circumstances and the conditions under which all men live. We said just now that a baby born as Jesus would have no rosy future: and this was true of Jesus. His life was one of contsant struggle. In his boyhood it must have been a struggle with poverty; as he grew older he had to wrestle with temptation, with misunderstanding and hatred.

Sharing Suffering

Possibly not all human life is a struggle; but there is no man with lifelong exemption from suffering. We know Jesus suffered on the cross; we often forget that he was always a "man of sorrows and acquainted with grief." We do not read that he wept on Calvary; we do know that he wept at the death of a friend. We know the Pharisees hounded him to his death. We forget the times when he was nearly lynched by angry mobs. He knew a kind of suffering which is harder for a sensitive soul than physical pain; suffering of the mind and heart. This his mother misunderstood him, that his brothers did not believe in him, that he "could do no mighty work" at Nazareth, his own home town, because of their stubborn unbelief.

Bearing Sin

One thing Jesus did not share with us: sin. And yet even this he shared in two ways. He always sided with the sinner, so much so that his critics called him "friend of sinners." And in the end he suffered because of sin. Paul in one place writes, "For our sake he (God) made him to be sin who knew no sin" (II Cor. 5:21). This brings us face to face with the awesome mystery of the Atonement; but as a Scottish minister one said, the reason we do not understand the Cross is not because our minds are dull but because our hearts are too poor to understand love. If the baby in the manger had died then and there, it would have been sad. But only if that baby lived, and grew, and suffered, could the child become Man, giving his matured life a ransom for many.

VOLUME LXXIII — ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. — Thursday, January 2, 1958 — NUMBER 1

Around the Town

With the Editor

Santa Claus came through this year for the Bob Stivers when it looked as if there wouldn't be any Christmas.

Father Bob has been laid up for many weeks with an injured back and has been unable to work. The lay-off has been showing in the family pocketbook and, what with a family of five kids to provide for, the cupboard looked a bit bare on occasion here lately.

But just when Christmas loomed as perhaps not too happy an occasion for the family, folks from here got together and literally filled the Stiver home with gifts and food. Included was a supply of groceries from the Stivers' church, St. Mark's Lutheran, and other gifts from residents of the community. Ruth says it sure helps out - they'll probably have only milk to buy for the next three weeks or so.

—And Father Bob says that maybe they had a better Christmas than they would have if the old man hadn't been laid up.

The Stivers say "thanks" to all who gave a helping hand this Christmas.

—Another Christmas story to show that some of man's greatest moments of joy and of service come in adversity.

I suppose I had better indicate when small anecdotes appearing here are fact and when they are fiction. After getting in dutch with some of our relates - Ed and Mary Ann Hauke - over that little story two weeks ago, I guess I better watch out. All I did was put their names and that of Doc Wills into a joke to give it some local color. I didn't realize that something might happen - like the Gerigs, across the road from Ed and Mary Ann, taking the story seriously and preparing a batch of cookies for Mary Ann to cheer her up.

As far as the other stories in the same issue are concerned, Bob Clauser and Richard Musser didn't really say those things. But Margaret Chaney DID find some false teeth on the floor of the restaurant.

Harvey Hull passes this note along:

"Anyone wondering why the Christmas Carols were not played from the Lutheran Church this year, it was because somebody either sunk so low as to borrow and not return, or stole the record player and it was not discovered missing until a few days before Christmas."

That makes two things missing this Christmas - not only did we not have snow, we didn't have carols from the sky.

—I missed 'em.

From Florida comes this note:

" 'Lest ould acquaintance be forgot' - remember that the latch string is always out to friends visiting in the Miami, Florida, area at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Keesler, 12340 No. West 1st Court. We are just hog calling distance from Miami's finest dog racing and fifteen minutes from the 'hosses', or the ocean beach.

"You all come to Miami."

—There you are.

Fiction—

On the first day of school, Allen was telling his teacher about his new dog.

"What kind of a dog is he?" asked the teacher.

Fiction—

It was a very tense scene in the film. The family sat enthralled. Suddenly the hero slapped the heroine in the face.

In the stunned silence that followed, Phil piped up:

"Mommy, why doesn't she slap back like you do?"

Hey, time is growing short - for that barber shop quartet program on the 19th at Fort Wayne. I've still got a few good tickets left. Want one??

Comets Win In County Meet Opener- 45-43

The Riverdale Comets staved off a determined Pleasant Lake rally Thursday evening of this week to win a close victory, 45-43, and gain entry into the semi-finals of the DeKalb-Steuben County Tourney being held January 2, 3 and 4.

The Comets were hot in the first quarter, with everyone getting into the scoring act. At the first horn the score was Riverdale 17, Pleasant Lake 8.

After Pleasant Lake scored the first 3 points in the second quarter to make it 17-11, Riverdale bounced out to a 23-11 lead. Pleasant Lake then rallied to pull within 3 points at the half 26-23.

The first bucket went in for the Comets' opponents to make the score 26-25. The pattern of scoring spurt by one team, then the other, continued as Riverdale pulled out in front 33-25 before Pleasant Lake tied the score at 33-all.

It was 34-33 Riverdale, then 35-34 Pleasant Lake, then 36-35 Riverdale as the third quarter ended.

The final period was close all the way though Riverdale stayed in the lead. With the score 39-37 with 2:52 remaining to play, Cliff Warstler was fouled. He missed the free throw attempt and as both teams fought for the rebound, the ball was batted into the air several times before it went sailing high in the air and came down through the hoop. Larry Friend hit a fielder from his favorite spot 7 or 8 feet to the side of the bucket, his third such fielder for the night to make it 43-39. A field goal by both teams completed the evening scoring.

GAME NOTES—The Comets made things tough for themselves in the second half making several mistakes. — Not too many fans were present at the Fremont gym to represent the 4 schools playing on Thursday evening. Riverdale appeared to have the biggest fan aggregation with a good representation on a bad driving night. — Larry Friend showed again that the closer he gets to the basket, the tougher he becomes. Those 3 fielders from the side, swishing the nets without touching the rim, weighed a ton. On other occasions he has been a good rebounder directly under the basket and scoring from there though not having any height advantage. — That one fielder that came with both teams fighting for Warstler's free throw rebound was a lucky bucket, although whoever batted it high in the air and through the hoop probably knew what he was doing all the time.

Send Queries For PTA Panel Discussion

The next meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. invites participation by patrons of the school themselves, parents, taxpayers supporting the local school system and teachers. In a forum discussion, questions submitted by Riverdale patrons will be discussed and answered, where possible, by a 6-member panel. Exact identification of the panel has not been made since questions submitted until Friday, January 10, will to some extent determine the make-up of the answering group.

Parents will receive notice through students of the request for questions, and any other persons interested in finding out more about the school, its operations, its problems, etc., are invited to contribute such questions.

Mr. Ralph Sechler will serve as moderator for the evening's discussion. Questions may be adressed to him before the January 10 deadline and will be used to formulate the discussion.

Oftentimes, parents have questions about the operation of the school, either with regards to classroom routine or general administration, or there may be some wondering about new school construction, or perhaps a question about the grading system. If these suggestions bring to the reader's mind something he has wanted to know about in the operation of the school, jot it down and send it to Mr. Sechler or send it to Mr. Ted Haberkorn, president of the P.T.A.

The January meeting will be an opportune time to learn more about our schools, but it will require public participation. Patrons are urged to cooperate in the preparation of the discussion by submitting questions. Teachers are also being solicited for questions, so that any questions they may have about parents' and patrons' attitudes may be discussed.

Meeting time is 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, January 21, at the high school gym in Saint Joe.

The accompanying coupon may be used by readers.

Letters to the Editor

26 Nov Tue

Hi Ted,

I just received your paper with Sammy Morr's letter in it. And it seems all the guys are going to beat me in getting out. So please don't take me off of your mailing list for a few months, 11 to be exact.

There are a couple questions I would like to ask Sam. He said they end with a 7-1 record. But he didn't say which were the wins or which were the looses.

Another question I would like to know is, why do all the guys join the Army and Navy? Are they to good for the Marine Corps?

They aren't as bad as people make it sound. I've surviived for 40 months in them, I'm sure there are more from St. Joe that could do it.

I was checking the basketball schedule, and I'll be home in time to see that last game.

We are having real nice weather here. The tempiture has been in the 70 degrees and 80 degrees for the last week.

We go into our winter uniforms on 1 Dec. After that I'll have 62 days left on the Rock.

I'm going to have to close now Ted, and catch some chow. We are going on a hike to night. They believe in putting in a full day.

As ever,
Sgt. Bruce Baker.

Dear Ted,

I wrote this letter (see below) that I'm enclosing not knowing who I would send it to. I decided to send it to you. You can either print it or put it in your circular file beside your desk.

Some of the men here have read it and they agree with me.

People all over should think of the men ready to fight for there country. Even if they don't have somebody in the service.

Bruce

27 Nov Wed

Dear Sir,

After reading this article put out by my Regimental C. O I began wondering just how many of the people back home thought of the men on foreign soil. There were some I'm sure, but they were the ones who have somebody over here. I've been away from home for every Thanksgiving and Christmas since 1953. I know my folks wish as much as I do that I could be home.

But as it says in my C. O.'s message, we stand ready to defend them and their way of life.

If that is true why don't they treat the serviceman with a little more respect in peace time as they do during a war. Which we all hope we have no more of.

My C. O. didn't mean that we stand ready to defend just our loved ones, but everybody, no matter who they are

Last year when those recruits at Paris Island were drowned during training. I was home on leave. My relatives and I could see eye to eye on the matter. They said the Drill instructor should be given the death penalty.

And on the East coast a Marine couldn't even enter some of the towns. But yet if a war were to break out, they want us to fight for there home land and rights. It is hard to do when you have people like that around. We will fight yes, but if people can't see fit to treat the service man with a little respect in peace time he will be fighting for his loved ones and himself.

Because if he lives in a country that doesn't like service men, why should he fight for that country?

There are a lot of men in my home town that are either in the service or have been at one time. And I'll say that most if not all of them feel the way I do or they have at one time.

If the people at home felt a little differant toward the service man, they would make a better fighting man, and a better man when he does get out. Because they would really have something to fight for. They would be fighting for a country like they are suppose to, instead just there homes and loved ones.

Sgt. Clayton B. Baker
United States Marine Corps

(The Commanding Officer's message was as follows:

"The way of a Marine is not an easy one. Though the long years of the Corps existance many men have had to spend Thanksgiving Day on foreign soil away from home and family, even as you and I do today. However in the long view, and as fighting men we must remember that it is only by such manly sacrifice that our loved ones at home may sit down to their Thanksgiving Dinner with full sence of security, confident that we stand ready to defend them and their way of life. Therefore let us this day be thankful that we are ready and prepared to defend our country and its ideals, not only for them but also that we in future years may continue to enjoy the blessings of our country which we have helped to preserve.")

In this day and age, as in past days and ages, man has decided that peace is attained and preserved by preparing for war. And we all know what war is, according to a famous quotation. —Ed.

Basis for Judgement

Truly living in a small town has its problems. Especially when it comes to this business of everyones business being everyone else's business. Many times criticism is based on pure hear-say. It has always been easier to criticize others than to try to correct our own faults. Did not Jesus say, "Cast first the beam out of thy own eye that thou mayest see clearly to take the mote out of thy brother's eye." This scripture is well known by most people but is is used to cover a multitude of sins. They reason like this, Jesus condemned hypocritical judgement. (For he said thou hypocrite.) You are judging me. Therefore I am not a sinner. That type of reasoning is certainly not logical but it is the kind of reasoning we hear. Many otherwise good people are justifying sin in their lives by supposing that because the one judging has sin in his life God will not hold him responsible for his either. Two wrongs never have and never will make a right. Is it possible that two might be lost both the accuser and the one justifying himself?

When the apostle Paul wrote, Some measuring themselves by themselves are not wise he was pointing out a very prevalent error of today as well as yesterday. I cannot hope to reach heaven simply because my life is a little bit better than some other persons. Or because I am not the worse person in the world. This method might be fine with us but it would result in only one person being lost (the worst man in the world). And it would leave out mans need for a saviour.

So we now arrive at the point of this letter. Whether a little drink is all right or is all wrong is not to be decided on the basis of whether or not others have sin in their lives too, but lets make it stand judgement by itself.

As Editor of this paper you were absolutely right in writing "For those who condemn this young man might as well condemn all men who enter such an establishment." God certainly does not have two standards of morality, one for the preacher and another for the Church members. True the people often expect more from the Preacher but it is also true that the preacher often expects more of the people than he gets. Both will be judged according to the word. Could it perhaps be possible that both could be wrong? There is no argument that drunkenness is sin. The scriptures are very clear on this point. The Scriptures also say. Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink that putteth thy bottle to him and maketh him drunken also. I ask you, what would become of our taverns if they never sold to those who were intoxicated. (which by the way is a state law?) And if they also refused to sell to those whose families were being hurt by their consumption? Am I my brothers keeper? The Bible says the answer is yes.

What of the young man introduced to the little harmless garter snake of moderate drinking when it becomes a Boa Constrictor wrapping itself about him, damning his very soul.

I have had the privilege of visiting one of these men in prison. Try to teach moderation to broken-hearted parents. Their boy too was once a moderate drinker. He didn't abuse the privilege he was conquered by something more powerful than he. No one is able to determine whether a man will become an alcoholic or not. All we can do is start them and see.

There are 4 million problem drinkers in the U.S. The income from taxes on the stuff runs to a staggering 3 billion a year. There is a catch to this. The cost of maintaining mental institutions for some of the poor souls, the prisons for some, the cost of the drunken driver and about twenty other related evils runs between 750 million to 8 billion a year. We very well could be paying out a lot more than we are taking in.

And what of the lost men and women. What will a man give in exchange for his soul.

James Beck, Minister
St. Joe Church of Christ

Dear Editor:

Let me start by quoting Romans 3:23: For all have sinned and come short of the Glory of God." That includes me first of all, then everyone else.

In your article on your view of MODERATION in last week's St. Joe News you say God said all he had created was good. That is so very true, but the sad part of it is that man didn't leave it that way.

God made corn, barley and many other things for the good of man and I've never seen one drop of good come from a liquor bottle.

Young people, please don't be fooled by moderation. Every drunkard's grave rests the earthly remains of some soul who thought that they could "handle" liquor. That first drink was the fatal one.

We hear a lot about social drinking. Again this hits our young people. Little Joe takes his first drink because Jack and Jill told him to be a sport and take just one drink. Joe didn't have much willpower. Here again moderation got the best of a young person who had been that moderation is the thing and he ends up a hopeless drunkard.

The devil doesn't work by moderation. There is no on the fence position with God and the devil. You go all the way, one way or the other.

God trusted me with seven young lives. When I stand before my Maker I don't want to hear one of these say to me, "Mom, why didn't you tell me where MODERATION would end?"

Our children see we older folks take a drink. Naturally, they think it's all right for Mom, Dad, Sunday School Teacher or even the minister, it's all right for me.

Let's think of our most precious citizens, Our Children.

Just A Mother
Leona Dowden

We are sorry we had to delay publishing these letters which were received during the week following the December 12 issue. The Christmas rush set in.

Hours on end could be spent in arguing the matter of drink. There are some words and phrases, however, which are used, or would be used, in those hours, which are used interchangably and should not be. We mean, for instance, "drinking" and "drunkenness." One who takes a drink is automatically placed in the category of "drunkenness." There is also a tendency to consider the word sin to mean drinking, smoking, dancing, cardplaying, etc., and stop there. Sin is too often NOT associated with gossip, believing what is heard above what is known, and, most of all, with judging what others do as wrong and looking down our noses at them.

Two afterthoughts occur, one prompted by Pastor Beck's letter as follows: Perhaps if those who do not enter taverns but who do drink were to put aside the fear of judgment by their fellow men, the tavern keepers would not serve too much to some few out of respect for the good will of their new-found patrons.

The second after-thought is prompted by Mrs. Dowden's letter: "creation" must be considered to include not only the elements as originally created but also any and all combinations thereof. Th's would include whatever might be made of the grains mentioned, even alcoholic beverages. On the other hand, if creation that was considered "good" by God is to include only nature in its primary forms, then how can we consider much of the present day world as "good" - indeed, how can we explain the millions of human beings now enjoying life?

Too often it appears man is prone to select one small part of creation and dote upon it, sort of picking on a favorite subject, or object, and removing it from the whole. Here we are engrossed in a discussion on the ravages of drunkenness showing concern over man's sorry plight due to excessive drinking - and we haven't even considered WHY he wants to drink so much. Therein lies the problem. — Ed.

THE TRUE CHURCH

Lesson for January 5, 1958

Disgraceful as it is to have to admit it, the fact is that the one question about which churches quarrel most is the simple one: What IS the Church? One thing all agree on: the Church is not brick and stone, it is not organization by itself. The Church is people. The question is, under what conditions has a group of people, large or small, the right to call itself a Christian church, or a part of the Christian Church? If we go back to New Testament times, when there was only one church (though many congregations of course), and that one church was without doubt the true church, we can get a clue toward answering our question.

Christ the Builder

Jesus often spoke of the Church, although he seldom used the word. He spoke of his friends, his disciples, believers. He chose men to be with him and to send out in his name to do his work. It is such people who make the Church everywhere; persons who have made contact with Christ, who believe in Him, who follow Him, who learn from Him, who in His name set out to do His work. Once and only once He used the expression "my Church" according to the records we have. Simon Peter had just said, "Thou are the Christ, the Son of the living God." Jesus told him in reply, "On this rock I will build my Church." Theologians have argued a long time about what Jesus meant by "this rock." Some think He meant Peter himself, but the New Testament church did not think so; nowhere in it is Simon Peter called the foundation of the Church. A more likely explanation is that Jesus meant he would build his Church on the foundation of the faith which Peter had just expressed, and on men and women who have this faith. Wherever there is a fellowship of persons bound together by loyalty to Christ as Son of the living God, there is the true Church.

Christ the Cornerstone

In St. Paul's earlier letters he writes about "churches" but in his later days he wrote of "the Church", which is truly one, in spite of its many apparent differences. Indeed it is not only interesting but important that the more churches there were, the more Paul emphasizes The Church, not one among others, but as including all believers. He uses various figures of speech to describe the all-important fact that Christ is central in the true Church. One is this picture of a temple built of stone. The foundation is the apostles (note that he makes no special mention of Peter) and the prophets. The foundations of the Church go down into the Old Testament; apostles and prophets are different sections of the same foundation. But Christ is the cornerstone. In Paul's time a cornerstone was not a souvenir-chest, it was a great solid stone that carried the weight of the building, and indeed set the lines of the walls. Prophets and apostles are the foundation so far as, and because, they are lined up with Christ. The true Church is one that carries on the spirit and the work of apostles and prophets down through the ages.

Christ the Head

Another Bible figure of speech for the Church is that of a body, with Christ the head. The true Church is one of which Christ is the head; that is, He directs the Church, He is the final and highest authority in the Church. Of course head and body need each other; but the head controls the body, not the other way around. Christ is Number One in the true Church. No book, no creed, no organization, no bishop, no pope, can be the head of the Church in the unique and special and all-important way in which Christ is head of the Church. How can we tell whether Christ is the head of the Church? It is not just by what the Church says about Him. Jesus himself said, "Why do you call me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" Correct theology does not by itself make a true Church. Does the Church do the things Jesus says? Do its members take His teachings seriously and try to live by them? Does the Church hold up Jesus as a living example for Christian living? Is the teaching of the Church in line with His? If not, calling Him "head" means very little.

Good News For Hoosier Anglers

Nearly 5 million fish were planted in the waters of Indiana during the calendar year 1957, Melvin O. Scott, superintendent of fisheries for the Division of Fish and Game, has announced.

The total included 1,738,848 fingerlings weighing 6,432 lbs. and ranging from one-inch bluegills and red-ears to nine-inch largemouth bass. Species included 328,897 largemouth bass, 111,509 smallmouth bass, 747,557 bluegills, 357,390 redeared sunfish, 152,332 rock bass and 41,163 crappies.

In addition the division also planted approximately 3 million walleye fry and 47,620 legal-sized trout, rainbows and browns. Mr. Scott said the division received 50,000 largemouth bass fingerlings from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service which were planted in the state.

Plantings were also made in 22 state-owned lakes at state parks, forests and game preserves as well as in 92 waterholes in the Brownstown and Tell City Ranger districts of the U.S. Forestry Service and the Harrison State Forest.

Spencerville News

Janice Hollabaugh, Reporter

Chalmer Beaty, 32, of Spencerville was dismissed from the Souder Hospital in Auburn Monday morning. He was hospitalized early Thursday morning with injuries suffered when the 1950 GMC tractor trailer he was driving crashed into a tree on state road 8. Mr. Beaty said he fell asleep at the wheel of the vehicle. He suffered jaw, wrist and chest injuries and cuts and bruises.

The Claude Laubs had a Christmas dinner for their family on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rouse of Peru of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wade and daughter of Saint Joe spent Christmas with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Tieman.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Renbarger of Bryant spent Tuesday evening and Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hoover.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Leonard are spending several weeks at the home of their son, Jerry, north of Fort Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fankhauser and children, and Mrs. Robert Edgar and children had Christmas dinner with the Glenn Bakers south of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baker and daughter, Pam, of Chicago visited his parents, the C. E. Bakers, last week.

Dinner guests of the C. E. Bakers on Christmas Day were Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Ridgway of Saint Joe, Mrs. Beulah Moyer of Waterloo, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Moyer and Linda of Auburn, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Baker of near Saint Joe and Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Ridgway, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Davis and Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Hollabaugh and sons. Jim and Parks, of Spencerville.

Mrs. Angela Lloyd, who is a teacher in Toledo and Maumee, Ohio, spent her vacation with the John Weidners.

This year Tom Hollabaugh, who is stationed at Norfolk, Va., spent Christmas with his cousin and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Baker and will leave on January 8 for the Mediterranean.

The Loren Laub family of near Bloomington, Ill., spent several days last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Laub.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Jones spent the week end with her parents and brother, the J.S. and M.H. Hollabaughs.

Miss Margaret Chaney was again hostess at breakfast to 32 Christmas Carolers on Christmas morning. This has become an annual affair for the young people of the community and many thanks are given Miss Chaney for her kindness to the shut-ins and ill of Spencerville in sponsoring this every year.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Paschen of Hammond and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Akey visited the Jack Hollabaughs Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Roscoe Garman fell and injured her arm last week.

Ted A. Hollabaugh came home from Fort Campbell, Ky., Monday to stay until Saturday with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Woodring of Grabill have a baby daughter named Marianne K. The Ed Woodrings of Spencerville are grandparents.

Mr. Amos Miller of Grabill died December 21 at the age of 66. Mr. Miller was the father of Mr. Laverne Miller of south of Spencerville.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Heffley are the proud parents of a baby boy, Timothy, born at Souder's Hospital Sunday afternoon, December 22. The Heffleys formerly lived in Spencerville but are now residents of Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Akey recently moved into the home which they purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Otis Brown.

Congress faces the farmer ...what will happen?

Tune in NBC Radio
WKJG
JAN. 6
9:30 P.M.

For a daily report on latest farm news direct from Washington, listen to Purina's "Washington Farm Report" with Richard Harkness, Monday thru Friday on NBC.

The 85th Congress is soon to open. Defense spending has the limelight. Will the farmer and his problems be pushed aside, ignored? Or does he have champions who will fight to help solve his most pressing problems?

Tune in your nearest NBC radio station, Monday night, January 6. Hear Richard Harkness, veteran Washington newscaster, as he finds out what leading agricultural and political leaders have to say about farm legislation in 1958.

Right now, teams of objective reporters are in the field... asking ...and recording... the searching grass-roots questions farmers themselves are asking. These questions will then be asked of the farm leaders... the men who will actually steer farm legislation through Congress in 1958.
What will their answers be?

Teachers Join NEA

Joining the National Education Association as it begins its second century of activity is the DeKalb County Classroom Teacher's Association of Saint Joe, Indiana.

Under the presidency of Mrs. Freida Guilford of Saint Joe, the local group has just become affiliated with the NEA, world's largest professional organization. More than 703,000 teachers and administrators are NEA members.

The local association was welcomed recently by Lyman V. Ginger, NEA president. Dr. Ginger is dean of the college of education, University of Kentucky.

"NEA membership is not just a statistic indicating size," commented Dr. Ginger. "It is what brings together the persons who educate today's youth. Through NEA membership more than 6,000 local education associations band together to work for the best public education possible."

The NEA is currently moving into an expanded program of services to help its members provide a quality education for every child. The NEA's governing body of 5,000 delegates from local associations similar to the one in Saint Joe voted for the expansion at the NEA Centennial Convention in July.

Included under the expanded program is a stepped up field service program to provide closer contact between headquarters staff members and local associations. Also, a New York radio-TV office has been opened under a new staff member.

In the future are many programs including increased rural education services and more NEA Research Division studies.

1957 CORN CROP HARVEST REPORT

... best corn prospects this year are in the Western Corn Belt where Nebraska and Iowa have much higher yields than last year. Northern Illinois has an excellent crop, but south and east from there, wet weather delayed planting and hurt yields. New York has one of its best crops in several years. The East Coast was hurt by a prolonged summer drouth and Illinois, Minnesota and Indiana river bottoms had much drowned out corn.

The acompanying map indicates the condition of the 1957 corn crop as prepared by observers of the DeKalb Agricultural Association. Corn crop prospects are about the same as last year - for a 3 1-3 billion bushel crop, but the best crop is west of the Mississippi. Much of the Corn Belt still had considerable corn to harvest in mid-November because of the wet, cool fall conditions plus a summer short on the usual days above 90 degrees.

The 1957 crop broke the all time average yield with 46.1 bushels per acre estimated. The acreage planted on the other hand was the smallest in many years at just a little over 70 million acres. This is another illustration of the increasing efficiency of farm operations.

THE SOCK WITH A SHOCK

When I went to the tree to look at my sock,
I received a terrible, terrible shock.
For instead of using a sock that was new,
With a hole in the toe, everything went on through.
This year I'll use mom's it is big and long,
And I'll have a new one, that is good and strong;
No more old socks, nosiree.

Last year's Christmas was a lesson to me.

Cook-Cook

Miss Helen Marie Cook of 425 Paulding Road, Fort Wayne, became the bride of Thomas M. Cook of 811 1-2 Huestis Street, Fort Wayne, in a double-ring ceremony on Saturday afternoon, December 21, at the Nelson Street Church of the Nazarene with Rev. L. E. Tucker reading the vows before an altar graced with yellow chrysanthemums.

The bride is the daughter of Walter M. Cook of the Aboit Road and the late Kathleen Cook. She was given in marriage by her father. She wore a street length dress and her corsage was pink carnations.

Mrs. Dan Cook, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Dale Cook, brother of the bride was best man with Archie Grimes and George Cook ushering.

"You make me tired." How often have you heard such a comment or could we even suggest that you may have used it yourself?

Here is our version of the expression. We thank you very much for coming to our stores in such unprecedented numbers. Because of all of you coming, and it was a continuous stream of folk, continuing right up until closing time on Christmas eve, we did get very tired. However it was a happy tired feeling, if you know what we mean. Rob and Vince were eating aspirin to keep going, but the rest of us were in fine condition, needing only a little coffee to keep us going at top speed.

Though tired, we will nevertheless be in the stores starting the new year to take care of those perennial after-Christmas problems. If you received a gift from Ort's and need any information about it or would like to exchange it we'll be here to serve you. If Santa left a check, why not select something at your leisure from the fine stock we always have on hand?

As we said before, we want to repeat "Thank again for making us very, very tired."

SAINT JOE VALLEY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Saint Joe Valley Home Demonstration Club met Friday, December 13, at the home of Doris Yeiser. This was an all-day meeting with a pot luck dinner at noon. The hostess, assisted by co-hostesses Hazel Leonhart and Helen Hoffer, served roast turkey and all the trimmings to 21 members and 2 children.

The afternoon business session was called to order by the president, Doris Yeiser. The club collect was repeated in unison. Devotions were by Madonna Wade.

History of the song of the month was read then all joined in singing O Come All Ye Faithful. Mrs. Eva Clauser played Christmas music before the dinner and accompanied the singing during the meeting.

The Christmas Story was read by Ethel Wineland. The response to roll call was My Secret Pal.

The gift exchange was in charge of Nancy Coburn. The meeting closed with singing of the club prayer song.

The next meeting will be held January 17 at the home of Melba Chapman.

SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The meeting was opened by the president, Dorothy Markle, with all members repeating the club collect. Devotions were given by Sharon Bowser. The history of the song of the month was given by Paula Roberts and then the song was sung by the club.

Old business was taken care of for the year and the new officers will take office in January. The secretary report was read and approved and 16 members answered roll call. The meeting was adjourned with singing of the club prayer. A delightful [illegible] was spent with everybody enjoying themselves. The committee had several games and quizes and then a Christmas exchange which was a little different, but fun.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and everyone said fare well until in January when the new year starts again.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank [illegible] by their kindness shown by visits, cards, prayers and in many other ways during Mr. Beaty's recovery from injuries received [illegible] accident.

Larry Emenhiser is doing all right for himself and the Navy, according to "The Rossman," a publication put out by men serving on the USS Ross. Larry plays with the ship's basketball team which has won 5 straight games. He has been selected to serve as co-captain by his mates.

An article in the November 23, 1957, issue of the ship's paper contains a write-up of the team's games. It states in part:

"The floor was crumpled tar, the baskets had their nets hanging by a strand and the team had not practiced for 4 weeks. The circumstances were not ideal on the night of November 19th for a game of basketball, but 'The Hornets' came through with a 76-34 win over the Naval Control Shipping Office team at Manama, Baharain.

"The Hornets are a fast breaking team that puts the ball in the basket before the opposing team can put up an effective block. They have the endurance, style and teamwork that can take them into a victorious season.

". . . Emenhiser, who plays guard or forward scored high points in the games against TECH HIGH. Helm, Walsh, Shank and Mitters cashed in on the 2nd and 3rd games helping to chalk up the terrific scores. The whole team has determination and few weak spots.

"A strange, but novel twist occured in the Nov. 21st game with Tech High when Yates and Emenhiser changed teams. Playing several quarters on the Tech Team they brought the audience to their feet with cheers. The local Naval Officer stated that 'The Hornets' support of the opposing team was a good way of spreading good will. It was also an international gesture of a thing called sportsmanship."

Fremont Whips Comets To Take County Tourney

A combination of height advantage and phenomenal shooting accuracy were too much for the Riverdale Comets to overcome Saturday night as they faced the Fremont Eagles in the Bi-County Tournament at Auburn, and the Eagles easily copped the tourney title with a 76-54 win.

An omen of things to come was seen in the opening minute as Fremont got the tip, worked the ball around in their offensive court for some time before taking the first shot, then hitting on the first shot. They went to a 5-0 lead before Larry Coplin sank a looping hook shot for the Comets' first 2 points. At the first time out called by Riverdale with 4:14 remaining in the first quarter, the score was 7-2 in favor of Fremont. The quarter ended at 13-9.

The Eagles extended their lead as the second quarter opened to 19-11. With 2:52 remaining in the half, Don Donat was called for his third personal and was taken out with the score 26-17. Larry Friend danced in for 2 buckets at the end of the quarter and the score stood at 30-21, the Eagles leading all the way.

Scoring went along at an even pace in the opening of the third quarter and Fremont led 35-25. With 3:05 remaining in the quarter Coach Price Brookfield sent Donat back in as a jump ball was called and Donat was promptly called for his fourth personal at the tip play. The score stood at 41-26. With 48 seconds left in the quarter, the fifth personal was called on Donat and he left the game with the score standing at 45-29. Fremont scored 4 more points in the quarter to make it 49-29. In the closing minute of the period, a technical was called on Gerald Lothamer as he apparently questioned the referee about the call on a personal foul.

Riverdale managed to sink a total of 25 points in the last period; but the Eagles picked up 27 which, combined with their previous scoring, was too much to overcome. The lead stood at 55-31 at one point. Then with 4:27 remaining in the game it was 62-35. Fremont called time out with 2:13 remaining and the score 70-43. The score was 74-49 with a minute and six seconds to go before the final 76-54 score was tallied at the final horn.

The Comets return to action in their regular schedule on Friday night of this week traveling to Hicksville to face the Aces on their home floor.

GAME NOTES—Fremont was hitting on what seemed to be anything they threw at the basket. Their shooting percentage was around the 60 per cent mark which meant that the Comets had two strikes against them in that department. The third strike was in the height department though the shooting accuracy probably hurt more than anything else. — The Comets were not to be discounted on their shooting, hitting on something like 30 or so per cent of their shots. — The accurate sniping of the Eagles had a visible demoralizing effect on the locals in the third period and the technical foul didn't help any to inspire them. This plus the riding of the oficials by a few Riverdale fans left little to cheer about.

Have Question? Send It In

Time is growing short for Riverdale school patrons to send in their contributions to the next P.T.A. meeting to be held Tuesday, January 21. In fact, it has been asked that questions be submitted by Friday of this week, though any received in the next few days would probably be utilized. So, time is quite short.

Questions should be sent to either Ralph Sechler, who will serve as moderator at the panel discussion scheduled for the P.T.A. meeting, or to Ted Haberkorn, president of the Riverdale P.T.A.

The cooperation of parents, patrons and teachers has been requested in presenting this meeting. It is felt that such an opportunity presents an excellent means of "educating" all who are concerned with the work of the school by affording an opportunity to ask questions about the school's operation. The exact make-up of the panel will not be decided until the questions can be analyzed as to content. However, it is certain that there will be representatives of the school faculty on the panel and representatives of parents in the community. County superintendent Roger Hess, has indicated that he will serve on the panel if his services are needed and Richard Crow, president of the Riverdale school board, has agreed that the board be represented on the panel if questions merit such representation.

Notices were sent home early this week to parents of school students requesting questions or items for discussion at the meeting. The notices will be returned at the end of the week. Any other persons other than parents who have questions concerning the school are invited to make use of the accompanying coupon in seeking answers to their questions. Members of the executive board of the P.T.A. earnestly request the cooperation of the public and extend an invitation to attend the Janaury 21 meeting. Meeting time is 7:30 p.m. at the Riverdale High School gym in Saint Joe.

Hands Off

At times it seems quite convenient to sit back and do little else but criticize. And at times everyone becomes too critical, or rather becomes too watchful for opportunities to criticize and thus overlooks the commendable attributes of people and things in general which could be and should be given praise.

America is quite a place and there certainly must have been in the past and must be in the present plenty of happenings which have been good and have promoted the general advancement of mankind. On the other hand there are happenings which threaten to overcome the good that is accomplished. Possibly every generation has the feeling that theirs is on the downgrade at one time or another, degenerating into a pitiful mess which will lead to ruin. Whether or not a person thinks in that manner today is a matter of consideration for there are times when the fruits of principled government which we enjoy appear to be threatened because people are looking for a little more than can or should be expected, even from a free democratic nation such as ours. And looking for a little more occasionally involves the people's looking to the government to do something for them, something which people ought to look out for themselves. Looking to the government to do something for us is not an American virtue, but it is somewhat of an American characteristic today. This attitude makes it difficult for principled freedom to exist because that attitude is in opposition to the feeling of obligation to fulfill responsibilities necessary in a free society.

Strangely enough, one source of irritation in the free society that is ours comes from the government itself, from the representatives whom the people elect and select. Not only does the average citizen have his own weakness to overcome, resisting the urge to let government take over individual responsibilities, but he must also resist suggestions which give him consideration not as an individual alone but as a member of a group. Whenever this occurs, there is usually a favor or special advantage being suggested.

As an example, we might point out that Americans generally believe in education as the backbone for preserving a strong, healthy, free society. And along with that they would agree that we should provide for the education of our youth, that the family itself is the basic means of providing for its advanced education. It is futile to expect one hundred percent workability of this idea, but it is a goal to be kept in sight. Meanwhile, we have supplemental means of support for those who cannot wholly provide for their entire college education, grants to colleges, scholarships, public donations and the like. The whole program of education is considered as a public responsibility, something that everyone has an interest in and toward which they have an equal obligation. Recently, however, there was a suggestion that takes away that public-responsibility aspect of college education and makes it a matter of group concern. The suggestion was that those families providing for college education of their youth be given a special exemption in their income tax obligation. This seems to infer that a family using its money to educate its youth is entitled to recognition through granting of a favor in the form of tax reduction.

How we can best provide for education is an important question. The answer should be sought constantly. It should be sought, however, with the realization that this is a unique nation, unique because it has pursued so earnestly those things which promote a free society. One of its unique ideas, which we call a principle, is that education is important to maintain a free society and, to be consistent in our belief, education should be a matter generally of mass concern, there being no cause for favoring any individual or group through something like tax reductions. Granting tax concessions is one of the vices present in the whole tax system and enlarging it to the field of education is a disservice to the cause of freedom.

Pride is essential in preserving a free nation. To destroy the pride felt by a family which has provided for college education of its sons and daughters is to destroy one of the facets of this sparkling diamond that is our country.

Pride needs no reward.

AROUND THE CORNER

(Submitted by Mrs. Lillian Buckingham.)

Around the corner I have a friend
In this great city that has no end.
Yet days go by and weeks rush on
And before I know it a year is gone.
And I never see my old friend's face,
For life is a swift and terrible race.
He knows I like him just as well
As in the days when I rang his bell
And he rang mine - we were younger then-
And now we are busy, tired men -
Tired with playing a foolish game,
Tired with trying to make a name.
"Tomorrow," I say, "I will call on Jim,
Just to show that I'm thinking of him."
But tomorow comes, and tomorrow goes;
And this distance between us grows and grows.
Around the corner! - yet miles away,
"Here's a telegram, sir, Jim died to-day!"
And that's what we get - and deserve in the end -
Around the corner, a vanished friend.

SOCIALISM IN AUSTRIA

(Glenn Green continues his dispatches from Europe.)

Vienna, Austria - Dear Dr. Benson: The train from Munich to Salzburg to Vienna skirted the northern reaches of the European Alps, presenting magnificent scenery, but the hills gave way to rolling farmland as we neared this queenly city which once was the capital of a sprawling empire. Vienna retains much of her old world beauty, but 40 years of radical political upheavals, wars and military occupation has shrunk her once-considerable prestige and exhausted the little nation which she dominates.

Vienna today is a city of nearly 2,000,000; while Austria has only 6,900,000 total population. Austria fell under the spell of the Socialists in 1919 and has remained largely socialistic through all her trials and tribulations. The Government today is a coalition dominated by the Socialists. President Theodore Koerner is a Socialist. My contact inside the Austrian government has been Dr. Paul Fent, chief assistant to the Bundespressedienst. He, too, is a Socialist.

The key industries are socialized: the salt mines, which are one of the country's biggest assets; the railways; much of the extensive forestry industry, the big iron and steel works, most of coal mining; postal service, oil, banking, electric power, communications, etc. And like all the other European Socialist countries, Austria has an all-embracing and complicated cradle-to-grave Welfare State program. The labor unions, through their political instrument, the Socialist Party, have gained a powerful voice in running the country. In the industries not operated by their Socialist ministers in the Government, the unions share in the management.

Every piece of legislation which in any way affects the Austrian economy is first submitted to three non-governmental agencies before being introduced in Parliament. These are: The Chamber of Commerce, the Chamber of Agriculture and the Chamber of Labor. The Chamber of Commerce has scarcely any alternative but to go along with the Chamber of Labor since its political power is overpowering. The Agrarians lean toward socialist practices. This kind of Socialism has been in operation here, with only brief interruptions, for 35 years.

And what has it delivered to the wage earners? The income of the average industrial worker in Austria is $57 a month. Some make higher wages, and a great many make lower wages. The textile industry workers

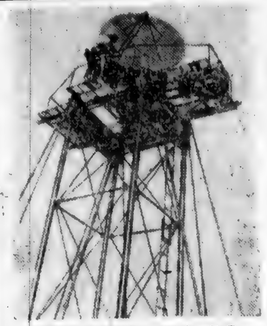
TANK HELPS IN ITS OWN MOVING JOB – Milton, Pa. – En route from Milton, where it was built by the Advanced Products Division of ACF Industries, to Saranac Lake, N.Y., this 30,000-gallon storage tank for high-pressure gas occupies a special rig in which the tank acts as its own truck bed. The rig has only cables connecting the rear dolly and forward cradle on which the tank rests. Because of all the space it takes up on the highway, the rig and tank move only on prescribed routes in daylight hours and in good weather.



STORM RADAR – Wash., D.C. – Two Signal Corps soldiers set up a portable storm radar, the Army's new weather eye for spotting significant storms at distances of 200 miles. The 25-foot tower can be set up in a day to allow Army scientists to predict within minutes when a storm will strike any spot within range.

CALF SPROUTS FIFTH LEG – Seoul, Korea – A five-legged calf makes the headlines in Korea. The animal is shown here with its mother. The fifth leg can be seen hanging down from behind its neck. A local circus has offered about $20. in American money for the calf.

DARING SUPERSTITION THE HARD WAY – Cypress Gardens, Fla. – It's supposed to be unlucky to walk under a ladder, but whether the alleged jinx holds true for skiing is a moot point. Anyway, Nancy Rideout, U.S. Water Ski Jumping Champion, is doing it here for the opening shot of the World Water Ski Tournament at Cypress Gardens.

The purchasing power of the dollars in these wage statistics is based on the present exchange rate of schillings for dollars (26 to 1). A few items are cheaper here than in America - public transportation, housing and a few food staples such as potatoes, cabbage and bread. But public transportation service is chronically poor and the housing situation is very bad. Most of the other things which Americans consider to be absolutely required for good living cost more here - TV sets, refrigerators, bathroom sinks, good clothing, automobiles, meat and other foods.

Vienna is a teeming tourist city. The tourist business is an important part of the national income. Relics of the old Hapsburg dynasties - palaces, parks and statuary - dot the city. Momentoes of the city's great musical history are on every hand - with the ornate Vienna Opera House on the celebrated Ring attracting thousands of sightseers daily. The shops are world-famed for two products - silks and chocolate confections.

With its bizarre and anguished sculptures commemorating the devastating Black Plague, with its colorful mosaic store fronts, and with its modern, subterranean shopping center beneath the busiest traffic intersection, Vienna is a city of contrasts. But there seems to be scarcely any contrasts in the lives of her people and the people of Austria generally. Dr. Fent said there aren't any rich people in Austria, that, in fact, Government redistribution of wealth had almost entirely eliminated sharp differences in incomes. The Austrian Welfare State has leveled the living standard - to a very low level. Thirty-five years of Socialist power and the turmoil of radical politics and war have left Austria with very little strength and nearly all of her people in relative poverty according to our American yardsticks.

Spencerville News

Janice Hollabaugh, Reporter

Pvt. John D. Butler, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Butler of Spencerville, is a member of the 964th Engineer Company which presented food, clothing and toys to children at the Weilandheim orphanage in Heidelberg, Germany, during the holiday season. Pvt. Butler, an engineer equipment repairman, arrived in Europe in July, 1956, from Fort Belvoir, Va. He entered the Army in December, 1955, and completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C. The 19-year-old soldier attended Spencerville high school before he entered military service.

The Loyal Workers Class of St. Peter's Sunday School had its January meeting in the church basement January 5th with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chaney as host and hostess.

Mrs. Clara Brattain, cook at the Riverdale Grade School, is a medical patient at Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Genth visited with Mrs. Flossie Rhodes on Christmas Day.

The James Tatlocks called on the M.H. Hollabaughs Saturday evening. Debbie is in the first grade of school this year and Jim is still teaching in West Lafayette.

On Sunday afternoon Rev. and Mrs. Henry Weber held open house for members of his parish.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams of Garrett have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Carolyn, to Lee R. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Brown. Mr. Brown is a graduate of Riverdale High School.

A sister of Mrs. Rally Markle, Miss Millie E. Oberholtzer, died Sunday night in a Richmond hospital. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the Oetting Funeral Home in Harlan and burial was in Salem Lutheran Church Cemetery.

On Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Max Markle had as supper guests the J. S. and Jack Hollabaughs. All honored the 75th birthday of J. S. Hollabaugh.

Raymond Foltz's mother had major surgery performed at Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne several days ago.

The Albert Hollabaughs are grandparents for the second time with the arrival of a son for the D-Lon Waltebergers of Fort Wayne. The grandson's name is Dennis Richard and he arrived on Sunday, January 5.

Miss Minnie Hollopeter is very much improved but not able to do too much as yet.

Last week someone's brakes failed to hold and a car ran into the side of Chaney's Restaurant, pushing the oil tank into the side of the building. No one was injured.

Klondike Derby Field Is Short 2

It was anounced this week that the Saint Joe and Spencerville Boy Scout troops will not participate in the Klondike Derby to be held this coming Saturday at Clear Lake. Although both troops had been preparing for the event, local scouts will not participate. A change in procedure was not noted in one instance and information was not received in another instance which caused the change in plans.

The derby is being held at Clear Lake. Saint Joe had been the site of the derby for the previous two years, with a course running along the Saint Joe River and through fields and woods bordering the river.

Five-man teams participate in the derby which includes a predetermined course traveled by sleds manned by the boys. At stops along the route participants show their skill in various forms of Scoutcraft. Included in the tasks the boys must perform are fire building, cooking, compass reading, ice rescue, knot-tying, etc.

The derby is a popular event with the Boy Scouts. Last year there were over 200 Scouts and leaders who took part in the derby held at Saint Joe.

Spencerville Scoutmaster Bill Hudson and Saint Joe Scoutmaster Frank Sechler were understandably disappointed as are the Scouts that they cannot participate this year. Both troops have a bright spot to cover the gloom, however. The Spencerville troop recently recived three new tents from their sponsor, the Saint Joe Lions Club, for use in troop camp-outs. And Saint Joe Scoutmaster Frank Sechler revealed that he will have assitance in the future from Harvey Carr of Saint Joe who has accepted the position of assistant Scoutmaster.

Sport Car Show At Detroit Next Month

The Henry Ford Museum's seventh annual sports car show will open February 7 and continue through March 2.

The exhibit will bring together more than 50 cars from Italy, England, Germany, France and the United States. Some foreign cars will be shown for the first time in the United States, according to Alan R. Symonds, chairman of the show.

For contrast with today's models, several sports cars of earlier years, both foreign and domestic, also will be displayed.

On Monday, December 30, the DeKalb County Farm Bureau directors and women's leaders met for an all-day meeting at the new Farm Bureau building in Auburn. The morning session was called to order by the county chairman, John Linton. Secretary Lois Smith read the minutes of the previous meeting and various business matters were discussed. It was agreed to charge a $4 fee for the use of the meeting room of the new building to those outside the organization. The county talent contest for Pet and Hobby and older entries will be at the county family night the latter part of March to pick palent for the state fair. The next board meeting will feature a pot luck supper at 6:30 on January 27 for the families of the board members at the Farm Bureau building. Numerous new committees were set up and names suggested for ratification. A pot luck dinner was enjoyed at noon after which Marion Stackhouse, district field director, led a training meeting. The the county women's leader, Edna Stahl, led in a planning meeting for the year's program in the various township units. Coming events include a pancake and sausage supper sponsored by the Credit Union at the Auburn Chamber of Commerce basement on January 11 from 6 to 7:30 p.m. All you can eat for 75 cents, children free, followed by a meeting with entertainment at the assembly room at 8 p.m. The next district meeting will be held at the Presbyterian Church in LaGrange on January 17 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Annual district meeting of the co-ops will be at the Albion gym on January 25, all day with free lunch and door prizes.

Cars driven by Ned Shull, 43, of Saint Joe and Van E. Brechbill, 57, of Waterloo collided northwest of Auburn Monday morning. The drivers suffered only minor injuries but damage to the 1956 Buick driven by Mr. Shull was estimated at $500. A like amount of damage occurred to the Brechbill 1956 Cadillac. In addition there was $75 damage to a fence along the road.

Christmas dinner guests in the Albert Wade home were Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Kinsey and son, Larry, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sible and Gary, Glenda and Gene, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wade and Brenda Kay, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kinsey and baby, Mr. Donald Kinsey, Mrs. Elnora Blue, Mrs. Sally Wolfe and three children, Mrs. Marilyn Funk and Rietha and Rene, and Mrs. Carrie Wade of Saint Joe; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hancock of Bryan, O.; and Mr. and Mrs. James Kinsey and four children of Auburn.

Harvey Hull was a Tuesday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Am Reinhart of north of Newville, helping Am celebrate his birthday.

Were you proud to show your Christmas gifts this year? This little girl was:

She was only six and had received a wrist watch and a bottle of perfume. All day long she kept showing her presents until finally her mother said, "Honey, I know that you are proud of your gifts, but you're bothering everybody with them. You may sit at the dinner table with our guests tonight only if you promise not to mention the watch or the perfume even once."

The little one promised, and all through the dinner she sat wordless, but from time to time sniffing audibly, and at frequent intervals raising her left wrist to her ear to catch the sound of the ticking. Nobody paid her a bit of attention. Finally, in desperation, as the meal came to an end, she blurted out, "I'm not supposed to mention it. But if anybody hears anything or smells anything, it's ME!"

Praise, like gold and diamonds, owes its value to its scarcity.

It's always show time at Ort's Showrooms

Around the Town

With the Editor

Did you happen to be watching Arthur Godfrey Tuesday morning? If you did, you saw and heard something that you can see and hear Sunday afternoon at the Civic Theater in Fort Wayne. What I'm talking about is barbershop quartets.

Mr. Godfrey had the Buffalo Bills on his program. The Bills are currently appearing on Broadway in Meredith Wilson's production of "The Music Man."

The Buffalo Bills won't be on the program at Fort Wayne Sunday but quartets of the same high caliber will - champions all over the place.

—And one of the by-words of barbershopping for the last ten years, The Mid-States Four of Chicago, are included on the show.

If harmony in voice can contribute to peace on earth, Fort Wayne will do its part Sunday afternoon.

Fiction—

David Hubbard went to the ballet for the first time with his father. After watching the girls dance around on their toes for a while, the young man asked, "Why don't they just get taller girls?"

Sometimes a person wonders whether it pays to be too mindful of good sportsmanship because so often it appears that the aggressive fellow, looking out only for himself, gets further ahead. But once in a while, at a crucial time, there can be an incident which pointedly shows that sportsmanship does pay and that losing sight of good sportsmanship can be costly.

The other night at the ball game, the reserve squad appeared to be on the verge of pulling a win out of the hat, putting on a rally to tie the game with little over a minute to go. But when a foul was called on one of our boys, he let himself get the better of himself and made a threatening gesture at one of the referees. A technical foul was called and the whole incident cost 3 points and possession of the ball.

Maybe we would have lost anyhow. But the incident seemed to serve as the proverbial straw and our back was broken.

We got caught this time and it was costly. Our luck ran out for once, since this was not the first time such gestures of a like nature have been seen, either directed at officials or at opposing players.

I hope we cool off and keep playing ball in the next close one. That one we'll win.

Comets Drop Pair, 59-52 And 84-69

The Riverdale Comets ran up against tall men again in games against Hicksville and Albion and came out on the short end of both games. At Hicksville last Friday night the locals were defeatel by a 59-52 score. Then on Tuesday evening they fell apart in the second half against Albion at Waterloo and were trounced by a 84-69 score.

In the reserve game at the Hicksville gym the Comets maintained a 6 to 13 point lead throughout the game to win handily, 46-34.

In the varsity contest the locals led by 6-5 after 3 minutes of play. Hicksville then pulled ahead 12-8 with 2:35 remaining in the quarter before the first period score of 15-13 was posted with the Aces in front.

Play was rather loose in the second quarter as Hicksville went ahead 20-15 then 24-16 as the Comets called time out with 4:00 to go. The locals rallied, helped by 4 points in succession by Lothamer and they trailed by only 3 points at 28-25 as the first half ended.

Hicksville held a 5-point lead through the third quarter and the Comets again cut it to a 3-point margin, 42-39, at the conclusion of the period.

The Comets then threatened in the final stanza aided by a 3-point play by Larry Friend to make it 46-44 with the Aces still in front. Clarence Bry got loose on a fast break but the lay-up rolled off to the side and Riverdale called time out with 4:45 in the last quarter. The score then stood at 49-46. Hicksville pulled ahead to 53-46, then it was 55-50 with 2:50 remaining. Riverdale could muster only 2 more points in the remaining time and the Aces got 4 to make the final count 59-52.

At Waterloo Tuesday night the reserve squad kept on even terms with Albion for the first few minutes, holding a 6-all tie at the 3:00 mark. Albion went to a 11-7 quarter lead. In the second period Albion extended their lead to 17-11 and ended the period doubling the score on Riverdale at 24-12.

The reserve Comets began to peck away at the lead in the third period and pulled up to 26-17 with 3:00 remaining in that quarter. The third quartended with Albion yet in the lead at 31-23.

In the closing period Riverdale trailed at one point 37-31 before rallying to tie the score at 38-all with 1:34 to go in the game. A foul was called at this point on Riverdale and a technical was also assessed because of a gesture by one of the players. Albion cashed in with 3 points, then got two more to extend their lead to 43-38 in a matter of seconds. The locals managed but 2 points in that last minute and a half and Albion won, 45-40.

The varsity game got off to a fast start. Riverdale led 7-6 with 5:18 to go in the first period. Then Albion took the lead 11-8 with 3:44 remaining in the period. Riverdale put on an all-court press and pulled up to 17-15 with 1:27 to go. Unfortunately Larry Coplin got in foul trouble at this point and was taken out for later service.

The press paid off for the Comets in the second period and they managed to break up Albion plays. In addition Gerald Lothamer, Dale Dowden and Cliff Warstler were hitting sensationally and the Comets tied it up at 28-all Albion led at the half 37-35.

The rebounding strength of the Albion five began to tell in the third quarter and they went to a 43-36 lead. At the 4:00 mark Albion led by ten at 51-41. Then the locals fell apart, missing shots and just not being able to click. Their opponents were hot in the meantime and still controlled the boards. At the end of the third quarter Albion held a 62-48 lead.

The final quarter was fairly even with the Comets netting a total of 21 points while Albion got 22. But the locals were never able to come within striking distance.

GAME NOTES — The writer was set to enjoy the Hicksville games in a new gym for some reason, finding out differently as the games were played on the floor as small as the one at the local gym. The new grade school must have confused us. — The officials were having a happy time in the Ohio town. The second quarter was rough and loose for the varsity teams, and there was quite a bit of contact without fouls being called. The refs seemed content to let things go and get a laugh occasionally at the difficulties the boys got into. — No one felt worse than Clarence Bry when he missed a lay-up in the last quarter. Those 2 points could have been the spark to really set things off. — The Comets appeared befuddled in the closing minute. They trailed by 7 points yet refrained from firing away at the hoop. — The Albion reserve squad towered at least 1 or 2 inches over the Comet reserves. At one point in the first quarter, Albion had half a dozen shots at the basket without a Riverdale player getting hold of the ball on rebounds. — The sniping of Lothamer, Dowden and Warstler in the second period of the varsity game was encouraging as it appeared that the Comets scoring punch might have to rely again on the shooting of Larry Coplin who had to be removed in the first period. Dowden used his weight to better advantage and was hitting from outside while Lothamer's fairly long jump shots were, as usual, swishing through with barely room to lift the lid off the basket. Warstler's specialty is the one-handed push type with a little skip along with it. — The Comet defense is interesting to watch and is usually quite effective. There isn't much you can do when the other team is hot, however. — The Riverdale band, small in number but ever faithful, entertained as did the baton twirlers. — A tremendous upset was scored in an exhibition between halves of the reserve game at Waterloo when the Riverdale 5th graders defeated the 6th graders by a 10-6 score. It was a grueling contest, hard-fought all the way. Competition was so keen, fast and rugged that wrong baskets were being shot at and almost shot at. — On Friday night this week the Comets go to Ashley.

PTA Plans For Interesting Meeting Tuesday

Questions submitted by patrons of the Riverdale schools will present a sound basis for an interesting panel discussion next Tuesday evening, January 21, when the Riverdale P.T.A. will meet at the high school gym in Saint Joe.

Ralph Sechler, moderator for the discussion, will be working with panel members for the next few days analyzing questions and preparing an organized and comprehensive program of information for the community.

Among questions received, answers to which will be given, if there is an answer, at Tuesday's meeting, are those pertaining to the operation of the cafeteria and its menu, the method of grading and suggestions for beter use of the grade card improvements in the school property, functions of the P.T.A., "how and when" of new-school construction, employment of county school nurse, and other questions relative to school operation.

Also on the program Tuesday evening will be entertainment by the Senior Class and the second grade.

Residents of the Riverdale School community are invited to attend the meeting Tuesday evening. Meeting time is 7:30 p.m.

Need For Polio Funds Yet Remains Urgent

Even though the Salk vaccine is a success in the fight against the crippling effects of infantile paralysis, there is yet a need for funds to help those who were stricken with the disease before the vaccine was at hand.

Mrs. Dorothy Shugart of Auburn, chairman of the DeKalb County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, has pointed out that there were two polio cases in the county in 1957 and one is still confined to St. Joseph Hospital in Fort Wayne. In addition the chapter has paid for minor surgery on six carryover cases from previous years. These facts lend impetus to the appeal for the March of Dimes during the month of January. Canisters can be seen all over DeKalb County, in business establishments, offices, etc., in which county residents can place their contribution to the national fight against polio. County March of Dimes lends a helping hand to all new and old polio patients and in the past year spent over $9,000 in patient care and minor surgery. This is more than the March of Dimes took in last year in DeKalb County so the National organization has reimbursed the county chapter $4,000. But there are still many unpaid bills.

March of Dime campaign leaders have joined in an appeal for contribution to help wipe out infantile paralysis.

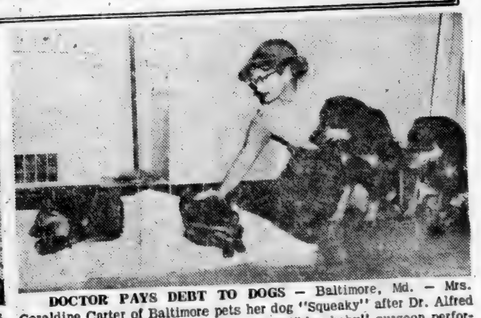
The child is on her way to the University of Minnesota Hospital where a rare heart operation will be performed to correct a hole in her heart which prevents normal operation of blood flow. Toulouse citizens raised $35,000 to defray costs of the operation and transportation expenses for the father and child.



DOCTOR PAYS DEBT TO DOGS — Baltimore, Md. — Mrs. Geraldine Carter of Baltimore pets her dog "Squeaky" after Dr. Alfred Blalock, famed John Hopkins University "blue baby" surgeon performed a delicate operation to save the life of the seven-months-old canine. The Rottweiler-Dachshund-like puppy developed symptoms similar to those in "blue babies". An examination, however, disclosed that "Squeaky" was not a "blue puppy" but that its intestines were misplaced as a result of an auto accident in which the dog had figured. Dr. Blalock quickly put the canine patient's innards back in order. The surgeon said he regarded the surgery as a way of showing his gratitude to all dogs that have been used in research.

AFTER THE DELUGE IN NEW JERSEY — Oakland, N.J. — Yesterday's torrential rain over a large area of the eastern seaboard left a lot of damp misery around. Here's a view of Park Drive in the Colony Section of Oakland as waters of the Ramapo River turned the street into a waterway. Many homes were isolated by the flood waters.

Rainbow Girls Initiate New Members

by Carol Graham

Spencerville Assembly No. 104, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, met at the Masonic Temple December 12 and initiated Judy Impton and Betty Dilley.

For the occasion the assembly room was decorated in keeping with the Christmas season. Worthy Advisor Jean Zimmerman and her corps of officers presented a lovely initiatory ceremony followed by the Rose Ceremony given by Judy Miller, Rose Lecturer, who welcomed the new members and presented each with a rose, then placing the roses on the altar in memory of all girls' mothers.

Despite the bad weather guests were present from Butler as were several Eastern Stars and Masons.

Assembly was closed with the regular ceremony.

On December 26 the girls met for their Christmas meeting. This meeting was conducted by Marv Jane Baker, Associate Worthy Advisor, the officer whose duty it is to preside in the absence of Worthy Advisor. During the good of the order the girls decided to add "top tune" to their record collection each week for the remainder of the term. Mary Jane reminded the girls of the coming year with an appropriate verse. Christmas carols were sung and Mom Brattain gave several thoughts on the holidays and approaching New Year. A very well-worn, bedraggled, bare-footed Santa Claus appeared to wish the group a belated Merry Christmas and to present each one with a Christmas remembrance from Mom Marge. After Santa retired Mary Jane presented Mom Brattain with a gift from the Assembly. Following closing refreshments were served and records were enjoyed by all.

Initiation ceremonies will be held on January 23 and installation of officers, to which the public is invited, will be held on January 25.

Life is made up not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, in which smiles and kindnesses, and small obligations, given habitually, are what win and preserve the heart and secure comfort.

This little poem from the January issue of the DeMolay monthly magazine sorta tells the right story.

LEARN

Learn to laugh—a laugh is better than medicine.

Learn to tell a story. A well told story is like a sunbeam in a sick room.

Learn to say kind things — nobody ever resents them.

Learn to stop grumbling. If you can't see any good in the world, keep the bad to yourself.

Learn to keep troubles to yourself — nobody wants to take them from you.

Above all, learn to smile. It pays.

Someone has said, "You are never fully dressed until you wear a smile."

We, here at Ort's, will always greet you with a smile when you come to see us.

It's always show time at Ort's Showrooms

April 13 - And We Breathe Free Again!

The average Hoosier will be working for the tax collector for the first 102 days of 1958. That means on April 13, 1958, "we start working for ourselves."

It will take 102 days for Indiana's typical taxpayer to the equivalent of the tax money he will pay directly and indirectly to the federal, state and local governments, the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce has pointed out.

The ararking of those tax-earning days is a feature of the State Chamber's new Indiana Tax Calendar for 1958, which lists 254 reminders of dates when some 58 types of federal, state and local taxes and fees fall due during the year for businessmen and individuals:

April 13 (and it won't fall on Friday) is highlighted on the calendar as the day "we start earning for ourselves." In explaining the fixing of this date, the State Chamber said: "Approximately 28 per cent of the total 'income payments to individuals' goes to meet total federal, state and local tax bills in Indiana. On this basis on the average, income for 102 days of the year is required to meet tax costs."

The calendar also sets out return filing deadlines created by the new state law requiring withholding of the state gross income tax by employers of four or more persons. The tax calendar is distributed annually to members of the State Chamber, many local chambers of commerce and other business associations.

NEWVILLE TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Newville Township Home Demonstration Club met Wednesday, January 8, at the club house for an all-day meeting. The losing side of the attendance contest, captained by Mrs. Leona Bender, entertained the winners, captained by Mrs. Daisy Roberts, to a bountiful dinner served at the noon hour. Entertainment followed the business meeting.

After dinner, the president, Mrs. Lois Guiff, called the meeting to order with the club reciting the club creed. Devotions were given by Mrs. Irene Emenhiser, followed by the club singing "Sweet Hour of Prayer."

Mrs. Grace Laub of Spencerville then presided at the installation of the new 1958 officers. Following this roll call of "your favorite radio or TV program, person or personalities" was answered by 27 members.

Edna Mickelson then read the history of the song of the month, "Let There Be Peace On Earth."

Business was discussed and plans and goals outlined for the coming year. Gifts were then presented to the 15 members having had perfect attendance for 1958.

After the closing of the meeting the social hour was enjoyed.

CONCORD JR. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Concord Junior Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Dorothy Fetters with Hazel Schrader as co-hostess on January 6.

The new officers took charge of the meeting. The president, Phyllis Uehlein, called the meeting to order. The club collect was read by the group. The song of the month was given by Katy Crow. Roll call was answered by 14 members and one guest. The secretary's report was read and approved.

Committees for the year were appointed. The February meeting will be held at the Saint Joe Lutheran Church basement. Guest club will be the Town and Country Club of Butler. The club dismissed by singing the club prayer.

Marcia Sible and Lois Stromberk presented an interesting contest after which the hostess and co-hostess served lunch.

Basketbrawl Game Scheduled For Girls And Boys

The Tri-Hi-Y organization, composed of girls of the Sophomore, Junior and Senior classes of Riverdale High School, helped two needy families in the community at Christmas time. The girls prepared boxes of food for these families.

The organization is sponsored by the State Y.M.C.A. of Indiana, and is active in many different ways.

On January 22 the girls are playing the F.F.A. boys in a game of "basketbrawl." This is a game of basketball which is played half of the game with girls rules and the other half with boys rules. The boys wear boxing gloves and neither of the teams is allowed to practice in advance.

The game will be played in the high school gym at Saint Joe. Admission price is 25c. The public is invited to come and enjoy the game. This project is sponsored by the Tri-Hi-Y girls.

Officers of the club are:
Mary Jane Baker, president.
Carol Flesher, vice-president.
Esther Fetters, secretary
Charlotte Coburn, treasurer.
Phyllis Baker, chaplain.
Dorothy Bry, sergeant-at-arms.
Mrs. Jean Harlan, sponsor.

WINTER WHEAT PR'SPECTS

Indiana farmers seeded 1,296,000 acres of wheat in the fall of 1957, the same acreage as sown in the fall of 1956, according to state-federal statisticians at Purdue University. The 1957 Indiana acreage is 17 per cent less than the 10-year average.

The statisticians reported that seedings were made under generally good soil conditions and that growing conditions have been good since that time.

Based on December 1, 1957, conditions, a yield of 29 bushels per seeded acre is in prospect.

Total production for 1958 is now forecast to be 37,584,000 bushels, compared with 32,360,000 bushels produced in 1957. Even though the seeded acreagre for 1958 is 17 per cent less than the 10-year average, prospective production for 1958 is 6 per cent greater than average.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible Material: Acts 2:42-47; Romans 15:1-9; Ephesians 4:17-32; Philippians 1:3-11.

Devotional Reading: Galatians 5:13-26.

FELLOWSHIP: WHY?

Lesson for January 19. 1958

In a Hamfest everybody is there because of the same interest: amateur radio. At a philatic convention everybody talks stamps. They have no other reason for getting together. At a funeral, or at a wedding, you sometimes see odd assortments of human beings, most of whom never saw one another before, all having only this one thing in common, having met the departed (by casket or by honeymoon car) at some time before. There are other kinds of gatherings, too. There are college fraternities, the main point of each chapter being that the boys, or girls, find one another good company. There are also fellowships based on some common experience, like a shipwreck, or having attended the same high school.

Unique Fellowship

The Christian Church is a fellowship, and when it is not, it has lost the right to the title of true church. But it is not like any of the fellowships mentioned above. It has been called the fellowship of the uncongenial. That is an exaggeration; two members of the church may have been close friends before they joinel it. But natural congeniality is not and never was a necessity for membership. It is a fellowship of persons who have all experienced God's forgiving grace, whose loyalties are centered in Jesus Christ. It is said that on the same morning at the same service Chief Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court and a poor woman who took in washing joined the same church. It is highly unlikely that the jurist and the washerwoman could have had much fun on a picnic together or would have made good partners at a dance. But they both knew in their hearts what it was to love the Lord Jesus.

Fellowship With A Purpose

But it is not only a past experience, however treasured, that binds together the fellowship of the family of God. It is both present experience and a living intention: that is, what is happening to us and in us now, and what we unite to do, that also makes this fellowship unique. Consider those four items mentioned in Acts about the earliest Christian church: (1) the spostles' teaching, (2) fellowship, (3) breaking bread, (4) prayers. The Christian church is the ONLY group, organization or society in the world that stresses this combination. It is the only fellowship where the Bible is regularly studied (the apostles' teaching); where fellowship is based on relation with the Son of God; where the sacraments are observed; and where people learn to pray. (By the way, what does your church do to teach its members how to pray?)

Harmony of Glory

There are many expressions in the New Testament putting the purpose of the church, or one part of its purpose, into a single happy phrase. One such is in Romans 15:5. Abbrevisted it runs: "May God grant you to live in such harmony with one another, in accord with Christ Jesus, that together you may glorify God." We said that the church is the fellowship of the uncongenial; but the miracle the true church works is developing a divine harmony even among these many sorts and conditions of Christians. But harmony for what? Not for its own sake, but to glorify God.

This does not mean the church is to be a hymn-singing society, though a church that won't or can't sing is certainly in a bad way. To glorify God does not mean simply to praise him. It means (in the New Testament sense) SO TO LIVE, AS SONS AND DAUGHTERS OF GOD, THAT OTHER PERSONS WILL BE ATTRACTED TO GOD THRU YOU. Every church member ought to be one good reason for believing in God. When a Christian says "I believe in God," if he told the whole story he would add: "—because of so-and-so'— because of certain people I can name. I believe in God because I saw what God can do with people, what he made out of them." It is a terrible thing when it is the other way around, and a man says "I should like to believe in God, but can't. I've known a few church members and if their God had anything to do with making them what they are, I for one don't want anything to do with him." Let the church glorify God, not slander him!

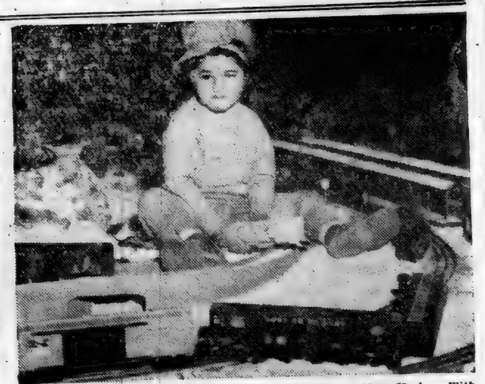
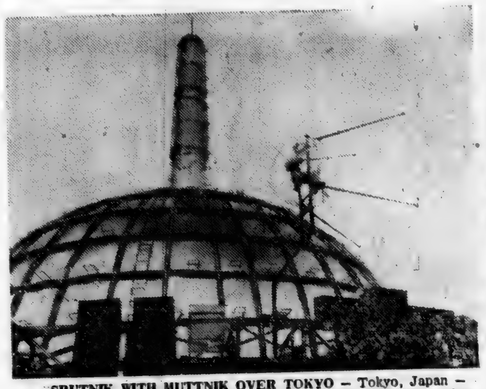
PICTURES OF THE WEEK

NEW RESEARCH CRAFT — A FLYING BOX — San Diego, Calif. — Here's a photo of a unique new research airplane. Designated the Vertiplane, it is designed to take off and land vertically; hover and fly forward. Using the "deflected slipstream" principle, the Army-Ryan Vertiplane employs large flaps to turn the propeller slipstream downward. The end plates at wing tips confine the slipstream to flap span for better flight efficiency.

"ELOISE" GETS ENGRAVINGS — Washington, D. C. — Seven-year-old Evelyn Rudie, of Los Angeles, Calif., the "Eloise" of television fame, receives a set of steel engravings of all the U. S. Presidents from Mrs. Eisenhower as the child star called at the White House to pay her respects to the First Lady,



A HECK OF A WAY TO RUN A RAILWAY — New York — With three trains derailed in a major crash, Princess Lalla Amina, 5, at the switch, conveys a cute version of exasperation. There seemed little else she could do, being new on the 'job', never before having seen or operated a miniature railroad. However, she will soon learn all about railroading as her Daddy, King Mohamed V of Morocco, gave her a whole set of these pastel-colored trains.



SPUTNIK WITH MUTTNIK OVER TOKYO — Tokyo, Japan — An enterprising candy firm in Tokyo made the most of the number one topic of the year — globe-girdling Soviet satellites — to draw attention to their wares. They took Tokyo citizens by surprise by [illegible] model of Sputnik 11 complete with the late Laika [illegible] a giant globe atop a nine story building in the [illegible] Ginza Section. Note the "Moon" at right.

DAZZLING SLOSHER — New York — Songstress Julie Wilson is resplendent in a white gown whose brilliance is only slightly diminished by the galoshes she is wearing as she attended a New York film premiere.

VIGIL FOR A DEAD PAL — Warren, Mich. — Rusty's loyalty is a very real thing. He has maintained a futile vigil for his pal, Bobby Hiner, outside Lincoln Junior High for the past two weeks. Many people have tried to tell him, but he just can't understand, that Bobby, who was 12 years old, died of Leukemia in a hospital and will never come back.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

In a beautiful Christmas setting, 18 members and 3 guests, Mrs. Belle Woodcox, Mrs. Jack Olinger and Mrs. Harry Reinshield, enjoyed a bountiful dinner in the home of Mrs. Lora Leighty of Auburn on Wednesday, December 18. Grace was given by Mrs. Belle Woodcox.

The committee was Mrs. Don Burley and Mrs. Cora Curie.

The president, Mrs. Maurice Kline, called the meeting to order and the collect and pledge to the flag were repeated in unison. A short business meeting was held.

The following program was then presented. Mrs. Don Folk of Auburn, guest of Mrs. Leighty, very ably gave two readings, "Rebecca, the Serving Maid" and "Silent Night."

A quartet, Mrs. Forrest Bevington, Mrs. Harold Baker, Mrs. Wayne Storer and Mrs. Robert Musser, accompanied by Mrs. Leighty, sang "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day" and "O Holy Night."

A reading, "The Virgin's Story," was well presented by Mrs. Frank Shull.

The club met at the home of Mrs. Harold Baker on Wednesday evening, January 8.

The collect and pledge to the flag were repeated in unison.

Two very interesting and informative lessons were brought by Mrs. Carl Perkins whose topic was "The Mormon Religion," and Mrs. Don Burley who gave "Services of the Better Business Bureau."

Mrs. Forrest Bevington was in charge of the entertainment and led the group in an action game. Roll call was responded to by 17 members and the Misses Marynelle and Brenda Baker were guests.

The critic's report was given by Mrs. Carl Carpenter. Mrs. Theodore Crow was voted in as a member of the club.

During the business meeting the following officers were elected for next year:

Mrs. Robert Musser, president.

Mrs. Wayne Storer, vice-president.

Mrs. Forrest Bevington, recording secretary.

Mrs. Elwood Hart, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Harold Baker, treasurer.

Mrs. Roy Baker, critic.

Mrs. Frank Shull, parliamentarian.

Mrs. William Staman, historian.

Club adjourned and the hostess served light refreshments.

Around the Town

With the Editor

That sure was a good show the barber shoppers put on Sunday afternoon—one of the most entertaining programs they've had.

Next time they have a show d-o-n'-t m-i-s-s it!

I bet you thought, as I did, that a train whistle was called that because of the noise it makes. Well, it isn't.

You can find out why on pages 2 and 3.

Fiction—
Paul—"Where is all the grocery money going that I gave you?"
Leila: "Stand sideways and look in the mirror."

More fiction—
Two avid gamblers on the horses were at a meeting one day in very low spirits. They were losing on every race. To make matters worse, two pleasant ladies in the next box were delightedly cashing in on every race. Just before the 7th race, one of the gamblers saw them go into a huddle and decided he would try to get a winner. He leaned over and said politely, "You ladies have been doing quite well, haven't you?"

The man looked around cautiously, then whispered, "Would you mind giving me your system?"

"Oh, we have a lot of systems," said Lazerne. "But today," continued Victoria, "we're betting on the longest tails."

Mary Wilder Will Visit France This Summer

Mary Corinne Wilder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lehr Wilder of southeast of Saint Joe, has been selected as one of five students from Purdue University and from Indiana University to receive overseas assignments as Indiana's five 1958 Foreign Youth Exchanges.

Miss Wilder is a senior in the School of Home Economics at Purdue and will travel to France this summer. The other Purdue selectees are Wally J. Caine who will go to Israel, James Miller who will visit Ireland and Jack Stafford who will visit Columbia, South America. The Indiana University winner is Phyllis Secondino who will spend her 5 months in the Netherlands.

250 At PTA; Supper, Carnival Date Is Feb. 22

A crowd of around 250 persons was present Tuesday night at the Riverdale High School gym in Saint Joe for the January meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. Featured on the program for the evening was a panel discussion with parents and teachers represented.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by Don Noragon who played a french horn solo and Bob Wilder who gave a reading, representing the senior class. Additional musical entertainment was provided by the second grade of the elementary school under the direction of Mrs. Robert Lowry.

During the business meeting it was announced that a mixer was being purchased for the high school cafeteria and that $1,000 was being deposited in a savings account for use by the organization when a new school is built. It was also announced that Dean Earl Garver of North Manchester College will be the speaker at the February meeting. Dean Garver will speak on a topic dealing with the requirements to be met by a high school graduate in entering college for further education. The subject is of interest to both parents and pupils, especially of the Junior High and High School grades, since filling entrance requirements for college is directly influenced by the student's course of study in those grades.

A meeting of the finance committee of the P.T.A. was reported at the meeting by Mr. Bill Sible. The date for the annual ham supper and carnival has been set, Saturday, February 22. Committees and helpers are being contacted at present and it is planned to have the supper in the Spencerville cafeteria and the carnival in the gym at Saint Joe.

The panel discussion was led by Ralph Sechler. On the receiving end of the questions were Mrs. William Hudson of Spencerville and Mrs. Harvey Carr of Saint Joe, representing the parents; Mr. Roger Hess, county superintendent; Mr. Richard Crow, president of the Riverdale school board; Mr. Joe Smith and Mr. Hubert Stackhouse, representing the Riverdale faculty; and Mr. Ted Haberkorn, a last-minute appointee to the panel to represent the P.T.A.

Though many questions were discussed at the meeting, there were also many which could not be presented due to lack of time. Some of the points which were brought out, however, in the discussion included the planning by the school board for obtaining preliminary sketches of school building needs early next year. This will include the selection of an architect who will submit plans according to recommendations yet to be made concerning the facilities to be incorporated in a new school building. Another point, concerning the cafeteria, made it apparent that it is not possible, under present conditions, with grade and high school cafeterias separated geographically, to combine the cafeterias in one operational unit, although more efficient use of cafeteria money could be made under such an arrangement. The importance of discipline in the home, or rather the giving to the student an appreciation of his responsibilities by parents, was shown to be quite important in the efficient presentation of a good educational program. It was pointed out that time spent in disciplining in the classroom is time lost in teaching, that teachers are "rather expensive baby-sitters" if students are not given some preparation for school by the parents.

Another question about participation in sports brought forth the thought from Mr. Stackhouse and Mr. Smith that it is poor practice to attempt to make a "one-sport" athlete of a boy, also that the physical education program could be more useful to the average person in later years if less emphasis were placed on, for instance, basketball which is a limited field because of the limited number of players which can be used, and more emphasis on other sports such as bowling or golf which the average person can enjoy in later years with a certain amount of instruction.

There were a few questions about the P.T.A. itself concerning programing, plus several others about school operations in general. The president of the P.T.A. plans to make use of the questions which could not be presented at Tuesday's meeting by presenting them at future P.T.A. meetings with answers prepared by the proper persons. Some of the questions could be classified more as suggestions than questions and may possibly be presented to the proper persons, also, for consideration.

Local Pastor Wins K.ofP. Driving Award

Local drivers unknowingly were under observation by the Saint Joe Knights of Pythias Lodge as the lodge participated in a state-wide courtsey-on-the-highways program. As a result of this observation, Mr. James Beck, pastor of the Saint Joe Church of Christ, was selected as the winner of the lodge's recognition as most consistently courteous driver in this community.

A "checker," incidentally not a member of the lodge, observed drivers in this community for several weeks recently and noted repeated instances of highway courtesy on the part of Mr. Beck. Because of his courteous habits as an operator of a motor vehicle, Mr. Beck won a set of 1958 license plates for his car and the congratulations of Saint Joe Lodge 400.

The Becks moved to Saint Joe only recently to serve the local Church of Christ.

Movement Afoot To Secure School Nurse

A movement is underway in DeKalb County, spearheaded by the DeKalb County Nurses Club, to obtain the services of a county school nurse. A meeting will be held Tuesday evening at Auburn in the commissioners court room of the court house at which time the idea will be presented to the county council. Funds to provide such a service must be appropriated for in the county budget. A meeting was held on January 8 with the commissioners. Represented were the DeKalb County Registered Nurses Club, Federated Clubs, the schools by the county superintendent and the county health office by Dr. Rogers.

The Riverdale P.T.A. voted its approval of the movement at its meeting Tuesday evening and the president of the organization, Ted Haberkorn, has been asked to attend next Tuesday's meetig to represent the local P.T.A.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. on the second floor of the court house.

Dan Ransom New Operator Of Elevator At Sp'ville

Patrons of the Spencerville Elevator have been receiving the considerate service of the establishment's new manager since December 1 of last year. The new manager is familiar to residents in this area, particularly to those residing in and near Spencerville as he has been living in that community for some time and had been working at the elevator for 3 years before assuming his new position. The name of the new arrival in the ranks of local businessmen is Dan Ransom.

Mr. Ransom began his employment at the elevator in September of 1954. Mr. Joe Pesch was manager of the firm at that time. Mr. Pesch is now owner of an elevator at Albion, Michigan.

Mr. Ransom was also engaged in farming to some extent before taking over new additional responsibilities as a community businessman. He is married and with Mrs. Ransom boasts of a family of 5 children. The family resides at the south edge of Spencerville.

Hoosier Spring Barrow Show Dates Feb. 11 & 15

Lightweight, 190-215 lb, and mediumweight, 216-240, lb., barrows will be judged as individuals, in pens of three and truck loads at the "on foot" show in the swine barn at the state fairgrounds on Tuesday, February 11. Four days later, Saturday, February 15, the best will be rated in the carcass contest at Kingan's main plant on West Washington Street.

Entries close February 1 and must be postmarked not later than the February 1 date and mailed to Kingan's main plant.

Fifty classes of purebred and crossbred barrows of seven recognized breeds will be shown along with three classes for all other barrows. The first prize winner in each on-foot class for single barrows will be automatically entered in the carcass event. In addition each exhibitor is permitted one entry for the carcass event, regardless of its placing in the barrow show.

The Same Old Story

One of the things which will no doubt puzzle students of history a century from now will be the puzzling antics of this generation in its quest for peace. It will be a puzzle for some practical reasons, such as weakening oneself in the desire to make oneself strong. It will be puzzling for other reasons, such as debasing oneself in order to keep pace with one's competitor, not only in the race for power but for the mind of man.

What will make the puzzle even more puzzling will be that a significant number of people in this country are associated with a Christian religion which has as its foundation a Christ who is accepted in the faith as the Son of God. The teaching of this Divine Man are the teachings of peace. The believer looks to words and acts of Jesus Christ as being the measure of perfection; the closer man can live as Christ, the closer man comes to perfection. The puzzle comes in that in this period of time in which we, the present, generally associate our nation with Christianity, in which we profess belief in the acts of Christ as being the acts of perfection, our thoughts and actions do not follow the lines of inspiration gained from looking to the Christ but rather look for inspiration in the acts of man. It gives the appearance that the opinion is "that stuff is okay on paper but when you try it, it just won't work."

One of the most common reactions to reading Biblical accounts of the life of Christ is, "Why didn't they believe Him?" The average Christian study class of adults or young people probably wonders, in a popular phrase, "How could they be so stupid?" Yet, at the same time this generation today may be looked upon in the same manner a century from now; it is easy to analyze the past, because it's over. What should have been done can be seen. The problem in life, however, is not the past but the future - a problem, that is, for those who have not a purpose in mind in seeking the answers to all life's problems.

All God-fearing people have one thing in common, their belief in God. They may express their belief in different ways, they may look only to God or they may look to God through Christ. Either way, however, there is a perfection that is looked up to, a way of life that is set as the ultimate in all creation. Whatever the way of expressing belief in God, it behooves the believer to practice his faith in every possible way at every possible moment. Thus it behooves the man of today to live in fear of God, as he believes, in order that the ultimate goal of perfection may be approached by one step, then another.

The puzzle for a century from now will be that, as in Biblical times, people who believed in God as God or Christ as God believed only so far, then believed in themselves. The strife that was present centuries ago came for Christians because men attempted to destroy their message of hope. The strife is present today because men, perhaps unwittingly, are destroying the same message because their faith does not live, in their thoughts, in their words and in their deeds.

It would be interesting to be cast one hundred years into the future for a while and look the situation over. Quite possibly everything would be clearer to us than it is now. And quite probably, we would say to ourselves, "How could we be so stupid!"

MENTAL DISCIPLINE NEEDED

A tiny sphere blazing an orbit in outer space has perhaps rendered a great service. Sputnik rocked us back on our educational heels. For this we should be thankful. But in the wake of the news of the Russian man-made satellite spinning about in the heavens, American politicians, educators, scientists and the lay public have gotten themselves into an unscientific dither over our school-room shortcomings.

The danger in this situation lies in our tendency to assume that, had we had a sufficient number of expert scientists posted in laboratories and testing stations where needed, our problems would be solved and the Russian bear would hibernate. It is short-sighted to think that national greatness is measured by material achievement alone.

To be sure, our security may depend on our ability to make war. But decisions at the peace table, and plans for winning and holding international friends will not be left to scientists, but to persons who are wise in the ways of men. Men like Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln had the kind of wisdom gotten only through a comprehensive understanding of man - understanding which comes from history and literature and the languages of other lands.

For several years there has been sporadic concern over Johnny's lack of reading ability, his ignorance of simple arithmetic. Realizing that we had not been assigning our children lessons of difficulty and challenge, the 1956 delegates to the Indiana Farm Bureau convention adopted a resolution which said, in part: "It is recommended that a rigorous program of mathematics, language arts and social studies be offered and required."

Farm Bureau members can take pride in their early and courageous action. The cause for concern can be laid at the doors of all citizens. It has evolved from a trend that has taken the entire country - a trend toward an easier life, job security and guaranteed success.

Some parents take the attitude that they don't want their child to work too hard and that the school owes him a good grade. Some will work to discredit teachers, administrators and study courses to get the job done. Often, rather than insist that the child master the difficult subjects, parents allow their children to avoid the more educative courses. Vocational subjects and sports are sometimes allowed to accelerate the trend.

This method of lowering our Hoosier standards of education was in line with the characteristics of democracy, but was not a result of being a democracy. Let us not forget that individual responsibilty is heavy in a democracy. Failing it, a democracy fails.

No one has gained by lowering standards. The gifted child develops lazy mental habits, and becomes bored with endless repetition necessary for others to learn. The great "average" group does not learn to make the most of their abilities.

Education is (or should be) disciplinary. The very word comes from the Latin word meaning "To lead out the child." A good educational system should develop both mental and physical capacities of the child.

Discipline must be returned to the school-room. Parents have a vital role to play. If the Farm Bureau resolution on education is to mean anything, it must be followed with action to create a new popular demand.

The training of minds should become the first purpose of a school; for with a trained mind at whatever occupation a man chooses he will be better equipped.

—The Hoosier Farmer, January 1958.

WHISTLER'S FATHER

Almost everybody has heard of Whistler's mother. Her name has spread far and wide since the famous portrait was first exhibited in London in 1872. She and her artist son, James McNeill Whistler, will long be remembered for their contributions to the world of art.

But what of Whistler's father? We seldom hear of him. Did he, on his own, have any claim to fame? The answer is "yes" - his contributions to the world have also had a lasting effect, and in a more practical way. For the artist's father, George Washington Whistler, was a railroad engineer whose genius helped to build roads in many parts of the world. Most important to us, Whistler helped make preliminary surveys for the laying of the first tracks of the B&O. He was also among those present at the laying of the B-&O's first stone at Mt. Clare.

Born in 1800 at Fort Wayne, Ind., George Washington Whistler was the son of Colonel John Whistler, at that time commander of the post which was one of the defenses of the Northwest Territory. Colonel Whistler later built Fort Dearborn, located where the mighty city of Chicago now stands.

Around the Town

With the Editor

That sure was a good show the barber shoppers put on Sunday afternoon—one of the most entertaining programs they've had.

Next time they have a show d-o-n'-t m-i-s-s it!

I bet you thought, as I did, that a train whistle was called that because of the noise it makes. Well, it isn't.

You can find out why on pages 2 and 3.

Fiction—

Paul—"Where is all the grocery money going that I gave you?"

More fiction—

Two avid gamblers on the horses were at a meeting one day in very low spirits. They were losing on every race. To make matters worse, two pleasant ladies in the next box were delightedly cashing in on every race. Just before the 7th race, one of the gamblers saw them go into a huddle and decided he would try to get a winner. He leaned over and said politely, "You ladies have been doing quite well, haven't you?"

The man looked around cautiously, then whispered, "Would you mind giving me your system?"

"Oh, we have a lot of systems," said Lazerne. "But today," continued Victoria, "we're betting on the longest tails."

Mary Wilder Will Visit France This Summer

Mary Corinne Wilder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lehr Wilder of southeast of Saint Joe, has been selected as one of five students from Purdue University and from Indiana University to receive overseas assignments as Indiana's five 1958 Foreign Youth Exchanges.

Miss Wilder is a senior in the School of Home Economics at Purdue and will travel to France this summer. The other Purdue selectees are Wally J. Caine who will go to Israel, James Miller who will visit Ireland and Jack Stafford who will visit Columbia, South America. The Indiana University winner is Phyllis Secondino who will spend her 5 months in the Netherlands.

250 At PTA; Supper, Carnival Date Is Feb. 22

A crowd of around 250 persons was present Tuesday night at the Riverdale High School gym in Saint Joe for the January meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. Featured on the program for the evening was a panel discussion with parents and teachers represented.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by Don Noragon who played a french horn solo and Bob Wilder who gave a reading, representing the senior class. Additional musical entertainment was provided by the second grade of the elementary school under the direction of Mrs. Robert Lowry.

During the business meeting it was announced that a mixer was being purchased for the high school cafeteria and that $1,000 was being deposited in a savings account for use by the organization when a new school is built. It was also announced that Dean Earl Garver of North Manchester College will be the speaker at the February meeting. Dean Garver will speak on a topic dealing with the requirements to be met by a high school graduate in entering college for further education. The subject is of interest to both parents and pupils, especially of the junior High and High School grades, since filling entrance requirements for college is directly influenced by the student's course of study in those grades.

A meeting of the finance committee of the P.T.A. was reported at the meeting by Mr. Bill Sible. The date for the annual ham supper and carnival has been set, Saturday, February 22. Committees and helpers are being contacted at present and it is planned to have the supper in the Spencerville cafeteria and the carnival in the gym at Saint Joe.

The panel discussion was led by Ralph Sechler. On the receiving end of the questions were Mrs. William Hudson of Spencerville and Mrs. Harvey Carr of Saint Joe, representing the parents; Mr. Roger Hess, county superintendent; Mr. Richard Crow, president of the Riverdale school board; Mr. Joe Smith and Mr. Hubert Stackhouse, representing the Riverdale faculty; and Mr. Ted Haberkorn, a last-minute appointee to the panel to represent the P.T.A.

Though many questions were discussed at the meeting, there were also many which could not be presented due to lack of time. Some of the points which were brought out, however, in the discussion included the planning by the school board for obtaining preliminary sketches of school building needs early next year. This will include the selection of an architect who will submit plans according to recommendations yet to be made concerning the facilities to be incorporated in a new school building. Another point, concerning the cafeteria, made it apparent that it is not possible, under present conditions, with grade and high school cafeterias separated geographically, to combine the cafeterias in one operational unit, although more efficient use of cafeteria money could be made under such an arrangement. The importance of discipline in the home, or rather the giving to the student an appreciation of his responsibilities by parents, was shown to be quite important in the efficient presentation of a good educational program. It was pointed out that time spent in disciplining in the classroom is time lost in teaching, that teachers are "rather expensive baby-sitters" if students are not given some preparation for school by the parents.

Another question about participation in sports brought forth the thought from Mr. Stackhouse and Mr. Smith that it is poor practice to attempt to make a "one-sport" athlete of a boy, also that the physical education program could be more useful to the average person in later years if less emphasis were placed on, for instance, basketball which is a limited field because of the limited number of players which can be used, and more emphasis on other sports such as bowling or golf which the average person can enjoy in later years with a certain amount of instruction.

There were a few questions about the P.T.A. itself concerning programing, plus several others about school operations in general. The president of the P.T.A. plans to make use of the questions which could not be presented at Tuesday's meeting by presenting them at future P.T.A. meetings with answers prepared by the proper persons. Some of the questions could be classified more as suggestions than questions and may possibly be presented to the proper persons also, for consideration.

Local Pastor Wins K.ofP. Driving Award

Local drivers unknowingly were under observation by the Saint Joe Knights of Pythias Lodge as the lodge participated in a state-wide courtsey-on-the-highways program. As a result of this observation, Mr. James Beck, pastor of the Saint Joe Church of Christ, was selected as the winner of the lodge's recognition as most consistently courteous driver in this community.

A "checker," incidentally not a member of the lodge, observed drivers in this community for several weeks recently and noted repeated instances of highway courtesy on the part of Mr. Beck. Because of his courteous habits as an operator of a motor vehicle, Mr. Beck won a set of 1958 license plates for his car and the congratulations of Saint Joe Lodge 400.

The Becks moved to Saint Joe only recently to serve the local Church of Christ.

Movement Afoot To Secure School Nurse

A movement is underway in DeKalb County, spearheaded by the DeKalb County Nurses Club, to obtain the services of a county school nurse. A meeting will be held Tuesday evening at Auburn in the commissioners court room of the court house at which time the idea will be presented to the county council. Funds to provide such a service must be appropriated for in the county budget. A meeting was held on January 8 with the commissioners. Represented were the DeKalb County Registered Nurses Club, Federated Clubs, the schools by the county superintendent and the county health office by Dr. Rogers.

The Riverdale P.T.A. voted its approval of the movement at its meeting Tuesday evening and the president of the organization, Ted Haberkorn, has been asked to attend next Tuesday's meetig to represent the local P.T.A.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. on the second floor of the court house.

Patrons of the Spencerville Elevator have been receiving the considerate service of the establishment's new manager since December 1 of last year. The new manager is familiar to residents in this area, particularly to those residing in and near Spencerville as he has been living in that community for some time and had been working at the elevator for 3 years before assuming his new position. The name of the new arrival in the ranks of local businessmen is Dan Ransom.

Mr. Ransom began his employment at the elevator in September of 1954. Mr. Joe Pesch was manager of the firm at that time. Mr. Pesch is now owner of an elevator at Albion, Michigan.

Mr. Ransom was also engaged in farming to some extent before taking over new additional responsibilities as a community businessman. He is married and with Mrs. Ransom boasts of a family of 5 children. The family resides at the south edge of Spencerville.

Hoosier Spring Barrow Show Dates Feb. 11 & 15

Lightweight, 190-215 lb, and mediumweight, 216-240, lb., barrows will be judged as individuals, in pens of three and truck loads at the "on foot" show in the swine barn at the state fairgrounds on Tuesday, February 11. Four days later, Saturday, February 15, the best will be rated in the carcass contest at Kingan's main plant on West Washington Street.

Entries close February 1 and must be postmarked not later than the February 1 date and mailed to Kingan's main plant.

Fifty classes of purebred and crossbred barrows of seven recognized breeds will be shown along with three classes for all other barrows. The first prize winner in each on-foot class for single barrows will be automatically entered in the carcass event. In addition each exhibitor is permitted one entry for the carcass event, regardless of its placing in the barrow show.

steps, entering the military academy at West Point at the age of 14. After graduation, Lieutenant Whistler's first service with the army was with the topographic engineers, making surveys for defenses along the New England coast. During these surveys, he devised the use of horizontal contour lines for land maps, which show at a glance elevations at every point in a surveyed area. This system is now universally employed. It was George Washington Whistler's first great contribution to engineering.

George Whistler married Mary Swift in 1821, and they lived at West Point for one year, when he served as assistant professor of mathematics. The following year he was recommended as a member of a commission tracing the Canadian boundary line from Lake Superior to Lake of the Woods. The distance from his home was great and Whistler began to resent the distance that separated him from his family. It was here that he first learned of the new English invention - the rail road - and realized how quickly vast distances could be covered by this mode of transport. He made up his mind to be a railroad builder.

Whistler's new career in railroading began in 1826 when he helped make the preliminary surveys for the Baltimore and Ohio. Industry in those days had little engineering assistance and found it necessary to borrow army men.

1828, the Baltimore and Ohio sent Lieutenant Whistler and two other engineers to England to study railroads in that country. Whistler's wife had died the previous year and he left his three children with his wife's parents when he journeyed abroad.

When George Whistler returned to America, construction of the B&O line was begun and the first mile of Baltimore and Ohio track was laid under his supervision.

Whistler resigned his army commission in 1833, after he had left the B&O. He had recently married Anna McNeill (the artist's mother) and, with her brother, William Gibbs McNeill, set out to construct the Paterson and Hudson and the Providence and Stonington Railroads. He then moved his family to Lowell, Mass., where he accepted a position as chief engineer of the company known as "Proprietors of Locks and Canals of the Merrimack River."

His principal interest lay in railroading, however, and Whistler studied to become an expert in the manufacture of locomotives, concentrating principally on English models. He built some of the finest engines of the day. And it was in Lowell that George Whistler invented the locomotive whistle.

The first warning device for use on locomotives had been invented by Geogre Stephenson in England, and was called a steam "trumpet" until it came to America in 1836. In that year, the Long Island Railroad asked Whistler to build a warning device for one of its new passenger locomotives. He did and railroaders called it "Whistler's trumpet." Soon passengers began calling it simply "the whistler." And, as the new gadget became more widely used on engines, it became known as a "whistle," the name which has stuck until the present day.

George Washington Whistler was the foremost engineer of his day. When the Czar of Russia sent a group of engineers to America in 1842 to find a man specially qualified to build a railroad from St. Petersburg (now Leningrad) to Moscow, Whistler was selected.

Highly respected and popular in Russia, Whistler began construction of the principal Russian railroad in 1843, about a year after initial surveys were begun. It was built to the five-foot gauge which was then in wide use in America, particularly in the South. It is said that Czar Nicholas I laid a ruler on the map to show the straight-line route he wished to follow between the two Russian cities.

After years of work on the Russian railroad, George Whistler failed to see its completion. An epidemic of Asiatic cholera was rampany in Russia, and Whistler contracted the disease. He died in 1849. His son, George McNeill Whistler, completed the line according to his father's plan and the railroad was opened to the public in 1851.

Russia did not forget, however, that it owed a debt of gratitude to the railroad builder. Czar Nicholas erected a monument in his honor. Still another monument was erected many years later in a Brooklyn (N. Y.) cemetery - by the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Undoubtedly, George Washington Whistler contributed much to early railroading. And his pioneering efforts will not soon be forgotten by the engineering world.

SUBJECT: FORAND BILL (HR 9467)

Seeks to provide free medical, hospital and dental care for all social security recipients and persons eligible for social security (estimated 12,000,000 - 13,000,000 persons the first year).

As predicted, the welfare state planners have fired the first gun of the battle to extend and solidify the gains they made in the last session of Congress when HR 7225 was enacted into law. You will recall that HR 7225 created a class of citizens of this country who hereafter will be classified as totally and permanently disabled and who are entitled to cash handouts at age 50 for the rest of their lives. The retirement age for women was reduced to age 62 and the OASI (Old Age Survivors Insurance) tax was raised on employers and employees alike. Most self-employed persons except physicians were declared covered.

Rep. Aime J. Forand (D-RI) has now introduced a bill (HR 9467) supported by the AFL-CIO as their number one legislative objective of the 1958 session of Congress which will:

1. Provide all social security recipients and all those eligible but not receiving social security benefits up to 60 days of hospitalization a year in semi-private accommodations and for an additional 60 days of nursing home care in any 12-month period. This will include services, drugs, appliances customarily furnished by a hospital to a bed patient including bed, board, nursing services, laboratory services, ambulance services, use of operating room and staff services. Nursing home services would include skilled nursing care, related medical and personal services and accompanying bed and board. The nursing home must be operated in conjunction with a hospital or under the supervision of a licensed M.D.

2. Provide surgery including medical, dental and minor surgery and emergency outpatient services in a hospital or doctor's office. Freedom of choice is restricted to those surgeons certified by the American Board of Surgery or the American College of Surgeons.

3. Raise the OASI tax on employers and employees alike ½ of 1 per cent; on self-employed ¾ of 1 per cent; and broaden the taxable salary base from $4200 to $6000.

4. The HEW (Health, Education and Welfare) Department would be authorized to bargain individually or collectively with dentists or physicians or their respective associations with respect to fees which would constitute full payment for services rendered.

It is estimated by the sponsors that 12,000,000 to 13,000,000 persons would be affected the first year but undoubtedly the total will run much higher. This program would be serviced by a National Advisory Health Council which would consult on the administration of the program. The Council would consist of the Commissioner of Social Security who would serve as chairman ex-officio and eight members to be appointed by the Secretary of HEW. Four of these would be persons from the field of hospital and health activities, and the other four would represent the consumers of hospital, nursing and surgical services.

The cost of such a program has been estimated to run as high as two billion dollars annually. By 1975 employees and employers would be paying a payroll tax of 4¾ per cent each for a total of 9½ per cent of the employee's wages. By that time self-employed persons would be paying 7½ per cent on the first $6000 of their earnings of $427.50 annually. And this is only the beginning!

Organized medicine is opposed to this legislation on many grounds only a few of which are:

1. It abridges free choice of physician.

2. Imposes a third party into the physician-patient relationship which will inevitably bring Federal controls and bureaucratic interference in medical decisions affecting the health and welfare of the patient.

3. This is socialized medicine, leading directly to the "captive hospital," the "captive physician" and control of community-wide health through Federal control of sources of revenue to health facilities.

4. It shifts the responsibility for care of the sick, aged and disabled from the family and local agencies to the Federal government without any justification or showing that private medicine and local agencies are not providing the best medical care in the world today or that there is any segment of the American public going without medical care.

5. This "cradle-to-the-grave" approach robs a person of his thrift and need to plan for his old age and fundamentally changes this nation from one of independent, self-dependent, self-reliant citizens to a nation of citizens dependent upon the government for their health and welfare needs. It leads to individual irresponsibility and inflationary trends.

6. Inability to pay is not a condition of participation.

The issued posed by this legislation are grave and strike at the future of medicine. What will it be? Socialism or a strong, independent calling? The decision is up to you!

—Chicago Medical Society Bulletin, January 4, 1958.

IN COMMUNIST YUGOSLAVIA

Belgrade, Yugoslavia - Dear Dr. Benson: In this 100 per cent Communist-run Welfare State the living standard of the citizens is the lowest in Europe. The Yugoslavian industrial worker is paid an average of 16c an hour. The peasants - perhaps 75 per cent of the population - exist in a deeper state of poverty. And yet these two groups are the very ones for whom Communist Party leaders all over the world promise to make a paradise on earth. The sight of widespread poverty is depressing, but even more so is the atmosphere of the Police State.

My first view of downtown Belgrade has left a picture on my mind's eye that will remain with me always. Our plane trip from Vienna, in a Yugoslavian airliner, was notable for the fact that there were only eight passengers - in a 65 passenger plane (not many people were going to Yugoslavia!) I was met at 4:30 p.m. at the Belgrade airport by Branislav Milosavljevic, Communist Party official and assistant dean of the department of agriculture, Belgrade University.

He had visited our Kiwanis Club in Searcy in 1952 when he was studying agriculture practices in Arkansas and other states for the Tito government. At that time he was Commissar of Agriculture for the People's Republic of Serbia, the province in which Belgrade is located. His job was abolished a short time later when agricultural affairs were centralized in the hands of a national Commissar. Now he's at the University. He drove me to my hotel (in a tiny auto owned by the government) and we arranged to meet an hour later to stroll through Belgrade's downtown area before dinner.

Since the hotel was just a block from Belgrade's main street, I immediately sallied out alone to get a glimpse of the city. As I turned into Terazije, the main square, I was shocked. There were no automobiles on the street, no vehicle traffic. But up and down the sidewalks there moved a procession of people. Their clothes were pitifully shabby. Some were barefooted. Many of the men were ushaven. Many wore dirty, stained undershirts - the only clothing above the waist. Trousers were patched like those of tramps.

Industries begin work at 6 a.m. and close for the day at 2 p.m. Shops and stores close from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m. Then they open and remain open until about 10:00 p.m. Thousands of workers in Belgrade go home at 2 p.m., rest for a coulpe of hours, then come downtown and promonade. It has happened each evening since I arrived. These people whom I found on the streets in my first contact with Belgrade were the workers and peasants - men and women. Their living standard is unbelievably low.

When my host and guide picked me up at the hotel at 6 p.m. we walked directly to Terazije. The bedraggled worker-peasant procession had begun to thin out. White-collar people had begun to appear. These were mostly Communist Party functionaries employed in Belgrade's government bureaus. Most of them were informally dressed, the men with their jackets draped around their shoulders like capes, and women in street or office dresses.

The living standard of these white-collar Yugoslavians is about one-sixth as high as that of their counterparts in America. Their incomes range from $50 to $80 a month. Incomes are comparatively low in the professions. School teachers are paid from $30 to $50 a month; university professors from $50 to $85. The only people in Yugoslavia who live well, by American standards, are the top Communist Party officials. They constitute Yugoslavia's "Ruling Class." There are perhaps 20,000 to 30,000 of these among the 600,000 party members of this country of 18,000,000 population.

On my third day in Yugoslavia we drove out to see Tito's palace. He occupies the former King's palace, and he has built a second, more exclusive palace a short distance away. He also has a palatial residence down on the Adriatic coast. Along the slopes of the hill near the palace are a hundred or more very nice homes, with well-kept grounds, the only dwellings I've seen here of such character. My Communist host ignored them as we passed by. "Whose homes are those?" I inquired. "That's where the wealthy capitalists used to live," he said. "Who lives in these homes now?" "Our government officials," he said. I couldn't help but recall that world Communism professes to hate class distinctions, promises to divide up the wealth equally. In Yugoslavia, Communism seems to have overridden these tenets.

PALS

My automobile is getting old,
It is mostly black, with specks of gold;
While I, in just another way,
My hair is light, and tinged with gray.
But we are pals, yessirree,
Neither one as young as we used to be;
But we go places together,
If the sun shines, or it is stormy weather.
It's not fancy, hasn't much style,
But can follow a new car mile after mile.
When it is junked, it will melted be,
And go back into new cars, for you and me;
While I, in some cemetery will be,
With my soul departed for eternity.

CORRECT WRITING SHOULD BE TAUGHT CHILD FROM START

A friend of mine taught his boy to write his name. Reproduced here is the way this boy learned to do it (all capital letters).

There is nothing unusual about it, for many children who learn learn to write their names at home or in Sunday School make the same error that John made.

What is this error and why is it important? The error lies in making each of the letters as a capital letter and it is important because some poor first grade teacher will struggle for hours with children as she tries to teach them to write "John" instead of printing with capitals.

A child at a very early age wants to learn to write his own name. He sees adults writing their names, he keeps hearing his own name, and it is only natural that he soon asks daddy or mommy to show him how to write it.

Why can't parents teach children the correct style of writing as the schools today interpret correctness? One reason lies in the fact that schools today use printing (called manuscript writing) as the first writing taught, and most parents were not taught to print.

Anyone who has not been taught manuscript writing is apt to print some letters as capitals without thinking anything about it. Another reason might be found in the confusion that parents feel about changes in writing style.

Parents realize that the style of writing and the recommended way to make specific letters change, so they may feel that they will teach the child their way and the school can make any needed corrections.

What parents may fail to realize is the difficulty of breaking a habit pattern acquired by repeated practice at home. It is true, also, that children do have difficulty learning why some letters are capitals and some are just as tall but aren't capitals.

(If you doubt this, try explaining to the typical six year old some, or any, of the rules of capitalization, or why the b is taller than the n.)

There is, in my opinion, no justification for the attitude that some schools have toward beginning writing. One large school district (in what they believe is a big step forward) proudly announced that this year all first grade children would be taught to write their names during the second semester.

There are school districts where teachers in the kindergarten and the early part of the first grade are not allowed to have anything at all, any place in the room, which has any printed or written word.

Yet, the overwhelming majority of schools in this country teach children to write, at least their names, in kindergarten or in the first part of the first grade.

Another questionable attitude is the blind acceptance of any "research" no matter how inadequate. An example of this can be seen in the type of pencils children are allowed to use in their first writing. At one time, avid addicts of research believed that children had to use extra big and extra long pencils; now they have some new research which says the regular smaller pencil is best.

So those "traditional" teachers who refused to buy the first idea are now very "modern" and following the very "latest and best in research."

Why don't schools teach real writing (called cursive because of the many curves) right at the start? The reason is a good one, for the simple printing is not only easier to make but it is the same type of writing which children are learning to read.

When is a child ready for cursive writing? Some are ready in the first grade, most are ready in the second grade, and all normal children are ready by the third grade for "real" writing.

ORGANIZED CHURCH

Lesson for January 26, 1958

Doesn't it kill religion to organize it? Not at all. It doesn't "kill" water to construct a city water system. All the pipes do is simply to make water available where it will do the most good. If it were not for the pipes and pumps and all that, the city would die of thirst. Does marriage kill love? Do schools kill education? They can, of course; but good schools help education, good marriages are a blessing to love. And a well-organized church is a help to faith, not a hindrance.

The 60-odd church communions uniting in the study of these international lessons are not organized in the same way. But the fact that our organizations differ does not keep up from uniting in the study of the same Word of God. It would be interesting to study the many ways in which churches are organized, but right here we are sticking to one thing: the organization of the Christian church in its earliest days.

Needs Come First

Three things can be said of organization in the early church. First is that it grew out of needs, and not the other way around. In America we are so used to everything being organized down to the last sub-section that we are inclined to think a church isn't a church unless it has some definite organization. But in the book of Acts we hear about the church some time before we hear of the officers. The first deacons, that committee of 7 men who were elected by the people and appointed by the apostles to deal with the tricky problem of caring for the needy in the church — those deacons were elected because they were NEEDED. The church did not elect them because some organization-chart called for such officers. The church elected them for a particular job; it did not elect them first and then hunt for something for them to do.

Character Came First

The word deacon means "one who serves," a serviceable man. The elders and the bishops or overseers, of whom we read later, were also serviceable men. Paul never left a church without officers. He was a practical saint.

But Paul, when writing about church officers, as he did to Timothy and Titus, lays down some remarkable provisions. In describing various officers, Paul oddly enough (we might think) says not a word about what these officers were to do. It's all about what they were to BE, as men, as Christians. Paul knew that no organization is better than the people who operate it. Getting the right people is the important matter. Personal qualifications come ahead of technical qualifications. This does not mean that the framework of organization is of no importance. Other things being equal, it is better to have some framework or system which discourages one-man rule, or the development of cliques. But the officers' character is the central matter. Paul did not want Timothy to ask, about a prospective officer, what kind of executive did he make? But rather, how well has he managed his marriage, his home? It is a more vital question.

The Church Came First

No apostle known to us ever set up a skeleton organization, a cadre as they say in the army, and left it to collect a church around it. Paul's great figure of speech is the body and the members. A body does not come into existence by agreement of some loose arms, legs and insides to get together. The body develops these various parts as it grows. The body is more important than any of its members. So with the church, as it was going in the New Testament era. The church produced the officers, not the officers the church. The church does not exist, for example, to give preachers jobs. Preachers exist to serve and build the church. Further, if the church is always first and everyone realizes this, then no man or woman can think "I am indispensable. If I die or move away I cannot be replaced." Every one in the church has somehting to do, something he or she can do perhaps better than any one else, whether an officer or not. Everyone should try to make himself indispensable, yes; but he must remember that the one and only indispensable person in any church is—Christ.

Relative Values Of Corn Given

Clifford Billow, manager of the local elevator, is the constant recipient of information relative to better efficiency in farm operation with respect to the use of grain and supplements. One of the recent bulletins released by Allied Mills of Libertyville, Illinois, contains information on the relative values of high moisture and immature corn.

The relative value of high moisture corn which has matured but not dried can for the most part be measured in terms of the dry material which it furnishes. The nutrient content of this dry material is as high as that of normally dried corn. It is merely diluted with more moisture, according to the bulletin.

Some recent experiments show that high moisture (but mature) corn sometimes gives better results in the feed lot than dry corn. This may be due to greater palatability or digestibility.

Experiments show that a pound of 20 per cent moisture corn furnishes 93 per cent as much dry matter as a pound of 14 per cent moisture corn. It takes 60.2 pounds of the 20 per cent moisture corn to furnish as much dry matter as is furnished by 56 pounds of 14 per cent moisture corn.

Recent tests showed that high moisture corn artifically dried at a safe temperature was equal in nutritive value to field dried corn. Heating the corn above 135 degrees caused a loss in protein value - the higher the heat, the greater the loss. This temperature is often exceeded. Thus it is especially important to supplement such corn with a high quality protein supplement at the recommended level.

With temperatures as high as 173 degrees there was no loss in energy level. Thus if a high quality protein supplement is fed with artifically dried corn (even when fairly high temperatures are used), results will be as good as with field dried corn.

Even if immature corn is dried, it is sometimes lower in nutritive value than mature corn. Proper supplementation of immature corn with a high-quality protein supplement is especially important, the bulletin concludes.

Young Men Form Safe Driving Club

Young men of the Spencerville community have formed a road club, The Quarter Milers, and recently elected officers. They are:

Jerry Trammel, president.

Glen Brendel, vice-president.

John Smith, secretary.

Pug Robinson, treasurer.

Fine collector, John Heyman.

At a recent meeting the boys of the club discussed fines for reckless driving, drinking, speeding, running stop sigs, etc.

Meetings are being held at the Spencerville fire hall every Saturday at 5 p.m., courtesy of the Spencerville Fire Department.

Plaques have been ordered and later jackets will be purchased.

The fee for new members is $3.50, $2.00 entrance fee and $1.50 for a plaque.

Jay Gould To Lead So. American Tour

Jay Gould, farm service director of radio station WOWO in Fort Wayne, will lead his second tour around South America on February 3.

This good-will American Farmers' Tour will visit American neighbors in Panama, Bolivia, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay, Brazil and Puerto Rico and will return to Miami, Florida, on March 1 via Pan American World Airways.

Of special interest to American farmers will be a full day excursion to an Argentinian Estancia, typical cattle breeding and agricultural estate of the Pampas to see the gauchos at work and enjoy a barbecue lunch.

Since the Uruguayans have no corrals, members of the tour will see the gauchos in complete control of the cattle and will see the primitive buying and weighing methods. They will visit with the gauchos and estancia owners personally and will join them for a drink of Mate at their own bar.

In Brazil the tour group will visit the "Fazenda Malabar", after which they will visit the coffee plantation of Dario Meireilles and will inspect a "general farm".

In addition to the thousands of exotic and fabulous tourist attractions in each of the countries visited, those who wish may visit Manaus, 1,000 miles up the Amazon River in the heart of the primitive jungle, where tour members may take river trips, fish for tucunare, one of the world's great game fish, and buy alligator hides or jaguar skins for a few dollars.

Jay Gould's background as an experienced traveler, broadcaster and lecturer and also his leadership of a very successful tour 'round South America in 1956, makes him well-fitted for leading this tour.

Comets Lose To Ashley

Ashley won their second Riverdale encounter of the season last Friday night with a 61-43 score. The reserve squad fared worse, however, and the locals took a 37-34 win in the prelim.

The Comets reserves led at half time by 20-12. Ashley moved up in the 3rd quarter to make a tight game of it, trailing by only 23-18 and 27-26 before the third quarter ended at 30-28 in favor of the Comets.

Ashley tied it up at 30-all in the final period. Then the locals spurted for 5 points and the lead at 35-30 with 2:46 to go in the game. They outlasted Ashley in the waning moments of the contest for the final 37-34 score.

Ashley's varsity jumped out to a 6-0 lead before Riverdale called time out after 2:44 of the first quarter. Cliff Warstler hit for the locals for their first score, then Ashley led at 12-7 with 2 inutes to go. Larry Coplin again got in foul trouble late in the first quarter having 3 called on him. Ashley led 16-7 at the quarter.

It was a romp for the Aces in the second period as they got hot and raced to a 29-8 lead at one point. The half ended with the score 32-16. Ashley in front.

The score in the third period went to 38-21 with 3:21 remaining as the Comets were missing badly in their shooting, including two wide open shoots underneath the bucket. Their mistakes were costly and Ashley held their comfortable lead at the end of the third period. 42-27.

The Aces lead went to 48-31 with 5:33 to go in the game and then they hit another hot streak to extend their lead to 56-35 with 2:09 to go. It was just a matter of time thereafter with the clock running out and the score standing 61-43.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Me and the boys started out for the ball game last Friday, got to Concord and came back. We made the right-angle curve north at Concord at the railroad tracks - just made it - noticing as we half-slid around the corner that some one had been pulled out of the ditch not so long before. We went to the next corner just up the road and turned around to come back home. When we got back to the first corner, there was John Mason and kids roosting at a 45-degree angle in the purty pink Pontiac..

—That corner could be a money-maker on snowy nights for a guy with a tractor.

It must be the atmosphere - or something.

Anytime somebody serves a fish dinner at the new fire hall, it turns out to be a real tasty deal.

The firemen's little banquet is the latest to put out such.

Approval Of School Nurse Seems Near

Further steps were taken at a meeting Tuesday evening to create the office of county school nurse for DeKalb County. Represented at the meeting were the county nurses association, schools in the county, the P.T.A., and medical doctors of the county.

The group met with members of the county council and the county commissioners to present a brief outline of the plan for securing a county nurse and to obtain whatever reaction there might be from the county officials, since financing of the plan would be through county taxation. Mr. Charles Overmyer of Waterloo acted as temporary chairman of the group and gave some of the details of the plan, pointing out that a county school nurse was not being sought to replace the family doctor, to in a sense indulge in the practice of medicine, but rather to set up a planned program of student health supervision so that the needs of students might be recognized and pointed out to the parents. Otherwise, it is possible that health conditions can be, and may now be, overlooked.

Other comments were made by school representatives and by Roger Hess, superintendent of DeKalb County schools, indicating a desire to have a county school nurse. Dr. C. B. Hathaway commented that the program can be a good one, provided there is proper supervision and designation of duties.

The county council and commissioners said that they would give consideration to the proposal in the near future. The general result of the meeting seemed to indicate that DeKalb County will have a county school nurse for the school year 1958-59.

Firemen, Fraus Fete - Fish Fry

Members of the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department their wives and guests enjoyed a fish supper Tuesday evening at the recently completed fire house in Saint Joe. Serving began at around 6:30 for early arrivers and fish were prepared for an hour or so thereafter as others arrived.

The fish were available thru the angling skill of D. W. Yeiser and Andy Monroe, the former having made a good catch on a recent trip to Covington, Tenn., the home of his daughter, the latter pulling them in at a favorite northern fishing haunt. Other items on the menu were furnished by wives of the firemen.

Following the tasty dinner, the group enjoyed canasta, euchre and just visiting.

Present for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Ridgway, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Monroe, M. and Mrs. Joe Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Walter and son, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sible, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Morr, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Coburn, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Kline, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bowser, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Yeiser and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Merl Guilford, Mr. and Mrs. Donald McCann and Ted Haberkorn.

The Saint Joe Fire Department held its annual election of officers Monday night at the fire hall in Saint Joe. Re-elected to the office of Chief was Andy Monroe. Roy Bowser was re-elected Assistant-Chief and Roy Reidenbach was elected Secretary-Treasurer.

Comets Work Hard For 'Busco Win After Loss To Avilla

Avilla downed the Riverdale Comets last Friday evening on the Avilla floor by a 61-47 score. The locals, with a starting line-up revised by 80 per cent, were in the running during the first quarter, though trailing by 5 at the end of the quarter. Thereafter they steadily dropped back and, despite some improved teamwork in the last half, were easily downed by 61-47.

On Wednesday night of this week the Comets played Churubusco at the Waterloo gym and came out with a 60-49 victory.

The Comets led through the game, taking an 8-5 margin at the 4:19 mark in the first quarter. The score at the end of the first 8 minutes of play was Riverdale 14, Busco 9.

The varsity pulled out to a 24-11 lead before their opponents rallied to pull up to 26-18 with 2:44 to go. The locals flurried and led at the half 36-22.

The locals held a commanding lead through the 3rd period which ended at 45-36. In the last quarter, however, the Busco boys almost caught up as they cashed in on a series of personal fouls under the Busco bucket and then hit on a 3-point play to trail by only 47-43 with 4:50 to go. The Comets held onto the lead with the score standing at 53-47 with 1:13 to go before a final rush brought them the comfortable winning margin.

The reserves led throughout their game, holding quarter scores of 14-6, 23-13 and 26-18.

Everyone looked good in the reserve game, playing heads-up ball with an outstanding job of rebounding from Gerry Heyman plus some pretty good shooting. The rebounding in the first half helped a lot. Things slowed down considerably in the last half with the Comets scoring only 3 points in the 3rd quarter. Churubusco pulled up to 27-24 at one point but the locals counter-rallied to get a 9-point margin at the end of the game.

GAME NOTES — Coach Price Brookfield made drastic changes in his starting line-up for the Avilla contest, benching 4 of the regular starting 5 because of obvious poor teamwork in recent contests. The boys were used in the second half, however, and though not able to overcome the Avilla lead did show improvement in the assist column, a good place to measure team cooperation. — It didn't help matters when Don Butler injured an ankle. —Riverdale fans were treated to a complete reversal of Comet form in the 'Busco contest. Poor showings in recent games were offset this time as the boys worked hard through the entire game and exhibited some sensational bits of teamwork. Notable was the improvement of Jerry Vinson who appeared to be getting accustomed to "big time" company and became play-maker for a good portion of the contest. Dale Dowden turned in some driving play and Larry Coplin had his touch in sinking field goals. — All of the 8 Comets who saw action scored and all were doing their bit in making their boosters feel quite happy. — Opinion had it that this was perhaps the best showing the Comets have made this season although their first few games this season were about on a par with this tilt. — Bad weather and driving conditions held the crowd to a minimum. That's the way it goes - no, crowd, good game. — The 5th grade again defeated the 6th grade in a brief encounter, the score being 4-2.

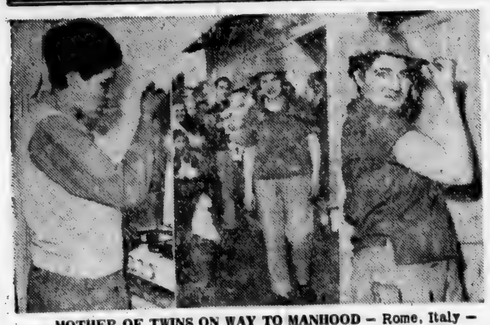
Mrs. John Arrants and daughter, Jane Ann, and Mrs. Harold Keller and son, Denny, of Butler, visited in the William Hubbard home in Saint Joe last week.

PICTURES OF THE WEEK



MOTHER OF TWINS ON WAY TO MANHOOD – Rome, Italy – The lady, or gentleman, in these pictures is Mrs. Rosina Traini, 28-year-old mother of twins, who says she is becoming a man. Rosina, who lives on the outskirts of Rome in a home she built herself, stone by stone, lost her husband shortly after the birth of the twins, who are now three years old. She plans to go to England for surgery that will complete her sex transformation. At Left above, Rosina, an expert cook, samples some of her soup. In Center: she makes an imposing figure among the neighbors outside her home. At Right: she flexes her biceps – good enough for the village blacksmith.

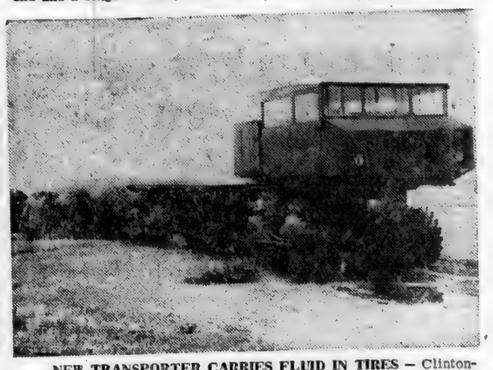
ACCENT ON THE SPACE AGE AT THE CAPITOL – Washington, D.C. – These models of space transportation of the future give the staid U. S. Capitol a science-fiction atmosphere as they are photographed against The Capitol Dome. The three models are a man-carrying rocket – the torpedo-like one with wings and rudder to carry a man from Earth to an orbit – a space station (Right), and a nuclear-powered space vehicle (long rod with large tanks at one end and a single tank at the other).

PHILIPPINES HONOR GUERILLA LEADER – Washington, D.C. – Philippine Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo, Left, pins the Philippine Legion of Honor, Degree of Commander, on Robert Lapham of Detroit, Michigan. Lapham was cited for commanding a Guerilla band of some fifteen thousand Americans and Philippinos which harassed the Japanese on Luzon from the fall of Corregidor in 1942 until the return of the Americans in 1945.

ON TOP OF THE WORLD – Miami Beach, Fla. – Actress Jayne Mansfield gets a lift from her muscle man hubby, Mickey Hargitay at poolside of the Eden Rock Hotel in Miami Beach. They are spending their Honeymoon in the Land of Sunshine.



NEW TRANSPORTER CARRIES FLUID IN TIRES – Clintonville, Wis. – An unusual new rolling fluid transporter, whose 10 huge rubber tire bags towed by a pillow-tire Teracruzer can transport 5,000 gallons of fuel or other liquids over terrain inaccessible to conventional tank trucks, has been developed for the Army's Transportation Research and Engineering Command. The transporter has 10 fluid carriers, each 5 feet high, 3½ feet wide, and 500-gallon capacity, mounted in pairs on axles and towing assemblies equipped with filling and emptying and braking systems.

Notice in a Scotch church: "Those in the habit of putting buttons instead of coins in the collection plate will please put in their own buttons and not the buttons from the cushions on the pews."

An old Scotch proverb goes like this, "Don't marry for money; you can borrow it cheaper."

And, speaking of something cheap, we don't have it! The old saying that "there is always someone who can make it cheaper and sell it for less" does not appeal to us.

We are proud of our reputation of having good quality merchandise. We are going to maintain the policies that have brought about that reputation. When we can buy nationally known merchandise and sell it to you at a reduced price, we'll do it, and, more of that, we'll use a lot of newspaper space to tell you about it.

Just as an example: just now we have the famous Simmons mattress and box springs at special prices. If any of you need a good rest, now's the time to get it.

Alexander said, "In rest and repose the powers are gathering their strength for new efforts."

We say, "Get strong sleep on a good mattress."

It's always show time at Ort's Showrooms

TIMING HIS EARTHBOUND "TRIP TO THE MOON" — San Antonio, Tex. — Airman First Class Donald Farrell, of the Bronx, N. Y., grins hugely as he circles the starting and ending date of his simulated trip into outer space. He will spend seven days in a space flight chamber at the School of Aviation Medicine, Randolph Air Force Base, under conditions comparable to those he would encounter riding in a space ship to the Moon. The test is expected to supply valuable data for future space research.

CHOSEN PEOPLE

Lesson for February 2, 1958

Most church members do not realize what a privilege it is to be one. The Bible passages for this week are extremely suggestive and will bear careful study. As usual, there is room here for comment only on two or three points brought out in one of the most striking sentences ever penned to the church—TO the church as well as about the church; for most of the New Testament books were written as letters to churches. As the reader thinks over the words, he should keep in mind not "This means me" but "This means the church, in which I am privileged to be a member."

A New Kind of People

Saint Peter, writing to people he had probably never seen, dares to say to them some very high things. He could say these things because, while he did not know them separately and personally, he knew the church and what God intended it to be. "You," he wrote, "are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation." A chosen race . . . The church, so far as it is a true church, is made up of persons whom God has chosen. He has chosen them not like separate little pearls each in its own oyster, but as the gathered pearls on a gleaming necklace. Peter uses the word "race" rather than organization or group or society. Race suggests blood brotherhood, it suggest a common ancestor, a common life. If each race of mankind has something special about it, so the Christians, as the "chosen race," have something special about them. A church which cannot be told apart from just any club, a church whose member are not appreciably different from people on the outside, is a church in name only. Christians as a family are a new kind of people. They have been born anew, they have a quality of life no other people have.

God's Personal Representative

Again Saint Peter says, You are "a royal priesthood." Remember these words were not addressed to any particular person or group in the church, they were written to the whole church. The church is itself a priesthood; this is what is meant by the expression "the priesthood of all believers." Now Saint Peter had been and still was very much a Jew. For him, priesthood had meant a great deal. The priest, in the centuries before Christ, had long been the accepted mediator between God and men. He represented men before God, he represented God in the presence of men. Now if the church, taken all together, is the priesthood of God, then it also is, or is expected to be, God's personal representative in this world.

Consider only one meaning of this. What convinces us that any person exists, and really is the kind of person he is said to be? Next to the person's coming to see us himself, the most convincing evidence that he is real, and no flying-saucer imp, is some friend or relative of his who can make all our doubts vanish by telling us what he knows. So the church, as a priesthood in this skeptical world, ought to be representing God in such a convincing way that people no longer doubt that He exists. One test of a true church, as of a true Christian, is: Does this church make it harder, or easier, to believe in God?

The International People

The church is also a "holy nation." It has not always been clearly understood what Saint Peter meant by this. Did he mean that Christians must withdraw from the world to a little holy island or ghetto of their own, there to "let the rest of the world go by"? Did he mean Christians are a supernation, empowered to dictate to all other nations, owing allegiance to no flag but the Christian flag? Unless Peter was out of line with all the rest of the New Testament, he probably meant no such thing. He did mean at least this much: first that the Christian church lives by higher laws than the "kingdom of this world." The church is the nation where the Law of Love is the constitution. Second, since the binding force in this nation is not race or tradition or geography but holy love, it will not have any earthly boundary but will spread throughout the world. The church is the great and only completely international society.

Local News

Sunday, January 19, dinner and supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Monroe of Auburn were Mrs. Marie Draggoo of Saint Joe and Mrs. Mae Openlander and Mr. and Mrs. James Draggoo and Tom of Auburn.

The Culture Club met January 22 at the home of Virginia Laux. Marian Furnish conducted the meeting and devotions were given by Helen Hoffer. The lesson on Alaska was presented. 10 members and 1 guest answered roll call. A collection was taken for the polio fund. The next meeting will be held February 5 with Mrs. MaDonna Wade.

Mrs. Harold Furnish and daughters, Marlys and Grace Ann, of Leo and Miss Betty Ann Inlow of Cincinnati and Miss Alice Inlow and sons were recent supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Inlow.

Vern Freeman of Saint Joe recently paid a fine of $15 and costs of $14.75 for disregarding warning lights at the railroad tracks at Auburn Junction. He entered a plea of guilty.

Figures released recently by the county fair association show that the 1957 edition of the free fall fair made a profit of $2,200. Carl Perkins of Saint Joe is serving as president of the organization having been re-elected for the 1958 year of activity.

The DeKalb County Highway Department spent $311,453.97 in 1957 in maintenance and new construction on county highways and bridges, the annual report has disclosed. Receipts by the department totaled $343,308.01, nearly all of which came from gasoline tax distribution.

Miss Margaret (Peg) Buchan, home service supervisor of Indiana&Michigan Electric Company's Fort Wayne Division, recently was presented the 17th annual Laura McCall Award for home service achievement. The award is Miss Buchan's second in eight years.

Marie Draggoo of Saint Joe and her son and family of Auburn attended a recent fish fry at the Methodist Church in Auburn. The fry was given by the Methodist Church Men's Club.

DeKalb County taxpayers paid nearly $2 million in local taxes in 1957. $890,083.31 was collected during the fall tax-paying period that ended November 4. This was coupled with $1,050,181.48 last spring for a total of $1,940,264.79.

A TRIBUTE—

—To our dear beloved husband, father and grandfather who passed away January 29, 1955:

Three years have passed since that sad day
When the one we loved was called away.
His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.

Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days.
Sincere and true to his heart and mind
A beautiful memory he left behind.

The Family of Leo A. Schendel

CARD OF THANKS

To my friends in Saint Joe and surrounding communities, I wish to say thank you and God bless you for the prayers, thoughts, cards and gifts during my 6 months in the hospital. I have appreciated all that has been done for me.

VOLUME LXXIII — ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. — Thursday, February 6, 1958 — NUMBER 6

Around the Town

With the Editor

I understand it finally happened.

At the Riverdale game last week Pete Storer watched for a while as the reserve squad played, then inquired of Walter Morr, "How does that guy shoot and then get in for his own rebound?" He had been witnessing one of the Heyman twins taking a shot and the other grabbing the ball as it came off the boards.

I wondered how long it would be before the look-alikes would cause some confusion. But I don't suppose this is the first time. Pete just happened to ask aloud what a lot of others probably were thinking.

You will notice this year that the P.T.A. carnival will not have any raffles. Last year there were four or five give-aways and it took too much of the carnival idea away from the fund-raising project.

There will be more things to do for everyone, as it looks now, and the whole show should be that much the better for it.

The P.T.A. did at first consider having its own raffle but abandoned that idea.

Three men were driving through the country very late on a pitch black night. Two were in the front seat and the other in the back asleep. Suddenly the driver asked the man in the back to look out the rear window and see who the crazy driver was behind them. For the past several minutes, he had been trying to let him pass and to top it off his car had only one light on.

The man looked out the back and then said very excitedly, "No wonder he can't pass you — he's on tracks!"

There was a young lady from Glass; she went into the water up to her knees.

That's prose.

If she had gone any deeper, it would have been poetry.

—Tsk, tsk, tsk!

A burly fellow walked up to the teller in a bank one quiet afternoon, took a quick look around and muttered: "This is a stick-up! One scream and I'll fill you full of lead. Now hand over all the dough."

The little bank clerk gasped, but managed to pull himself together. "C-could you k-kindly go to the n-next window?" he whispered. "I'm on my l-lunch hour."

Local Groups Observe Scout Week, Feb. 7-13

With the observance of Boy Scout Week from February 7 through February 13, local Boy Scout and Cub Scout units are preparing displays in Saint Joe and Spencerville.

In Saint Joe Cub Scout den mothers Fern Carr and Virginia Laux have decorated one of the windows of the News Office with a display of handiwork and projects completed by members of their respective dens. The local Boy Scout troop has prepared a display for another window of the News Office. At Spencerville the display can be seen at the Fred High building.

The climax of the month of February for Cub Scouts will come on Friday evening, February 28, when the annual Blue and Gold Banquet will be held. At this time the Cub Scout Pack, sponsored by the Spencerville Methodist Church, will be re-chartered with Cub Scouts, parents and adult officials of the organization present. The banquet will be held at the Methodist Church in Spencerville.

DeKalb County high schools have received from Indiana University an offer of aid in locating their talented students.

The University, through its Junior (Freshman) Division, has set up a state-wide program optional with the high schools. The Division without cost to the school or student will aid the school in identifying talented students and provide specialized testing and counseling of such students so that they may develop their full potential.

Designated by the University as the "Location of Talented Students (LOTS)" program, it offers high schools more specialized student testing than many high schools can provide, services of counselors with much experience in working with talented students, relief for high school staffs of counseling time which can be devoted to other students, and help to high schools in demonstrating to parents school interest in talented students and their welfare.

Talented students will be determined by recognized tests. Generally they are those with an IQ of 120 or more and having more than average talent, as evaluated by teachers, for work in science, music, art, creative writing, or other special fields.

Students Sell Supper Tickets For Prizes

Students at the Riverdale elementary and high schools this week began selling tickets for the Riverdale P.T.A. ham supper to be served on Saturday, February 22, at the Spencerville cafteria. The P.T.A. carnival will be held the same evening at the high school gym in Saint Joe.

Students are particularly interested in the ticket sales as they will be trying for cash prizes to be awarded to the room in the lower grades selling the most tickets and to the class in the upper grades selling the most tickets. A cash prize of $10 will be awarded to the winning group at each school plus recognition of Prince and Princess in the lower grades and King and Queen in the upper grades for the boy and girl chosen to represent competing rooms and classes.

Prices of the supper tickets are $1.25 for adults and 75c for children and students thru the 6th grade.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sible are chairmen of the supper and carnival finance project and have made public the finance committee's apppointments for the annual event. Mrs. Sible is serving as chairman of the ham supper with Mrs. John Mason assisting as co-chairman. Other committees are as follows:

Bingo—Robert Helbert and Paul Fish.

Fish pond—Mrs. Lynn Fisher, Mrs. Donald McCann, Mrs. Hubert Hudson, Mrs. Merle Dean Furnish, Mrs. Delbert Furnish.

Weight guessing — Hubert Hudson, Wayne Smith, Walter Reinhart, Jerry McKown.

Lunch stand—Bob Harter and Max Doub.

Decorations — Virgil Smith and Virgil Gerig.

In addition to the above attractions there will be other concessions sponsored by various classes in the upper grades. These include the showing of cartoons, hat shop, variety show, fun House, shooting gallery, dart throwing, penny pitch, etc.

Area Students Active At Ball State

Reports from Ball State Teachers College at Muncie indicate that two young men from the Spencerville community are active in the affairs of the campus during the current school year.

The school publishes a weekly newspaper, "The Ball State News," during the regular college year. During the summer months the publication is printed once every two weeks. On the staff of the paper as shown in each issue appears the name of Jerry Woodring who is listed as a member of the editorial staff. Jerry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Woodring of Spencerville.

A news item in the Ball State News recently told of the initiation of another student hailing from this area who, along with Mr. Woodring, became a member of the Delta Chi soical fraternity. Tom Hart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Hart of near Spencerville, was one of the ten pledges who were initiated into the fraternity on January 20. The installation ceremonies were held in Elliott Hall and a party was held following the ceremonies honoring the new members.

Mr. Hart is a sophomore at Ball State and Mr. Woodring is a junior.

ST. JOE VALLEY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The song of the month was read and its history given by Elizabeth Shull. Roll call was answered by 16 members by giving the favorite winter pastime. Secretary's report was read and approved. Committees for the coming year were appointed. Special leaders were called upon for their reports. The business meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the club prayer.

A contest of jig-saw puzzles was presented by Nancy Coburn after which the hostess and co-hostesses served refreshments to the members and four children.

The next club meeting will be held at the home of Helen Hoffer on February 21.

Pastor Accepts Call From Local Congregations

A call recently extended to Rev. Ivan O. Miller of Detroit, Michigan, by the congregations of St. Peter's Lutheran Church at Spencerville and St. Mark's Lutheran Church at Saint Joe has been accepted by Rev. Miller. He will begin his pastoral duties in the local congregations on Sunday, February 16, when he will deliver his first sermon to the local parish.

Rev. Miller has been pastor of Messiah Lutheran Church in Detroit for the past 16 years. He has also served as president of the Michigan Synod, United Lutheran Church of America.

Rev. and Mrs. Miller will move to this community during the week prior to his first Sunday as Lutheran pastor in this community. The parsonage at Spencerville has been undergoing a redecorating program done in part by members of the two local congregations.

Service to mankind runs as a part of the Miller family tradition. A son, Ivan H. Miller, is also a Lutheran pastor, serving at Niles, Ohio, having served also in Indiana. One of two daughters is the wife of a Lutheran missionary, Rev. Charles Springer. Rev. and Mrs. Springer are temporarily residing in Connecticut while on leave from work in India. Another daughter is dietician in one of the Detroit schools.

The local Lutheran congregations have been without a pastor for a little over one year. Rev. Philip Barnhart served the congregations from June of 1954 until January of 1957 when he accepted a call to Batesville, Indiana. During the intervening months congregations have been served by students of seminaries who conducted regular Sunday morning worship services.

I.U. Prexy To Speak At Wayne On UN

Dr. Herman B. Wells, president of Indiana University, who was one of five American delegates to the 12th General Assebly of the United Nations last fall, will speak in Fort Wayne Monday, February 17.

Speaking on "A Delegate's View of the United Nations," Dr. Wells' talk in Fort Wayne has been arranged for by the Indiana University Center and the Allen County I.U. Alumni Association of which Dr. Eugene Bennhoff is president.

Dr. Wells will speak at 8 p. m. (EST) in the Chamber of Comerce auditorium at Wayne and Ewing streets. The public is invited and there will be no admission charge. Following Dr. Wells' talk there will be a question and answer period.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the I. U. president's appearance in Fort Wayne is composed of Dr. Ralph Broyles, director of the I. U. Center; Miss Marie Lebamoff, secretary of Allen County I. U. Alumni Association; Mrs. John Steigmeyer; and Dr. Bennhoff.

At the United Nations, Dr. Wells was American representative on the trusteeship committee which handles problems relating to the trust territories supervised by the United Nations.

Though Dr. Wells' first interest has been educational administration, a field in which he has attained national and international recognition, he has found time to serve the government in its foreign affairs. Twice he has gone abroad as a representative of the United States government, first as a member with ministerial rank of the Allied Mission for Observation of the Greek Elections, and later as the first advisor on cultural affairs to the military governor of the U.S. occupied zone of Germany.

When Dr. Wells was named president of Indiana University in 1937, he was the youngest president of an American state university and one of the youngest men to become the president of a major educational institution. A graduate of Indiana University, with advanced studies at the University of Wisconsin, Dr. Wells holds honorary degrees from Butler University, Rose Polytechnic Institute, DePauw University, Wabash College, Earlham College and the University of Wisconsin.

Dorothy Bry Is 'Homemaker' Of Riverdale HS

Miss Bry received the highest score in a written examination on homemaking knowledge and attitudes taken by girls graduating this spring from Riverdale. Her examination paper will now be entered in competition with those of 484 other school winners to name Indiana's candidate for the title of All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow and will also be considered for the runnerup award in the state. For her achievement, Miss Bry will receive an award pin designed by Trifari of New York.

Each State Homemaker of Tomorrow will receive a $1,500 scholarship and an educational trip with her school advisor to Washington, D.C., Colonial Williamsburg, Va., and New York City. A $500 scholarship will be awarded the second ranking girl in each state. The school of the state winner receives a set of the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

The national winner will be named April 17 at a banquet in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City. The scholarship will be increased to $5,000 for the All-American winner. Girls who rank second, third and fourth in the nation will receive $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000 scholarships, respectively.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION PLANS PROGRAM

The program committee for this year's DeKalb County Sunday School Convention has announced that many interesting and instructive features have been added to this year's program. The convention, slated to open Friday night, February 14, at the Auburn Methodist Church, and continuing Saturday morning and afternoon, will be beneficial to all Sunday School minded people.

Dr. H. W. Byrne, Dean of Education of Fort Wayne Bible College, and a well-known leader in the Sunday School field, will feature the Saturday morning program. Three workshops will be held also during the Saturday morning session: Successful Superintendents, taught by Dr. Byrne; Successful Teaching of Youth, by Rev. Arthur Caunt, Fort Wayne Area Youth Youth For Christ Director; Successful Teaching of Beginners, Dorothea Gardner, Higley Press, Butler, Ind.

The Saturday afternoon session will feature a series of papers presented by local church leaders: Mrs. William Loucks, Temperance; Mrs. E. O. Dohner, Home Department; Rev. Clifford Crabill, Changing Lives Through Teaching.

Special music from DeKalb County churches will also be used during the program. Rev. John Wine, pastor of Auburn Nazarene Church, and Rev. John Hunt, pastor of Butler Methodist Church, will be presenting inspirational messages during the day. A business session for all members of the DeKalb County Sunday School Association will close the program. Membership in the Association will be made available to those desiring to join at a fee of one dollar. No registration fee is being charged for the convention.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

On January 22 the Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Allen Haller. Mrs. Frank Shull led the reciting of the collect and pledge to the flag.

The lesson, Great Musicians of Our Times, was given by Mrs. Wayne Storer and Mrs. Elwood Hart. A piano solo, Mountain Stream, was played by Miss Marynelle Baker at the beginning of the hour.

Mrs. Storere discussed the contemporary musician, Erin Copeland, and the music of Richard Rodgers. Interspersed with the biography of Mr. Rodgers were various hit selections played by Mrs. Omer Hansen who sang several of the selections with Mrs. Harold Baker and Mrs. Storer.

The biography of Irving Berlin was given by Mrs. Hart with many of his hit tunes included by the same trio. The entire group also participated in some of the songs.

17 members responded to roll call and guests were Mrs. D.W. Yeiser, Mrs. Hansen and Miss Baker.

After a short business meeting, the club was adjourned and the hostess served light refreshments.

HOOSIER DAIRY HERDS TOP NATION

Milk production per cow in Indiana during 1955 was approxiately 45 per cent nigher than the 1941-45 average. Hoosier herds led the nation in production increase.

Ohio was the only other state exceeding a 40 per cent advance, according to information prepared by the National Milk Producers Federation.

This is more than double the increase in the production of DHIA herds, according to G. A. Williams, Purdue University extension dairyman who also is state DHIA supervisor. The Indiana state average of all cows is 6,720 pounds per cow. This is just about the average of all Indiana DHIA herds 35 years ago. In recent years, as the DHIA average has increased toward the 10,000-pound mark, yearly increases have slowed down.

Williams believes artifical breeding has played an important part in Indiana dairy development. Since the average DHIA production is more than three times the state average, a larger percentage of non-association cows conceive to natural service. Because many of the sires used in studs are proved, the production of their offspring often exceeds the production of younger, untried sires, he points out.

Although by no means a national average, the number of bulk tanks increased from 700 on January 1, 1956, to 2,100 on January 1, 1957. This is an increase of 300 per cent compared with 92 per cent for all the states.

These comparisons show that Indiana dairymen are rapidly pushing back the frontiers of low production, according to Williams. This is being accomplished by disposing of low producers, developing herds transmitting higher producing germ plasm to their offspring and improving the methods of feeding and management which have been a restraining influence during the last three decades. At the same time, dairymen are catering to the demands for improved quality of their products much of which reaches the consumer in the form of Grade A milk.

Father-Son Banquet To Be Served Feb. 15

The Women of St. Mark's Lutheran Church will sponsor a Father and Son Banquet this month to be served at the church in Saint Joe. The banquet is a part of the yearly activities of the group and will be served on Saturday evening, February 15, at 6:30 p.m.

Tickets for the banquet may be obtained from Mrs. Herbert Amstutz or Mr. Forrest Bevington. Prices will be one dollar for father's ticket and seventy-five cents for son's ticket. Tickets will also be available from women of the church. Anyone wishing to attend the banquet but not contacted by a member of the women's group is asked to contact either Mrs. Amstutz or Mr. Bevington to obtain the desired number of tickets.

Contributions Sought For Heart Fund

Heart ailments continue to be a major concern of the human race. Continued scientific research is necessary to help combat the effects of heart disease and control its occurrence. This research is financed to a great degree through the donations of Mr. and Mrs. America during the month of February which is designated as Heart Month.

Heart-shaped plastic collection boxes have been placed in the business establishments of the Saint Joe and Spencerville communities by the respective chairmen of those communities. Mrs. Fern Carr is chairman for the Saint Joe area and Mrs. Chalmer Beaty is serving in the same capacity for the Spencerville community.

In addition to the collection of funds by donations placed in the hearts located in the business houses, there will be a door-to-door solicitation made during the month before the deadline of Tuesday, February 25. Residents of the community are asked to be prepared to make a contribution to the heart fund when solicitors call, if a contribution has not already been made in the plastic hearts.

Mrs. Carr announced that a 20-minute film concerning heart disease will be shown at the Riverdale P.T.A. carnival to be held on Saturday, February 22, at the high school gym in Saint Joe. There will be no admission charged but donations will be accepted to be added to the Heart Fund.

SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The meeting was called to order by the president who led 16 members and 6 guests in the club collect. Devotions were given by Mary Ellen Beaty. The president then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Ruth Little, who installed the officers of 1958.

The new president, Effiebel McCann, appointed committees for the year and all voted for having secret pals.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible Material: Acts 8:26-38; I Timothy 4:6-16; II Timothy 2:1-2; 3:10-17.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 119:33-40.

DARING TO TEACH

Lesson for February 9, 1958

Teaching is not always a drab matter of pounding facts into peoples heads. It can be someting much more exciting than spinning fine theories which only a few "egg-heads" can understand. Teaching can be dramatic; it can even be daring. It can be met not only with sleepy indifference but with stones, rotten eggs or worse. This is true of the teaching of the church. Admitted, what the church sometimes passes off for "teaching" is dull stuff. There are churches where what is taught seems to make no difference whatever to the people who hear it. There are churches where the preacher or teacher seems to have joined the politican in singing the praises of home, peace and mother, amen.

How It Was With Jesus

Teaching can get people into trouble. Jesus himself went to the cross because of his teachings. The mobs that nearly lynched him on more than one occasion were stirred by his teaching. Whether people were angered or not, they were always impressed - astonished, Matthew says. Yet he dared to teach, and did not quiet down over "controversial" issues. He expected his followers to be equally daring, but he did not tell them every one who heard them would believe. If the church in any way follows Christ, it must be a teaching church, and must not shrink from teaching the unpopular, the unpleasant, when it is true. The first word spoken to Jesus after the resurrection, so far as our record goes, was the word Rabboni! which means Teacher! One of the last commands he gave his disciples was to go and in their turn make disciples of all nations—that is, make pupils, for disciple means learner or student.

Teaching Through Centuries

All down the centuries we find the church teaching. Philip teaches a lone rider the meaning of a passage from the Bible; Paul highlights two special matters for Timothy's special concentration: himself-his personal life — and his teaching. Timothy is to entrust the truth to men who will be able to teach still others. When Paul is urging Timothy to follow his (Paul's(example, the first item he mentions is his teaching. When Paul holds up the importance of the Scriptures, the first point he mentions is the usefulness of the Bible in teaching. There was plenty of preaching in Paul's life, but he was not one to let teaching fall out of sight.

So it was in the long history of the church. It is true, there were places and times when the teaching duties of the church were forgotten. But as the Roman Empire crumbled and darkness fell across Europe, it was the Christian Church which undertook the vast work of teaching the raw and untamed barbarian peoples of the continent. Every monastary was a center that kept the lamp of learning alight. One Bishop of the 8th and 9th centuries—Theodulph of Orleans—was not only the leading poet of his time, but as Bishop he insisted that every one of his priests establish a school and make education open to all. Guilbert of Nogent, an Abbot who lived at the time of the Crusades, wrote a little book he called "How To Make A Sermon" but it is plain he had no use for pulpit orators; he wanted sermons from which wide-awake listeners could learn Christian truth.

The Courage To Teach

In our time, what with the printing press, radio, TV, prosperity, and photography, the church teaches in many more ways, and more effectively, than could be done in any Christian century before now. In Sunday schools, day schools, colleges, conferences, study groups; in newspapers, quarterlies, tracts, magazines, books, film strips, catechisms, plays; in pronouncements of church courts, in textbooks, in popular books, in the findings of great interchurch study conferences such as the one at Oberlin last September; in these as by the week-to-week preaching of the Word all around the world, the church is teaching her members, often what many members do not welcome (as when a southern church speaks out against segregation), what the Word of God means when spoken in today's world.

11th Annual Shrine Circus Feb. 7-9

An ever-popular event on the calendar of good times in this area is the Mizpah Shrine-Pollack Bros. Circus which will make its 11th annual appearance in Fort Wayne from February 7 through 9 at the Allen County War Memorial Coliseum.

Performances will be given at 2:15 and 8:15 Friday, February 7; at 10 a.m. and 2:30 and 8:15 Saturday, February 8; and at 2:15 only Sunday, February 9. Tickets generously provided by individuals and organizations will enable throngs of children to attend the Friday afternoon and Saturday morning performances as guests.

Rich in the cherished elements of circus tradition, this year's show has such varied new features as the George Hanneford Family of bareback riders, the Wazzan Troupe of 8 Arab acrobats, the Six Frielandis, Jennier's Seals, Janet's Pet Revue, the Victorias and Melitta & Wicons.

In the exceptionally strong aerial department are Princess Tajana, the Sikorskas, the Flying Palacios, the Rose Gold Trio, the Ronnie Lewis Trio and, directed by Barbette, the Swing High Girls and a completely new aerial revue by the Aerialovelies.

Baby Opal and the rest of the Besalou Elephants appear in new routines. The Original Gutis and a new corps of clowns furnish comedy relief.

YANKEE TRADER IN DEAL WITH INDIAN? — New York — George Weiss, (Left) General Manager of the New York Yankees, and Frank Lane, General Manager of the Cleveland Indians are having a little conference of their own as they met for the Major League Meeting at the Hotel Commodore. The Yankees of the old days found it easier to trade with the Indians than at present. It is reported Weiss wants Pitcher Ray Narleski from the Indians. Lane is playing hard to get.

HITCHES WAGON TO A SPUTNIK — Cypress Gardens, Fla. — Edra Furlong looks as if she is hitching a ride on a Sputnik as she cavorts against the sky at Cypress Gardens. She is celebrating the departure of the cold wave that made sunny Florida a reasonable facsimile of unsunny Nova Scotia for a while and played hob with the citrus crop.

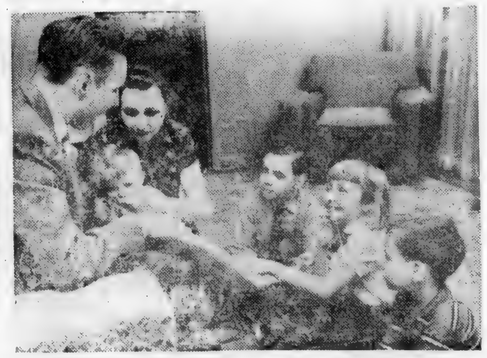
COOPERATIVE PASSENGERS — Kansas City, Mo. — Even a man with a cane got out to add his muscle power to that of other passengers in an attempt to get this stalled trolley-bus moving during big snowstorm in Kansas City. The storm, called the worst in 46 years, buried the Greater Kansas City Area, closed schools and factories and paralyzed traffic.

ENROUTE TO WASHINGTON AFTER MOSCOW MEETING — New York — U. S. Ambassador to Moscow Llewellyn E. Thompson arrives in New York from Frankfurt, Germany, enroute to Washington, D.C., where he is expected to give President Eisenhower and the State Department a new report on the U.S.S.R.'s reaction to the U. S. recent proposal for a summit meeting.



CHILDREN ARE 'EYES' FOR MOM AND DAD — Detroit, Michigan — Robert Mahoney, a Michigan State Representative, and his wife, Jennie, 38, who met when they were students at a school for the blind in Lansing, Michigan are shown teaching Braille to their children, who serve as their "eyes". Four of the eight Mahoney youngsters are shown. While 14-month-old Mark watches, Dad gives a Braille lesson to Dennis, 8, Colleen, 7, and Joey, 6.

Local News

General Telephone Company has announced that it will spend $14,500,000 in 1958 to improve and expand its telephone service in the 89 exchanges in the company's state network. Approximately $4,340,000 of the total construction budget has been allocated for the northeastern division, which includes the Angola area. As part of the multi-million dollar construction program, the Butler exchange will be converted to dial operation in early spring.

The Christian Companions Class furnished a hilarious program and tasty refreshments Saturday night, February 1, for the quarterly fun and fellowship hour, known as Family Night, for the members of the Coburn Corners Church and Bible School.

Public hearing on a proposed discretionary order to continue the present year-around open season for bass and pike for another three years will be conducted in headquarters of the Indiana Department of Conservation, 311 West Washington Street, Indianapolis, at 10 a.m. Friday, February 28, Director Kenneth Marlin has announced. Under the proposed order the year-around open season on bass and pike will be extended for the years 1958, 1959 and 1960. There would be no size limits on any of the 7 species affected, including smallmouth, largemouth and spotted bass, northern pike, silver or white bass, walleyes and saugers. If approved following the public hearing, the order would become effective April 1, 1958.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Means spent Sunday at Fort Wayne with Mr. and Mrs. Dan Weaver.

Albert Lee McMaken, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. McMaken of Saint Joe, and Miss Scharlotte Ann Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Wells of Corunna were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, February 1. A wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents. The newly-weds will make their home at 111 N. Franklin Street in Garrett.

The Riverdale Comets face Harlan at the Waterloo gym on Friday night of this week. Next Wednesday, February 12, the Comets face Pleasant Lake on the Ashley gym floor. The game was originally scheduled for play at Waterloo but had to be changed.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fetters, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Jarrett and Carl Carpenter were among the guests at the DeKalb County 4-H Adult Leaders Banquet at the Chamber of Commerce Building at Auburn Monday evening. Miss Priscilla Mayer and Miss Esther Fetters furnished the entertainment, awards were made and Larry Brandon was the speaker. Bruce Goodwin was in charge and the hosts were the DeKalb County Farm Bureau Co-ups and the county home demonstration ladies.

Driver license suspensions include that of Orpha Rowe of R3, Auburn, 1 year for drunk driving.

F. Dean Bechtol of Garrett has announced his candidacy for congress from the Fourth District in 1958's primary. Mr. Bechtol will run on the Democratic ticket. He is a former Indiana department commander of the American Legion and a retired post office employee. Mr. Bechtol is a lifelong resident of Garrett.

Final approval by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads of the proposed route of the interstate superhighway crossing DeKalb County and extending from Indianapolis to Marshall, Mich., has been announced. The action clears the way for the Indiana and Michigan state highway departments to start detailed planning for the project. The proposed route through DeKalb County parallels state road 427 approximately one-half mile west of the state highway. It intersects US27 at a point approximately one mile west of Auburn. The route then extends northeast and intersects US6 one mile west of US27 at the north edge of Waterloo. The interchange there would necessitate rerouting of US6. The only other interchange in DeKalb County would be just west of Auburn. From US6 the road parallels US27 north. The federal government will provide 90 per cent of the funds and the state 10 per cent of the cost of the controlled access expressway.

Norma Trout of Hartford City, Larry Beadle of Clayton and Victor Kerlin of Van Buren accompanied Janet Jarrett home from Ball State Teachers College for the week end. On Saturday the group and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Jarrett and Robert were entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Evans near Hicksville where the birthday of Johnny Evans was observed.

Andrea Carr will begin a 2-month TB training course at Irene Byron Sanitarium on February 16. She is among a group of 8 girls from Parkview Memorial Hospital and 8 girls from the Lutheran Hospital in Fort Wayne who will take the training program.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn and sons were Sunday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Hauke at Fort Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Curic and son, Charles, were Sunday dinner guests in the Leonard Jarrett home.

COUNTY IS BRUCELLOSIS-FREE

DeKalb County has been designated as a Modified Certified Brucellosis-Free Area for a period of 3 years, dating from Janaury 14, 1958, according to an announcement by county agent E. J. Lesiuk.

The advantages of being a Certified County include the knowledge that infection rate is low meaning more clean herds plus easier marketing.

Farmers will be more likely to keep herds free of infection because neighboring herds will be free of infection. Dairymen living in a certified county have an easier time fulfilling marketing requirements. Increasing numbers of cities are passing ordinances requiring that after a certain date all dairy products entering their municipalities must come from brucellosis-free herds.

Local pure bred cattlemen will find it easier to ship into other states and health requirements for cattle coming into the county from out of state will be more strict and will provide more protection for local cattlemen.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Misery loves company, they say.

I was beginning to think we were the only ones that were tossing twice as much fuel in to the home fires a couple of days ago when the temperature went down to 4 and 5 and the winds blew. But evidently others were in the same boat as I heard comments about using "twice as much coal as usual" and "couldn't keep the house warm."

Knowing that others were in the same boat comfort-wise and pocketbook-wise didn't exactly make me feel happy. It was sort of a better bad - or something.

One of the most enjoyable parts of life is renewing old acquaintances. I had the opportunity to renew one of my old ones last week. Late Friday night, after the fights and the late movie, I glanced at the evening paper before heading for bed and noticed that there was an instrumental contest for band members at the Harrison Hill school in Fort Wayne the next day. I looked at the roster of judges for the event and came to the name "Al Freidman, Chicago," judge for clarinets.

19 years ago when I was tooting a bass clarinet in the Wheaton, Illinois, High School Band, under the direction of Ralph Boyden and Dale Schoonover, an "Albert Freidman" was giving me lessons (as best he could since I didn't practice much) every week and helping me get first and second division ribbons at the state and national contests. When I saw the name in the paper Friday night, I wondered if it could be same person. So Saturday before taking the kids to the Shrine circus, I took an excursion out to Harrison Hill on the south side of Fort Wayne and hunted up the room where Mr. Freidman was passing judgment on the high schoolers there assembled. It was lunch time and as I waited for the contestants to resume contesting, I wondered if this would be the guy or not. Then a few minutes after 1 o'clock, I caught a glimpse of a gentlman walking down the hall and, by golly, he didn't look any different than he did 19 years ago.

His wife was there, also, and the three of us gabbed a short while about those "good old days" and then I left.

It used to puzzle me how Dad could talk about seeing so-and-so on the street for the first time in 20 or 30 years, wondering how he could recognize that person. I almost had Al Freidman a gray-hear-ed vaguely recognizable gent as I waited for him and felt rather foolish when he appeared. Like I said, he didn't look any different, just maybe 10 pounds lighter.

—And those were ten of the most enjoyable minutes of conversation I've had for a long time, mostly because, I think, we were talking about two of the most enjoyable years I can remember, as a member of the Wheaton High School Band. There was nothing like it.

Lions Club Takes In Three New Members

Three new members were received into the ranks of the Saint Joe Lions Club Monday evening at a meeting held at the Spencerville Methodist Church. The new members are Dan Ransom and Glenn Moore of Spencerville and Lehr Wilder of near Saint Joe.

The initiation ceremony was held as part of the program presented for wives of members as the meeting was designated "Ladies Night." Women of the Spencerville Methodist Church served the dinner and prepared table decorations. Following the dinner the three men were received into the club with Mr. Ralph Pearson of the Auburn Lions Club and area zone chairman conducting the ceremony.

During the meeting it was announced that the club has furnished white canes for two Saint Joe residents as a project of the sight committee. The recipients of the canes are Mr. Ed Leighty and Mr. Lynde Murphy both of whom, because of failing eyesight, are deserving of public assistance and consideration in their limited opportunities for social contact in the community. Both men are frequent and almost daily visitors in the business section as they try to keep as active as possible under their handicaps.

Entertainment for the evening was presented by Mr. Fran Seibert of Defiance who gave an amusing chalk talk.

The club met previously on January 27 at St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. At that time Mr. Ed Kamm, patent attorney for Tokheim Co. of Fort Wayne, gave an informative talk on the shortcomings of the patent office as they now exist.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank all who remembered me with cards and visits during my stay recently in the hospital.

Harlan, P. Lake Beat Comets

Friday's game was close throughout with the exception of a brief period late in the final quarter when the Hawks went to a 9-point lead with 3:36 to go in the game. Previous to that time the Comets were always within striking distance trailing by 4 ponts much of the time and tying the score three times in the third period. Harlan led thru the game as they posted a 9-5 lead halfway through the first quarter. They held a 17-11 lead at the end of the first period.

Harlan maintained a 4- point lead through the second quarter, scores holding at 21-17, 23-19 and 25-21 before the halftime score of 34-30 was posted. In the third period the locals caught up and tied the score at 34-34. It was 36-all and then tied at 40-all before Harlan spurted to a 46-40 lead with 2:30 to go in the quarter. Harlan held a third quarter lead of 50-44.

Riverdale trailed by 6 at 54-48 as Jerry Vinson fouled out with 5:16 to go in the game. Harlan then went to their 9-point lead, 61-52, with 3:36 to go. Riverdale scored 15 points in those last 3½ minutes holding Harlan to but 8 points. But there just wasn't enough time left to shoot more baskets as the locals dropped in 2 fielders with only seconds to go, and Harlan took the 2 point decision, 69-67.

The Riverdale reserves defeated Harlan in the prelim by a 29-23 score. They opened the game with spectacular playmaking plus some effective shooting. Riverdale led at the first quarter 10-8.

Harlan caught up with the locals in the second period, however, and after trailing 12-8 picked up enough points to tie Riverdale at 14-all and 16-all at the half.

Both teams ran out of gas in the second half there being a total of only 10 points scored in the third quarter which ended 22-20 in favor of Riverdale. Harlan went to a 1-point lead at 23-22 with 5:15 to go in the game. Both teams were scoreless for the next 2½ minutes and it stood at 23-22 in favor of Harlan as the Comets called time out with 2:53 to go. Gerry Heyman connected on 2 free throws, Jim Hollabaugh 1 and Ralph Noragon was wide open under the basket for a fielder to counteract Harlan's attempts to score, making it 27-23. Hollabaugh connected on 2 more free throws to make it 29-23 at the horn.

GAME NOTES—The reserves started right off where the varsity stopped last week and had Riverdale fans smiling through the first half. Teamwork was the byword. — Bob Clauser was the Comets' scoring punch in the first quarter and was working harder, thus more effectively, in his first starting assignment. His return to the basketball court gives even greater depth to the reserve squad. — One weakness of pressing for possession of the ball shows itself occasionally and Friday's reserve game was no exception. With the press and doubling up of 2 defense men on 1 offensive player, it leaves the opportunity for one man to get in the open. Ralph Noragon was camped free as you please under the Comets' bucket late in the game in this instance and scored a comforting fielder. — The varsity looked good even in defeat adding proof to their fan's belief that you don't necessarily need the most points to be a winner. — The Harlan cheering section gave a "good game" yell to Riverdale's players who fouled out late in the varsity contest. — The Riverdale band, under the direction of Mr. Robert Lowry who was given a rousing welcome by the Comets' cheering section when he arrived, and the baton twirlers entertained between games. — The Comets close their regular season play with games Friday of this week against Wolcottville at Wolcottville and Friday, February 21, against Fremont on the Fremont floor. Then it's tourney time.

On Wednesday of this week, the Comets just couldn't get going and dropped a 60-53 tilt to Pleasant Lake on the Ashley floor.

The Comets trailed 14-8 at the end of the first quarter with shot after shot rolling off the hoop. Pleasant Lake doubled the score at 20-10 in the second frame, then led 26-12 at the half.

With Gerald Lothamer, Jerry Vinson and Dale Dowden finding the range to start the third period, the locals crept up to 29-20, then trailed by only 5 at 30-25 with 5:10 to go in the third period. But just as quickly as they caught fire, the Comets cooled off and P. Lake ran up 14 points while the Comets could get only 3. The third period ended at 44-28.

Pleasant Lake held a 14-point margin through most of the final period. The Comets did pull up to 56-49 with 1:05 to go and it looked as if they might pull a last-ditch finish to win. But Pleasant Lake's defense again bottled up the locals and, with Lothamer and Donat fouling out, Riverdale couldn't close the gap.

The reserve squad won their game 40-27. After leading 23-11 at the half, the Comets were scoreless in the third quarter with the regulars resting on the bench and the third period ended 23-15.

With the first string reserves drifting back in, the locals still were pressed and Pleasant Lake pulled up to 24-22. The scoring then opened up with 4 minutes to go in the game and Riverdale took leads of 32-25 and 37-27 before dumping in the last 3 points for the 40-27 win.

Dean Garver To Address PTA Next Tuesday

A meeting of particular interest to all will be held next Tuesday evening as the Riverdale P.T.A. will present Dean Earl Garver of North Manchester College in a discussion bearing the title, "What Does the College Expect In a High School Graduate." Parents and students alike will be interested in this talk as Dean Garver will give information which should prove valuable to those students who are planning to enter college in the coming years. Planning high school courses to help meet college entrance requirements is a big help to the high school student, particularly with the increasing number of college enrollees and the resultant press for sufficient facilities to take care of the student demand.

The meeting will be held at the high school gym in Saint Joe at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday evening, February 18. Special numbers are being prepared by the 3rd and 7th grades for presentation on the program.

An invitation is extended to the entire community to hear this talk concerning one of the most vital aspects of our educational system.

Here's Needed Tax Reform

In a nation which offers equal opportunity to its citizens to make of themselves what they will, it is strange that in the tax system this belief has been and is now ridiculed by the schedule of graduated tax rates which individuals must pay and by the tax which corporations must pay. Somehow it is reasonable in some quarters that the more you earn, the higher the rate you should pay until the rate becomes almost confiscatory, that if you are able to make more money than the next person, you owe a greater debt to the government - even though the government is supposedly based on equality.

Every year at tax time there is a round of publicity about tax cuts and tax reform in general but seldom is anything done which is truly "reform" in nature. There can be suggestion after suggestion which often appeals to most people, but these go for naught because no action is taken or proposed action is rejected. Right at the present moment there is talk of income tax reduction but only because of a business recession; the tax cut is not a matter of principle but a matter of expediency in this instance.

Fortunately there are two bills presently before the House Ways and Means Committee which would do more than act for expediency's sake or for politic's sake. These are bills H.R. 6452 and H.R. 9119, introduced respectively by Rep. A.N. Sadlak (R.-Conn.) and Rep. A.S. Herlong, Jr. (D.-Fla.). Both bills include the same proposals. Comments on these bills were made recently by Lothair Teetor of Hagerstown, Indiana, a Director of of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce and Chairman of the organization's Federal Tax Committee, before the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives. In his comments on January 8, 1958, Mr. Teetor stated in part:

"Your committee now has before it for consideration, two identical bills, one introduced by Representative Sadlak, the other by Representative Herlong. It is our opinion that of all the tax bills so far introduced, these bills strike closest at the crux of the problem. They recognize the tragic consequence to our free enterprise system of continuing the highly progressive individual income tax, and by slow and easy steps over a period of five years, reduce the minimum rate to 15 per cent and the maximum rate to 42 per cent. During the same period, the maximum corporation rate is reduced to 42 per cent, the normal rate being reduced from 30 per cent to 22 per cent. This reduction of eight percentage points in the normal tax rate would be a great help to small corporations.

"Many other reforms and corrections are needed in our revenue code, but here in the Sadlak-Herlong bills is a reasonable start in the right direction to preserve and strengthen our free economy. The immediate effect of the passage of such legislation would be a restoration of business confidence, the priceless ingredient of good times. As the effects of tax reform begin to be felt, new businesses with competent management and growth possibilities will spring up, providing new jobs for our rapidly growing population. New products and new services will be offered to the public at more competitive prices. Businessmen will be free to make decisions based on business factors and not so much on tax impacts.

"But, above all, will be a return of confidence that here in America there is still opportunity and reward for those of ability who want to work hard, and that no socialistic government will steal away the earnings which one has risked and worked to acquire.

"It is possible to have both military supremacy and tax reform. All we have to do is cut the nonessentials so we can afford the essentials."

These bills should be given serious consideration by all Americans for they strike a blow at the system of income taxation which opposes the principal of equality. And Americans should make their thoughts known, specifically by writting their Congressmen and expressing their opinions. Public opinion is much needed to support these tax reform bills.

Perhaps there is reason for asking and expecting more, a little more percentagewise, from those whose incomes are higher than the average. But there is no justification for extolling the opportunities present in this republic, enticing the individual with the promise of greater things, only to take a bigger and bigger bite from him because he puts forth the effort to do better things and reaps a greater reward. It does occasionally reach a point for some people where to go forward is to go backward, financially speaking.

Service Comes First

At the present time, there is being considered by the Post Office Department a curtailment of star route service to many communities. Such a curtailment would affect Saint Joe and Spencerville in that there would be but one mail delivery and pick-up per day in place of the present delivery and pick-up in the morning and another delivery and pick-up in the evening.

The Post Office Department is a popular place to settle when seeking a subject for controversial comments. This proposal to curtail service should add more fuel to the fire.

One consideration seems to be overlooked repeatedly in the discussion about postal service and that is that it is a public service. There is too much concern about getting the postal service to operate "in the black", disregarding the fact that such a public service may not be able to finance itself because of the nature of its service. Providing a quick means of public communication by written word is a responsibility to be born by a free nation. But also there must be efficient operation of such a service. How much can be saved by cutting down star route deliveries is one question; there may be a considerable sum involved. But we had better consider whether such curtailment is improving the service to the public which the Post Office should provide.

If good postal service can be provided at reasonable rates and the Post Office Department kept operating "in the black", all well and good. But before we curtail mail service involving as many people as are involved on the star route serving the local communities, it should be recognized that service comes first and it may be necessary to provide for part of that service by dipping into the tax barrel deeper than postal receipts fill it.

GOOD EVENING

Sometimes you wonder what has happened to the good old-fashioned breed of American boat-rocker — the kind who had enough strength in his intestinal plumbing to risk unpopularity giving expression to a personal belief at variance with the requirements of present-day conformity. The whole emphasis in many quarters today is the necessity for conforming to the discipline of the group — if you are a union man, don't say anything critieal of unions; if you are a schoolteacher, don't say anything critical of education; if you are a doctor, don't say anything critical of medicine; if you are a lawyer, don't say anything critical of legal practices; if you are a newspaperman, don't say anything critical of the press.

There has been a lot of blasting at so-called conformity in recent years, but hardly any blasting at the really dangerous conformity which is making mice out of the mine-run of American male. If everyone seems to be against a Senator McCarthy, for goodness' sake, don't make yourself unpopular by saying anythink in his defense. Be a conformist. If it is unpopular in liberal circles to be against smut in comics and magazines, don't look like an odd-ball by saying that smut is bad stuff for impressionable young minds. Be a parlor conformist and sound off in the accepted groove about the evils of censorship.

The adult mind today chuckles at the group conformity of teen-agers. If some teen-agers wear and do certain things, then all teen-agers must wear and do certain things. But that is a characteristic of immature youth and is acceptable as an attractive thing like good teeth and a fair complexion. But when adults put on and take off certain thoughts and attitudes to square with the group requirements of society at the moment, there is nothing refreshing about it. Adults are supposed to lay aside the things of childhood.

The most perfect man who ever lived was probably the most unpopular man who ever lived. He very seldom knew peace and for His stand on behalf of a system of belief He was beaten, spat upon and put to death shamefully and ignominiously. In the real sense of the word, He was a radical and what He taught was considered now to be radicalism. Yet today we have a watered-down sort of Christianity which says, "Think thus and do so, but don't for goodness' sake get involved in a quarrel or a controversy."

There are infinitely more good people than bad people in labor unions. Why don't the good people, instead of the bad people, write the ticket? There are more good people than bad people in most American towns. Why don't the good people, rather than the bad people, write the ticket in the town where the bad people have taken over?

Of course, if you have nothing to believe in, you have nothing to fight for, and a considerable part of our broad educational processes in recent years has attempted to underplay the importance of any system of beliefs, so we have great numbers of people who don't believe much in anything and as a consequence haven't had much experience fighting.

The present requirement of conformity is that you must never say or do anything that will stir up a difference of opinion. Be right and popular, if you can, but if you can't, be popular. That is the slogan of the modern mind. And by the way, as a result, we're in a mess. If this philosophy is sound, then every person who ever suffered for a belief, including humanity's only perfect man, was a fool.

Oldest, Latest Racers On Parade

All shiny and ready for the Henry Ford Museum's 1958 "Sports Cars in Review" is this Italian 3.5 litre Ferrari (center), one of the world's top competition cars, and two famous racers of earlier years, a 1923 Bugatti (left) and a 1913 Mercer Raceabout. This powerful 12-cylinder Ferrari, driven by Eugenio Castelloti, won the Mille Miglia in Italy in 1956 with an average speed of 85.37 miles an hour. Last year it was first in the Buenos Aires, Argentina, 1,000-kilometer race. The French Bugatti, frail-looking on its 94-inch wheelbase, captured most of the major races in the '20's. Mercer's reputation was unsurpassed in American racing annals from 1911 to 1915. The Ferrari is among more than 50 of the latest foreign and domestic sports models, both competition and touring classes, in the seventh annual show, the nation's largest devoted exclusively to sports cars. The exhibit, in Dearborn, Mich., also includes several early racers to point the development of this type of vehicle over the last 40 years. It open February 7 and continues through March 2. Both the Bugatti and Mercer are owned by Benjamin F. Johnson of Connersville, Ind.

Bradenton, Fla. 2-3-58

Hello Ted,

Yes I am in Florida. Can't say that I am glad of it. The weather here is terrible compared to the Arizona sunshine which I enjoyed for 7 weeks. I am located near Sarasota Bay and hope to do some fishing when it warms up. My activities here so far has been horse shoe pitching and shuffle board. I miss the home town paper very much and wish you to send it to the following address.

Best wishes to you and yours.

Ed.

We wondered how the ol' postmaster was doing.

As far as the weather is concerned, with this zero and 5 degree stuff we've been having everyone is about even.—Ed.

Ted,

While pulling CQ at our Regimental Headquarters, I was reading this weeks European Edition of the Army Times dated 4 Feb 1958. I came to the Sport Section and found this clipping of Ed Hook in which I am en-closing. I Thought it may be of great interest to the people of the community.

Richard Conley and myself are still surviving and serving our country with the greatest extent of our ability. One thing certain is that we continually check our Short-timers Calendars for our up and coming rotation dates, which is approximately 114 days.

We are constantly thinking of all of the good deeds that our friends of the community have done for us and we send our best to all.

Sincerely,

Lavern R. Voirol

(The clipping reads as follows:)

"Okinawa Boasts 5-5 Cage Ace

"Okinawa. — Ed Hook, star guard for the Army Shamrocks in the Inter-Service league here, has the opposition swearing that his 5 feet 5 inches must be all rubber because he covers more court than many hoop stars at least a foot taller. The 23-year-old Hook has great speed and, as his teammates say, 'the fastest hands in the league.'

"Ed was a standout in high school at Spencerville, Ind., where he scored more than 1000 points, thus becoming a member of the exclusive '1000' club of Indiana. Later, at Grand Rapids Junior College, he was All-Conference. Next stop was Defiance College, Ohio, where he added more honors in both basketball and baseman. He came to Okinawa last May."

That's what we like—not only a letter from someone in the service but one in which we hear about three of our young men from this community. Ed.

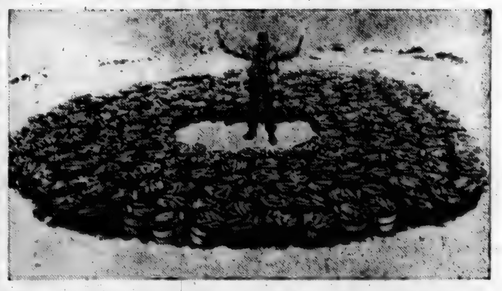
All from One Acre—1957 Corn Champ



When Henry Penning of Decatur, Michigan, learned that he had been named National Champion in the 1957 Selected 5-acre DeKalb Corn Growing Contest, he thought it would be interesting to actually see just how his 203.47 bushel yield would look "laid out" on the ground. Penning, who is of Dutch descent, won over 4789 contestants in the 20th year of this nationwide competition. His winning field was planted in celery in 1954-55 and in corn in 1956. Penning raises corn, celery, mint and potatoes. Farms in Penning's area are of muck soil and generally small in acreage, but intensively farmed for high yields.

Skilled Hands Prepare PTA Ham Supper

Many hours of toil go into the preparation of a public dinner and no one knows better of this than those ladies who help prepare and serve the annual Riverdale P.T.A Ham Supper. This year the supper will again be served at the Riverdale cafeteria in Spencerville. The date is Saturday, February 22. The accompanying carnival sponsored also by the P.T.A. will be presented the same evening at the gym in Saint Joe.

Mrs. Bill Sible is chairman of the supper this year and has a select group of ladies from the surrounding community serving on the various committees which are preparing the supper. There are opportunities for the husbands to help, of course, as tables must be moved in for the supper and out again afterwards, food supplies brought in, and so on. But the brunt of the work falls on the women as far as the supper is concerned.

Mrs. Sible has announced the names of those who are helping on the many supper committees. They are as follows (any omissions are unintentional):

Ham — Gertrude Reinhart, Charlotte Hudson, Mildred Walters.

Baked potatoes—Carol Pugsley, Bernice Sechler, Thelma Taylor.

Cole slaw — Velma Gerig, Pauline Wallace, Loah Emenhiser, Donna Davis, Lu Anna Friend, Marie Sponhour.

Beans—Maxine Harter, Jean Moore, Eulalie Mansfield.

Coffee — Loretta Musser, Anne Beebe, Dorothy Markle.

Celery and carrots — Mary Ellen Beaty.

Milk—Harriett Baker, Coralee Holman.

Table committee— Donzella Graham, Betty Rediger, Louise Zimmerman, Mary Ellen Beaty, Sharon Beaty, Helen Hoover, Erma Allen, Mary Brattain, Virginia Laux, Virginia Baker, Lelia Moore, Jean Shockley, Fern Carr, Ruth Coburn.

Dishes—John Mason, Wayne Storer.

In a previous item concerning carnival committees the names of Mr. and Mrs. William LaRowe were omitted from their place on the ice cream committee.

Northern Lights Seen Monday

Anyone gazing skyward Monday evening was treated to a rare sight. At approximately 9 p.m. the rays of the aurora borealis, or "northern lights," were visible in the sky from the northern horizon upward.

First noted was a red glow in the sky which turned to red fingers of light across half the sky. This varied in intensity with the fingers streaking upward then to fade temporarily, then re-appearing. A white glow developed in the meantime along the horizon giving the appearance of light reflection from a large city as can be noted in approaching a city. There were also reports of green coloring along with the red as the phenomenon continued its exhibition.

Rays of light continued for 9 or 10 hours into early Tuesday morning.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish in this way to show my appreciation to everyone who made calls, contributed flowers, gifts, letters and cards, in fact for all acts of kindness shown me during my 25 days in the hospital and since I returned home.

A man called Lincoln passed this way!
Born in a cabin bleak and bare:
Knew toil and hunger and despair.
And learned from want and bitter need
A single, sympathetic creed.

His way was hard. All things of pride
To him were from the first denied,
His was a body stripped of grace;
His was an unattractive face
Yet when he spoke, men's hearts were stirred
Because the soul within they heard.

Oft was he mocked and oft betrayed,
Yet patient with all men he stayed.
Yet pity never left his eyes;
He rose as high as men can rise,
Gained power and still to all he knew
This man called Lincoln gentler grew.

Back to the dust have journeyed kings,
Their thrones but scarce remembered things;
Their greatness merely of the hour,
Their power destroyed by greater power.
But all the world recalls today
A man called Lincoln — passed this way.

My Pretty Valentine

No need to shop for family Valentines when you can create them in your own kitchen. Beautiful to see, better to eat, these culinary greetings carry as much sentiment as the frilly hearts-and-flowers paper variety.

A mighty tasty way to say "I love you, Valentine" is to serve individual heartshaped meringue shells, ladened with sparkly Cherry Vanilla Ice Cream. This luscious, flavor - of - the - month, ice cream you can buy in a variety of sizes from pints to one-half gallons, even two and one-half gallon containers for those who have home freezers. Bright Cherries dot Vanilla Ice Cream to produce a fun food that fits into any color scheme suggested by the many February red-letter days.

HOW TO MAKE PERFECT MERINGUE SHELLS

4 egg whites
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sifted granulated sugar

NOTE: Egg whites should be at room temperature to whip up extra fluffy, but eggs should be separated while cold. The yolks may be used in making a soft custard or for salad dressing.

Add cream of tartar, salt and vanilla to egg whites in large bowl. Using your rotary egg beater or an electric mixer, beat egg whites until stiff (mixture holds a peak) but not dry. The stiff peaks are still glossy. Add sugar gradually, 1 tablespoon at a time. Beat after each addition until well blended and sugar is dissolved. If you taste a little, there should be no sugar crystals.

The meringues may be heart-shaped or round. For hearts, use a cardboard pattern of suitable size and trace outlines on unglazed brown paper cut to fit a cookie sheet. Drop by spoonfuls on heart outline or heap in a circle. Hollow out with back of spoon. Bake individual meringues in slow oven (275°) for 50 minutes. These will be tinged with golden brown. The outside will be crisp, the inside tender and a little moist. Number will vary with size of pattern or mound but 12 is the approximate number of shells. Cool, then remove from paper with a broad spatula.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible Material: Luke 4:42-43; 5:1-3; Romans 10:14-17; I Corinthians 1:18-31; Ephesians 3:-7-19.

Devotional Reading: Mark 1:14-20.

FAITH BY EAR

Lesson for February 16, 1958

Why is there so much talking in church? By the preacher, that is. There are denominations that don't take much stock in preaching - and in consequence are not famous for good sermons. But the churches supporting this column are all preaching churches. They make a great deal of it. When you attend a worship service at 11 a.m. on Sunday in one of these churches, out of an hour's time you will be expected to listen to a man talking at least half that time. Couldn't you get what the preacher is trying to say faster if he just passed out leaflets containing his sermon all printed out?

The Christian custom of preaching arose because this religion took its start among illiterate people. Those who could really read and write, beyond a few words, were far more rare than they now are in the civilized lands of the world. Furthermore, since all the first Christians were Jews, they were already used to the synagogue service, where from childhood they had been brought up to expect some one to read aloud and to explain the Scriptures.

Person To Person

If the Christian church had depended, when it began, on written literature, it would hardly have got a start. All through the New Testament one finds expressions like "faith comes by what is heard." Not by what is read! The very word "preaching" means proclaiming, and seldom refers to written proclamations. The question may occur to a modern Christian: isn't this out of date? Don't we live in an age of public schools and literacy? Are we expected always to have faith by ear, as it were, and not by eye?

There are many good reasons why even the most progressive churches have no intention of giving up preaching, or to put it on one side. It is quite true (and has always been true) that there are other ways of "hearing" the Gospel than by ear. Nevertheless, preaching is still blessed by God. This does not mean that every so-called sermon enjoys God's blessing. Some "preaching" is no better than a lot of unlovely noise. But preaching is blessed; that is, by it men are aroused from indifference to God, they are converted, growing Christians are helped to grow, and suffering Christians are helped to take their burdens in a Christian-like way. Why is this? One of the reasons is that good preaching is person-to-person. It has a this-means-you overtone in it. A written thing can be ignored, thrown into a wastebasket; but it is harder to ignore a sincere man who is talking to you about God and you.

Congregations could help themselves, and the preacher, if they would do something about this. Try to make out what the subject is.

What's He Driving At?

The common expression, "What's he driving at?" really means, "What is he trying to say," in a nutshell. What is the theme, the topic, the subject, of his remarks? A poor preacher may not even know; or he may know what he is trying to talk about, but his actual sermon may cast no light whatever on his subject. But in a good sermon everything the preacher says comes out of his central theme or idea. And—a most important point — his central theme or idea ought to be drawn from God's Word. If not, then the so-called preacher is actually only reading an essay or giving a rambling talk on some of his own notions.

What's He Driving For?

If a minister really preaches the Word of God, if he takes the whole Bible for his baseline, he will not lack for vital and thrilling subjects. But one of America's most famous preachers, whose wife used to ask him regularly every Friday night, "Darling, what's your subject for next Sunday?" was thrown into a tailspin by a different question from her one night: "Darling, what's your object?" Preaching, when it is good, is persuasive. The object is to take people from where they are at least a little nearer to where they ought to be. Ministers are often taught to "preach for a verdict." If a minister is really preaching the Word, he will be proclaming the Way of Life. He will be making the way to God simple, and the life in God real. Like Paul, he wants by all means "to win some"—to Christ.

TO THE LIONS—

In behalf of my father, Ed Leighty, and myself, we want to thank Mr. William Staman and all Lions for presenting him a white cane. Thanks again for your thoughtfulness, consideration and kindness.

Mrs. Betty Miller of RR, Saint Joe, suffered bruises to her knees and legs and her sons, Van, 6, and Dale, 2, were shaken up in a collision near Newville on Wednesday of last week. The vehicles involved were a 1954 Mercury driven by Mrs. Miller and 1952 Ford 3-4 ton pick-up truck driven by John Mason of near Saint Joe. The accident occurred on an icy and snow-packed curve. Damage to the car was set at $450 with $175 damage to the truck. Both drivers said they were traveling at about 20 miles per hour when the Miller car skidded out of control into the lane of the oncoming truck.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hook were week end guests recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs Carroll Shanks and family of Findlay, O.

Army M-Sgt. Harry W. Schendel, son of Mrs. Laura Schendel of Saint Joe, recently participated in a field training exercise with the 101st Airborne Division Artillery's Headquarters Battery at Fort Bragg, N.C. Sgt. Schendel is regularly assigned with the battery at Fort Campbell, Ky. He entered the army in 1943. The sergeant is a graduate of Deshler, O., High School and attended Bowling Green University. His wife, Jeanne, is with him at the fort.

Announcement is made by Dr. F. B. Kantzer of Garrett, president of the DeKalb County Association for Retarded Children, of the annual meeting to be held Thursday, February 20, at 8 p.m. at the Wee Haven School in Garrett. Election of 3 members to the 9-member board of directors will be held at this meeting. The public is invited and members are urged to attend.

Mrs. Lester Pugsley returned home January 25 after undergoing surgery at Auburn and confinement in the hospital for 25 days. She is now able to be up and about.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Bowman were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hull.

Included in the list of Republicans who will run for nomination in the May primary are the names of Claud Laub of Spencerville, county commissioner from the southeast district, who will file for re-nomination, and Wallace Graham of Spencer Township, who will seek nomination for Spencer Township trustee.

Final rites were held Friday for Mrs. Elizabeth Fredrick, 96, of Spencerville, one of DeKalb County's oldest residents. Mrs. Fredrick died last Wednesday in the Sheehy Nursing Home at Butler where had been admitted seven and one-half years ago. Her death was attributed to complications of age. Rev. Henry Weber officiated at services and burial was in White City Cemetery near Spencerville.

Driver license suspensions include that of William Murray of Auburn, 6 months for leaving the scene of an accident.

A stork shower was given for Phyllis Baker on February 4 by Maxine Miller at the Bob Miller home in Saint Joe. Included in the guests were Eva Clauser, June Baker, Nellie Moore, Victoria Means, Laven Miller, Carolyn Liechty of Berne, Callie Ridgway, Emma Strombeck, Ethel Haverstock and daughter of Fort Wayne, Mary Baker, Becky Harts, Linda and Delores Davis, Helen Yeiser, Sandra Krafft and Effiebel McCann.

Mr. Ira Hook attended an insurance school February 4-5-6 at the Southern Hotel in Columbus, O. Mrs. Hock was a guest in the home of her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hedges, at Ashville.

Mr. and Mrs. Orman Ohler and Miss Letha Arrants of Lima, O., Mr. and Mrs. Everett Mavis, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Mavis, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Mavis of Auburn, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bailey of Spencerville and Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Bevington and Lucinda and Stephen were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Carr and Nick, Melanie and Renee Sunday for a potluck dinner, celebrating the birthdays of Mr. Everett Mavis, Sr., Mrs. Karl Mavis, Miss Letha Arrants and Mrs. Harvey Carr.

Mr. Peter D'Mura, district minister of Jehovah's Witnesses in this area, reported this week the results of a meeting held at the Kingdom Hall in Kendallville February 10. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss plans for a ministers' convention to be held in Kendallville in March. Richard E. Hankey, presiding minister in this vicinity, was among the ministers who discussed rooming accommodations, cafeteria plans, travel arrangements and other details to provide for the over 1200 delegates expected to attend. Mr. D'Mura of the Watchtower Society in New York will be the principal speaker at the convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clauser and son, Bob, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Liechty of Berne.

Leon Kees attended the 4th District meeting of the American Legion at Woodburn last Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hook of near Saint Joe and Mrs. Vance Amstutz of Harlan spent Monday in Indianapolis attending the first Indiana Regional Meeting of the Nationwide Insurance Company. The meeting was held at the Iron Skillet with a banquet in the evening for agents and wives. Mr. Hook appeared on the program and will represent Indiana District 1 at the Round-Table discussion to be held in Columbus, O., in the near future.

Mrs. H. C. Borthwick is recovering at home after a recent hospital confinement.

Dr. Herman B. Wells, president of Indiana University, who was one of five American delegates to the 12th General Assebly of the United Nations last fall, will speak in Fort Wayne Monday, February 17.

Dr. Wells will speak at 8 p.m. (EST) in the Chamber of Comerce auditorium at Wayne and Ewing streets. The public is invited and there will be no admission charge. Following Dr. Wells' talk there will be a question and answer period.

The local Legion Post went on record Tuesday night as strongly opposed to the curtailing of the Star Route mail service to Saint Joe by the Postal Department, believing it will work hardships on all patrons and processors of local mail service.

Rev. F. Hazen Sparks of Garrett will act as moderator at a panel discussion Friday evening opening the DeKalb County Sunday School Association's 3rd annual convention. Session are scheduled for Saturday morning and Saturday evening also.

The Butler exchange of General Telephone Company will be converted to dial operation on or about March 4. Installation of the automatic dial switching equipment has been completed and company technicians are now testing the new equipment.

ENGLAND CHECKS ON "EXPLORER" – London, Eng. – As the first American Satellite "Explorer" circles the Earth every 113 minutes, operators in the Jordrell Bank Radio Telescope Station pick up its signals. The signals from outer space are being picked up in many countries of the world. This radio telescope was specifically built to receive the space messages.

Owner Bitten By Rabid Dog; All Strays To Be Destroyed

Residents of Saint Joe and the immediate surrounding territory have been asked to cooperate in an emergency which has arisen in the past few days with the death of a rabid dog owned by Lloyd Hile of Saint Joe. The cooperation is needed in eliminating stray dogs which have grown numerous in the past year or so. Dog-owners are warned that any dogs found on the streets of Saint Joe will be impounded or destroyed in the next few days. Valued pets should be kept on the properties of their owners or be in control of someone when off those properities.

The situation arose Tuesday morning when Mr. Hile was biten by a police dog, which he owned, after strange behavior by the dog had been noted. The dog was loose overnight Saturday and thus may have infected other dogs. Mr. Hile began taking a series of shots as treatment for the bite Wednesday. Meanwile, the dog was taken to the Fort Wayne Humane Shelter for observation. It died Wednesday and the head was sent to Indianapolis immediately for examination. Late Thursday afternoon the report was received that tests gave positive reactions indicating that the dog had rabies. It is necessary to wait for death by natural causes in pin-pointing rabies since presence of the disease cannot be found except by examination of the brain after natural death.

The president of the Town Board, Derwood Ridgway, upon receipt of the report of rabies in the Hile dog, immediately issued a warning to local dog owners that their pets will be picked up if wandering unattended. He pointed out that Indiana State Law requires that every dog owner must keep his pet confined at all times or in control of someone when away from home. Another statute pointed out is that every dog over 6 months old must be innoculated for rabies or it can be impounded.

It is important that anyone knowing of a dog which has bitten a child or adult in the past few days report the identification of the dog and the person bitten to the authorities. These dogs are not destroyed but kept under observation. If stray dogs are known not to have bitten anyone, they will be destroyed. Mr. Ridgway urges public cooperation in this matter so that persons bitten may get immediate care from their physician and the dogs can be placed under observation.

The Humane Shelter at Fort Wayne has cooperated in getting this information to the public and stated that there is no need to become panic-stricken. It is important, however, that stray dogs be eliminated not only in this present situation but in the future so that the public, especially children, may be protected from the possibilty of attack by a rabid dog and also that the lives of valued pets may be protected. One dog-owner in Saint Joe has already taken the family pet to Fort Wayne for observation, knowing that it was in contact recently with the dog which died Wednesday night.

If anybody wants to learn how to bowl, they ought to ask Phyllis Ritenour to teach them.

This week the little woman finally got me to take her bowling. I had never rolled one of those bowling balls before and was a little leary of what to do and expect. We stopped in at Milt and Betty Ritenour's alleys at Butler Wednesday night and got all set to roll. Esther was having a hard time telling me what to do. So when Phyllis came in I told her this was my first time, what do I do. She said, "Well, - - uh, you - - uh - - it - - I - - uh - -."

So I did just what she told me and you know what - the very first ball I rolled knocked down all the pins. This is a cinch, says I. But it didn't work out exactly that way. The next ball got one pin. After that Milt and Esther gave me a pointer or two and there we go!!!! - another confirmed bowler! —And I rolled 105, 108, 133, and 83.

Things-I-like-to-hear department—

Dan Ransom: "Our ad in the Saint Joe News got good results."

Mrs. Lowry: "The children sent this note to you." (The note reads: "Dear Mr. Haberkorn, we dancers want to thank you for playing the piano for our minuet. Sincerely, Peggy Ann Hudson, Dale Harter, Nanette Shockley, Michael James Boebe, Becky Stiver, Dennis Miller, Karen Musser, Wayne Sponhower.")

Comets Draw Orland In Tourney Opener

The Riverdale Comets face the Fremont Eagles at Fremont this Friday night in the last contest on the Comets' regular season schedule. Following that encounter they will face the rigors of the sectional tourney at Churubusco in which they drew Orland as their opponent in the drawing results announced Wednesday.

Going into the last season encounter, the Comets hold a 8-12 won-lost record. They opened the season with a 1-point win over Butler and lost the next two thrillers to Waterloo and Wolf Lake. In mid-season the Comets found the going difficult as their coordination and co-operation suffered a set-back. But in the last few bames Riverdale has looked good and could come up with their regained spirit at just the right time - tourney time.

Riverdale will play Orland at Churubusco on Wednesday afternoon, February 26, at 2:-15 p.m. DST. The winner of that game will then face the Salem Center five on Thursday evening at 8 p.m.

AT CHURUBUSCO
Wednesday afternoon
Game 1, 2:15—Riverdale and Orland.
Game 2, 3:30 — Churubusco and Garrett
Wednesday evening
Game 3, 8:30—Fremont and Bellefountain.
Thursday evening
Game 4, 8:00—Salem Center and winner of Game 1.
Game 5, 9:15 — winners of games 2 and 3.

AT GARRETT
Wednesday afternoon
Game 1, 2:15—Pleasant Lake and Waterloo.
Game 2, 3:30—Flint and Butler.
Wednesday evening
Game, 8:30 Auburn and Ashley.
Thursday evening
Game 4, 8:00 — Angola and winner Game 1.
Game 5, 9:15—winners games 2 and 3.

AT CHURUBUSCO
Saturday afternoon
Game 6, 2:00 —winners of games 4 and 5 at Churubusco.
Game 7, 3:15 — winners of games 4 and 5 at Garrett.
Saturday evening
Game 8, 9:15 — winners of games 6 and 7.

Officials for the games are Charles Timmons, James Murray, Dean Geyer and Donold Orlosky.

Rev. and Mrs. Henry Weber are the proud parents of a 10 lb. 1 oz. son, born Wednesday evening of this week at Parkview Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Melvin Howey is recuperating from a broken arm suffered in a fall three weeks ago.

Mrs. Rilla Goldsmith, who has been ailing, is feeling better this week.

Observance of the World Day of Prayer, sponsored by the Women's Society for Christian Service, will be held at 8 p.m. Friday evening, February 21, at the Spencerville Methodist Church. Included on the program will be devotional services, a history of the world day of prayer, a panel question and answer period on prayer and special music. This year's celebration marks the 72nd year for the international observance. The service unites thousands of Christians throughout the world for prayer for a better world and thanksgiving for our Christian heritage. Services will begin on the Tonga Islands, located west of the International Date Line, and cross the world, concluding on St. Lawrence Sound, Ala. The public is invited to attend this special service as a small part of this united observance.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn J. Brendel had as Sunday dinner guests Mr and Mrs. Robert Blaising and son, Brian, of Fort Wayne.

On Monday evening Mrs. William Hudson was hostess to a shower for Tana and Cindy Hoover, daughters of the J. W. Hoovers, with Mrs. Virgil Laux of Saint Joe, Mrs. C. E. Reed and Mrs. Paul Clear of Wallen, Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Carl Hoover, Mrs. C. Ervin of Cedarville, Mrs. Glen Shears of Grabill, Mrs. Archie Kugler of LaOtto and Mrs. Otis Brown, Mrs. Forrest Brattain, Mrs. C. R. Baumgartner, Mrs. Glenn J. Brendel, Mrs. M. H. Hollabaugh and Mrs. J W. Hoover of Spencerville present.

The Robert Hons of Salina, Kansas, are parents of an 8½ lb. boy born at 1:40 a.m. February 18. Mrs. Hons is the former Charlotte Timberlin and a granddaughter of the John Weidners.

The Spencerville Fire Department responded to a fire alarm at 2 a.m. Sunday morning at the William Smith home on the Bull Rapids Road southeast of Spencerville. The fire started from faulty wiring and damage was estimated at $500.

Dallas Zimmerman has been ill this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Argyle Richmond were Tuesday evening supper guests of the Roscoe Garmans.

Mrs. Glenn Moore is working in the Riverdale Cafeteria while Mrs. Clara Brattain recovers from illness.

While in Dallas, Texas, last week, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Akey telephoned Mrs. D. L. Morgan of that city. Mrs. Morgan gave them an invitation to return in a few months and bring their bathing suits for a swim in the pool.

Mrs. Charles O. Wise is feeling much better after a severe fall several weeks ago at her home west of Spencerville.

Good Eating. Good Fun-- From PTA

Only a few hours remain until the Riverdale P.T.A. workers will be hard at it presenting their annual ham supper and carnival. The supper will be served at the cafeteria in Spencerville at the Riverdale elementary school. The carnival will be presented at the high school in Saint Joe, both on Saturday, February 22.

The menu for the supper has been announced as follows by Mrs. Bill Sible, chairman of the supper: baked ham, baked potato, green beans, cole slaw, bread and butter, pie or cake and beverage. Prices for the supper are $1.25 for adults and 75c for children through the 6th grade.

The carvinal will feature some of the favorites of past years such as weight guessing, bingo, dart tossing, penny pitch, fish pond, variety show, fun house, bazaar and others. Admission to the various concessions is by tickets which can be purchased at the door, as many as the individual may want at 5 cents per ticket.

The P.T.A. at various times uses its funds to purchase equipment and supplies for the school to assist in the improvement of educational facilities and services. Money received from the supper and carnival will be used for those purposes in the coming months.

The public is asked to support the P.T.A. project.

Dean Garver Warns: 'College Means Work'

Dean Earl Garver gave those assembled at Tuesday's Riverdale P.T.A. meeting some things to think about concerning the field of college education. Though he spoke on the qualifications which a college expects in the student in somewhat general terms, he did emphasize the need for students to be "prepared to work" when they enter college. Dean Garver pointed out that the increasing percentage of high school graduates enrolling in college is making it more difficult to take care of the needs of college students. Thus it becomes necessary for the school to be more selective in enrolling high school graduates in college, specifically looking for those students who are seriously going to work to complete the 4 years of college. Dean Garver pointed out that there are too many students who come to college with little or no purpose, who then flunk out after a semester or two and thus deprive some other worthy student who could not be accepted for enrollment of the opportunity to be studying. The speaker noted the incidence of young women coming to college "to find a husband," which also creates a problem in selection of enrollees.

Another factor which is important in entering college is the student's study of math and science. With the space age at hand, the need for diligence in preparation in these subjects in increasing. But Dean Garver hastened to warn that math and science should not be over-emphasized. He stated that all courses of study have their importance and the fields of study which specifically relate to scientific knowledge should not be placed before all others. Even in scientific study, it is recognized that there is need for understanding of human relations and an appreciation of the cultural aspects of civilization. Thus present day needs point to emphasis on all courses of study, to a greater appreciation of the value of education, for example what an important opportunity college education is.

Colleges have made it more difficult in some instances for the uncertain student to enroll. In some cases tuition fees are required in advance to discourage the half-hearted college prospect. In that line, Dean Garver mentioned that it is not unusual for a student to apply at 5 to 30 different colleges, then to choose from those which accept his application. This creates a situation in which the school is not too certain of how many students who are accepted for enrollment will actually enroll. Again a worthy student may be passed by unintentionally because another student has been accepted but does not enroll. Application fees are charged in some schools to discourage this practice.

In all Dean Garver, rather than specifically going course by course in a review of what is needed by the college prospect, gave a deeper thought to his audience. He repeated his view that "we, as parents, should try to prepare the prospective college student for work. Anything that is worth while is achieved through work."

The third grade presented musical entertainment under the direction of Mrs. Robert Lowry. A minuet was presented by the following: Peggy Ann Hudson, Dale Harter, Nanette Shockley, Michael James Beebe, Becky Stiver, Dennis Miller, Karen Musser and Wayne Sponhower. The entire third grade then sang a few of their favorite songs.

Tondelaya Wisler, representing the 7th grade, gave a demonstration of a few of the basic tumbling arts which she uses in her frequent public appearances in this area.

Sechler's Install New, Faster Packing Line

Sechler's pickle packing plant last week began operation of a newly-installed packing line which is expected to jump packing output from 450 cases to around 1500 cases per day in the production season. The line was installed by the local plant with the assistance of the White Cap Company of Chicago.

The new line is 60 feet long with stainless steel packing tables at right angles along the distributing line. Glassware is readily available for the packer and a line for receiving the jars after they have been packed.

A new capping machine adds to the efficiency of the line, replacing the previous machine which was adapted from a milk processing line.

In all the new arrangement will add to the productivity of the packing plant and the ease of operation for the workers themselves.

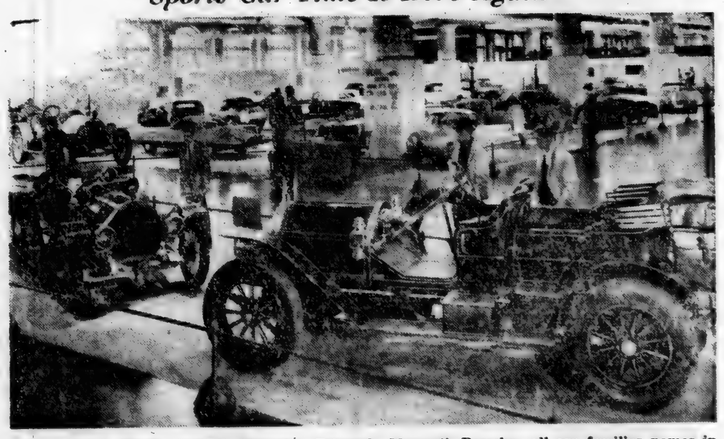
Sports Car Time Is Here Again



Ferrari, Aston Martin, Jaguar, Mercedes, Triumph, Maserati, Porsche—all are familiar names in the sports car world. And all have latest models in the current "Sports Cars in Review" at Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Mich. Above is part of the show area with some of more than 50 sports models, both competitive and touring, on display in the museum's main exhibition hall. In addition, several historical cars, as the 1909 Simplex in the foreground, trace the development of sports cars over the last 40 years. Some of the present-day foreign cars are shown for the first time in this country. The show, the nation's largest devoted exclusively to sports cars, continues through March 2.

ON THE FENCE

The farmer is sitting on the fence,
Counting his dollars and counting his cents;
Wondering how, on that last day,
His federal tax, he is going to pay.
He also has gross income, too,
To help to keep him in a stew;
And social security (my sakes' alive),
I almost wish I was sixty-five.
I bet we'll have a lot of fun,
Spending our "Social Security" mon'.

PUBLIC WORSHIP

Lesson for February 23, 1958

Why does the church worship in public? Didn't Jesus condemn, or make fun of the Pharisees for doing just that? Didn't Jesus say, "When you pray, go into your room and shut the door"? A second thought will show that what Jesus condemned is individuals praying or otherwise worshipping by themselves in public places. This is making show of religion. Jesus on the other hand never condemned, but encouraged, and took part in group worship. He promised to be wherever two or three are gathered together in his name.

Worship In the Spirit

Of the many things Jesus said about worship, either directly or indirectly, we may well select one single sentence, or two phrases from it, for special notice. It is the well-known statement, spoken not to a learned man but to a simple-minded woman, that God is a Spirit and those who worship Him must worship in Spirit and in truth. Worshipping in the Spirit is not to be contrasted with worshipping (say) with words and music. We know that Jesus attended synagogue services regularly. We know he visited the elaborate worship services of the great Temple. We know he was familiar with that ancient hymn-book of his people which we know as the Psalter. If a man offers one prayer silently, and another prayer aloud, perhaps in unison with others, and sets still another prayer to music and sings it, we have no right to call the unspoken prayer "spiritual" and the others not. Perhaps they are all three spiritual; perhaps none is. But the spirituality of a prayer is not to be measured by how loud or soft it sounds.

In Tune With God

A better contrast is to say that "in the Spirit" or "in Spirit" (both expressions are used in the New Testament) is in harmony with the God who is Spirit. If it is out of tune with God, if it is not in harmony with the nature of God, it is not acceptable worship, or service, or doctrine. God's Spirit is always a giving, not a selfish one. Selfish prayer is not prayer in Spirit. Worship that is centered in the worshipper's own desires and needs is hardly worship in Spirit. Furthermore, prayer that places most emphasis on physical, material welfare, prayer that is mostly for more pay or more comfort or more promotion in this world, is both selfish and material. (Any reader who knows the Lord's Prayer will remember that Jesus did not mean to shut out prayer for material blessings entirely; but that is not the main line of the Lord's Prayer.)

Worship In Truth

More could be said about worship in the Spirit. We might raise the question whether there is not such a thing as collective selfishness in some churches. But let us glance at another point: the God of truth must be worshipped in truth. For one thing, this means that other things being equal, worship is better as it comes closer to a genuine knowledge of God. You would not try to persuade your mother to go with you in the same way in which you would try to persuade a criminal to go with you in a patrol wagon. The way you talk with your mother, or with a burglar, is different because they are different. Talking with God, or about God in a service of worship, or singing to his praise, is far better when the worshipper remembers it is God to whom he is sepaking. Talking to Him, as if he were only a "Man upstairs" does no more good than not talking at all.

But Why At Eleven O'clock?

An objection must have come to many, many minds in the course of the centuries. Granted that worship must be all that is suggested in the majestic words "Spirit and Truth", how can we have any assurance that we shall be in the right frame of mind when Sunday comes and the clock strikes eleven? Well, of course there is not any such assurance. The church knows this very well. What the church does is to open her doors at certain times every week, and invite worshippers to enter and take part. It is often true that though we have gone to church just as a matter of routine, we come away from the worship renewed and blessed. Suppose the church had not given us this opportunity?

Did you know that a week ago a friend of ours saw 24 (that's two dozen) robins all in one group. He counted them. They were out in an apple tree across the street, where some apples had been left from last fall. I'll never believe a robin again when he start yelling around that spring is just around the corner. If our friend, Harry Hill, wasn't such an honest fellow, I'd doubt this robin story, but I must believe it since he told it. Three days later he reported that the number had shrunk to 8 so I assume that the other 16 went back to Miami to see if it had thawed out any down there yet.

It just dawned on me that they may have heard about Garrett's Dollar Days on February 28th and March 1st and wanted to get in on the ground floor. You must keep those dates in mind too, for all Garrett's merchants are going to have some humdinger specials and bargains on those days. Watch for the special ads.

Perhaps you have heard the old adage, "You can't do business from an empty wagon." That is our policy and altho we don't have a wagon we do have two stores filled for your shopping pleasure.

61 Dogs Innoculated For Rabies; Quarantine Now In Effect

61 dogs were innoculated for rabies Wednesday afternoon and evening at the News Office in Saint Joe. The innoculations came as a result of a plea for public cooperation in seeking to stamp out the threat of rabies in the area. Two veterinarians administered the shots.

Action came in Saint Joe after Lloyd Hile was bitten last week by his dog which was found to have rabies. The dog died Wednesday of last week and was examined thereafter bringing forth the report of the presence of rabies. Two other rabid dogs have been reported in the county in the past week one at Hamilton and another at Butler.

Mrs. Roy Chapman has been appointed chairman of the anti-rabies campaign in Saint Joe and has been given authority by the town board to take whatever precautions are necessary to eliminate the possibility of the presence of rabid dogs in the town. Mrs. Chapman was instrumental in arranging for the innoculations given this week.

With the cooperation of Dr. E. E. Rogers, the DeKalb County Health Officer, Saint Joe dogs have been put under quarantine for a period of 10 days ending March 10. During that time any dogs not wearing tags indicating that they have been innoculated will be reported to the county prosecuting attorney. However, dog owners will have three days grace in which to have the dog innoculated. If the shots have not been administered at the end of three days, the dog will be impounded and destroyed.

All dogs are to be kept in their yards tied by chain or rope. They can be led on a leash for exercise. Under no circumstances should the dog be allowed to roam unattended. A statute on the law books of Indiana makes it lawful to destroy any dog which is allowed to roam unattended.

Laws passed in 1957 make owners of dogs over 6 months old subject to a fine not to exceed $50 if the dog is not innoculated. Another makes the owner subject to a fine of not over $100 and imprisonment for not more than 30 days if the dog bites someone and has not been innoculated.

Dog owners are urged to cooperate in this public health safety measure. It will protect no only the health of human beings but the lives of valued pets.

WORKERS NOT SHIRKERS 4-H CLUB

Comets Win Two In Tourney

Riverdale advanced to the semi-final round of the sectional tournament Thursday night with a 61-52 win over a stubborn Salem Center five. This win came on the heels of a 81-46 win over Orland Wednesday afternoon. Both games were played at Churubusco. The Comets now face Fremont Saturday afternoon at Churubusco. Fremont having defeated Garrett 44-42 Thursday night.

The Comets closed the regular schedule Friday night at Fremont and dropped a 66-49 decision to their opponents. Fremont started this game in the same manner in which they began against the locals in the county tourney at Auburn recently, jumping to an 8-0 lead before the Comets could score. The quarter ended at 14-8.

Fremont, with their height advantage again making a big difference, rolled to a half time score of 35-11 holding Riverdale to but three charity tosses and no field goals in the second period. The third period was a continuation of Fremont's scoring, though the Comets picked up a little on their side of the ledger. The quarter ended at 56-24.

Reserves for Fremont entered the game in the last quarter and Riverdale scored 8 to their opponents' 2 to make it 58-32. Fremont varsity returned to the contest with 5 minutes to go and, though Riverdale opened up in scoring, held a comfortable lead to the end of the tilt with the final score 66-49.

The Riverdale reserves waited until the third quarter to show their colors and went on to win by a score of 35-32. The locals trailed 10-6 at the quarter and 18-13 at the half. In the third period, however, they began to work effectively and went to a 23-22 lead. They made several mistakes at the close of the quarter and Fremont scored three for a 25-23 lead.

Riverdale went to a 30-27 lead before Fremont tied it at 30-all with 1:40 to go. Jerry Heyman sank a free throw and Fremont got a fielder to make it 32-31. Donnie Butler scored a field goal and Gerry Heyman tallied a free throw for a 3-point 35-32 win.

GAME NOTES—The varsity loss was compensated for by the reserve win, a thriller. - Comet reserves began breaking up Fremont's plays in the third quarter. Bob Clauser stole the ball for a solo bucket shortly after Gerry Heyman broke up another play and fired a pass to Clauser for a 2-pointer. The locals could have held a bigger lead had it not been for several errors toward the end of the third quarter. - Jerry Heyman and brother and Donnie Butler gave Riverdale fans something to breathe easier by with those last few points. - The Fremont varsity crowded the center lane when it appeared a pass was coming in to Larry Coplin and kept him well in check. Their big center stayed out of the lane and also out of foul trouble while Coplin was picking up 5 by the end of the third quarter.

In the tournament at Churubusco Riverdale went to a 9-1 lead over Orland, then to 11-2 and 13-4 before the end of the quarter at 16-6 Riverdale. The locals led at the 3:41 mark of the second period 28-12 prior to a 38-19 half time lead.

It was 45-23 and 54-30 before a rash of fouls in the closing minutes of the contest slowed action considerably. Action got ragged and a little rough in the closing two minutes and one of the Orland players had to be removed from the tilt. The final score was 81-46.

Salem led at 4-0 before the locals got 7 straight and then held a 15-10 quarter lead. The Comets rolled on and appeared to be marking up an easy win, leading at 26-12 in the second period at the 3:13 mark. The half time score was 30-14.

Salem picked away during the third period and finally trailed by only 7 at 43-36 at the end of the third quarter. Riverdale held onto a 5-6-7 point lead in the final period and then pulled out to 61-52 at the conclusion of the contest.

GAME NOTES—The boys had one of the newest looking basketballs seen for a long time to use in the tourney tilts - a bright near-orange. - Don Donat was rebounding and scoring well in the first quarter to help the Comet cause. - Larry Coplin picked up his 3rd foul with only 16 seconds gone in the second quarter. He sat out the remainder of the quarter, went in after the half and was called for two quickies, putting him out for good at the 4:41 point of the third quarter. - Riverdale blew several lay-ups in the third quarter, but were helped by Donnie Butler's rebounding. - The reserves got into the game and did all right for themselves. Wally Sherritt banked in 2 beauties in the third quarter. - The whistles were tooting in the closing minutes and Butler got his fifth personal with 51 seconds to go. - Unfortunately the roughness brought about ejection of one of Orland's players with only seconds to go. A couple of incidents with Donat brought his removal, though Don appeared to be somewhat irritated himself and on the verge of settling a few things. He wisely held back and the situation was cleared. - Salem appeared to be "duck soup" in the first half. The Comets relaxed a little and then couldn't get back in stride, though they managed to hold the lead. - One of the pleasures of the tourney was the sale of some big, big, big juicy red apples which many were enjoying. - It is supposed to be fashionable year 'round, but somehow all the Bermuda shorts seemed a bit premature. But then, you see everything at an Indiana basketball tournament.

In Good Order

The effectiveness of knowing what to do and how to do it was never more graphically illustrated than in the present situation in Saint Joe revolving about the discovery of rabies in a local dog. This knowledge has helped to bring positive results, including the innoculation of 61 dogs and the posting of a quarantine on Saint Joe as far as dogs are concerned.

Impatience on the part of a few citizens brought rash action last week end as they took it into their hands to lower the dog population by their own means. That their work was effective goes without saying, though there is little justification for doing such a thing. It seems unimportant in this instance because "only dogs" are involved, but taking the law into one's hands, even with "only dogs" carries the threat that rash action might be taken in some other instance when human lives would be involved. The only justification for the shooting of the dogs can be that no action had been taken by anyone else, officially or otherwise, after action appeared to be forthcoming.

However, the qualming of the confusion and the discomfort of local citizenry was accomplished through the efforts of one of Saint Joe's citizens who took the time to contact the state veterinary association, legal counsel, the town board, the sheriff and the county health officer and, with step by step precision and the use of all available publicity media, brought about counter-action to the threat of rabies. One of the fruits of the thorough investigation made by this citizen was the advice from legal counsel that a statute is on the books in Indiana which makes it lawful to dispose of a dog that is roaming unattended. There appeared to be some hesitancy on the part of public officials to do any picking up of dogs and disposing of them because of the possibility of legal action against them; thus the standstill last week end regarding the picking up of strays. But the permission of the town board has been obtained to see to it that strays are picked up during the quarantine; and the action which everyone was waiting for last week end can now be undertaken.

The individual responsible asked to have her thanks extended to all who cooperated in the innoculation day this week and to those who helped in any other way to bring the situation to the attention of the public. We believe the thanks go the other way - from us, the citizens, to Mrs. Roy Chapman.

THE WORRY CLINIC

Dr. Edward A. Rumely has done more for every one of your children than you realize.

For he is the 20th century twin for John Peter Zenger, the patriotic newspaper editor who was imprisoned in the early 1700's in defense of freedom of the press.

Well, Dr. Rumely likewise had to have his case carried clear up to the U.S. Supreme Court in recent years to defend the rights of a publisher to maintain inviolate the names of his subscribers.

His vindication protects our children and the future of this Republic even more than if Dr. Rumely had discovered a sure cure for cancer!

Dr. Rumely has devoted the last 25 years to helping inform Americans about our Constitution and the freedoms granted us in this great Republic.

Through the "Constitution and Free Enterprise Foundation", he has aided in the distribution of over 500,000 copies of T. J. Norton's remarkable book called "The Constitution of the United States."

This book is the most simple and lucid exposition in print. It makes the Constitution understandable to teenagers.

"The best book available on The Constitution" is the way the American Bar Association describes it.

About two years ago Admiral Radford stated that the reason some of our G.I.'s were so seasily brainwashed in China was because they had never been adequately instructed on the Constitution and our "free enterprise" economic system.

So Dr. Rumely and his group sent Admiral Radford a copy of the Norton book. Soon he asked that 25 more copies be sent key men in the Pentagon.

Later, Admiral Radford asked for 1,068 additional copies, one to go to each library of the Armed Forces here and abroad.

But all the books had to be shipped free, as a gift, because the Pentagon reported it had no money to buy books!

Although it was spending $35 billions to defend this Republic, it couldn't afford the 50c per copy (non-profit price) to equip our officers with the best available book explaining and defending our Republic!

"This shows," Dr. Rumely informed me at dinner recently, "how completely we have failed to realize the necessity of educating youth in the fundamntals of our Republic."

Next to the Bible, our Constitution is the dearest literary possession of all Americans. Churches are constantly teaching youth about the contents of the Bible.

But who teaches our children the sources and applications of our Constitution, which Prime Minister Gladstone, England, called the "greatest product ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man"?

Cancer foundations and polio organizations and diabetic groups and a dozen others are trying to improve the health of children.

But it is even more vital to guarantee the healthy state of the very political system on which their entire future happiness depends.

Over 800 colleges, universities and religious groups have given away 500,000 free copies of the Norton book.

Brigham Young University thus has awarded 10,000 copies to its students; St. Joseph's College, 2,000; Tulane University, 2,000, etc.

These books are donated because of the generous foresight of patriotic Americans. In quantity lots, the price is 50c per book (non-profit).

So give these books to schools and employes as an ideal form of true insurance for the future of this Republic.

YOUR COUNTRY NEWSPAPER

Rapid physical changes sometimes give the appearance of altering long-established traditions and values. But the thousands of newspapers comprising America's rural press still deal in human and spiritual values which do not change. In addition to providing a permanent chronological record of community life they have always been a leading force for progress. Their editorial pages are a great influence in shaping public opinion.

With the development of new media and techniques in mass communication the editors of the Industrial News Review feel that some conclusions regarding the rural press, its past, its present and its future prospects are of interest.

Mass production and its conterpart, mass distribution, combined with instantaneous communication and rapid transportation, have all but erased sectional distinctions. This has had its effect on the rural press. Home ties are as strong as ever and interest in community affairs has not lessened, but as it feels a closer kinship with the rest of the country, even the smallest community sees more clearly its personal stake in national policies which effect the lives, jobs and businesses of local people.

Direct taxes, including payroll "deductions," alone have reached the point where a growing number of persons are aware that they are losing control over the money they earn - the right to keep the rewards of their own efforts. It is harder and harder to avoid becoming a ward of the government. They are finding that centralized big government has a high price tag in terms of diminishing freedom of action.

The rural newspaper editor has a compelling reason to take part in discussing national issues.

In the midst of world-wide changing conditions and startling advances in methods of disseminating ideas and information, the country newspaper is yearly growing in stature. It is the primary visual source of information and a forum of opinion on local, state and national issues.

Almost the entire circulation of the country press is on an annual subscription basis. These papers go into the homes of over 20,000,000 subscribers and are generally read by the whole family. It is conservative to estimate that between two and three people read the average country paper - over 50 million readers of the hometown newspaper.

The editor of the local newspaper is usually one of the best known and most respected members of the community - he knows everyone and everyone knows him. Because he is well-known and well-informed on matters of local importance, an editorial opinion expressed by him on any question is noted by his readers, even if they do not agree with him. So it is that thousands of weekly and small daily newspaper editors in this country hold a position of unusual influence.

Our tremendous transportation and retailing systems capable of moving and displaying all the nation's wares, would be of little use unless people knew what products were available, at what cost and, in addition, had the desire to buy. Creating demand is the province of good advertising. Newspapers hold top honors as the leading advertising medium in the country today. There is a reason for this and it was summed up recently by a Philadelphia advertising man who said: "At the retail level, nothing sells like newspaper advertising." And across the nation, in small towns, rural and suburban areas, it is generally true that a regular ad in the hometown paper is the mark of a successful business.

Editors of the rural press are solidly behind constitutional ideas of government. They are in a rare position to see the way in which personal freedom is dependent upon our private enterprise system - there would be no free press were it not for advertising by the local merchants and industries who support the press but do not control it. Government-owned business does not need to advertise - its customers have to take what it offers.

Privately-owned business and industry is the life blood of a free people just as it is of a free press. Editors know the importance of public understanding of conditions which are conducive to the "health" of our free, competitive enterprise system, and they fight to preserve it knowing that representative government depends upon a self-reliant citizenry with the opportunity and ability to make a living without regard to political affiliations.

People who live in communities of less than 25,000 population, have the power to maintain or change the political character of this country. Small-town and farm residents hold the clear voting majority, a fact which is reflected in the make-up of Congress.

The Grass Roots is a balance wheel in our republic and the rural press is part of it and gives it expression.

The people who live and work and own property in the rural areas of our country have traditionally been a stabilizing influence in our political and economic development. This influnece is doubly important now, as the trend toward suburban living brings millions of new people in contact with it. In the years from 1955 to 1975, if present trends continue, over 38 million people will move to the suburbs of our larger cities. These new dwellers on the fringes of rural America will find their lives fundamentally changed. While they work in the city, they will not be a part of it.

The growing numbers of people in suburban areas, who read their weekly newspapers as well as a daily, is resulting in an ever broadening sphere of influence for the country press. Names of local people and places and items of local interest, as well as national news, make the "grass roots" newspaper the leading contender for the interest of the people in the area which it srves.

The conflict between centralized big government and freedom of responsible private industries and individuals is becoming less and less an academic question. It is now being experienced not only by big corporations but by the smallest businesses that find themselves constantly more restricted in their freedom of operation, of the factory worker who sees an ever bigger bite of his pay check go for taxes. It is more logical and necessary than ever before that the editors should discuss public questions of political and economic importance at the national as well as local and state level. To prevent a gradual but disastrous acceptance of an ever greater concentration of authority in the hands of a centralized government there must be increasing watchfulness of the state's rights and responsibilities, and local institutions as well. The editors of the rural press are in a key position to do this job.

Reporting the news is a primary responsibility, but beyond this with an awareness of their position and influnece editors as never before are presenting thoughtful and effective comment on events involving the opportunities, liberties and well-being of all of us. The people will be able to make wise decisions on specific issues as they arise, only of they are kept continuously informed. The Industrial News Review encourages discussion of questions which it believes essential to the future of our country, the development of industry, the sound investment of savings and the steady employment of American workers, where it will do the most good - in America's 11,000 home town newspapers. —Industrial News Review, E. Hofer & Sons, Publishers, Portland, Oregon.

NEW DEAL TREND SEEN

The thrift which President Eisenhower advocated as late as November has vanished in a glittering program of government spending. While the President deseribes the current slump only as "sharper than usual for this time of year" and ventures the prediction that "March will commence to see the start of a pick-up," he is at the same time rushing headlong into a planned all-out, emergency, five-eleven alarm "anti-depression" program which rivals in splendor the gaudiest of New Deal proposals.

In the President's words, this includes "sharply stepped-up expenditures on the national highway building program . . . an increase in activity under the urban renewal program . . . a sharp increase in defense procurement contracts . . a systematic and comprehensive expansion and modernization of public works and buildings . . . and a 2 billion dollar program for postoffice buildings and equipment."

" In all these matters," Mr. Eisenhower said with deceptive calmness, "it is necessary not only to avoid taking the wrong steps but confidently to take the right ones. This we propose to do."

The words are reminiscent of the assurance that "We are coming back because we planned it that way. Don't let anybody tell you differently."

Those were the words of Franklin D. Roosevelt, spoken in October, 1935, after he had inaugurated the vast planned spending program of the New Deal. Those were the days when prosperity was just ahead.

In April, 1935, Mr. Roosevelt said, "Never since . . . 1933 have I felt to unmistakably the atmosphere of recovery."

A year and a half later he was encouraged "by clear evidences of returning prosperity." Through most of 1937, he continued to promise that things were looking up.

In October, 1937, things were so bad that, in the words of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, "panic overcame the business community." The following month Mr. Roosevelt told James A. Farley that businessmen were deliberately causing the depression.

There were 11,586,000 men and women out of work at the time of Roosevelt's election. The number rose to 12,646,000 in 1936, according to AFL figures, and subsided gently to 11,369,000 in 1939, virtually the same as it had been seven years earlier. Thereafter its decrease was due to business stimulated by the war.

How did the New Deal spending policies affect our recovery in relation to the recovery of other countries? In the United States, industrial production in 1936 was 12 per cent below what it had been in 1929. In France, another land of "planned" recovery, it was down 30 per cent.

In lands of unplanned recovery, there was a consistently better showing. Norway was up 15 per cent; Greece up 39 per cent; England up 6 per cent, Denmark up 25 per cent, and so on.

The path apparently plotted by the Eisenhower administration is distressingly similar to the WPAs, PWAs, and so on, by means of which our taxes were squandered during the 1930s, and our recovery delayed until a war solved the unemployment problem for Mr. Roosevelt.

Now is the time to study history.

Children of war dead and disabled veterans are entitled to financial educational assistance and the Legion Post at Saint Joe will coduct a survey to obtain names of those who are entitled to such benefits. For those whose parents died in or as a result of service, $110 per month for a period of four years' schooling is available for higher education. Benefits are also available through Indiana law for children of disabled veterans. Parents or others who know of children eligible for such aid are asked to call Harvey Hull, phone Saint Joe 2662, to receive further details on the program.

by Charles Ort

In the summer of 1910 the writer was a book agent in central Illinois. (Sounds like a pretty old fellow, doesn't he?) (Well, at least he's old!) I hadn't been in too many large cities up until that time (sort of a misplaced country boy) so when I saw all the bright lights I was really dazzled!

The outstanding sight to me on this particular trip through Decatur, Ill., was a big flashing light sign over a store. This sign was flashing the words "CHEAP CHARLIE". At that time this green lad had had a little store experience before that time thought that that sign was just the stuff in advertising. I suppose that if it had been any other name than Charlie it wouldn't have made such an impression.

The sequel to this story is that we have found out thru the years that "chean" merchandise is NOT EVER the best bargain. When we advertise a special on any of our lines we know that most all merchants will have something cheaper at a lower price.

Few things are more expensive than a girl who is free for the evening!

ONE IN CHRIST

Lesson for March 2, 1958

We hear the preacher saying things we feel sure he ought to say, but some of the time all we can do is credit him with good intentions. What he is actually saying, or what he means by what he says may seem dim to us. The words are clear enough, but what do they mean?

A high example of this is the expression "One in Christ." We have heard it in sermons, maybe we have read it somewhere. Oh, to be sure, it is in the New Testament, is it not? The words glimmer vaguely in our minds: "They in us . . . I in them . . . that they may become perfectly one." "We are to grow up in every way unto him who is the head, even Christ." No doubt a mystical soul would gather the meaning here at first sight. But the simple words seem to point to something beyond experience, something almost frightening to that great majority of us who are not mystics and not inclined that way.

Not In Loud Language

Is there some simple meaning for us plain people? Is the expression "One in Christ" anything but an emotional slogan? The great Church Universal, the Ecumenical Church, that greatest of all Protestant church movements today, expressing itself in the World Council and the conferences at Madras and Amsterdam and Lund and Evanston and Oberlin, has used often that phrase "One in Christ." The Oberlin Conference, made up of 279 representatives from 39 American Christian bodies, last September sent a message to the churches, wherein they spoke of unity; and the very first thing the message says about it is that it is a "unity in Christ who died for us." What exactly does this mean - "Unity in Christ"? It certainly does not mean that we Christians are made one by loud language about Christ. All churches sing hymns sounding much alike. Watch any large gathering of Christians from all denominations singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name." Most of them can sing it without the book. But singing all together, even in perfect tune, is not being "One in Christ." Even using and memorizing the same creed is not unity in Christ.

One In Loyalty

There are two simple, plain meanings of "One in Christ." The first is oneness in loyalty. This again is not a matter of words. Most of the married couples in America have "plighted their troth" in much the same words. Very impressive words, too: "For richer, for poorer, for better for worse . . . till death do us part." But anybody can plainly see that while all wives and husbands have promised to love and to cherish each other, they don't all do it. Married loyalty is a far deeper thing than saying fine eloquent words. Girls make this mistake time and time again: they give their heart to the young man with the smoothest line. You would think any girl would have better sense; but not all of them do. Loyalty in a public office means more than taking the oath of office, it is living up to it. Loyalty in a soldier is more than signing up for the recruiting officer; it is standing and not running away when the fighting is hot. Loyalty to Christ is more than signing up for him, it is standing by him and fighting even when the danger runs high. Wherever people are loyal to him, there is unity in him.

One In Likeness

Some one wrote a book called "The Galilean Accent." The idea of that book, it was said, was that all Christians can be told by their "Galilean accent," they sound like Jesus. Of course the writer meant something deeper than that. Christians who grow in the knowledge of Jesus come to think like him. They come to BE like him. There is a family resemblance among Christians everywhere. Just as people who belong to the same fraternity tend to resemble one another; just as employees of the same corporation sometimes come to form a type of their own, so even more, and far more, do those who belong to the brotherhood of Christ and do his work come to resemble one another because they are in truth his brothers. But it is not automatic! Only with the loyalty will there be much likeness.

Cottage Cheese Pinwheel Rolls

An aroma reminiscent of bread baking in the old-fashioned kitchen engulfs your home when you bake cottage cheese pinwheel rolls.

These rolls are unusually light and tender. And versatile cottage cheese is the all important ingredient that makes them so. A buttery filling, sweetened with brown sugar and made crunchy with chopped nuts, adds that extraordinary flavor.

COTTAGE CHEESE PINWHEEL ROLLS
1½ dozen rolls
375° preheated oven 20-25 minutes

- 1 cake compressed yeast (⅗ oz.)
- ¼ cup lukewarm water
- 2½ cups sifted flour
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅓ cup butter
- 1 12-oz. carton cream style cottage cheese
- 1 egg, beaten

FILLING:

- 3 tablespoons melted butter
- ¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- ½ teaspoon almond extract
- ⅔ cup chopped nuts

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Sift flour, sugar, and salt together into a mixing bowl. Cut in butter until the mixture resembles fine meal. Add cottage cheese, egg, and dissolved yeast and mix well. (If necessary add more flour to make a dough that can be handled.) Roll out on a lightly floured board to a 14 inch square. Combine all of the filling ingredients and spread on the dough. Roll up like a jelly roll and cut into 18 slices. Place on a greased baking sheet and let rise for 1½ hours or until doubled in bulk. Bake in a 375° preheated oven for 20-25 minutes.

How your neighbors live better . . . electrically

"No space is taken in the basement for a furnace or fuel storage," says Lloyd, a draftsman. "It makes my model railroad possible."

"Getting meals and cleaning up is so easy in my all-electric kitchen," says Mrs. Miller.

"We're living the modern way, with electricity, and getting more for our money," says Mr. Lloyd Miller. "Our electric heating system doesn't make any dirt, and my wife dusts only half as often. We're getting much more in convenience and comfort, yet our heating bills are no more. Over a 12-month period, our electric heat bill averages out to only $14.78 a month. Even our neighbors tell us we're getting a bargain."

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

Teachers Seek Stable Faculty Thru Pay Hike

Teachers in the Riverdale school system presented a suggested salary schedule for consideration by the Riverdale school board last Monday evening. The suggested schedule was brought forth at the regular monthly meeting of the board held at the high school in Saint Joe.

A committee of teachers prepared the suggested schedule and presented comments concerning the Riverdale pay scale and turn-over of teachers, stating:

"Of school corporations of Riverdale's size responding to an ISTA survey, Riverdale ranked 24.5 among 35 schools in its taxe rate levied to support schools. Of 58 schools that responded with information concerning their salary schedules, only 2 of the 58 had a narrower range from minimum to highest salary than did Riverdale. Since the consolidation, the high school faculty has suffered the loss of 17 teachers. The greatest seniority any high school teacher now has is 6 years; the average is much less than that. Such a rapid turn-over is not sound education."

Lowest salary on the new schedule would be for a teacher with 2 years of training and no experience, $3,000. The present salary for such a teacher is $2,625. A three-year-training teacher would start at $3,200 as compared to the present $2,825. Degree teachers would start at $4,000 whereas they now recive $3,650 in their first year of teaching. Teachers with masters degrees are listed with a starting salary of $4,250 under the new proposed schedule; now they receive $3,650 with no experience.

Further statements presented by the teachers, with Mr. Forrest Bevington acting as spokesman, were:

"Such a schedule represents, to some points of view, a very noticable increase. It should be borne in mind, however, that any salary schedule should be based upon comparative figures that will be paid this year, rather than those that were paid by other corporations last year. At a recent meeting of superintendents and teachers' salary groups, it was stated that an increase of 5 per cent was expected to be paid by almost all corporations this year. During the past year, there has been a 6.3 per cent increase in the cost of living. These two figures together, 11.3 per cent, would serve only to maintain but not improve Riverdale's position in comparison to other schools who will be competing for the teacher supply. If Riverdale is to become more attractive to teachers, an advance beyond this general increase must be made, and the above salary schedule does that. In particular, it would make increases of between 15 and 20 per cent in starting salary, and it would permit teachers to reach maximum salary levels for their training more quickly.

"Such 'raises' may seem extreme, but the faculty turnover has also been extreme. The establishment of a stable, career faculty is necessary before the children of the community can receive the education they deserve. We are in competition with other schools for competent faculty members. If we permit ourselves to believe that we cannot compete, we must take the leavings. The children deserve better than leavings."

No action on the proposed schedule was taken by the board, holding it for further study and consideration.

Businessmen To Promote Area Development

Aroused interest in the development of the Saint Joe business community prompted a hastily-called meeting Tuesday evening with area development officials of the Indiana-Michigan Electric Company resulting in plans for a meeting on Friday of this week.

Most of Saint Joe's businesses were represented at the meeting and two of the town board were present with the town clerk. Mr. William Nimmo gave a brief background of the possibilities of area development and a representative from the Fort Wayne office of Indiana-Michigan gave further information on the subject.

The group appointed Ted Haberkorn temporary chairman. He in turn appointed a nominating committee which will present a slate of officers Friday night for election. The nominating group includes Babe Coburn, chairman, Mose Yeiser and Clifford Billow.

Friday's meeting will be held at the fire hall at 7:30 p.m. A community-wide meeting is tentatively planned for a later date at which time progress of the group of business men can be reported and an exhibit presented showing effects of new industry on a community.

Fremont Wins Sectional

Fremont defeated Riverdole's Comets Saturday afternoon to enter the sectional finals at Churubusco, then went on to win the sectional and the opportunity to represent the local sectional area at Fort Wayne's regionals next Saturday. Fremont defeated Butler Saturday night for the championship.

In Saturday afternoon's first game Riverdale couldn't overcome the Fremont height advantage and suffered their third defeat of the year at the hands of the Eagles. Fremont led 4-0 before the Comets scored their first fielder after 2 minutes and 45 seconds of the opening quarter. The Eagles led at the quarter 14-5.

Riverdale closed the gap in the second period, trailing by 8 at the 3:40 mark with the score 22-14 against them. The Eagles extended their lead again, however, and the Comets were behind 27-16 at the half.

Fremont maintained a comfortable lead through the third quarter and went out in front at the end of the quarter by 42-28.

The Comets seemed on the verge of making serious threats to the Fremont lead on occasion in the final quarter. But just as it appeared Riverdale hopes might be raised, as they cut the Eagle lead to 11 or 12 points, the Eagles would regain their big lead.

Fremont led at 47-32 with 3:21 to go in the game. The final score was Fremont 58, Riverdale 41.

Suffers Cuts As Door Glass Gives Way

Gene "Casey" Casebere suffered a severely cut right hand and cuts on the face last Thursday morning when he pushed through the glass in a door at his business establishment.

The accident occurred at Casey's Mobil Service as the owner entered the station. He had been outside and was reentering in the usual manner, pushing on the wood portion of the door. But his aim was a little off, his hand missed the door frame and pushed on the glass, and Mr. Casebere went right on through. There was little to laugh about, however, as the glass cut his hand badly. Heavy bandages still cover the hand wounds.

The Indiana Farm Bureau Womens Conference met at the Murat Temple in Indianapolis on February 25 and 26. 21 ladies from DeKalb County were in attendance traveling by chartered bus. Highlights of the conference were the welcome by Gov. Handley and addresses by the state women's director, Mrs. Guy Gross of Churubusco, former district number 2 director; the state Farm Bureau president, George Doup; vice president Glenn Sample; journalist Miss Abbie Van Buren of San Francisco; and Harold Jordan, state co-op manager. A travelogue of Ceylon was given by R. P. Machett of Covington, Ky. Mrs. Leonard Jarrett of the Tri-Township club represented the local area.

S.F.C. Robert W. Hart and wife and son visited for a week recently at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hart of Spencerville. Sgt. Hart has been stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., for the past 2 years and is now enroute to Germany for a second 3-year tour of duty. He is with the Mortar Btry. of the 3rd Inf. Div. and the entire division is leaving for Germany in rotation. They are embarking from Savannah, Ga. rather than from New York. On Saturday other members of the Hart family gathered at the home for a farewell dinner. Present were O.E. Hart, and wife and grandson of Flat Rock, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hart of Detroit and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Newhard and daughter, Judy, of New Haven. Sgt. Hart leaves Savannah on Saturday, March 8, which happens to be Billy Hart's 9th birthday and his second trip overseas. He arrived in Bremerhaven, Germany, on his birthday 5 years ago.

The next regular meeting of the Saint Joe Valley Conservation Club will be held Thursday, March 13, at the Saint Joe Fire Hall. Members and friends are urged to be present and take part in the already lengthy discussion on area requirements for club house and banquet facilities.

The 57th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Yeiser and the 34th of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Yeiser were observed at the home of L. W. Yeiser on Sunday. The following families participated in a carry-in dinner at noon; Mrs. Russell Kain; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Orr and four children; Mr. and Mrs. James Storule and son; Mr. and Mrs. Morris Yeiser and daughter, all of Fort Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Yeiser, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Yeiser and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Yeiser and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton A. Baker and daughter, all of Saint Joe.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Baker of Saint Joe are the proud parents of a 5 lb. 14½ oz. daughter born Sunday morning, March 2, at 9:45 a.m. at the Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett. The new arrival has been named Cynthia Ann. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. Baker and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clauser of Saint Joe.

With the quarantine on dogs in effect in the community, there is a notable absence of the canine population which formerly wandered the streets of Saint Joe. Cooperation by dogs owners has been excellent, according to Mrs. Roy Chapman who has been named chairman of the anti-rabies campaign for this town. Mrs. Chapman extends her thanks to all who have cooperated in the past few weeks and hopes that continued cooperation will be forthcoming.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Yeiser will leave Sunday for a 10-day visit with their daughter and family at Covington, Tennessee.

Vance Hartke, mayor of Evansville, will be the principal speaker at the Democratic dinner meeting to be held Wednesday, March 12, at the Waterloo town hall. Dinner will be served starting at 6:30 p.m. Mr. Hartke has announced his candidacy for United States Senator and has already outlined his campaign for the entire state. He is the father of five children and has been active in Deocratic politics all his life. He is the youngest man ever to be elected mayor in his home town. County chairman Cleve Grube will introduce candidates who have filed for various offices in the county. Pat Purdy, county prosecutor, will preside as toastmaster. Jim Koons, 4th district chairman, and Mrs. Dorothy Huffman, vice chairman, will also be present as well as county chairmen from adjoining counties. A large turn-out of leading Democratic party leaders is expected to be present.

While attending the Farm Bureau Women's Convention, Mrs. Leonard Jarrett had the opportunity to visit the state's largest school for retarded children. The children are able to develop their skills with such equipment as machine and woodworking shops, shoe repair shop, dry cleaning establishment, laundry, beauty parlor and many others. 400 children of junior high and high school age are enrolled for the present term.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Say, Casey really did get himself cut up going through that glass door. He had something like 9 stitches for his cut finger, 11 for the cut on his hand and 13 for the cut on his face. They were removed this week and he is evidently coming along o.k.

Last week end, spring was getting a boost from a few of the girls hereabouts. Three of them were strolling about in bermudas (or are they jamaicas) making us in coats feel sorta funny. Mary Vinson, Becky Hubbard and Delores Griggs certainly did their part to make people think spring is just around the corner.

We've got a new bit of nonsense starting this week in the News. With the boys and girls active in 4-H work, it appeared that "Fletcher the 4-H'er" would be a good accompaniment to the reports that are published in the paper. So, with this week you can laugh at or with "Fletcher the 4-H-er" as he faces the problems of his 4-H work.

With the interest of the businessmen in promoting new business and industry in our town revolving into a re-activating of the Booster Club. things are working out pretty good. With spring just around the corner (there we go again) such civic action seems quite appropriate. Saint Joe'ers will be invited to participate in the program which will seek to improve our town in all phases of civic matters. So, here we go - let's pitch in and make it real good.

Quarantine Now Affects Two Counties

With a 120-day quarantine now in effect in DeKalb and Steuben counties due to a report of several rabid dogs in the area, the DeKalb County commissioners and the DeKalb County sheriff arranged to have dog found facilities in Auburn and Garrett. The facilities are being provided by Dr. W. V. Hornbacker of Auburn and Dr. Arthur E. Hall of Garrett.

The 120-day quarantine on dogs was ordered March 5 by the state veterinarian's office in the State Board of Health on recommendation of Dr. E. E. Rogers, DeKalb County health officer. Dr. Rogers said all dogs six months or older must be vaccinated for rabies under quarantine laws or they will be destroyed. He also pointed out that during the quarantine, dogs must be kept on leash or be immediately attended by the owner.

Peace officers will round up stray dogs and they will be taken to the pounds. A dog may be claimed by the owner, Dr. Rogers said, within three days if expenses for care and feeding of the dog are paid, anti-rabies shots are given the dog and taxes due are paid.

Dogs brought to the pound in Auburn and Garrett will be disposed of after the waiting period at county expense. Any person may notify peace officers of stray dogs or they may deliver them to the pounds. The county will provide a truck for picking up dogs, confined or on leash in rural areas. The pick-ups will be made 8 a.m. to 12 noon Fridays and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays. Persons are asked to call Auburn 49 or 41 for pick-ups.

PTA To Hear Talk On Mental Health

The Riverdale P.T.A. will hold its March meeting next Tuesday evening, February 18, at the high school gym in Saint Joe. Meeting time is 7:30 p.m.

The program will include a talk by a representative of the Fort Wayne State School on the subject of mental health. The program is a timely one, as attention has been focused in the past few years on the general lack of public knowledge concerning mental health and the consequent harmful and negligent attitude on the part of the general public toward those who may be suffering from a mental illness. Education in mental health aims at instilling in people's minds the fact that a person can be mentally ill as well as physically ill and can be cured of his mental illness as he can be cured of his physical illness, in many cases.

A report of the financial outcome of the ham supper and carvinal will be given at the meeting. The treasurer, Mrs. Max Doub, is currently taking care of the financial obligations incurred by the P.T.A fund-raising project last month.

With election of officers to be held at the April meeting, a nominating committee will be appointed and announced Tuesday night.

Entertainment will be presented by the 6th and 8th grades.

Local News

About 1200 fewer unemployment insurance claims were received by the Indiana Employment Security Division last week. 14 of the division's 30 offices reported decreases in claims from newly unemployed persons. New claims last week numbered 12,288, compared to 15,715 the week before.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Gordin of South Solon, O., formerly of Saint Joe, are announcing the engagement and forthcoming May 30 marriage of their daughter, Barbara, to Jack W. Cottrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Major Cottrell of Stamping Ground, Ky. Miss Gordin is a graduate of Northeastern High School and is now attending The Cincinnati Bible Seminary and is employed at the Cincinnati branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland. Mr. Cotrell graduated from Stamping Ground High School and is a Junior at the Cincinnati Bible Seminary. He is minister of the Florence, Indiana, Christian Church and employed at the John Shillito Company.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kurtz and Marla and Jill of New Haven were Sunday, March 2, guests of the Merle Coburn family.

Calvin E. Easterday has filed with County Clerk Walter Manon his declaration to run for sheriff of DeKalb County on the Democratic ticket at the May 6 primary. Mr. Easterday is a native of Butler, having attended school there and completed his education and received his diploma while in the Army during World War 2. While in the Army he served with the infantry in the Phillipines. He is married and the father of two sons, Roger, 6, and Michael, 8. He is employed as manager of the Roberts Truck Rental Co. of Fort Wayne. He has had considerable police experience as a member of the Butler Police Department. He is a member of the Police League of Indiana. Mrs. Easterday will be remembered as the former Ruby Collins, daughter of the late Charles Collins and Mrs. Effie Collins.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Jarrett and son, Robert, were Sunday dinner guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Carnahan of near Waterloo.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gee and son, DuWayne and Mrs. Foster Gee called on Walter Carper of north of Saint Joe last Sunday afternoon.

The DeKalb County Roadside Council will hold its next regular meeting in the court house assembly room on Monday, March 17, at 8 p.m.

Delores Davis and Bob Wilder gave reports on Girls State and Boys State at the Lions Club meeting Monday evening. Larry Emenhiser was a guest at the meeting as were four Lions Club members from Corunna. The menu for the evening included fried oysters ala Ridgway.

WORKERS NOT SHIRKERS 4-H CLUB

The third meeting of the Workers Not Shirkers 4-H Club was held March 10 in the home economics room of Riverdale High School.

The president called the meeting to order. There were 14 members present. Devotions were given by Hazel Tustin. The group sang four songs after which Carol Baker gave a demonstration on "How to measure ingredients."

Old and new business was discussed. There will be an officers training meeting on March 26 at Auburn in the court house.

Judging was then held on parkerhouse rolls baked by Carol Baker and on a dress made by Carol Flesher.

The meeting then adjourned.

The next meeting will be held on March 24.

Booster Club Re-Activated; To Meet Friday

With interest displayed by Saint Joe businessmen, town officials and other citizens who attended a meeting last Friday evening, it was decided to organize the group under the former banner of "The Booster Club." That group was instrumental several years ago in getting the water system approved for the town of Saint Joe.

Officers were elected by the group as follows:

Frank Sechler, president.

Ted Haberkorn, secretary - treasurer.

Warren Clauser, Orville Coburn and Maurice Kline, directors.

The executive committee was given the responsibility of drawing up a constitution and by-laws and presenting recommendations for dues, meeting dates, etc., at the next meeting on Friday of this week.

The committee held a meeting on Tuesday of this week and discussed various projects for club activity in addition to the primary project of business and industry expansion. Friday night's meeting will be held at the fire hall at 7:30 p. m. Anyone interested in Saint Joe civic improvement is invited to attend.

More Pay, Better School

A committee of teachers from the Riverdale schools, concerned with the problem of teachers' pay, has thrown a constructive challenge straight at Riverdale school patrons, more directly at the Riverdale school board. The challenge is in the form of the suggested new salary schedule for teachers employed in the Riverdale School Corporation. Though the school board is more directly involved in this matter, patrons of the Riverdale School Corporation are in a position to make their wishes known as to whether or not they are sincere in the generally recognized opinion that "we want better education for our children."

It will seem strange to make the following statement, but - the teachers are not asking for a raise!

Before there is too much consternation over that statement, let us realize that asking for a raise usually refers to the particular people who are employed by a company or a corporation; they ask for money for, in a sense, specific people. The proposed salary schedule for the Riverdale faculty does not ask for a raise for the teachers now employed, though they would benefit pocketbook-wise from the new schedule if it should be adopted. It seeks to establish a pay scale for whomever may be employed in the future in the local school. In a sense, our teachers may be asking themselves out of a job, for there may be others seeking a position on our faculty who may be more qualified and more suitable and who would be attracted by a higher wage scale. We cannot criticize teachers for looking out for their own interests in seeking to establish a wage scale that recognizes the value of the teacher in our society. And rather than think of them as just looking for more money, let us give them credit for seeking to establish a pay scale which would benefit our students, therefore our community, therefore our nation, possibly at the expense of some of the individual teachers now employed here.

The first worry is money, Right now we are thinking in terms of "new school." The amount of money involved in a new school is great, and the prospects of having complete new school facilities in the next few years revolves on the question of money. While we are thinking about the new building of the future, should we not also be thinking of the faculty of the future, indeed, of the faculty of the present?

Take a look at the salary schedule as it appears herewith. Compare the proposed with the present. Take a good look at what we are paying those who are responsible for leading the education of our youth in this community. For the time which teachers have taken to earn degrees, we cannot blame them too much if they leave Riverdale for another location where the pay is higher. And they ARE leaving Riverdale for other schools. We have been fortunate to have obtained good faculty members to work with good principals in the past two years. But that complexion of goodness is going to change this coming fall and it will continue to change with succeeding falls if our community does not awaken to the situation and become aware that you cannot ask people to work for low wages while at the same time asking them to work continuously and diligently, keep interested in their job and the community in which they work and stay year after year without appreciable increase in reward. The list of teachers who are probably leaving for other climes at the conclusion of the present school year includes the names of some whom we shouldn't allow to leave! Their value has been felt and recognized by other teachers and the principals.

Most readers of this paper who are working as head of the household, raising a family, earn as much and probably more than most of the teachers who now are employed in the local schools. Those same people have not received as much education as have the teachers, have not earned at least a bachelor's degree in college. Yet we ask those in the teaching profession to work the four years it takes for their degree and assume the responsibility of teaching the youth of our community for as much pay or less pay than that received by those who have not put forth the effort and the money which it takes to obain higher education. Let us not poohpooh college education by denying that higher pay for teachers is a just reward.

The teachers of Riverdale have done a service by presenting to the community their suggestions for a new salary schedule. Some of them would benefit by such a schedule, to be sure, and in the long run, those who receive the higher pay would be earning it and would be worth it. In time having a better pay schedule than average would appear to bring about the situation wherein the school board could choose from among applicants rather than face the problem of "where can we find a teacher."

The committee of teachers who made up the proposed schedule mentioned "career" teachers, that is, those teachers whose ability is exceptional and whose ambitions keep them in the teaching profession. We have had such prospects of "career" teachers in our school before and have lost them. We now have such prospects in the Riverdale system but are about to lose them also, partly because their abilities are recognized elsewhere and elsewhere someone is ready to present a greater reward. We cannot begrudge a man or woman his or her desire to profit; that is everyone's inherent ambition. If we recognize this fact, we must then act accordingly. In this situation the action called for is the adoption of the pay schedule as presented by the teachers.

The matter is immediate and urgent. Because of the urgency, The News offers the accompanying coupon for use by its readers. If you are concerned about the quality and stability of the faculty in the Riverdale school, we urge you to send the coupon with your signature to the school board.

Anything of value must be paid for.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

What if you had read this recently in your newspaper:

"Beginning March 1, 1958, the production of vaccine for diphtheria, pertussis, poliomyelitis, tetanus, smallpox and all other vaccines will be discontinued.

"Manufacturers have agreed to stop production of all such materials, since public acceptance does not warrant further production.

"Dr. John D. Anonymous, a general practitioner for more than 50 years, when questioned concerning the consequences of such action, pointed out that during his years of medical practice, he had 'witnessed children dying an agonizing, choking death as a result of diphtheria. I have seen others left blind and horribly disfigured by smallpox.

" 'While I will not live to see these things recur in the future, today's physicians must prepare themselves to deal wth the ravages of these diseases, plus those of polio, tetanus and whooping cough . . . for once the immunizing agents have been used up, and the immunity of individuals is gone, these diseases will return to plague us.'

"There are, at present, sufficient quantities of these vaccines to immunize most residents of Indiana against the diseases mentioned. However, health officials pointed out that since some of the vaccines are administered in several doses, there will not be sufficient time to complete the series before the March 1 deadline. Physicians have agreed not to initiate a series which cannot be completed before that time.

"Those who have already received initial injections of a given vaccine will, therefore, be given priority by family physicians.

"Those who desire the protection afforded by vaccines for themselves, or their children, have just one month in which to obtain the materials - or, until such time as the vaccine supply is exhausted.

"Physicians have said they will cooperate by holding offices open extra hours, in an effort to serve as many patients as possible before the March 1 deadline."

Imaginary - of course! But consider the possibilities of such a situation. Recall, if you will, the spring of 1955 when the Salk vaccine for polio was first offered to the public.

Due to the newness of the product, manufacturers had no backlog of the vaccine, and supply could not keep pace with growing demands.

There were many complaints registered, because the vaccine was not readily available. Later, when supply had reached a point more in keeping with demands, interest in obtaining the vaccine declined.

Surveys in a number of selected Indiana communities now indicate that many individuals, most of them children, who have received the first two shots of the vaccine, have not as yet received the third innoculation.

Studies on the effectiveness of the polio vaccine have proved conclusively that complete protection against the paralytic effects of the disease can only be achieved if all three shots are taken.

In this connection, there is a realistic deadline to be met. With polio season just a few short months away, immediate action should be taken by those who have received the first two injections of the polio vaccine.

The disease polio is no respector of age or station in life - it strikes persons of any age and from all walks of life.

Statistically, the most susceptible individuals are those ranging in age from six months to 19 years. However, all persons, particularly those 40 years of age and younger, as well as pregnant women, are urged to avail themselves of the vaccine.

How about the immunization status of your family? Have you, and your children been immunized against polio, diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis and smallpox? Don't forget, boosters of some vaccines are required periodically, and in the case of smallpox, individuals should be re-vaccinated every three years throughout life.

Rocket trips into outer space may be nearer than we think - but why not take advantage of medical discoveries of yesterday and today so that we will be better prepared for tomorrow?

—The Monthly Bulletin, Indiana State Board of Health, February 1958.

TO: The Riverdale School Board
Saint Joe, Indiana

Gentlemen:

I have examined the proposed teachers' salary schedule and wish to give my support to its adoption. I fully recognize that the cost of the increase must be carried through our local taxation program, but also recognize that improved education calls for such an increase. I am concerned about our Riverdale school teaching standards and think that the new schedule would help to stabilize the faculty in addition to improving it and would reap benefits not only for our youth who attend the school but for the community as a whole.

Sincerely,

(Signed) .....

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible Material: Mark 5, 18-20; Luke 8:26-39; 10:1-2; Acts 5:42; I Thessalonians 1:6-10.

Devotional Reading: Colossians 1:24-29.

GOING CHURCH

Lesson for March 16, 1958

The common expression, "a going church," can mean a number of different things. Sometimes it means no more than a church the doors of which are seen to be open once in a while, even if only every other Sunday. Sometimes it means a rapidly growing church, one with a big Sunday school and not enough room to park. Sometimes it means a church with progressive methods and unusual ideas, or a church that takes the lead in its denomination.

"Go Home To Your Friends"

There is a better meaning of "going church" than any of these. It is an even better meaning than "generous." If the budget of a church runs up over $100,000 annually, if the people there give to missions more money than any other congregation in the entire state, everybody who knows about it will call it a going church. But there is something better than that. A church really gets going when its members begin to do that simple thing which Jesus told the man to do who had been bedeviled so long: "Go home to your friends, and tell them how much the Lord has done for you." A going church is one whose members talk to other people in their homes and all around the community —talk to them about Christ.

Winning the Family

A going church again is one where, as the book of Acts puts it, "teaching and preaching" Jesus is going on all the time. The Greek word for "preaching" here does not mean standing in a pulpit and talking in a loud voice. It means simply telling the story, letting people know. People were not invading one another's homes, of course. Each home became its own center of preaching and teaching.

Whether a church practices infant baptism, or whether they use a dedication service, all churches agree, in theory, that parents ought to do whatever they can, through the years, to introduce their child- is one that helps its young parents to do this. Some parents ren to Christ. A going church will tell you they dont want to influence their children, so they wont say a word about religion to them but wait and let the boys and girls think for themselves. Thats a bit silly, isn't it? You teach your child what is proper food and how to eat it. You help them with their arithmetic, you talk to them about everything you know about. Why do you keep silent about the most important Person in the world? If a child never hears the name "Jesus" outside a church, he's likely to conclude that Jesus doesn't mean much to his parents . . . and he may never become a Christian at all.

Person By Person

A going church furthermore is not only telling what Jesus has done "person to person" but also person BY person. Paul has been called the greatest press agent who ever lived. By this it is meant that he was the most enthusiastic single "salesman" the Christian faith has ever known. Paul could talk with large crowds, and often did. But when he stayed in a city for any length of time, we know he took time for individuals. "You will remember," he says to the Thessalonians, "how we dealt with each one of you personally, like a father with his own children." (I Thess. 2:11, Phillips translation.) A going church may have evangelistic meetings, and evangelistic sermons. But if it takes Saint Paul for a guide, no church will imagine that this is all there is to evangelism. Distributing the same tract to everybody within range of the church is still not the thing. For people are different. "Like a father with his own children," Paul said. A father knows that no two of his children are alike, and what will work with one won't work with another. The Gospel is always the same; but the ways of telling the Gospel story so as to persuade people by it, are as varied as the personalities of men.

How About a Fancy Flavored Milk Drink?

Is chocolate milk the only kind of flavored milk you've ever tried? If so, you're missing an extra refreshing treat. There's no better time than the present to try new flavors in milk. Cool drinks are the fashion right now you know.

Delight your youngsters with flavored milks served with a chewy luncheon sandwich, or for a between meal pick-up. Dad will rave about the combination of fresh flavored milk and cookies as a dessert or late evening TV snack.

Use your imagination in concocting a variety of these beverages. Try apricot puree, citrus juices, strawberries or pineapple flavors in combination with milk. There's no limit to the many flavors that can mingle merrily with that fresh milk flavor.

FROSTED APRICOT MILK
4 servings
2½ cups well chilled milk
⅓ cup sweetened pureed apricots
5 scoops vanilla ice cream
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Mix ⅓ cup of milk, pureed apricots, lemon juice, and one scoop ice cream together and beat until well blended. Add remaining milk and mix well. Pour into tall glasses and add a scoop of ice cream to each.

MOCHA FROST
4 servings
2 tablespoons cocoa
2 tablespoons sugar
⅓ cup hot water
1 tablespoon instant powdered coffee
3 cups chilled milk
1 pint vanilla ice cream

Mix cocoa and sugar. Add hot water and boil for 3 minutes. Stir in the powdered coffee and chill thoroughly. Add milk and ice cream and shake or beat until well blended and frothy. Pour into tall glasses and garnish with whipped cream if desired.

STRAWBERRY CRUSH
4 servings
1 cup sweetened fresh crushed berries or frozen berries, thawed
4 cups milk

Combine berries with milk and mix well. Top with ice cream if desired. Serve immediately.

PINEAPPLE MINT REFRESHER
4 servings
¼ cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon lemon juice
Dash salt
Peppermint extract
1½ cups cold milk
1½ cups cold pineapple juice

Whip cream; add sugar, salt, and lemon juice. Fold in cold milk and cold pineapple juice which have been mixed. Add peppermint extract to taste. Serve at once with mint leaves for a garnish.

HAWAIIAN MILK SHAKE
4 servings
1 cup chilled pineapple juice
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 teaspoon lemon juice
3 tablespoons sugar
½ cup chopped ice
2 cups chilled milk

Mix fruit juices and sugar and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Add ice, then milk. Shake vigorously or beat until well blended and frothy. Strain into tall glasses and garnish with pineapple wedges, orange slices, and cherries.

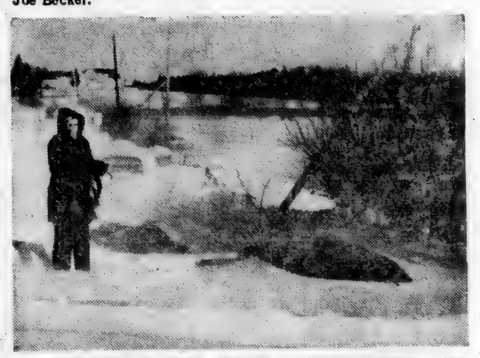
He had a record of 19 wins and seven losses with 223 strikeouts and an earned run average of 3.04. Watching the young hurler in action are, left to right: Don Bessent, Roger Craig, Ralph Mauriello, Johnny Podres and Pitching Coach Joe Becker.

MRS. FDR HONORED BY LAWYERS – Chicago, Ill. – Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt receives the Award of Merit of the Decalogue, Society of Lawyers, from Judge Harry M. Fisher, second from right. Mrs. Roosevelt was honored for her distinguished contributions to universal justice and the fellowship of all mankind.

SURPRISE WEDDING – Las Vegas, Nev. – Television singing star Gisele MacKenzie climaxed a six-year romance by marrying her personal manager, Bob Shuttleworth, in a ceremony at Las Vegas.



SPEAKING OF SNOW DRIFTS! – Ontario, Canada – City sissies take note – the white fluff that skiers dreams are made of is proving to be a nightmare to residents of Ontario, Canada. Coming in very large doses, in some places fourteen-foot drifts, the heavy snow falls have snowed in villages and towns completely isolating the inhabitants. At Lake Scugog, car-high drifts have almost completely buried vehicles. One car-owner points to his buried auto completely covered except for the roof.

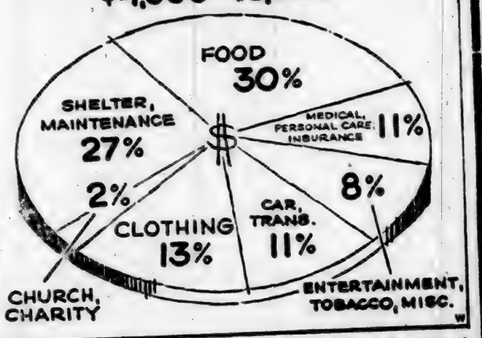
SPENDING for AVERAGE INCOME

$4,000-$5,000



Compare your spending with that of those earning the average income, $4,000-$5,000 (after taxes). They're overspending 2%.

The American family is central figure in the mystery of our age—the case of the disappearing dollar. Where it goes, few seem to know.

Consequently, about half of us are spending more than we earn. Of those with an income, after taxes, of between $2,000 and $6,000, more are in debt than are saving. The average deficit ranges from 12 per cent in the $2,000-$3,000 group to 4 per cent in the $3,000-$4,000 range, and 2 per cent in the $4,000-$6,000 bracket.

These figures, tabulated in the February Ladies' Home Journal, are based on an article from W. M. Kiplinger's magazine, Changing Times, and from surveys by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Census Bureau, Department of Agriculture, and private researchers.

In the $2,000-$3,000 group, 27 per cent can save an average of $260. Fifty-six per cent are in debt an average of $686, but a large number, 17 per cent, break even. At the other end of the scale, where income is over $10,000, none break even. But 74 per cent save, 26 per cent owe. In the "average" income group, $4,000-$5,000, 52 per cent save, 45 per cent are in debt, 3 per cent break even.

However, the article warns, savings and deficit figures can be misleading. For instance, a planned withdrawal of savings will show up as overspending. Or any big buying on installments in a year will show up in red ink, but the next year, as it is paid off, you'll be in the black.

But where does the money go? In every income group, the largest percentage of income goes for food and housing. But as the income increases, the percentage decreases. The percentage of income used for such items as recreation and personal care stays fairly constant as income increases. The share for items such as medical care falls as income goes up. Other items decrease; for instance, the more you make, the more you give away.

One conclusion: "Every income group has its savers; good income helps, but so does good management."

Local News

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gee and son, DuWayne of Jewell, O., Mr. and Mrs. Archie Grimes and two children of Defiance and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cook of Fort Wayne were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gee. The dinner was to celebrate the birthdays of Walter Gee and Archie Grimes.

The secretary of the DeKalb County Farmeers Mutual Fire Insurance Co., Lester Boger, has announced that the company has added wind and hail coverage to policies of members desiring those coverages in the company. At the recent meeting, it was voted to extend the coverages to include wind and hail. Previously, wind and hail coverages were written through the Indiana Farmers Mutual Insurance Co. at Indianapolis.

The Third Annual DeKalb County Sunday School Convention recently closed one of its most successful and best-attended programs with a business session which elected two new members to the executive board for this year. Rev. Loyal Ringenberg, formerly of Butler and now a teacher in the Riverdale Elementary School, now residing in Grabill, will again head the association as president. Mr. David Wagner of R3, Auburn, was elected vice president. Mr. Lewis Walter of R1, Auburn, will serve as secretary and Mr. Robert Burley of Butler, a new member to the board, is treasurer. Rev. J. Clair Peters of Butler was elected member at large and will serve with Mr. A. J. Smith of Waterloo and Mr. Walter Lung of Garrett in that capacity.

The Indiana State Highway Department has announced that bids will be accepted on March 25 for major road and bridge construction and repair projects including 3.9 miles of US27 between the north city limits of Auburn and the south town limits of Waterloo. Total costs of all the projects is estimated at $16 million. Work on all of them will be completed this spring and summer. A spokesman for the highway department said specifications for US27 between Auburn and Waterloo do not include dual lanes. The pavement will be widened from the present 22 feet to 24 feet to fulfill federal road aid requirements.

Radio station WOWO, Fort Wayne, as the CONELRAD Skywave Key Station in this area, will now broadcast all CONELRAD Emergency Weather Warnings in cooperation with the United States Air Force. These bulletins are a matter of public concern since they warn communities and areas of impending hurricanes, tornadoes, floods and other acts of nature which threaten life and property. The authority for these weather alerts is the U.S. Weather Bureau.

The 90th Annual Convention of the Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias of Indiana will be held in Indianapolis March 28 and 29. The convention will be held at the Hotel Severin. The annual banquet will be held Friday night, March 28, with election of officers slated for Saturday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carpenter were Sunday afternoon visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hull.

Coburntown Church Plans For Revival

A pre-Easter Revival is scheduled at the Coburn Corners Church of Christ beginning Sunday evening, March 23, and continuing through Friday evening, April 4. Services will be held nightly except Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Brother Duke Jones, nationally known evangelist from Newnan, Georgia, will present the Saving Gospel nightly and Bro. H. E. Weaver, evangelist for the Appalachian Evangelizing Association, will be in charge of the music. Bro. Weaver now serves the Leatherwood Christian Church near Bedford, Ind. Special numbers will be presented each evening.

Prior to each meeting there will be a service for young people of school age at 7:00 p.m. This service will feature choruses, object and flannel group lessons.

Paul Hill, minister of the local church, extends a personal and cordial invitation to the public to attend. Come as you are - Christ will do the rest.

'State' Review Given At PTA

Miss Delores Davis and Mr. Robert Wilder presented a review of their activities last June when each represented Riverdale High School at Girls' State and Boys' State, respectively, held on the Indiana University campus at Bloomington. Representatives from the local school's junior class are sent each year to the citizenship training conferences which give young people by actual experience a knowledge of the workings of representative government. The review was given at the Riverdale P. T.A. meeting Tuesday evening at the high school.

A financial report of the ham supper and carnival held in February revealed a net profit of approximately $850. An exact figure could not be given with one bill yet to be paid.

The 6th grade entertained with students now learning to play musical instruments giving a short "concert." The 8th grade presented a short skit entitled, "The Interview."

Election of officers will be held at the April meeting. A nominating committee was appointed to present a slate of officers at the next meeting. The committee includes: Mr. and Mrs. Lehr Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Pugsley and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Helbert.

April's meeting will feature a discussion on mental health by a representative of the Fort Wayne State School. This program was originally announced for the March meeting, but a last-minute change in program was necessary.

Spelling Contest Runs April 2-3

The DeKalb County spelling contest will be held this year on April 2 and 3 and the representative of the local area in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette spelling contest will be selected April 3 following county contests. Students in the Riverdale schools have been preparing for the contests. A few eliminations are to be held in the upper grades before the complete list of competing students will be available. However, those who have reached the top in their grades thus far were revealed this week. Competing in an elimination contest at Riverdale for the honor of representing the school at Auburn next month are Lee Impton from the 5th grade and Michael Haberkorn from the 6th grade. These two boys will compete with a representative of the 7th grade and of the 8th grade sometime before the March 25 deadline for the honor of representing Riverdale in the Journal-Gazette contest.

3rd grade—Claudia Stromberk; alternate, Kathryn Schmucker.

4th grade — Nicholas Carr; alternate, Linda Mason.

5th grade — Sharon Boylen; alternate, Karen Fish.

6th grade — Steven Myers; alternate, Allen Amstutz.

Schools competing in the contests in addition to Riverdale are Tamarack in Troy Township; Waterloo - Grant; Ashley; Fairfield Center; Corunna; East Richland; West Richland; Zion Lutheran in Fairfield Township; Garrett and Auburn. Butler Metropolitan Schools are not entered.

The contests will be held in the auditorium of the new Auburn Junior High School. overflow crowds at previous contests necessitated the move to the new location. Contests for grades 3, 5. 7 and 8 will be held Wednesday, April 2. Grades 4 and 6 will compete April 3, same date as for Journal-Gazette eliminations.

All teachers in competing schools must certify an entry and an alternate in each grade by March 25. Ribons will be awarded to the first three place winners in each grade. Students are not permitted to compete in both county and Journal-Gazette contests.

Board Votes $250 Teacher Pay Hike

At a special session held Monday evening at the Riverdale High School building in Saint Joe, the Riverdale School Board voted to grant a $250 increase in the present teacher salary schedule for the coming 1958-59 school year. The action was taken with 5 of the 7-man board present. Also present at the meeting were county superintendent Roger Hess, Riverdale principals Joe Smith and Howard Hill and school secretary Joan Morr.

The increase granted by the board raises the basic salary for a degree teacher to $3900, compared to the present $3650. Teachers with masters degrees also begin at $3900 under the new salary schedule. A proposed salary schedule presented by the teachers in the Riverdale schools had asked for a basic salary of $4000 for those having their bachelor degrees. The proposed schedule also sought to bring teachers to maximum salaries in shorter time for those with degrees. Teachers with 2 and 3 years of training would have reached their maximum in 12 years as compared with the present 11 years.

Under the proposed schedule a teacher with a bachelor degree would have reached a maximum of $4800 after 16 years of teaching. The present schedule gives them a maximum of $4300 after 15 years of teaching. With the new raise a bachelor degree teacher will reach the maximum of $4550 after 15 years of teaching.

The board deliberated for 2 hours on the merits of granting a raise before announcing its decision. The matter of raising the cumulative building fund was also to have been discussed. But this was postponed until the next regular meeting to give additional time to consider the problem. Under consideration has been the raising of the building fund by 25c to a total of 75c per $100 of assessed valuation in the schol corporation boundaries. With the raise given the teachers, which will mean an increase in tax rates of approximately 17c as computed by the board it was felt that more time should be given to consideration of an additional raise in the cumulative building fund.

It Is Never Too Late

"Unfortunately" is a sad, depressing word.

Unfortunately, we must use it frequently on this occasion, because, unfortunately, we did not go that one step further last week in presenting the story of the teacher salary schedule - that one step further which might have had a bearing on events since last week's issue.

Unfortunately, we did not place a deadline on sending in the coupon which was printed so that readers might express their agreement, if they so desired, with the salary schedule which was proposed by the teachers in the Riverdale School Corporation.

Unfortunately, we did not check to see when a meeting would be held to consider the teachers' proposal - that extra step which could have been taken but was overlooked.

Unfortunately, there were some who intended to send in the coupon but did not, just one of those things where they probably would have done so in a week or so. As a result, the Riverdale School Board had little to go on as far as public opinion was concerned from the words which appeared here last week. But we know there were persons who intended to send in the coupon to show that they are concerned about faculty conditions in the Riverdale School Corporation.

Unfortunately, though a raise was given "across the board" and it appears that the raise ought to help a bit, there is the fact that other schools have better schedules than do we, and other schools are going to continue to get our faculty members as they, the teachers, prove their worth, because other schools will give a greater reward. Just comparing our pay with other schools' pay is not enough; there is too much room to receive comfort in the knowledge that we are "pretty close" to this or that school in average pay. Progress is made only when something better is sought, not when satisfaction is obtained from something "just as good."

Unfortunately, this community appears doomed to suffer through its youth from a constantly changing faculty, a situation in which the principal, if he himself remains, must orientate himself, the faculty and the students as new faces come into the school faculty, only to re-orientate again the next year when more new faces come in. It is a fact - Riverdale has a higher rate of faculty change in the upper grades than most other schools. This was confirmed by the county superintendent last Monday evening.

Unfortunately, it appears of little use to reprint the salary schedules which appeared last week. But in coming week and months Riverdale patrons may want to think more closely about paying their teachers and keeping their teachers. Therefore. it may be helpful to clip the accompanying schedule and keep it for reference, remembering that two hundred and fifty dollars must be added to the present schedule to give the 1958-59 salary schedule set last Monday evening by the Riverdale School Board.

Unfortunately - - a sad, depressing word.

Parents, awaken! Talk to the principals, talk to the teachers, talk to the board members, talk to the county superintendent. Are those just pretty words - "—we want a better school"? It takes action!

COINCODENCE TWINS IN DOUBLE DILEMMA — Milwaukee, Wisc. — These two sets of twins have good reason to be unhappy, as does the staff of the Johnston Municipal Hospital. After swallowing headache and prescription pills, the two sets of twins filled the hospital records with enough coincidences to make theirs a likely candidate for the most unusual meeting of the year. Both sets are two years old and have the same birthday. Both sets were prematurely born. The fathers of both sets are Navy men. The four were born within an hour of each other and arrived at the Johnston Hospital within an hour of each other. Finally the four were relieved of the pills VIA the stomach pump.

WHICH ARE YOU?
Are you an active member,
The kind who would be missed,
Or are you just contented that
Your name is on the list?

Do you attend the meetings,
And mingle with the flock,
Or do you stay at home
And criticize and knock?

Do you take an active part
To help the work along,
Or are you satisfied
To say you "just belong"?

Do you ever go to visit
A member who is sick,
Or leave the work to just a few,
And talk about the clique?

There's quite a program scheduled
That I'm sure you've heard about,
And we'll sure appreciate it if you too,
Will come and help us out.

So, let's be up and doing—
Now's that time to start:
Don't be "just a member,"
But take an active part.

Think this over, Brother,
You sure know right from wrong;
Are you an active member,
Or do you just belong?

WORLD WIDE CHURCH

Lesson for March 23, 1958

The Bible always means the same thing; but Christians' understanding of what it means changes from age to age. Sometimes the church ignores parts of the Bible and looks the other way, as it were, when their reading brings them to these passages. Sometimes the church may be very fond of a verse or an idea in the Bible, but their notion of what it means may be far off the beam. Occasionally the church in one era understands the Bible rightly - for that era; and Christians in a later time of the world will get another meaning, which is the right one for their era.

Go Into All the World

The Master definitely expected his religion to spread throughout the world. By all accounts, his last orders to his friends were marching orders. Some church members seem to think - indeed try to tell you - that each part of the world has it own special local religion and it is bad manners, if not worse, for us Christians to barge in, so to speak, into the territory already staked out for other gods. That, of course, is nonsense. If it were true, then the Pilgrim fathers had no business bringing their Bibles to the New World. They should have come intending to join whatever religion the Indians might have.

Jesus would have thought it nonsense to expect the faith he founded to stay put in Jerusalem. There was no religious vacuum anywhere in the world then; there is none now. "Into all the world" meant, and still means, that the Christian gospel has to be taken right into competition with existing religions, some of them much older. "Into all the world" means that Christians go out with an article which is already used everywhere, namely religion; but with a brand of religion the like of which, or the equal of which, has never yet been seen.

What Grandma Saw In It

There have been times, very long times, in the history of the Christian church when this last challenging command of Christ was completely forgotten. Christians had a vague idea that God would win worshippers all over the world, but they had only the foggiest notions how he would do this, and besides, they figured it was God's business anyhow and they needn't bother. But along in the 19th century, the church began to have a different understanding of the Bible, and of their responsibilities as Christians. Jesus' command to "Go, teach" in all the world was taken seriously, and what we know as World Missions or Foreign Missions was re-born.

The nineteenth century was a great Missions century. It saw the founding of the great missionary societies in Europe, Great Britain and America. It saw, thousands of young people going out as foreign missionaries. Now in Grandma's time, the way she, as a humble Christian, looked at it was about the way the churches all looked at it. "We who belong to the Christian churches in the Christian countries are in duty bound to send missionaries to the dark and heathen lands of the world. We must send money, too, to build churches and open up hospitals and schools; we must keep on doing this, we and our children, till the whole world has been converted."

A New Day Dawning

What happened? The missionaries succeeded better than Grandma eypected. To make a long story short, the Christian church was no longer, as it had been for centuries, a European - American affair. There was an Indian church and an African church and a south Pacific islands church, and so on around the globe. What were these new churches to do? Sit still, and live on missionary offerings from far-off America, listen to sermons exclusively from missionaries, be "run" from New York or Edinburgh or Amsterdam? Not for long! The more Christianity succeeded, the more certain it became that these "mission" churches would begin to stand on their own feet.

UP TO HER HIPS IN PUPPIES — Toronto, Can. — Hands over ears in an attempt to keep out the baby barks and whimpers, two-year-old Janet Jilek sits surrounded by ten Afghan puppies at the home of her mother, Mrs. William Jilek, in Toronto. The mother of the puppies sits proudly keeping an eye on things. The Afghan is believed to be the oldest breed of dog known to man. One legend hath it that Afghans were the dogs taken into the Ark by Noah. A litter of ten is comparatively rare for the breed.

ARMY SHOWS OFF ITS VTOL PLANE — Washington, D.C. — Two crewmen man the Army's Vertical Take-Off and Landing Research Plane which was unveiled for the first time. It combines the features of the helicopter and the conventional airplane. The ducted propellers at the wing tips are rotated to vertical (as pictured) to take off like a helicopter and aloft they are rotated forward for operation as a conventional aircraft.

FLOWER QUEEN SITTING PRETTY — New York — Sitting and smiling prettily is Jeanne Lewis, 22, of Upsala College, East Orange, N.J., after she was named Queen of the 41st International Flower Show.

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

These sunny days like last Sunday sure can throw you off. We went riding around the lakes Sunday afternoon. I expected to see maybe a boat or two getting tested for the summer. My gosh, the ice isn't even off the lakes yet.

—Haven't they heard - - - spring is here.

When we were on the way home late in the afternoon, we got a glimpse of the state police in action. As we headed south from Angola, a couple of cars went around us - and the yellow line was on our side of the centerline. Soon after, when oncoming traffic had passed, there scooted a green Ford around us with a state trooper at the wheel. He had to wend his way ahead, a car at a time as there was traffic both ways. But eventually one car dropped out of the line. Then the green Ford went hop,skipping ahead again and pretty quick another car dropped out of line. As we caught up to the second car the trooper pulled in front of it and was taking that slow deliberate-stride walk back to the offender's car.

—I wonder if troopers are trying to think of a new approach in words when they slowly walk to the culprit's buggy. I suppose "where d'ya think yer goin' " does get to be old stuff after a while.

That stretch of 427 from Fort Wayne to Angola must be the most-patrolled bit of highway in the state. Seems like you see a trooper every couple of miles.

The kids got a bang out of seeing the trooper catch up to those two cars he was after. Kids usually do get a bang out uniforms. In fact, there were two other boys who got a jolt out of a uniform here recently. The way the story goes the Joe Smiths were going someplace and a policeman's speedometer was off or something - anyhow, it read "42" when it should have read "35" when following the Smith automobile. The policeman stopped the Smith car and Jerry and his brother really wailed because they thought Pop was headed for the jail right now and they'd be stranded.

BAKE SALE APRIL 5

The Concord Junior Home Demonstration Club is planning a bake sale to be held on Saturday, April 5. The sale will be held starting at 8 a. m. at the News Office in Saint Joe.

The ladies will sell all types of baked goods and other items including bread, rolls, cakes, cookies, pies, chicken and noodles, potato salad, baked beans and eggs.

Juniors Present Comedy On April 11-12

Feudin', fightin', mistaken identities and a mail-order matrimonial bureau furnish the plot for the Riverdale Junior Class's spring play, "Hillbilly Courtship." The play will be presented on Friday and Saturday, April 11 and 12, in the high school gym at Saint Joe. The "drama" will present the troubles of mixed-up romances amid Ozark mountain feuds.

According to director Hubert L. Stackhouse, "There isn't an ounce of plot in a carload of this play. There's no message, very little to think about, but plenty of laughs." Recalling the success of some years back, a hillbilly chestnut entitled "Comin' Round the Mountain," Mr. Stackhouse says he chose this play because of the similiarity of plot and large number of good situations for laughter.

The cast, which began rehearsal on March 10, is as follows:

The Stilsby family, foul-tempered, hard-of-hearing Pappy and good natured Luke — Ed Washler and Tom DeLong.

The Peppins, Ma, waspish and loud, and Emmy, the hill country belle—Shirley Kechert and Priscilla Mayer.

Prompter and the minister who is expected to officiate at the outcome of the matrimonial massacre—Joe Leonhart.

Facing the cast will be the interesting problems of making the relatively new scenery look like a hillcountry cabin, of assuming a play which hasn't a "straight" part in it (all dialect characters), and of keeping their own faces straight while they attempt to deliver the lines as "writ".

Tickets are now on sale from members of the Junior Class and may be obtained for either production night, reserved only, in advance.

Mike Haberkorn Is J-G Speller For Riverdale

Michael Haberkorn, student in the sixth grade of Riverdale schools, won the honor of representing Riverdale in the district Journal-Gazette spelling contest next Thursday, April 3, at Auburn. Michael successfully spelled against representatives of the 5th, 7th and 8th grades to win the honor of representing his school in an elimination spelldown held last Friday at the Riverdale High School.

In previous contests Michael has won a second place ribbon as a third grade county contestant in 1955, a first place ribbon as a county contestant in the fourth grade in 1956, and another first as a county contestant from the 5th grade in 1957. This will be his first appearance in the Journal-Gazette contest.

Others who competed in the elimination were Lee Impton from the 5th grade, Pamela Wasson of the 7th grade and Judy Furnish representing the 8th grade.

The county and Journal-Gazette contests will be held next Wednesday and Thursday evenings. On Wednesday county eliminations will be held to determine the champions of the county in the 3rd, 5th, 7th and 8th grades. On Thursday evening the county contest, for the 4th and 6th grades will be held, followed by the Journal-Gazette elimination.

The contests will be held at the new junior high auditorium in Auburn.

Riverdale representatives in the county spelling contests are:

3rd grade—Claudia Stromberk; alternate, Kathryn Schmucker.

4th grade — Nicholas Carr; alternate, Linda Mason.

5th grade — Sharon Boylen; alternate, Karen Fish.

6th grade — Steven Myers; alternate, Allen Amstutz.

The DeKalb County Farm Bureau, Inc., will hold their family night meeting at the assembly room of the court house in Auburn on Saturday night, March 29, at 8 p.m. Larry Brandon of R3, Auburn, will be the principal speaker. Entertainment will be furnished by the winners in the township unit talent contests The winner of the county will compete in the state program at the State Fair in Indianapolis next fall.

Applications should be filed not later than April 30 for wool incentive payments, according to Ray Miller, county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation chairman. If wool or unshorn lambs have been sold since April 1, 1957, it is probable that a payment under the Federal Wool Incentive Program has been earned. The incentive program for 1958 will be similar to that of the past year, with the incentive price continuing at 62 cents per pound.

Licensed to wed — Gerry Snook, 24, a fireman now serving with the U.S. Navy and a resident of Garrett, and Mary Jane Shuff, 17, a resident of Saint Joe. Consent to issue of the marriage license to the bride-elect was given by her mother, Lulu P. Shuff, of Phoenix, Arizona

A one-night evangelistic rally will be held at the Auburn Methodist Church Saturday, March 29, at 7:30 p.m. sponsored by the DeKalb County Christian Youth Crusade. Rev. Warren Wiersbe, evangelist, and director of the literature division for Youth For Christ International, will be the speaker. Young and old are invited to hear the evangelist.

The 1957 annual report of General Telephone Company shows revenues of $22,126,684 in 1957 compared to $21,312,524 in 1956. Higher operation expenses in the form of wages, taxes, cost of new capital and depreciation expense on new plant devoted to public use held earnings down disproportionately to the rise in revenues, however. To fulfill a heavy demand for expanded facilities, the company spent a record $12,162,384 on construction during 1957, the most ever spent by the company in one year.

Phil Haberkorn had a belated birthday party Saturday afternoon, but he thinks it's better late than never. Those who attended were Danny and Tommy Bishop, Richard Musser, Denny and Rickie Stiver, Billy Holtzberg and Mike and Dave Haberkorn.

The chairman of the DeaKlb County ASC Committee, Ray Miller, reports that most farmers who wanted to take part in the 1958 Acreage Reserve of the Soil Bank, but could not file signed agreements because of fund limitations, will apparently be able to sign up at the county office in the near future. Both the Senate and the House of Representatives have approved a supplemental appropriation of 250 million dollars to provide for additional acreage reserve participation. This will bring the total to 750 million dollars for the 1958 program.

Concert Pledge Can Be Made Locally

The DeKalb Community Concert Association is conducting its membership campaign through March 29.

As in the past, community concerts expect to continue to have programs of high caliber. All concerts will be held in Auburn at the new Junior High Auditorium. A membership card also entitles the holder to enjoy concerts at Defiance, Ohio, and Coldwater, Michigan.

There will be no single admissions sold for any concert during the season and no membership will be accepted after the close of the campaign. Admision to each concert is by card only.

The Community Concert Association operates solely on the annual dues collected during campaign week. Three or four concerts or even more are assured, depending upon the results of the campaign.

Prices for the 1958-59 series are $7.00 for adults and $3.50 for students.

Anyone interested in obtaining a concert membership should contact Mrs. Virgil Laux, Mrs. Merl Furnish or Mrs. Ray Overmyer in the Saint Joe-Spencerville community.

Brass Tacks - 9th In A Series

A strange quotation to hear uttered by anyone who has any inclination toward a belief in God is, "You have to be practical." Yet these words are heard often in not only the material world but in affairs which concern the practice of Godly religion. Probably the reason for using these words so often, particularly in a country such as ours which looks to its religious life as the foundation for its operation, yet seems to be in so much "trouble" a good bit of the time, is that Godly people themselves are prone to separate the material world from the spiritual world. If one says, "You have to be practical," in a given situation, more often than not it can be found that being "practical" means doing something which can be done with less effort rather than doing it some other way which may be admitted to be "more desirable." Moreover, if things do not work out right, there is a tendency to look down yet more upon leadership of the spirit because even those actions which are somewhat acceptable do not always work out perfectly, therefore, how in the world could a "righteous" way work. It is sort of a negative way of approaching the solution of problems to say that, because the semi-ideal way did not work, the ideal way also will not work.

This brings on a further thought as to what is meant by something "working." The results of human actions are judged often in the light of material values. When this is done, there cannot help but be a sneer cast occasionally at thoughts of spiritual inspiration. And so, men continue to try for, in a sense, the ideal while trying to attain it through something less than ideal efforts.

To a great extent, much of the strife in people's lives today, and this applies not only to just everyday living but also to living as a believer in God in His Church, comes from the lack of faith in doing things according to what is right, or according to the spiritual guides which tell how things ought to be done. In particular, The Church suffers in its efforts to reach more people because those already listed on its rolls themselves have little faith in the Godly approach to life; thus, how can they "sell" this faith to the indifferent. Those within The Church itself are just as guilty as those outside in falling back on the excuse of being practical when it comes to facing a situation, solving a problem, getting something accomplished. It is easier to "be practical" and not give regularly and substantially to The Church, for instance, holding a finger on the religious purse strings by not giving regularly and substantially, than to practice a part of Godly faith by returning to God through His Church a part of that which He has given to the individual to use in this earthly life. There is something "impractical" about having a substantial treasury ready to be used in spreading the story of the goodness of God; there is something more desirable in giving for a special need at a special time and perhaps gaining special attention. Even God-fearing men would rather give when his fellow men request money for a material goal which can be "seen", literally and figuratively, than to give because God has asked through the ages.

Asking why this or that has happened when one faces disaster, calamity, misfortune, sorrow, or what have you, is somewhat of an indication of disbelief in those spiritual things which are associated with and taught by the Christian world, that is if such probing for an answer becomes an obsession. Being prepared is one of the greatest lessons to be learned from The Faith because what happens can be explained in the light of teachings given by it. Ideally, the Christian life is one in which there is little concern about money, cars, clothes, less work, more pay, etc. etc., because these are not the important things. "You've got to live," say some; and true, you've "got to". What motivates living is the important question, and living in a material world with goods as a yardstick throws men into these perplexing problems which make them enemies. In the material world the emphasis is on "self" and this is completely contrary to the emphasis of the Christian world. And so, while we nod approval of the sacrifices of some as being "wonderful" and examples of the "right way", the practical thought is thrown in: it is all right for someone else to do these things once in a while, but it just wouldn't work if we all tried to do them all the time.

Time is necessary in accomplishing works. It would take a long, long, long time to accomplish anything which closely resembled an improvement in our lives, speaking in a material sense, if we were to practice more conscientiously doing things as Christians ought to do them. In fact, in some cases, it could be said that we might be worse off, in this material sense. But the teaching of The Church is of the spirit, and the believer has one primary lesson to learn, even if learned only part way, before any satisfaction is gained from any consistently God-inspired actions. That is that how we do things is more important than what is accomplished. The spirit is eternal; the flesh is temporal.

IMMUNIZATION - A WISE STEP

With the polio season rapidly approaching, a number of Indiana communities have instituted immunization programs designed to encourage individuals to take advantage of the protection afforded by the polio vaccine. In addition, at least two Hoosier counties have been engaged in programs which encourage immunization against all of the preventable diseases.

Such programs are being conducted cooperatively by local medical societies and health departments. The decision as to the type of program which will be instituted in each county rests with the local medical group and the local health department officials.

In Marion County, a community education program was conducted, and in addition to advising parents to see the family physician for immunization, clinics were set up for those who could not afford to pay for the various vaccines. The Marion County program was initiated in December, and through the end of January, the following immunizations had been given, either in the physician's office or in the public clinic situation. Poliomyelitis immunizations, 5,683; Smallpox (initial vaccination) 3,000, (re-vaccination) 1,528; Diphtheria-Pertussis - Tetanus (initial immunization) 3,942, (booster) 1,937.

Since reports are not available from all Marion County physicians and-or schools, these figures probably do not reflect all of the immunizations which were completed during the campaign.

The Marion County program provides a good example of an educational approach to raising the immunization level of residents for all diseases for which vaccine or an immunizing agent is available.

In St. Joseph County, health department and medical society representatives had planned initially to encourage polio immunizations only. However, as the program plan developed, those involved expanded the program and it is now geared to stimulate interest in immunization against all of the preventable diseases.

Reports from both Marion County and St. Joseph County officials indicate that the cooperation received from radio stations, television channels and newspapers aided immeasurably in creating interest in the immunization programs. "In fact," one official said, "had it not been for the cooperation of the mass communication media representatives, it would have been an impossible task to inform the community of our objectives and intent, in so short a period of time."

Plans were moving along in Steuben County as The Bulletin went to press for an educational program which would encourage individuals of all age groups to avail themselves of the polio vaccine. Physicians of the community have decided to hold a Saturday clinic at the Courthouse for those who wish to avail themselves of this service.

While the immunization level for Indiana as a whole appears to average out approximately 50 per cent, many communities have discovered that less than 30 per cent of those susceptible to these diseases have been immunized against them. Even those communities with 50 per cent of the population immunized are not within the safety limits since at least 70 per cent of the total population must be immunized if epidemics are to be prevented.

Have you - and your children - been immunized for smallpox, diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus and polio? How long has it been since boosters or re-vaccinations have been obtained?

THE FARM PROBLEM

Many of the so-called "farm-state" Senators and Congressmen in Washington are calling for the resignation of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson. Although Mr. Benson apparently has the solid backing of President Eisenhower, these Senators and Congressmen seem determined to either force his resignation or push through legislation which would short-circuit the basic aims of his agricultural program.

This is an important struggle. The fundamental issue is vital to the future use of our American system. The issue is: will the two basic American principles - private enterprise and the competitive market - work successfully in agriculture, or must agriculture become permanently a government artifically controlled operation! If it should become permanently a government artificially controlled operation, then the American economic system, which is one of the main beams supporting our whole freedom structure, could not survive. The issue is just that important.

The American farm problem has engaged the serious attention and thought of leaders in every phase of our national life. The primary goals of the present U.S. Government program are the result of the pooled wisdom of outstanding farm leaders, agricultural economists and Secretary Benson's official family in the Agriculture Department. After more than five years, however, the program has made only a little headway toward the goals - elimination of surpluses, stoppage of all but emergency price supports, and the returning of the business of agriculture to informal consumer control through the free market.

Secretary Benson apparently has found it impossible in a political establishment such as the Federal government to set definite deadlines for accomplishing the various steps necessary toward extricating the American farmers from the complicated mass of governmental machinery built up through 25 years of political engineering. Therefore, not much headway is being made. Surpluses continue to pile up, price supports and acreage allotments are continued.

With our Government spending $5 billion a year propping up the price of cotton, corn, wheat and other commodities, with $7 billion tied up in surpluses, and with the world-wide menace of Communism pushing our defense spending above $40 billion a year - the time has come for every citizen to do some serious thinking on the farm problem and then to act to remedy a situation which is endangering our way of life, our future prosperity and freedom.

A national organization of businessmen and scholars, outside the realm of politics, has recently conducted a comprehensive study of the farm problem and has published its findings and recommendations. The organization is the Committee for Economic Development. Among its trustees are such men as Lamar Fleming, Jr., Chairman of Anderson, Clayton & Company, dealers in cotton; Alfred C. Fuller, chairman of Fuller Brush Company; Everett Needham Case, president, Colgate University; L.L. Colbert, president, Chrysler Corporation; John L. Collyer, chairman, The B.F. Goodrich Company; H. J. Heinz II, president, H.J. Heinz Company; and nearly 100 other leaders.

The CED gives a clear analysis of the farm problem and, more important, presents a workable program. "Basic to every other defect," says the CED report on the farm problem, "is the economic waste involved in public policy that keeps people, and material resources, at work producing surpluses of farm products while the nation is straining to fulfill simultaneously its desires for economic growth and national security. Such policy makes no sense, from the standpoint of the farmer, of the public at large (including the farmer), or of the national well-being."

In the next several columns, I shall present some of the findings and specific recommendations from this CED report as well as other facts and conclusions concerning the farm problem. The very highest caliber of statesmanship, political courage and active citizenship must be employed to re-establish American farming to its proper place while safeguarding our whole freedom structure. This can be done and the welfare of agriculture promoted at the same time.

A BOLD OFFENSE

Indiana farmers and those in other states have shown their faith in the workability of the soil bank program which their Farm Bureau helped put into effect. They have shown overwhelming willingness to cut corn production in the face of the currently-mountainous supply of feed grain which threatens them with disastrously low livestock prices in the months immediately ahead.

Indiana Farm Bureau learned from the Indiana Stabilization and Conservation Committee last month that Indiana's $14.4 million allocation for the corn acreage reserve had been absorbed before half of the applications had been accepted. In fact, all commercial corn producing states were oversubscribed.

Indiana Farm Bureau went into action. With the help of other corn-state Farm Bureau leaders and the American Farm Bureau Federation, they appealed to Congress for more funds to cover the overage.

Farm Bureau President George Doup immediately urged Hoosier congressmen and senators to support H.R. 10881 which among other things called for an additional appropriation of $250 million for the entire corn and cotton reserve rograms. Of this, Indiana would be in line for an additional $16 million which would take the 316,600 additional corn acres on the waiting list out of 1958 production.

Farm Bureau does not believe that farmers should have to stand in line to gamble on participation in the soil bank, and there is no doubt that the "waiting list" corn acres are the cheapest ones to take out since much of the overhead work was already done. Too, the enthusiasm on the part of corn farmers should be recognized, for this high-percentage cooperation can cut deep inroads into the mounting feed grain supply which looms over cornbelt agriculture.

Farmers said in the beginning that the soil bank program should soon move to a longer term basis, and Farm Bureau believes that this is desirable and will work toward this goal for the years ahead.

A workable soil bank program is not an end point in controlling over-production in feed grains. It must be the working partner of a stabilizing grain suport price system. The allotment and quota method is not working, and surpluses mount.

Farmers have considered the support program carefully and Farm Bureau is strongly suggesting to Congress a new approach to supporting feed grain prices. The new plan being suggested for corn and oats, rye, barley and grain sorghums after adjustments for differences in feeding values and other factors have been made would support 1959 corn at 90 per cent of the average farm price for the previous 3 years. And acreage allotments would be terminated.

Rapidly changing technology in farm production and slow modernization of the parity formula as it is used to set price supports has led to a popular misconception of a "fair price." The unfairness of this old idea is apparent since citrus fruit farmers have demonstrated, by steadily increasing production, that they consider prices at about 50 per cent of parity profitable. At the same time, wool producers continued to cut production, when prices were around 100 per cent of parity, indicating that they thought these prices were unprofitable.

The new Farm Bureau proposal is related to the current supply and demand situation, and is free of complicated formulas and gadgets.

If this program were to be put into effect for 1958, indications are that the support level for corn would be about $1.22 a bushel, or 90 per cent of the average farm prices for 1955, 1956 and 1957. The soil bank program geared to a longer-term with higher payments per acre could supply the alternate to planting corn when the support price became lower following large crop years

A third factor in this comprehensive program is the continued encouragement of foreign trade. Farmers want the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act extended for 5 years, and believe that Public Law 480, which allows trading U.S. surplus farm commodities for foreign currencies, should be extended. Farm Bureau members know that these programs are of a temporary nature and will insist that they be terminated when the need is past. But these programs have been responsible for encouraging new markets and helped make 1957 a record export year.

This program of which Indiana Farm Bureau members can be proud will enable farmers to earn the highest possible net income per family with due regard for the protection of individual freedom to farm.

There have been hints that Congress might adopt a "quickie" bill to freeze all farm programs as they are for a year (an election year). This reluctance to face the farm issues must not be permitted by farmers. Agriculture has many problems that need to be solved NOW, and farmers through their Farm Bureau have many of the answers. A bold offense is the best defense.

Doug Duker, Former Resident, Earns Recognition

Douglas Duker, senior at Wabash High School, recently was named one of two students in that school who were commended by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation for outstanding performance on a nation-wide aptitude test. Doug is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Duker, formerly of Saint Joe. Mr. Duker served as principal of Concord Township High School before moving to the principalship at Noble Township High School in 1951.

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation estimates that the 7,500 students who received the commendation rank in the top one or two per cent in ability in the senior classes of their respective states. While the students receiving the commendation did not quite reach the finals of the 1957-58 Merit Scholarship competition, each of them demonstrated highly superior ability and outstanding promise to benefit from college training. Over 260,000 seniors from more than 14,000 high schools entered the competition.

WORKERS NOT SHIRKERS 4-H CLUB

The fourth meeting of the Workers Not Shirkers 4-H Club was held March 24 at the Riverdale High School. The meeting was called to order by the president, Esther Fetters. Devotions were given by Joan Vinson.

After the group sang three songs, a demonstration was given by Judy Inlow on setting the table. Judy Impton gave a demonstartion on centerpieces. The group judged drop cookies prepared by Hazel Tustin. Carol Flesher judged Kathy Wasson's pudding.

15 members were present.

The meeting then adjourned.

1900 ARRESTS MADE IN SPORT VIOLATIONS

A total of 1,900 arrests, representing 73 different charges, were made during the year 1957 by the state's 110 conservation officers, John W. Webster, superintendent of the enforcement division of the Department of Conservation, reported recently.

Included were 621 arrests for fishing violations, 200 bird hunting infractions, 556 for illegal hunting and trapping, 593 for miscellaneous other offenses.

Leading the list of charges filed were 466 for fishing without license, 463 motor boat violations, 180 for hunting without permission, 160 for hunting without license.

Other frequent violations included hunting migratory waterfowl with improper plug in gun, 68; hunting on Sunday, 51; killing or possessing wood duck in closed season, 48; hunting with artifical light, 37; misrepresentation of license, 35; hunting or possessing raccoon in closed season, 33.

Dumping trash on public property, 29; hunting on state game preserve, 27; hunting from or across public highways, 25; hunting migratory waterfowl after hours, 25; undersize catfish, 20; hunting or possessing rabbits during closed season, 20.

CULTURE CLUB

The March 5 meeting of the Culture Club was held at the home of Fara Lee Baidinger at Garrett.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Marian Furnish. Devotions were given by MaDonna Wade, followed by the club collect and pledge to the flag. Roll call and the secretary's report were given.

The club was then very well entertained by Miss Funk and Miss Harting, giving several Hawaiian dances. A talk on Hawaii was given by Mrs. Sparks who had been a visitor of her daughter in Hawaii. She showed numerous articles brought back with her. Business of the evening was then discussed.

The club inspected the book, "Colonial Living," which was given to the Riverdale library in memory of Pluma Hamilton. Light refreshments were served.

The March 19 meeting was held at the home of Marian Furnish. Collect and pledge to the flag were given in unison. Devotions were by Virginia Laux. The lesson on Hawaii was given by MaDonna Wade.

Roll Call and secretary's report were given. A report on the Federation Convention was given by Marian Furnish and Ruth White.

A white elephant exchange was enjoyed by all. The meeting then adjourned and lunch served by the hostess.

The question is often asked, "When is Easter?" This year it happens to be April 6 The fluctuation of the date that Easter falls on seems to puzzle many. Folks know that Easter commemorates the Resurrection of Christ, but many are puzzled as to why the date fluctuates so. If you want to figure the date for Easter 1959, it will be on the Sunday following the first full moon after the spring equinox. Webster defines the equinox as: "The time when the sun's center crosses the equator and day and night are everywhere of equal length, that is, about March 21 (vernal equinox) or September 23 (autumnal equinox)." To us common folk it's just the first day of spring and the first day of autumn.

IN REMEMBRANCE

Lesson for March 30, 1958

It is curious, important and tragic all at the same time: the very acts which are specially precious to all kinds of Christians have been through the centuries the center of debates and quarrels and splits in churches. The church as a whole cannot even agree on what to call these acts, the simple acts we call Baptism and the Lord's Supper. Most churches call them "sacraments", but as that is not a Bible word, many churches call them "ordinances", though as a matter of fact that word is not used in connection with Baptism or the Lord's Supper anywhere in the New Testament. (I Cor. 11:2 is a mistranslation in the King James version; the Greek word there means simply "traditions.")

Outward Signs

Let the reader call these what he will. If he goes to almost any Christian church he will observe, some time or another, these two simple acts or rites called everywhere Baptism and the Lord's Supper. The way the thing is done varies from church to church; but if one listens carefully, the same Bible words are always used. In Latin, Greek or English or any other tongue, it is the same in all churches.

They are very simple acts. They are the sort of act that is called a "symbol"—that is, it means very little in itself, but it carries the weight of a great truth and shines with the glory of a great experience. Baptism is a kind of washing; but even immersion, or "trine immersion" where the person is put under the water three times, is not a real bath. Likewise the amount of bread and wine in the communion service would not satisfy a hungry man. ("If any man is hungry, let him eat at home," said Saint Paul.) These acts are tokens of something else. One of the best descriptions of them, and the most famous, is "outward signs of inward grace." These sacraments, or ordinances, or just acts, if you don't like technical words, are visible things, very simple things too. But when the church THINKS of them, she thinks beneath the surface. She thinks of the inward grace and the outward sign at the same time.

Inward Grace

The inward grace which the church finds in the sacraments or ordinances is not a human grace, such as (for example) the worshipper's own humility or love or purity. Such graces are always fallible—they can break down too easily — and often feeble. The grace of which the acts are symbols is God's grace, His loving favor, His profound concern, the overflowing of His Father-heart

The Gospel In Sign Language

A famous theologian once called the sacraments the Gospel in sign language. Now to mystical and emotional Christians they are more than this; but not all Christians are mystics, probably most of them are not. And this much is true for all Christians, however much more may be discovered: the observance of baptism and the Lord's Supper reminds the worshipper of vital Gospel truths. For example the water of baptism could not rightly be replaced by wine or oil; for water is a sign of cleansing, and reminds us, we need the cleansing power of the Spirit. The broken bread and the outpoured wine taken in remembrance of our Lord, bring back to us, even without words, His sacrifice for us.

In these days when the church is more than ever world-wide, a traveling Christian may find himself in a distant land in a church where he does not understand a single word. Yet if there is a baptism, or if the Lord's Supper is observed, then at once he knows himself by these signs to be at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Gee and three children of Dayton and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gee and son of Jewell, Ohio, were dinner and supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gee on Tuesday of last week. All attended the funeral of Walter Carper, brother of Mrs. Foster Gee, at Auburn.

1200 delegates will attend a circuit assembly of Jehovah's withnesses to be held March 28-30 at the Kendallville High School gymnasium. Mr. Walter F. Tyler, presiding minister of Kendallville, will be the host to ministers of 21 congregations from Indiana, Ohio and Michigan. The object of the program, according to Tyler, is to equip everyone of the preaching fellowship of Jehovah's witnesses in the practical use of the Bible as a help in fortifying the spiritual morale of the people in the community. For that reason the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, sponsors of the 3-day refresher program, have set the theme as Fulfilling Our Ministry. This will provide the background for the advanced course planned. Richard E. Hankey of the Auburn congregation will be on the program Friday evening. His subject will be Ministry School Review. Mr. Peter D'Mura of New York will be the feature speaker of the event. He will appear on the program all 3 days and will deliver the main public address at 3 p.m. Sunday afternoon.

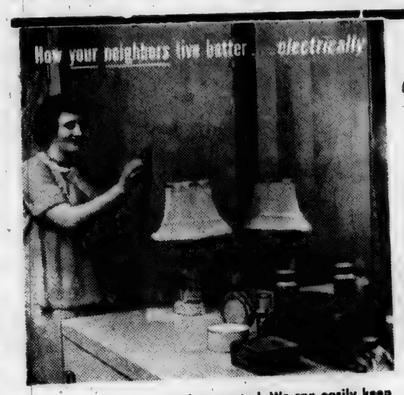
James Beck, Minister



"I like our room-by-room heat control. We can easily keep the bedroom cooler than the rest of the house."

Little three-year-old Dixie Leann and Lynn, 5, help themselves to cookies baked earlier in the electric oven.

"We love to get up in the morning in our all-electric home..."

SAYS MRS. DWIGHT ANTHONY.

"No more drafts or cold floors, thanks to the all-over warmth our electric heating system provides. But that's just one of the things we like about living electrically.

"My husband, Dwight, works for a builder-contractor and knows a lot about electricity. Yet even Dwight was surprised when our average monthly electric bill was only $24.14, including electric heat and our many electric appliances. We are convinced that electricity helps us live better at lower cost."

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

ILSE'S A "GOOD CITIZEN" AFTER ALL — Boston, Mass. — Ilse Naujoks, 17, of Marlboro High School, is greeted by Lt. Gov. Robert F. Murphy at the State House where she was given a special "Good Citizenship" scroll on Student Government Day. She was denied the "Good Citizen Award" of the Daughters of the American Revolution because she was not a citizen.

EDISON'S DAUGHTER SEES FRUIT OF HIS LABOR — Mexico City, Mex. — Mrs. Madeleine Edison Sloane, daughter of the famous inventor, Thomas A. Edison, is pictured against the background of the substation at the Patla Hydroelectric Plant of the Mexican Light and Power Company. The Plant was inaugurated in 1954 on the 75th Anniversary of Edison's Invention of the Incandescent Electric Lamp.

PILOT FINDS POLIO NO HANDICAP — Lexington, Mass. — Robert W. Lewis, of Lexington, Mass., an Edison engineer in his forty's, sits at the controls of a Revere Airways plane. Stricken with Polio, wearing leg braces and using crutches, he none the less learned how to fly. The father of two takes his CAA Cross Country Test on Saturday.

CANDIDATE FOR TITLE "YOUNGEST COWPOKE" — Las Vegas, Nevada — 16-month-old Mike Hines, Jr., young Las Vegas cowpoke is somewhat outweighed by this 1,850-pound champion Hereford Bull, but he's ready for a tussle anyway. The bull — not Mike — will be one of the participants in the Annual Helldorado Pageant in Las Vegas May 15 to 18.

BRUSSELS FAIR COMMEMORATIVE STAMP — New York — An aerial view of the United States pavilion at Brussels, Belgium, is featured on this three-cent stamp to be issued in Detroit, Michigan, honoring the opening of the Brussels Universal and International Exhibition.

A small boy in the visitor's gallery was watching the proceedings of the Senate chamber.

"Father, who is that gentleman?" he asked, pointing to the chaplain.

"That, my son, is the chaplain," replied his father.

"Does he pray for the Senators?" asked the boy.

"No, my son; when he goes in he looks around and sees the Senators sitting there, and then he prays for the country."

Speaking of our government a Russian visitor once said after a visit in the spectator's gallery of the House of Representatives, "A man gets up to speak and says nothing, nobody listens — and then everybody disagrees."

Miss Rebecca Harts and Mr. Lloyd Smith, Jr., were united in marriage at 7:30 p.m. Monday evening, March 23, in St Peter's Lutheran Church by the Rev. Ivan O. Miller, pastor of the church. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. J. K. Ridgway while the bridegrooms' parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Smith, Sr., of Butler. The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Richard Roberts. Best man was Mr. Richard Roberts. A reception was held at the Roberts home in Saint Joe immediately following the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Witt have announced the engagement of their daughter, Bonnie Lou, to Daniel Lloyd Schemmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Schemmer of Marion. They will be married on June 7 in North Righlands Church of Christ in Fort Wayne. Miss Witt graduated from Spencerville High School and attended Cincinnati Bible Seminary and is now employed at Farnsworth in Fort Wayne. Mr. Schemmer is a graduate of Niagara Falls, N. Y. High School and Purdue University and is now completing work on his master's degree in electrical engineering at Purdue.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Smith of east of Spencerville are the parents of a 7 pound 6 ounce boy born Thursday, March 20, at Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett. This is the Smiths' second son.

The John Weidners had as Sunday evening supper guests the Clair Timberlins of Auburn.

Sunday dinner guests of the Glenn J. Brendels were Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Norris and Mrs. R. G. Claymiller of Rome City.

The Virgil Kimes had as Sunday dinner guests Mrs. Minerva Kelley and Barbara Kelley, whose birthdays they honored, James Kelley and family, Miss Lucille and Mary Kelley of Auburn. Afternoon callers were Mrs. Gerald McEwen and Mrs. James Morrison of Fort Wayne.

Sunday dinner guests of the M. H. Hollabaugh family were Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Jones of Battle Creek, Mich., and the J. S. and Jack N. Hollabaughs and Miss Nina Hoover of Spencerville.

Mrs. Lavern Koch was ill with the flu last week.

The Saint Joe News

VOLUME LXXIII — ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. — Thursday, April 3, 1958 — NUMBER 14

Indiana State Library

Local News

Mr. and Mrs. William Hall and daughters, Susan, Marjorie and Ellen, were Friday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn and sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hankey of Butler attended the 3-day assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses held at Kandallville over the past week end. The program was climaxed by an address by Peter D'Mura, New York supervisor of the group, titled, "Facing the Future Without Fear." The Bible conference was concluded with three half-hour discourses directed to the delegates of the 21 congregations from Indiana, Ohio and Michigan. 32 were baptized in a water immersion ceremany Saturday afternoon. They will join in the ministry work in their home congregations.

The Riverdale livestock judging team, coached by Leonard Jarrett, placed third Saturday in a contest which named Auburn first place winner and Butler second place winner. Paul Friend was fourth in individual scoring, Clarence Bry fifth and Don Sechler ninth.

At the last meeting of the Saint Joe Valley Conservation Club, the full club support was given the Saint Joe and Spencerville Boy Scouts. A committee of four, Walter Reinhart, Bob Hollabaugh, Jerry Haver and Ralph Johnson as chairman, was appointed to draft recommendations to the club for the possible admittance of other organizations into the proposed club house project. It is hoped to be able to present this report at the next meeting, Thursday evening, April 10, at the town hall. All members and friends are urged to be present. Pictures will be shown.

Mrs. Fred Thoms of Dearborn, Mich., was the guest of her mother, Mrs. Edna Jenkins, the last of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Means spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Means at Auburn.

The Bloodmobile will be at the Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. building west of Butler on Monday, April 21, to receive blood donations from residents in this area. Donations can be made any time between 10:30 a.m. and 4:30 p. m. However, donors are asked to contact Mrs. A. H. Sicard at Butler to make an appointment. This will make the task more efficient and there will be less waiting.

A son was born Monday to Mr. and Mrs. James Beck at Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett. The new arrival has been named Daniel Mark and weighed 8 lbs. 13 ozs. on arrival at 8:40 a.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Hauke of Fort Wayne were Saturday visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn and sons.

Lowell E. Engelking of Columbus, Indiana, has been named chairman of the 1958 Fund and Membership Campaign of the Indiana Association for Mental Health. Mrs. Isabella McClellan, president of the DeaKlb County Association for Mental Health, announced this week that the new chairman successfully led the fund drive in 1956 in Bartholomew County when the chapter tripled its quota and raised what is believed to have been the largest per capita amount obtained by any county mental health campaign nationally. April 27 through May 3 is National Mental Health Week. In Indiana the entire month of May is set aside as Mental Health Month. The Indiana Association recently completed the allocation of $40,000 in grants to further the state's training and research program.

The Waterloo 4-H and FFA dairy judging team and the Concord - Spencer 4-H dairy team will represent DeKalb County in the district judging contest to be held April 26 at the Waterloo High School. The two teams won first and second place, respectively in the DeKalb County Dairy judging contest held Saturday. Waterloo scored 939 points and the Concord-Spencer team 934. Riverdale 4-H and FFA team coached by Russell Guinther scored 770 points. Bill Hart was second in individual scoring with 318 points, Rock Reinhart third with 317 and Paul Myers 8th with 299. Other Riverdale representatives were Ed Washler, Andy Crow, Bob Jarrett, Don Rediger, Orval Wallace, Lynn Witt, Mike Singer and Art Baughman.

Claudia Stronbeck won 3rd place in the third grade county spelling contest at the Auburn Junior High gym Wednesday night and Sharon Boylen won second place in the fifth grade contest. Pamela Wasson and Judy Furnish spelled out of the 7th and 8th grade contests before competition narrowed down to the first three placings. Fourth and sixth grade spelldowns and the county Journal-Gazette spelldown were scheduled for this Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn and sons were Sunday afternoon and evening guests of his parents at Fort Wayne.

Mrs. George Zollar and Mrs. Russell Flaugh and daughters, June and Joyce, of Fort Wayne, Mrs. Jack Chorpenning of Hamilton and Mrs. Leona Mason of Saint Joe were dinner guests Tuesday of Mrs. Edna Jenkins.

Township offices have been left to go begging locally in one instance this spring as no Republicans filed to run on the primary ticket for the offices of trustee of Concord Township and advisory board of the same township. However Spencer Township will have contests in both instances with two seeking the nomination for trustee on the GOP ticket. They are Glen Akey and Wallace Graham. Five men seek the Spencer advisory board offices, Glenn J. Brendel, Jack N. Hollabaugh, Lynn C. Fisher, Dallas W. Zimmerman and Harold L. Zehr. In Newville Township Albert W. Impton is unopposed on the GOP ticket for trustee and only one, Lester G. Boylan, is running for advisory board. On the Democratic ticket, the incumbent trustee of Concord Township, Walter Morr, seeks re-election and is unopposed on his party ticket. Present advisory board members Ralph Keeler, Frank Sechler and Francis Sible are unopposed. In Spencer Township a contest brews also for the Democrats with Wayne D. Storer and Lloyd Owen Corbin seeking the nomination for trustee. David Howey, Glenn Moore and William Hudson seek the advisory board posts and will be nominated without opposition. Wayne Benninghoff is running for trustee of Newville Towship on the Democratic ticket and Harold A. Miller and Frederick Gengnagel seek two of the three advisory board posts.

Letters to the Editor

Hi Ted,

Well Ted I thought it was just about time that I wrote and thanked you for sending me the News. I sure have enjoyed it.

It has kept me up to date with the Comets, and I guess they have been doing pretty good.

Please don't mind my writing but they just turned out the lights.

The other day while I was in the chow line I met Jordan Baughman and I sure was surprized.

We had quite a talk about the old school and of course about the old town of Saint Joe.

BAKE SALE APRIL 5

The Concord Junior Home Demonstration Club is planning a bake sale to be held on Saturday, April 5. The sale will be held starting at 8 a. m. at the News Office in Saint Joe.

The ladies will sell all types of baked goods and other items including bread, rolls, cakes, cookies, pies, chicken and noodles, potato salad, baked beans and eggs.

IN MEMORY OF SUE ANN HART

God sent to us an angel
That we all love very much
She gave us joy we needed
She had that special touch.

This sudden disappearance of
Her presence in our sight
Doesn't mean she isn't with us

For she is here day and night.

Don't you see our little angel
That was given to us to love
Just can't be separated from
The ones she dearly loved.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hart

Here It's 'Different'

The moment one hears information described as "propaganda", an opinion is usually formed which gives that information an almost unpleasant taste. Quite naturally, when a nation is attempting to counteract that which is contrary to its likes, it labels foreign information as "propaganda" and citizens take what they hear from that source with a great big grain of salt. It is too bad that we don't consider some of our own outpourings in this country as "propananda" and use a sizable grain of salt in swallowing what we are bombarded with daily.

One of the most effective bits of propaganda being thrown at U.S. citizens, particularly and specifically for the consumption of our youth, is that dealing with the "opportunities" available through service in the armed forces and the "glamour" attached to military service. It is rather unfortunate, we think, that simultaneously we seek to infect the world with the thought that Uuncle Sam wants peace, is a peace-loving fellow, will do almost anything to promote peace in the world, while at the same time we fill our young men with the "glamour" of the serviceman's life. Speaking as a parent we say "enough" to the program after program on TV and radio which bring before the eyes of young boys the pictures of past wars and combat incidents which picture other nations consistently in their former positions as enemies, which they admittedly were, and show how we fought them and (on the program) always won - all a part of the past. The time devoted to enlistment propaganda on TV in particular is considerable and the glamour of flying an airplane or of being on a submarine or on a ship or driving a tank is constantly being placed before the eyes of our youth whom we are supposed to be bringing up in an atmosphere of peace.

Let no one be mistaken, you do not live in peace by preparing for war. It is bad enough that adults are tossing their eggs in one basket in this nation, devoting half of their national budget to national "defense". It is worse that we are bringing our youth up in this atmosphere which makes it common acceptance that military service is a part of life regardless of circumstances, just as is going to school. There is the danger that doing so will cause our youth to think not in terms of civilian life in a picture of individual freedom but in terms of military life which obliterates individual identity. This is contrary to the purpose we have as a nation in seeking to protect the rights and privileges of the individual.

Just a few years ago Americans were haters of the Nazi uniform. One had only to see a movie at that time which dealt with the conduct of the war, spies, etc., in which Nazis were part of the plot to feel a wave of repulsion at the sight of the natty Nazi uniform and brisk military manner. It was something impressive all right, those snappy uniforms; but what they represented overcame their glamour in the eyes of the average American. That uniform represented a loss of individual character and the assumption of group character; it represented a loss of freedom. But to German youth, the uniform was glamorous and officialdom took advantage of that impression and filled their youth camps to prepare for military programs.

The Japanese are pictured for our youth as half-mad people who were universal in the war-time desire to kill.

More recently Americans have grown contemptuous of the Russian military uniform and its many medals given for anything and everything; we see frequent cartoons picturing these medal-laden uniforms and get a laugh out of the Russian military.

But for some reason it is different here in the United States. It is not the same, for some reason, that we glamorize fighting, that we make Army life or Navy life or Marine life look like a barrel of fun, plus offering "opporunities" for later civilian life. It is different, perhaps, to some. But it is no different to others who hear their youngsters speaking of the Japanese as being "bad" or Russians as being "bad" and Germans as being "bad" just because in their young minds, the picture has been painted so by government "propaganda".

The "propaganda" which other nations have outpoured to infiltrate the minds of their youth is outrageous in our sight. Yet, today, we are poisoning our youth with the same kind of "propaganda" which makes us fools in our "peace-seeking" efforts.

No Contest

A strange situation is present in the local political scene and will remain unless appointments are made between now and September 1 of this year, if they are not made in time for the primary election next month. That situation is that this area which has been predominantly Republican in voting power does not have any nominees on the Republican ticket in the coming primary election for the offices of trustee and advisory board in Concord Township.

The deadline for filing candidacies was last Thursday, March 27. At the deadline no one in Concord Township filed to run on the Republican ticket for trustee or for any of the three positions on the township advisory board. This could be good and it could be bad. On the good side is the possibility that the services of the present holders of these offices have done well enough that no one cares to have them removed or to run against them. On the bad side could be the ever-present infectious thought that the lesser governmental offices are of no importance and it really doesn't matter too much because there is little to do in these offices.

It is true that there appears little sustained presence of important issues or actions to be undertaken or considered in these lesser offiecs. But it is also true that there is a time occasionally when these little offices are of prime importance. The trustee is needed not only for the conduct of township business but for service on the Riverdale School Board. Likewise, the advisory board is needed not only to assist the trustee in conducting township affairs but also in assisting in the selection of a member of the school board for their township and for the area-at-large contained in the school corporation. How important advisory board positions are in school affairs was illustrated in the latter respect last summer.

Perhaps it is just a coincidence that Republicans are seemingly inactive in the township at this particular time. It shouldn't matter too much, however, in the smaller governmental units which party a man affiliates with in running for office since politics of a national nature are somewhat in the background in township and school business. But at the same time it should be remembered that elections become useless if there is no choice. There should be someone running for office for both parties in all areas of government to help preserve the freedom of choice which Americans cherish and to keep before our eyes the importance of taking advantage of the opportunities which are present to serve in public office, even if on only a "part-time" basis. People have only themselves to blame if they belittle public officials repeatedly because of dissatisfaction. Important as the privilege of voting is the privilege of seeking public office.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday School Lessons
BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible Material: John 20:24-31; Ephesians 1:15-23; Revelation 7:9-12.

Devotional Reading: I Peter 1:3-9.

VICTORY DAY

Lesson for April 6, 1958

Every Sunday is VE Day, if people only knew it. It is the day the church celebrates the greatest victory in history. VE here stands not for Victory-in-Europe but for Victory on Earth. Other planets unknown to us may be, or may have been, the scene of other kinds of victories; but on earth the first Easter day saw, and each succeeding Easter - indeed each Sunday commemorates the great victory which Christ achieved over the two greatest enemies of man: sin and death. Some of our Easter hymns bring out the note of triumph, notably the familiar "The strife is o'er, the battle done."

Two Victories

Of all the enemies of the race of man, the two that do us the most harm, that have the greatest power over us, are sin and death. Both these are personified in the Bible. Probably the writers who spoke of Sin and Death as if they were personalities, evil demons as it were, knew what they were doing, and knew that to speak of sin and death as living personalities is a bold figure of speech. We use such figures of speech all the time, however, and need offer no apologies. We say "sin rears its ugly head" or "Death laid its cold hand on our friend" and so on. Sin is not a person, and neither is death; but we can speak of them as if they were personal. And they certainly do us harm. Sin twists, deforms and paralyzes man's best impulses; sin keeps men from being truly normal; sin is indeed responsible for most of the troubles of mankind. Death also seems to hold a grudge against us human beings. It always seems to come too early or too late; and it never chooses a convenient time. (There is a sense, also, in which death is the greatest friend of man; but that is another side of the story. In the Bible death is always against man, not for him.) Christ's whole life, culminating in the Cross, was a victory over sin; and the resurrection was a crowning victory, over death.

"Immeasurable Greatness of Power"

Certainly since the first Easter, or since people began to meditate on the meaning of that momentous morning, Christians have not been afraid, as many persons still are, of sin and death. They have found victory over both, in Christ. You find this thought in many places in the New Testamen, not only in Ephesians: that the Christian so identifies himself with Christ that he can be said to go through the same experiences Christ had - of death, burial, resurrection. To put it another way, the victory of Christ over sin and death is not his own lone victory, rather it is a victory shared with his people - with all who deeply desire to share it. This is part of what being "in Christ" means.

Assurance of Victory

So Easter is more than a day when we remember a victory long ago. It is a day when Christians should remember that this is their victory, too. It is a victory both won, and yet to be won. It is past, in Gahlee and Jerusalem; it is present, in the life of true Christians; it is future in its final and complete glory. Most Christians, sad to say, do not realize this. If they would take their New Testament seriously they would discover that God has for them resources never yet tapped. The same mighty power that was in Christ and that made it possible for him to conquer sin is "in us who believe" - if we really want it. The same power that raised him from the dead goes with us into the Valley of the Shadow. The church, when she takes herself seriously, is not afraid of calamities. She has outlived many; she can outlast many more. For in the church and in the individual Christians who make up the church is the very power of God. So Easter is the day of Destiny; the light of Resurrection morning is a foregleam of the glory God holds yet in store. For the world may totter from crisis to crisis; but the purposes of God will not fail us as he goes marching on.

PTA To Elect, Hear Talk On Mental Health

An important and informative meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. will be held next Tuesday evening, April 15, when the organization will elect officers for the school year 1958-59 and also hear a talk by Harry O'Bear, director of training at the Fort Wayne State School. The subject of Mr. O'Bear's address will be "Mental Health and Fort Wayne State School."

Dr. O'Bear is a graduate of Central Normal College at Danville where he received his bachelor degree, majoring in social studies, physical education and elementary education. He received his master's degree at Butler University in 1948, major in educational administration. In 1954 he received his doctorate from the School of Eudcation, Indiana University. His major area of preparation was vocational and educational guidance, minors were general education, speech and hearing therapy and remedial reading.

Dr. O'Bear has been director of training at Fort Wayne State School since July of 1957, having served as psychological coordinator at Devereaux Schools in Pennsylvania. He has 4 years of classroom teaching experience in special education in Tampa, Fla., and for 39 months after World War II was vocational advisor in the Veterans Administration Rehabilitation and Training program.

Patrons of Riverdale School Corporation are urged to attend the meeting Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. Entertainment will be provided by the first grade and freshman class. The meeting will be held at the high school gym in Saint Joe.

April 18 Will Be Seniors' 'Work Day'

The Senior Class of Riverdale High School will hold its annual "Work Day" on Friday, April 18. Residents of the community are invited to take advantage of the seniors' ambition that day aimed at raising their class treasury.

Services included are a car wash at Casey's Mobil Station, scrap drive or any odd jobs which may need attention.

Contact any senior or call the Riverdale principal's office, Saint Joe 2345. Hours for working will be from 8:30 a. m. to 4:00 p.m.

Fred Stemen Takes Life With Bullet

Fred Stemen, 45, shot and killed himself early Friday morning of last week at his home in Spencerville in an apparent sudden mood of despondency. He died instantly as a .22 caliber long rifle slug penetrated the left side of his chest and passed through his heart.

The suicide came as a shock as Mr. Stemen had appeared in his usual good spirits the day and evening before, talking and visiting with friends with no appearance of worry or concern. A note, printed on a piece of cardboard gave no indication of the reason for suicide and the family could offer no reason.

Mr. Stemen went to the basement to fix the fire at 7:45 a.m. Friday. When he did not return, his wife, Elizabeth, went to the basement to investigate. She found her husband's body slumped in a chair in a little room partitioned off the basement as a workshop. Mr. Stemen had placed the butt of the rifle against an electric motor powering a saw. He placed the muzzle of the gun against the left side of his chest and reached with his right hand to push the trigger.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday at the Spencerville Methodist Church with Rev. Henry Weber and Rev. L. E. Clayton officiating. Burial was in Leo Memorial Cemetery.

Survivors are the wife; two small children, Mary Ann, 2½, and Michael Fred, 1; 3 stepchildren, Mrs. Ronald Miller of Cedarville, Mrs. Alfred Pascen of Hammond and Wayne Akey of Spencerville; 2 brothers, John of near Butler and Homer of Butler; a sister, Mrs. Herbert Edwards of Fort Wayne; 4 half brothers, Burl Stemen of Middle Point, Ezra of Fort Jennings, O., Lehr of Middle Point and Beecher of Cecil, O.; a half sister, Mrs. James Reed of Middle Point; and 7 stepgrandchildren.

Mr. Stemen was a member of the Spencerville Methodist Church, the board of directors of the DeKalb County Fair Association and the Saint Joe Lions Club.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the Saint Joe Fire Department and all other volunteers who helped fight the fire in our forest preserve Saturday afteronon.

Mrs. Angela Lloyd of Maumee, O., spent her Easter vacation in the John Weidner home.

Notice to all residents of Spencerville. There will be a big paper drive this Saturday conducted by both Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts. Scout masters will be driving trucks for paper pick-ups. If you don't have your papers on porch and want the boys to carry them from your home, please call Spencerville 46F2.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kelley of Butler and the Ted Moore family of Fort Wayne were Saturday evening callers in the Harry Kast home. Michael Kast and family were Sunday evening guests in the same home.

Ted Hollabaugh returned to Ft. Campbell, Ky., Tuesday after spending a week with his parents.

Steven Myers Is 6th Grade County Champ

Steven Myers of the 6th grade of Riverdale brought a spelling championship honor to his school last Thursday evening when he won the DeKalb County 6th grade spelling contest held at Auburn.

With the 6th grade first place winner, Riverdale was given a first ,second and third place winner in three of the county contests. The night before Claudia Strombeck had won the third place ribbon in the third grade contest and Sharon Boylen had won a second place ribbon in the fifth grade contest.

In the Journal-Gazette contest 7th grader Carolyn Sue Myers of Auburn won the honor of representing the county in a regional contest to be held at Fort Wayne when she was declared the winner of the newspaper contest elimination. Michael Haberkorn, Riverdale school champion, went down midway through the J-G contest, hesitating on the word "closely" then leaving out the "e" for his downfall.

Miss Myers was the only girl in the J-G elimination, competing against a total of 8 boys from DeKalb County schools.

Local News

State police at Ligonier released a report Saturday showing that the number of accidents in rural DeKalb County during 1957 was the lowest since 1948. The report covering accidents outside limits of corporate communities listed 276 accidents during the last year. That compares with 323 the year 1956 and a 12-year high in 1955 of 355 traffic accidents. The report shows that in 1946 195 accidents occurred in rural DeKalb County. The next year 207 were investigated with the 12-year low coming in 1948 when 187 mishaps were reported.

Lyle Leas has been appointed chairman of the annual fund drive for mental health in DeKalb County.

A cow and a dog that died recently have been found to be infected with rabies, according to a Butler veterinarian. Butler police also reported that a dog which recently bit a Butler high school girl is under observation at the dog pound in Butler. Since the county quarantine went into effect recently, 35 dogs have been turned over to veterinarians. Another dog was shot.

Blood donations are urgently needed and the officers of the county blood donation program ask Saint Joe and Spencerville residents to keep the date April 21 in mind for giving blood at the Red Cross Bloodobile. Appointments should be made by calling Butler UN 8-2436. It takes less than an hour to give a pint of blood. Precautions are taken to make certain that the individual is physically able to donate blood. Anyone between the ages 18 and 50 who pass the physical check-up are eligible to donate. Blood can be donated at 8 week intervals but not oftener than 5 times a year. Remember, your pint of blood may save a life.

Harry O. Waltz, 83, a former resident of Garrett, died at his home in New Port Richey, Fla., Friday following a heart attack. Funeral rites were conducted Tuesday at Hicksville. Burial was in Six Corners Cemetery. Mr. Waltz was born in Defiance County and had lived in Hicksville. He moved to Garrett from a farm near Spencerville. Prior to his moving to Florida five years ago he had a Farm Bureau oil truck route. Surviving are two sons, Olen of Bluffton and Harold of Chicago.

Fremont town officials have finished final arrangements for the construction of the Fremont Sanitary Sewer. The sewage treatment plant will be located a mile west of Fremont on state road 120. Total cost of the project will be $296, 325.00 of which $29,325.00 was received from a government grant. $267,000.00 was obtained from a bond sale on February 18, 1958.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Means of Auburn, Walter Means of Fort Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Means and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Means spent Easter Sunday with Howard Means and family of Leo.

Around the Town

With the Editor

The jokes about "my aching sacroiliac" have always been amusing; but last week when ye Ed's back gave him trouble, the jokes didn't seem so funny. I did something wrong, evidently, and had to be content to get by as quickly as possible, hence only four pages last week.

Well, it wasn't exactly my back; it was more like - well, you know how the ditty "Dry Bones" goes, "- - - the back bone conneca to the hip bone - - ". In between theres a tail bone and mine wasn't conneca to anything just right.

Joe Foltz brings a message from his sister, Mrs. Lillian Buckingham, who is now staying at the Sheehy Home in Butler. She wants to thank everyone who remembers her occasionally with a visit or a card. These acts of thoughtfulness are greatly appreciated.

For the last two years now, we have been such good Easter bunnies in our family that we have to hunt eggs even when we do the hiding ourselves.

Last Easter Sunday Grandpa Haberkorn and I went out into his big back yard along the Saint Joe River and hid 46 colored eggs so that the boys could do some hunting. We gave them the go sign finally and they went. After about 15 minutes of hunting a total of about 40 eggs had been collected. We hunted some more. Then the boys went in the house to watch TV, and that left us adults tromping around the yard looking for the rest of the eggs.

You know, we never did find all of them. —And the same thing happened last year.

Some items for the things-we-like-to-hear department:

"It was sold before I even had a chance to read the paper." —Bill LaRowe commenting on the effectiveness of an ad in this paper.

"I've been watching; he runs some pretty good specials." —A Fort Wayne supermarket assistant manager commenting on a local grocer's regular ads in this paper.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all our friends and neighbors for their expressions of sympathy, their prayers, cards, beautiful flowers and every deed of kindness at the death of our beloved husband and father.

Two Injured In Car Accident

Two Spencerville girls were injured, one of them critically, Sunday afternoon in a one-car crash that occurred on County Road 64, a mile south and .8 mile west of Saint Joe. Injured were Miss Judith Miller, 17, and the driver of the car, Miss Shirley Ann Smith, 19. Miss Miller was taken to a hospital in Auburn immediately following the accident but was taken to Fort Wayne Tuesday of this week due to the seriousness of her injuries. A brain operation was indicated necessary from x-rays taken thus far. Miss Smith was taken to the Parkview Hospital for treatment of her injuries, including a broken left leg, severe lacerations to the left forearm, multiple bruises, abrasions and shock.

State troopers said the westbound Ford driven by the Smith girl left the road on the right side. It traveled along the berm and ditch for 30 feet before it crashed headlong into a tree. The car rolled over after hitting the tree. Damage was estimated at $1,200 to the automobile.

The accident occurred apparently when the car went out of control on a rough portion of the road. Speed was estimated at from 30 to 40 miles per hour.

Miss Smith is recovering from her injuries satisfactorily. Miss Miller underwent a brain operation Wednesday to remove a bone and blod clot near one eye and is reported "fair."

April 18 Will Be Seniors' 'Work Day'

The Senior Class of Riverdale High School will hold its annual "Work Day" on Friday, April 18. Residents of the community are invited to take advantage of the seniors' ambition that day aimed at raising their class treasury.

Services included are a car wash at Casey's Mobil Station, scrap drive or any odd jobs which may need attention.

Contact any senior or call the Riverdale principal's office, Saint Joe 2345. Hours for working will be from 8:30 a. m. to 4:00 p.m.

PTA Elects For 1958-59

The Riverdale P.T.A. met Tuesday evening at the high school gym in Saint Joe with a large group of parents and students in attendance.

Opening business was the election of officers for the coming school year 1958-1959. Results of the election were as follows:

President—Ted Haberkorn.
Vice president—James Beck.
Secretary—Freida Guilford.
Treasurer—Loretta Musser.

The first grade then presented a talented array of young people who sang about "The Happy Farmer," danced a folk dance and presented an "Easter Parade" of fashions.

Carol Baker and a girls sextet presented musical numbers as representatives of the freshman class.

Dr. Harry O'Bear then presented a short talk followed by a film about the Fort Wayne State School. The film showed the methods of teaching and training a young girl who was in need of special care due to mental retardation and how such care at the school helped her to return to normal living in the outside world as a useful citizen in society.

Dr. O'Bear extended an invitation to anyone interested in the mental health program including community organizations to visit the Fort Wayne State School for a tour of inspection. He commented informally following the P.T.A. meeting that he wished to compliment the large number or parents present for the meeting for their attendance, observing that records show a child whose parents are active in the P.T.A. is usually a better student in the school.

Tuesday's meeting was the last regular meeting of the year for the P.T.A. Achievement Night, which takes the place of the May meeting, will be held Friday evening, May 16, a tentative date. At that time students will receive awards from the P.T.A. in recognition of scholastic achievements and extra-curricular activities during the 1957-1958 school year.

Services Held For John Hart

Funeral services were conducted last Thursday for John Franklin Hart, 77, of Saint Joe who died Monday before of cancer after a two-year illness. Services were held at the Saint Joe Church of Christ with James Beck, pastor of the church, officiating. Burial was in Leo Cemetery.

Mr. Hart was born in Saint Joe on July 16, 1880, the son of the late Franklin P. and Minerva Sweet Hart. He resided in the Saint Joe community all his life. He and Bessie Searl were married at New London, O., on February 24, 1904. Mr. Hart was a building mover and later went into the contracting business.

Survivors include the widow; five daughters, Mrs. Victor Brown of Winter Park, Fla., Mrs. Elberta Jones of Saint Joe, Mrs. Richard Frias of Fostoria, O.; Mrs. Steve Dix of Cecil, O., and Mrs. Ronald Deventer of Spencerville; three sons, Donald of Saint Joe, Charles of Goshen and James of Hicksville; 26 grandchildren; 24 great-grandchildren; two brothers, Roscoe of South Bend and Elmer of Ecorse, Mich.; and three sisters; Mrs. Delia Dolph of Los Angeles, Calif., Mrs. Eva Hathaway of Solon Springs, Wis., and Mrs. Inez Daub of Milwaukee, Wis.

Mr. Hart was a member of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

May 2 Is Date For Pre-School Visitation

All children of the Riverdale School district who will be six years old on or before October 10, 1958, are invited to visit the first grade of the Riverdale Elementary School at Spencerville on Friday, May 2, 1958.

School begins at 8:00 a.m. C.S.T. Children may ride on the school bus that passes nearest their home. Lunch will be served in the school cafeteria free of charge. Parents may call for their children at 12:00 o'clock C.S.T. or arrange to have a neighbor or friend bring them home.

Children are asked to bring their birth certificate to have them registered at the school. This will save some confusion at the beginning of the new school year next fall. It will also help to bring the blank appearing herewith to help teachers know the children.

PLEASE FILL IN THIS BLANK and SEND IT WITH YOUR CHILD! PRE-SCHOOL DAY, FRIDAY, MAY 2, 1958.

Local News

The Riverdale Class of '61 will hold a local scrap drive on Saturday, April 26. If you wish to contribute, please phone one of the following numbers: Concord Township, Saint Joe 2887; Spencer Township, Spencerville 68; Newville Township, Hicksville 43175; Jackson Township, Auburn 12-12R2.

Miss Tricia Weber, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Henry Weber of Spencerville, celebrated her 4th birthday Wednesday of last week with Norma Jean Furnish, Cindy Hoover, Mary Ann and Mike Stemen, Warren Fish, Jill Graham, Vickey and Steve Kelley, Joan Hudson and Cheryl Moore.

A film on cancer will be shown Monday, April 21, at 8 p.m. for women only at St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. The Concord Junior Home Demonstration Club is sponsor of the showing. All women are urged to attend. No admission will be charged.

The Bloodmobile will be in Butler Monday, April 21, from 10:30 A.M. to 4:30 P.M. to receive donations of a pint of blood from residents of this area. Marcia Sicard of Butler is in charge of appointments for donations.

In a track meet last Wednesday afternoon, Auburn scored 96 points, Avilla 27 and Riverdale 14. The only first taken by the Comets was in the broad jump with Copin reaching a distance of 18' 5 3-8".

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Walter are the parents of a daughter born Sunday, April 13. The young lady weighed 7 lbs. 2 ozs. at birth and has been named Teresa Nadine.

Mrs. Lester Anthony, Mrs. Lynn Fisher, Mrs. Harvey Leonard and Mrs. L. Akey attended the W.S.C.S. District meeting in Fort Wayne April 9.

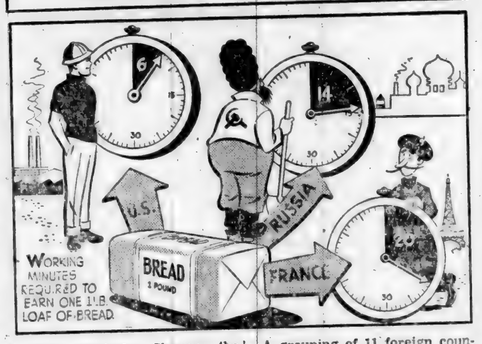
Three dogs picked up in Waterloo last week were infected with rabies. One of the dogs was reported to have bitten several other dogs. This new outbreak of rabies re-emphasizes the importance of keeping pets confined. Stray dogs in the Saint Joe community should be reported to Mrs. Roy Chapman.

The Methodist Church held their annual loyalty dinner and meeting Friday evening in the church basement.

Forrest Bevington was elected vice-president of the DeKalb County Classroom Teachers Association Friday in a meeting held at Auburn. Mrs. Merl Guilford is the out-going president.

The Jorge Bolet concert, cancelled April 9 because of difficulties in scheduling, will be presented on Wednesday evening, April 23, at 8:15 p.m. at the Junior High auditorium in Auburn.

AS TIME GOES B(U)Y!



Ivan Skavinsky Skavar, the average Russian industrial worker, labors five times as long to fill his family's market basket as does Joe Smith, the typical American laborer.

In a talk before the National Food Conference, held recently in Washington, D. C., Vice President Nixon pointed out that Joe Smith can buy a pound loaf of enriched bread with six minutes of labor, according to figures compiled by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics. Ivan works 14 minutes for the same amount of bread which does not equal the U. S. loaf nutritionally.

Ivan works 132 minutes for a pound of beef. Joe Smith buys it with 31 minutes of labor. Joe works 25 minutes to add a pound of sliced bacon to the family larder; Ivan has to stay on the job 331 minutes to buy the same amount from a Moscow State store.

A grouping of 11 foreign countries, according to the work time required to buy food, indicates that the American worker spent less than one-fifth as much time to pay for a given quantity of food as the Soviet worker. He (the American) spent from 20 to 36 per cent as much as the Italian, Austrian, or French workers; from 39 to 48 per cent as much time as the Dutch, West Germans, Irish or Swiss; and from 62 to 71 per cent as much time as the Danish, British, or Norwegian workers.

Joe Smith works 4 minutes for a pound of flour. Irishmen and Norwegians are runners-up. They work six minutes for their pound of flour. Again, tops in the flour field is Russia, where 27 minutes of work are necessary.

French bread is in demand in many countries, but not-so-lucky-Pierre works 20 minutes for a pound of it.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible material: Exodus 2—4.

Devotional reading: Isaiah 44:21-28.

IN GOD'S SCHOOL

Lesson for April 20, 1958

You can study for almost any profession you choose - business, farming, medicine, law, the ministry; all except one. As a college president said once, "There are no courses leading to the presidency of a college." Where are the doctors of tomorrow? Look in the medical schools. Where are the ministers? Look for them in the seminaries. Where are the college presidents? Almost anywhere - in business, in graduate school, practicing law, preaching. They don't realize they are being prepared for a big job, but they are. This s true of all sorts of leaders. Man can prepare professionals; but only God can prepare a leader.

Learning By Failure

What we call Providence, God's ordering and controlling the circumstances of life, becomes his way of preparing and educating those whom he raises up to be leaders. The story of Moses is a case in point. There was one unique feature of his education that was peculiar to his case. Perhaps it has happened to no one else in the history of the world. Thanks to his mother and the Egyptian princess together, he not only had the best of education in the capital of the world's then greatest civilization, but he laso was brought up to know the true God. Secular education and religious education: he enjoyed free, the best of each. Not many leaders have been so fortunate.

But Moses shared with most men who have risen to leadership an educative experience very hard to take at the time, namely, the experience of failure. He must have learned by it, for he never tried it again. In his eagerness to help his fellow-Hebrews he commited a murder. He thought it the perfect crime, no doubt, for "he looked this way and that, and saw . . . no man." But it was known, all the same, and he had to leave Egypt. The point is, he learned by that tragedy that simple blind brute force is not the way to change a bad sit uation. The power of leadership does not depend on power of killing. The most violent man is seldom the most valued leader.

Learning by Familiarity

The forty years Moses spent in the wilderness as Jethro's hired man and son-in-law, were a complete contrast to all his earlier life. No doubt Moses must have acquired what nowadays is called an inferiority complex. We do know that when God called him, he put up a number of excuses. But in those long years "behind the beyond," Moses was learning everything about the wilderness of Sinai. The whole region was home to him. He knew the hard life of the desert tribesman, he knew every little creek and water-hole, he knew which plants could be eaten and which were poison, he knew the friendly tribes and the treacherous ones. What he did not realize at the time was that God was seeing to it that he became familiar with the details of the scenes of his great life-work.

Learning by Harship

One difference between a good leader and a "phony" one is that the false one demands much in return - wealth, comforts, luxuries, adulation, fame. He does not care much about the people he leads, indeed he despises them; but he cares a great real about himself. The true leader, be he a Garibaldi or a Saint Paul, does not ask others to do what he will not do himself, and he is willing to suffer a great deal if only his people can win through.

Mosese also, though brought up in luxury, was a poor man when he set out to lead Israel to the Promised Land; and he died just as poor. His salary during all the long years when he was Israel's leader was just nothing at all. They lived hard and he lived hard. The point is God was preparing him for that, by his long hard years as Jethro's sheep-herder. He was learning that a man can live on little, and like it. Every hardship and privation which he experienced in the back country - and it all must have been specially hard for a man of his lush background - was just another lesson in the Course in Hardship, a required course in the University of Hard Knocks. Not every one knows what Moses did; the head of that school is - God.

- 80th ANNIVERSARY -

On March 18, 1958, the DeKalb County Farmer's Mutual Fire Insurance Company entered its 80th year of operation. The Company was organized in 1878 by twelve leading farmers of the County for the purpose of reducing the cost of fire insurance to themselves and neighbors. To date, savings of untold amounts have been accomplished by furnishing insurance at cost.

About four years ago, the Board seeing a need for additional coverages added the perils of extended coverage plus theft, vandalism, electrocution of livestock, upset of farm machinery, etc., excluding wind and hail. On January 25, 1958, at the annual meeting, the members present adopted recommendations of the Board for the addition of WIND and HAIL coverages.

Up until this time, those coverages were written with the Indiana Farmers Mutual Insurance Company of Indianapolis and premiums were collected in advance. With the new system, all coverages can be included in one policy in the County Mutual with complete county control of adjusting, premiums and rulings. By this action all township agents have been relieved of their connection with the state company, excepting Lester Boger and Maurice Chisholm, who are continuing the writing of auto and farm liability coverages only.

For further information concerning these new coverages, contact the agent in your township whose name appears in the following list, or county office at 209 North Cedar Street, Auburn.

Fairfield - Ora Rowe
Smithfield - Ralph Hamman
Franklin and Troy - Florin Knox
Richland - J. E. Sherrick
Grant - Virgil Korff
Wilmington - Harold Ferguson
Stafford - Milo Provines
Keyser - Maurice Chisholm
Union - Donald D. Johnson
Butler - Oscar S. Noel
Jackson - Wm. Essig and Russell Kruse
Concord - Wm. Staman
Spencer - Karl Hart
Newville - C. H. Young
General agent and secretary - Lester E. Boger

Directors who are not agents are: Chester Buttermore, Cleve Grube, Lloyd Mason. It is the hope of the directors that by adding the wind and hail coverages to the policy that considerable additional savings will be made for the company members.

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

There was almost a catastrophe at the last P.T.A. meeting.

The gym was darkened for the showing of the movie of the Fort Wayne State School. Mr. Stackhouse was sitting on the bleachers, as were several others, enjoying the film. Enjoying it, that is, except for that sensation on his leg which felt as if a door were open and a draft wending its way along the floor. The funny sensation persisted, and tickled, I suppose. And finally Mr. Stackhouse reached down and brushed at his pant leg to relieve that funny sensation.

Out ran a mouse.

—Think what would have happened if the lights were on and some of the women had seen it. Oh boy.

—Ray Means assures the ladies that that is the first mouse he's heard of at the school house for some time, having conducted an anti-rodent campaign during his tenure as custodian of the high school buildings.

A familiar face appeared in the News Office Thursday, familiar except for a nice coat of tan. It belonged to Ed Storer who is back home after a winter of galavanting around from Phoenix to California to Florida and back home. He's lost a few pounds and gained a nice toasted brown complexion.

Now that there is a new fire truck in our midst, the good efforts of the local fire department should be that much more effective. We are fortunate in having several townsmen interested in fire protection and active in the fire department. And our trustee and advisory board are to be congratulated for their efforts in bringing about the acquisition of the new equipment.

CULTURE CLUB

The Saint Joe Culture Club met April 16 at the home of Mary Lou Brookfield.

The meeting was opened by the president, Marian Furnish. The collect and pledge to the flag were given in unison. Devotions were by Lois Fisher on What Is Your Size.

The lesson was crafts, also given by Lois Fisher. Roll call was answered by 10 members.

Secretary's report was read and approved after which new club officers were installed by the president.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

New Truck Ready For Action

The sun wouldn't shine during Concord Township's fire truck demonstration Sunday afternoon. But after the rains came, Old Sol did, too. So members of the volunteer fire department still at the fire hall graciously agreed to pose for the above photo so that News readers could get a look at the new look in the local fire department. Pictured above are (left to right): Fire Chief Frank Monroe, Joe Robinson, D. W. Yeiser, Roy Bowser, Merl Guilford and Orville Coburn.

The new fire truck for Concord Township arrived at Saint Joe last Friday and local firemen promptly began "rehearsals" with the new apparatus to become accustomed to its use. On Sunday afternoon while weather permitted, members of the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department demonstrated the pumping abilities of the truck at Kees gravel pit at the east edge of Saint Joe. Rain stopped the demonstrations in mid-afternoon, however, and cancelled activities.

On Monday evening, the fire department met with trustee Walter Morr and advisory board members Frank Sechler and Bill Sible to discuss arrangements between the township and the fire department concerning fire runs. Township officials announced that no charges will be made for fire runs within Concord Township boundaries. Any calls made outside the township will be charged at the rate of $50.00 per run.

The co-operative arrangement between the township and the fire department calls for service of local firemen in township fire runs and housing of the equipment in exchange for any possible needs within the town limits of Saint Joe.

The new equipment was purchased from the Howe Fire Apparatus Co. of Anderson. An additional water supply tank truck will be added to the department's equipment to give greater fire-fighting protection.

At Monday's meeting the women's axiliary also formulated its future plans of activity. Officers of the group are

Sp'ville Meeting To Decide Action On Gym

This coming Saturday, April 26, an important meeting for Spencerville residents will be held. The purpose of the meeting is to decide what action, if any, should be taken in regard to the acquisition of the Spencerville gymnasium which has been offered for sale by the Riverdale school board.

The meeting will be held at the Spencerville fire hall at 7:00 p.m. and residents of the community are urged to attend if they are interested in bidding on the property.

The school board recently offered the property for sale after deciding that the use of the building for school activities did not justify the cost of upkeep. The gym has been used primarily for community programs in the past and as a practice floor for grade school, junior high and high school basketball aspirants.

Bids on the property will be accepted by the Riverdale school board until its meeting on Monday, May 5, at which time the bids will be considered. Spencer Township residents are urged to attend the meeting Saturday night to decide the course of action to be taken.

May 2 Is Date For Pre-School Visitation

All children of the Riverdale School district who will be six years old on or before October 10, 1958, are invited to visit the first grade of the Riverdale Elementary School at Spencerville on Friday, May 2, 1958.

School begins at 8:00 a.m. C.S.T. Children may ride on the school bus that passes nearest their home. Lunch will be served in the school cafeteria free of charge. Parents may call for their children at 12:00 o'clock C.S.T. or arrange to have a neighbor or friend bring them home.

Children are asked to bring their birth certificate to have them registered at the school. This will save some confusion at the beginning of the new school year next fall. It will also help to bring the blank appearing herewith to help teachers know the children.

PLEASE FILL IN THIS BLANK and SEND IT WITH YOUR CHILD! PRE-SCHOOL DAY, FRIDAY, MAY 2, 1958.

All Owe For Opportunity

The greatest problem to be met in scheduling a system of taxation is that of levying a tax or taxes which are fair to everyone. The problem is, perhps, that there is no such tax, or at least, if there is merit to opposition voiced against this or that tax, there doesn't appear to be any tax which is acceptable to all professions and classes of people and workable with the masses with the least amount of dissention.

One of the most disturbing elements in deciding upon a system of taxation is that which tends to look upon the prosperous individual as being the most liable to taxation. In our present day federal income tax, the increase in the rate of taxation is so sharp as individual income increases that the very principle of free enterprise seems to be repudiated. It does not seem logical that we boast of the fruits of our capitalistic system while at the same time we penalize those who take advantage of it. It does not seem logical that we boast of the opporunities open to all men to make better of themselves only to jolt them with a much greater tax bill percentagewise than the man who does little to better himself.

While there may be some justification to the idea that the individual with more money ought to pay more taxes percentagewise, there is no justification to the greater amount of taxes which he has to pay under the present federal income tax system. The fairest and the most logical is a system of taxation which is based on percentage of income that has little variation. If we are to be consistent with the idea that there is an opportunity for anyone to better himself through greater efforts in his occupation, through increased productivity and creativeness, then we must allow that person the enjoyment of the greater rewards he may reap. If anyone can better himself through incentive, then everyone should be paying the same rate, percentagewise, of taxation, or a reasonably close system of rates. Under the present tax system on income, the picture is painted that those who reap a greater reward are a privileged class and owe more than the less ambitious because of their greater income.

At the present time, with the "recession" at hand and the people and the government scurrying thither and yon proposing solutions to the problem of unemployment and faltering business, suggestions have been made that the amount allowed as deductions for dependents be increased. The theory is that an increased deduction will lower taxes and thus put more dollars in the consumers' pockets. But what also would happen would be that a great many families would become exempt from taxation. In other words, we appear to reason that only those who have "enough" money are liable to suport the government which has given them the opportunity to have "enough" money, that though the opportunity is present for all, those who take advantage of the opportunity are more liable. This does not reflect a spirit of fair play, it does not make a wholesome picture of free government, of the free enterprise system, of the capitalistic system, to penalize productivity.

Much of the difficulty encountered in considering the tax system and ways to improve it comes from a natural desire to have somebody else pay the bill. We would all feel good about having the burden of taxation shifted a little from our shoulders onto the shoulders of someone else, feeling sure that the shift was justified because of this or that economic condition which exists either in our household or business or in that of the other fellow. But eventually reason will bring home the fact that it is not possible to shift the burden onto someone else without violating a principle which is basic to good sound government operated through a sound approach to the system of taxation.

There is not one household that should be excused from making some contribution, no matter how small, to the cost of operating the federal government through federal income tax, if that is to be a major source of revenue. Freedom worth something to one is worth something to all.

'Help' For Business

If the proposals which are suggested from time to time concerning finances in the business world are analyzed, it can be seen that a great many of them are purposely or otherwise intended to appeal to a certain group or social class. This is quite a problem today, for in these years of high government spending, there is the need for high government taxation. And men being what they are want to get out of high tax bills by whatever means possible. Sometimes it is quite apparent that the suggestions offered by our Congressmen are aimed not at solving a problem for the good of all but at relieving a certain group for monetary reasons which then results in a favorable reaction at voting time. Right now, anyone who would be relieved of their federal income tax obligation, should an increase in personal exemptions for dependents be allowed, would quite naturally be particularly friendly toward the man or men who were responsible for getting him out of such tax payment.

But such reactions for favoritism are not confined to the field of taxation. This idea of "helping out" someone goes into other territory. Specifically, we hear of the government considering means of helping "small business", the necessity for such help felt because of the great number of businesses which each month are swallowed up by mergers with larger corporations or which are lost just because they could not profit. Just how small "small business' is in the eyes of most people, we do not know. But speaking as a very, very small business in a very, very small town, we view with skepticism these proposals concerning a helping hand for small business. We do not think that the solution lies in extending help in one way or another momentarily, but lies in studying the picture of business as a whole to determine why small business is having a tough time of it.

Speaking for ourselves, we would like for our Congressmen to consider not "how can we help small business" but "why does small business need help." If the latter were to be studied, we believe there would be a greater benefit all around; not only would small business benefit but so also would big business. We believe that there is room for and need for both the big and little businessman and that the problems of one are the problems of the other, the only difference being in size of operation.

Small business doesn't need help; all business needs help. Sound legislation and sound business practices, playing no favorites, are the only solutions to the ailments which confront business today.

AN INTELLECTUAL ELITE DESIRABLE

The suggestions concerning youth and education contained herein are brief, but they represent the matured reflections of one who was a university professor for 25 years and has never ceased to be interested in those who are future citizens of both time and eternity.

1. Reduce the elementary school training to six years and the high school to three, through harder work and more intensive teaching.

2. College education should be an intellectual privilege, not a social necessity. Presently "it is smart to go to college" when we should say "one must be smart to go to college."

3. Introduce two kinds of high schools and colleges: one Standard the other Honor. The Standard Schools would be partly vocational and adapted to the average students. The Honor Schools would have high intellectual standards with rigorous examinations. It will be objected that such an arrangement would incite an "elite." Certainly, those who drive Cadillacs are the economically "elite"; football players are more the "elite" to high school students than brilliant students. Why not have an intellectual elite? The purpose of the division would be to prevent the leveling down of education to a point where the dumb and the mediocre have the same classes and take the same amount of time as the learned and the industrious. We do more in America for the delinquent than for the intellectual.

4. Meet the rising cost of education in colleges not by raising tuition, but by decreasing the number of courses available. Students would be better educated if certain so-called "life adjustment" courses were eliminated. Many students take "snap" courses provided they do not come at nine in the morning. The president of Yale recently received a transcript from a high school student who had courses in chorus, physical education, personality, marriage, English and speech. If 30 per cent of the elective courses were eliminated and the professors given not only Sabbatical leave, but Monday to Friday leave. education would improve and the expenses of education would be reduced. Many college courses a good student could absorb without going to class, provided he did 10 hours of serious reading.

5. Certain courses should be required in college, such as History, English, Science, Philosophy and a foreign language. In Switzerland, the students of elementary schools learn three languages. The California State Board of Education has a regulation: "No foreign language shall be required by a state college as a condition of graduation." The purpose of studying a foreign language is not necessarily to speak it, but to open a door to culture and knowledge, not otherwise available. If more Americans spoke French during their visits to Paris, they would not have to shout at the waiter in English, as if he were deaf, instead of them being dumb.

6. When juvenile delinquents destroy any property, their parents should be made to make reparation by paying the damages. It may be hard on the parents, but it is harder on other parents whose property is destroyed.

7. Juvenile delinquents who have been guilty of repeated serious offenses should be sent to a camp for a period of one or two years or more. In this camp, there would be a combination of education, hard outdoor work and both under army discipline.

8. In teacher-colleges, the stress should not be on the methods of education as it has been up to the present, but on the knowledge of subjects. Too much "how" and too little "know" has depreciated the content of courses and made "know how" a substitute for "knowledge."

9. Make examinations bear more on the ability of the student to think and to utilize his knowledge, rather than a guessing game in which he chooses between what is true and what is false by merely marking a paper with a check.

10. Stress quality rather than quantity. A contestant may not go on the $64,000 Question without having passed a test proving familiarity with a subject, before he ever appears before a television camera. Would it not be a good idea for colleges and high schools to give tests to the professors before they go into the classroom? This is necessary because today a teacher who has a Ph. D. is not necessarily educated. He may have written a thesis on "Four Ways of Cooking Ham" which is the subject of one Ph. D. in an American university.

FARMERS AND PROGRESS AND TOO MUCH PRODUCTION

Most of us have repeatedly heard in recent years the statement: "People are leaving the farms in droves; we must keep the people on the land." Let's take a clear-headed look at this statement. When the United States government was established a few years before 1800, farmers made up 96 per cent of the population. Nearly everyone was engaged in the problem of providing food and fiber for the nation's families. As production efficiencies increased on the farms and our nation grew, a trend was established in which large numbers of farmers found that they could improve their economic status by seeking urban employment.

That trend has continued until today our farm families contitute only 12 per cent of the nation's population. Yet farm production, improved through mechanization, new fertilizers and techniques, and stimulated artificially by Government subsidization of prices now far exceeds the need and the demand. Government warehouses are overflowing with $7 billion worth of unmarketable produce and additional billions in taxpayers money are being spent each year in an impractical effort to solve the "farm problem."

The Committee for Economic Development has published an analysis of the problem which notes that: "While total output has been rising the number of workers in agriculture has declined from 10,979,000 in 1940 . . . to 7,869,000 in 1956. The farm community has thus been able to release 4,110,000 workers - 28 per cent - from 1940 to 1956. Without these recruits from agriculture the growth of American industry could not have been so rapid." Although it has been slowed down by the price subsidy program, the migration off the farms has been economically healthy - both for the farm families involved and for the nation's general welfare.

"If it had not been for this movement," the CED notes, "the present-day decline in average farm income would be much more severe, for many more farmers would be dividing up total farm income." The Committee contends that Government subsidization of prices is keeping many families on farms, living meagerly, who would do much better in other occupations - just as millions like them have done better in the farm-urban migration during more than fifty years of transition.

The Government's farm census of 1954 listed 4,783,018 farms. Only 44 per cent - 2,101,839 - have market sales totaling as much as $2,500 a year. Yet they produce more than 90.8 per cent of all farm produce for market. The less productive farms - 2,680,000, or 56 per cent - produce only 9.2 per cent of total farm production measured by dollar value. The chief significance of these figures, observes the CED, is that the 56 per cent of farms which produce so little do not have the same problems as commercial farmers. They produce individually only a few hundred dollars in produce for market. Thus it is impossible to provide them with adequate net income by means of price supports.

The CED report emphasizes that "Commercial farmers" are for the most part family farmers. Only 134,000 farms, out of 4,783,018 sell as much as $25,000 a year in farm produce. And, says the CED, "the indications are that a large share of these are individually owned and operated . . . the fact that family farms are growing larger is misintedpreted as indicating they are on the way out. Instead, they are adjusting to modern technology and mechanization. Commercial farming is still overwhelmingly a family business, and appears likely to remain so."

But what about this 56 per cent of all farms which sell from $100 to $2,500 worth of products a year? The number of these "subsistence" farms decreased by 20 per cent in the four year period preceeding the 1954 farm census. These farm families voluntarily moved into urban areas and found better paying occupations. The CED suggests that a plan to speed this transition must be a major part of any workable program designed to solve the farm problem.

"Our program," the Committee says, "means getting resources - people and land - out of agriculture and freeing farm prices." It seems to be a program that would accomplish these two objectives with a minimum of dislocation in the economy and with a minimum of harm to those low income farmers who simply have been unable to compete as scientific agricultural production advances.

Nearly every non-political plan for solving the farm problem calls for a reduction in the number of people on the farms and in the number of acres being farmed. The Committee for Economic Development, a non-political organization doing research on national problems, offers a plan for accomplishing these reductions in the field of agricultural production.

"Our first recommendation," a special CED report says, "is that the Soil Bank be freed of all encumbrances, and be re-directed toward the single goal: paying farmers to take resources out of crop production, thus reducing output. A good place to start is to repeal the $3,000 limitation on payments, so as to get the emphasis off income support and on land retirement. The overriding guide in the use of public funds for this purpose should always be: is the public receiving 100 cents of production adjustment for every dollar of its money?

"The new program should direct the administration to concentrate its efforts overwhelmingly on the retirement of whole farms. This is being increasingly encouraged in the conservation reserve program, and properly so. Out of 82,588 conservation reserve contracts signed for the 1957 crop year, 12,163 call for retirement of whole farms. . .

"We have made repeated references to the human factor in a program of resource reduction. People are involved, not just land. A survey taken for the Department of Agriculture indicates that, among farmers who put whole farms into the conservation reserve, the known availability of a job in town is one of the most frequently cited reasons. Farm people who have better earning potentials in other lines should be offered special training opportunities, as part of the resources adjustment program.

"There is no danger that we would thus be contributing to the disappearance of the family farm. We have already noted that the family farm is successfully holding its own. Offering farmers now trying to make a living from the poorest soil a chance to re-establish themselves in other callings is actually a method of strengthening the family farm as an institution, for it would retire the weakest and most vulnerable units."

The fact is that a 160 acre farm, operated with tools and techniques of years gone by, can no longer satisfy the living-standard desires of today's farm family. That's why the successful farmers are having to expand their acreage in addition to investing in the latest mechanical implements and chemical aids. The successful farmer also must keep in touch with new developments in seeds, cultivation methods, irrigation possibilites - in other words with the advancing science of agriculture. Otherwise he simply cannot compete in the food and fiber market, and he must be satisfied with a subsistence or find a better, non-farming occupation.

The CED program is designed to withdraw all forms of Government price supports, acreage allotments and market controls - gradually as the acreage and manpower is reduced. The CED says the cost of its recommended program "can be expected to be considerable, but probably less than the present - futile - outlays at the outset, but can also be expected to taper off and end, or reach a very low maintenance level."

The American people, everyday citizens, must move in on the present wasteful farm program. With taxpayers being called upon to finance a record $40 billion annual expenditure for the Communist military threat, we must quickly halt the $5 billion outlay which in the long run is helping no one.

—Dr. George S. Benson, Director, National Education Program, Searcy, Arkansas.

"WHEN IT RAINS, IT POURS"

We have all had the experience of one difficulty following closely on the heels of another difficulty only to be followed in turn by more difficulties. Some one has said, "That is life." At least, it is life at times. In an attempt to find its parallel in the world about us, the expression has been adopted for such times, "When it rains, it pours."

A newspaper editor in Cunningham, Kansas, (editing the "Cunningham Clipper") writes as follows concerning one such time experienced by a Cunningham family:

"A Cunningham family, who refuses to buy or subscribe to the Clipper, sent their little boy to the neighbors to borrow the last issue. In his haste, the boy knocked over a $5.00 stand of bees, and in ten minutes he resembled a warty summer squash. His father ran to his assistance and failing to see the barbed wire fence ripped a $10.00 pair of slacks. The family cow took advantage of the gap in the fence and headed for the cornfield, where she killed herself eating green corn. Hearing the racket, the man's wife ran out and upset a four-gallon churn of cream into a basket of baby chicks, drowning the entire batch. In the excitement, she dropped and broke a $75.00 set of false teeth. The baby, left to himself, crawled through the spilled cream into the parlor, ruining a $50.00 rug. All of which proves that a subscription to the Clipper is cheaper - $2.00 per year."

We are not in a position to pass on the truthfulness of all the editor said happened, but such reduces to writing the thought we wish to consider.

When times like these occur, the test is on. It may be a chastening from the Lord, it may be a temptation from the devil, or it may be the result of our own thoughtlessness. But, whichever it is, how we bear such times goes a long way toward telling whether we are children of God or people of the world. Patience, steadiness, self-control, and intelligent deliberation are virtues that come to the surface when one is truly Christian. If it is chastening, let us bear it. If it is temptation from the devil, let us stand it. If it is thoughtlessness on our part, let us be the wiser and not repeat it.

THE RABIES PROBLEM

The rabies situation in Indiana is one which is giving rise to concern, according to Dr. A. C. Offutt, State Health Commissioner. Within the first three months of 1958, nearly half of last year's total number of cases of this disease have been reported, Dr. Offutt asserted.

During 1957, the incidence of rabies in Indiana was the lowest it had been since 1925, according to State Board of Health records. There were 118 cases of the disease reported for the year, of which 100 were in common household pets (94 in dogs and 6 in cats). However, one human death occurred, and the source of exposure in the case was not known.

"To date, Dr. Offutt pointed out, "three cows, one hog and 45 dogs have been victims of rabies, and Marion County the total number of cases reported this year has already exceeded the total number of cases reported for 12 months of 1957."

Dr. Offutt said that four other counties have reported cases of rabies this year where in previous years (the past two and a half) no cases of the disease had been reported.

"As long as these conditions exist in our state," Dr. Offutt said, "Hoosier citizens will continue to be exposed to a disease which could be eliminated if proper control measures were instituted."

State law now requires all dog owners to have pets immunized against rabies. Dogs should be immunized within the first six months of life, reimmunized within one year, and at such frequency as recommended by the local veterinarian.

According to Dr. Offutt, "if all pets are immunized, and if community programs to control the stray dog population are instituted, rabies can become a thing of the past."

The State Health Commissioner emphasized the following precautions which should be taken if individuals are bitten by an animal suspected of being rabid:

1. Wash the wound thoroughly with soap and water.

2. Exert every effort to apprehend the biting animal, and place it under observation for 14 days.

3. Consult the family physician immediately, giving him the facts concerning the animal, and advising him whether the animal was placed under observation, whether it escaped, or was killed.

—The Monthly Bulletin, Indiana State Board of Health, April 1958.

'GAG' ON ADVERTISING

Another vicious invasion of our dwindling freedoms was chalked up last month when the Bureau of Internal Revenue took action to try to gag private industry from using advertising to fight government competition.

A group of privately-owned electric companies, which has used newspaper and magazine space to explain to the American people how private utilities were being unfairly penalized by competition from tax-free government power operations, was not only denied the relief it sought, but was told to "put up or shut up" - to pay higher taxes to the government or else discontinue exercising its right to free speech in a free press.

This was done by the simple expedient of ruling that such advertising - advertising aimed at seeking fair competition - could no longer be deducted as a business expense for income tax purposes.

Many of the advertisements, in the series which the electric companies have been running for the past 17 years, had nothing to do with the problem of government competition, but even they were ruled out in the government's apparent effort to "get back" at these companies for daring to criticize government policy.

Fortunately for the future of institutional advertising, much of which is threatened by this ruling, it is understood that the electric companies have no intention of "pulling in their horns." It is expected that they will continue their campaign without any dimunition and will probably go to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary, to fight the Bureau's ruling.

The decision was based on a section of the Internal Revenue Code which has been on the books for many years but was recently taken out of mothballs and revised. The regulation now reads:

"Expenditures for lobbying purposes, for the promotion or defeat of legislation, for political purposes, or for the development or exploitation of propaganda (including advertising other than trade advertising) relating to any of the foregoing purposes, are not deductible from gross income. No payment made, either directly or through an organization, for the specific purpose of attempting to promote or defeat legislation shall be deductible. . ."

We are not as concerned with what portion of this ruling is being applied to the electric companies as we are with the question of how such a ruling got on the books in the first place. Certainly it would seem that a corporation or business, which may be being strangled by government action, should be able to consider it a proper business expense to fight for its life by taking its case to the people. Certainly, too, it should be a proper business expense to fight for or against legislation which will definitely effect the profits of shareholders.

We can't think of a more American way for business to battle for its rights than to take its case to the people by the use of advertising space. Surely this is more to be desired than secret, behind-closed-doors lobbying which seems to be the alternative.

It is our hope that the electric companies will not only fight this ruling in the tax courts but will go a step further and use part of their advertising space to acquaint the people with this attempt of the government to "gag" them.

Freedom to advertise is an important part of freedom of the press, and should be guarded with equal care. It is, in many cases, the one vehicle through which business can "speak out in open meeting."

—The American Press, April, 1958.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS

The word "progress' implies reference to an ideal. It implies that there is a purpose to be realized. All talk about progress is meaningless platitude until we are agreed as to the thing or things which we want accomplished.

There are those who identify progress with measuring up to certain intellectual propositions established by the past. Others identify progress with the full acceptance of the latest theories. The first set of persons is devoted to whatever is old, the second to whatever is new. If we are wise, we will recognize that neither being old nor being new is the important test of knowledge. The truths that we live by are timeless. It is the discovery of these truths that is the essential test of learning, and it is the function of true education to lead young minds and to stimulate them in the fullest apprehension of vital truth.

Vital truth is to be distinguished from universal truth. Only God possesses the latter. The capacity of the normal human mind, however, is confined to a limited, though ever-expanding, horizon. Education should admit the full light of both the past and the present as the subject matter of its studies.

As it does so, it will beget, at one and the same time, (1) a reasonable humility in its pupils as they are made aware of their limitations, and (2) it will stimulate them to explore such new areas of truth as their individual capacities and opportunity afford. Each individual, in order to be intellectually healthy, must develop in keeping with HIS opportunities for learning. The human mind either grows or it shrivels, and the only alternative to stagnation is progress.

Vital truth is simply that truth which is essential to the highest development of man's personality. At the turn of the century this development was still recognized as being three-fold. As stated in the constitution of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers (1897), true education is that which will "best develop the physical, intellectual, and spiritual nature of the child." The preamble of this constitution added to this ideal the following noteworthy statement: "The Congress believes that with the aid of Divine Power these objects will be accomplished."

In every generation education is beset by distractions from the course of its true function. The first PTA congress did well to predicate success on the basis of God's help. But God's help should be sought in relation to his guidance. One of the fallacies which plagues public education is the idea that God must be kept out of public school instruction in order to preserve the principle of the separation of church and state. This fallacy would logically remove the very core of all truth, namely faith in God. Atheism has never been the American ideal. The inscription, "In God We Trust," written upon our coins, makes this fact unmistakable. Yet America cannot remain a nation of faith in God merely by the fact of this inscription upon its coins. The truth of God's creatorship, and the related truth of his sovereignty over life must be the basic element of education. If public schools do not find it appropriate to give God this primary place in education we may well consider whether they represent even the first step of progress. We believe, however, that the operation of the principle of democracy in any township or other school unit should permit the fullest instruction in religious faith which the convictions of its people make passible. Obviously, in a school precinct where faith in God prevails, the normal processes of the election polls should result in the establishment of a corresponding quality of educational leadership in the classrooms where our children are educated.

—Loyal R. Ringenberg (Riverdale faculty), in The Cedar Creek Courier, April 10, 1958.

GOOD EVENING

Bob Hope's recent film on TV of his trip of a month or so ago to Moscow prompted many persons who saw it to ask afterward, "Are we, like the Russians, getting a false picture of other peoples of the world?"

It was a fascinating film, because it portrayed the Russians for what they obviously are, namely, members of the human race, not caricatures with universal political overtones. Nothing in the film could be construed in any way as pro-Communistic, but it did serve the purpose of reminding Americans that the Russians not only have top scientists, but top musicions, top dancers, top comedians with a sense of humor that is relished by Russians as a similar sense of humor is relished here.

The film certainly should dispel the notion that exists here that all Russians are counterparts of heavy-handed Stalins who constantly plow through the mud of Russian streets like a new form of half mechanical and half human zombies. Their kids look as cute as any of our kids and their men and women are also descendants of Adam and Eve with the same variations of attractiveness among them that mark the children of our first parents everywhere.

The Russian government deserves credit for allowing Hope to make the picture it did, because in spite of Hope's wisecracks about the Russians, they let it go through the censors, showing that they are not adverse to being kidded. One wonders why it is that the first excellent film story of a bit of modern Russia had to come through the channels of a comedian, who wasn't intent upon doing such a job except incidentally to this regular entertainment routine.

The Russians, in addition to having some of the world's most sadistic soldiers, also have some of the world's top musicians as was proved in the Hope film, also some of the world's best dancers, writers, humorists, etc. But they are captives of a false political philosophy, namely godless atheism, simply because it is always easy for a few ruthless persons with power to govern the many who are disorganized.

It has been said that at no time has the actual Communist membership in Russia comprised more than 10 per cent of the country's people, but this of course is far more than enough. The situation should require us to bear constantly in mind that all opposition to Communism should always stop short of any opposition to the Russian people as such. It was wrong to judge all Germans during the Hitler days by holding them responsible universally for Hitler's madness and it is equally wrong today to judge all Russians as Stalins or Khruschevs.

Only people totally unfamiliar with history make the mistake of forgetting that Russia has long been a highly civilized aggregation of many diverse peoples. It represents a civilization that slipped badly back into time, not a totally uncivilized nation trying for the first time to become civilized.

Russia must come back eventually into the family of nations, but its price of admission has to be its redemption from Communism.

—Clifford B. Ward in the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

THOSE CARRIER PIGEONS, AGAIN

If you make any direct mailing at all, and chances are that you do, there are indications of a big hurdle coming up. Unfortunately, you'll have to decide for yourself whether or not it's really approaching, and if so, how you propose to get over it.

This possible hurdle is the Post Office Department's proposal to force all mailers of magazines and advertising matter to sort this material themselves by local delivery zones. The doubt about the hurdle exists because several weeks will elapse before Postmaster General Summerfield announces his decision about the previously established deadline of October 1, for such sorting to go into effect. Until this decision is promulgated, mailers will have to make their own decision on whether to start reorganizing their mailing lists now in preparation for the deadline, or to hold off and hope until there is further clarification from Mr. Summerfield.

We face this Hobson's choice because the procedure followed by the Post Office Department in arriving at such a proposal represents a degree of bureaucratic capriciousness seldom before experienced under our present administration. We understand that this extension of the "do-it-yourself" plan came about as the result of a quick look at the Time-Life plant in Chicago. This quick look indicated that all mailers could handle such an assignment. Accordingly, with little or no further checking, the announcement was made that possibly this compulsory "sort-it-yourself" plan would be placed in effect as of October 1, 1957.

Of course, cool and mature consideration shows immediately that not all direct mail users have the same facilities as Time and Life. Eventually then, in response to numerous howls of protest, the Post Office Department invited a number of mailers to drop in and make suggestions. We hope that these suggestions will be given weighty consideration.

In a recent letter to Advertising Age, R. M. Wallin, the Advertising Manager of Equipto, Aurora, Illinois, quotes a few figures that topedo the Post Office ideas about such a plan being a money saving project. Mr. Wallin figures that since the Post Office intends to save better than $5,000,000 by the move, and that it is estimated that the plan will cost advertisers up to $60,000,000 to "self-sort," the whole program will cost the government money.

Such an increased operating expense to advertisers will automatically reduce their profits. Then, since these companies are paying 52c on each dollar they make, to the government in taxes, it follows that they will decrease their tax payments by better than $30,000,000.

Q.E.D. - The governmen will lose $30 for each $5 they save. How long could you stay in business at that rate?

—Type Tips (Superior Typesetting Company), February, 1958.

MAY IS SAFETY CHECK MONTH FOR AUTOS

More than half of the motor vehicles in Indiana figuratively will be placed under a magnifying glass during the month of May, according to Albert E. Huber, director of the Indiana Office of Traffic Safety.

The period has been officially designated as Vehicle Safety-Check Month by Governor Harold W. Handley. While Indiana is one of the 35 states which do not require official periodic inspections, it leads the nation in a concentrated program of voluntary checks. Indiana recorded more than half of such voluntary inspections in the nation in 1957.

A year ago, more than one million motorists participated in the program, as a safety measure, to be certain their cars were mechanically safe for extended summer driving. One out of each 8 vehicles was found to have one or more defects.

- 80th ANNIVERSARY -

On March 18, 1958, the DeKalb County Farmer's Mutual Fire Insurance Company entered its 80th year of operation. The Company was organized in 1878 by twelve leading farmers of the County for the purpose of reducing the cost of fire insurance to themselves and neighbors. To date, savings of untold amounts have been accomplished by furnishing insurance at cost.

About four years ago, the Board seeing a need for additional coverages added the perils of extended coverage plus theft, vandalism, electrocution of livestock, upset of farm machinery, etc., excluding wind and hail. On January 25, 1958, at the annual meeting, the members present adopted recommendations of the Board for the addition of WIND and HAIL coverages.

Up until this time, those coverages were written with the Indiana Farmers Mutual Insurance Company of Indianapolis and premiums were collected in advance. With the new system, all coverages can be included in one policy in the County Mutual with complete county control of adjusting, premiums and rulings. By this action all township agents have been relieved of their connection with the state company, excepting Lester Boger and Maurice Chisholm, who are continuing the writing of auto and farm liability coverages only.

For further information concerning these new coverages, contact the agent in your township whose name appears in the following list, or county office at 209 North Cedar Street, Auburn.

Fairfield - Ora Rowe
Smithfield - Ralph Hamman
Franklin and Troy - Florin Knox
Richland - J. E. Sherrick

Directors who are not agents are: Chester Buttermore, Cleve Grube, Lloyd Mason. It is the hope of the directors that by adding the wind and hail coverages to the policy that considerable additional savings will be made for the company members.

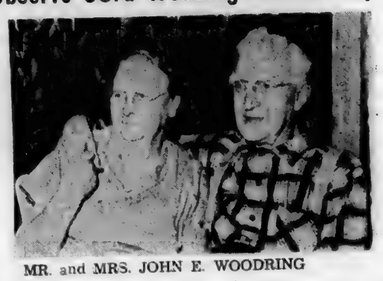
To Observe 63rd Wedding Anniversary



MR. and MRS. JOHN E. WOODRING

On Sunday, April 27, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Woodring of Fremont, Ind., will celebrate their 63rd wedding anniversary with a potluck dinner and open house. The Woodrings lived at Spencerville before moving to Fremont about 20 years ago. They operated a radio repair shop in the days before television, and later converted the store into a tavern.

Mr. Woodring is still active, building boats and cabinets, doing a good business and finding it necessary in the rush season to hire help.

Mr. Woodring will be 83 years of age in August. Mrs. Woodring was 82 last December. The couple has three children, Claude of Ottawa Lake, Mich., Edward of Spencerville and Mildred McKinley, also of Spencerville; 14 grandchildren; 18 great-grandchildren and 2 great-great-grandchildren.

How your neighbors live better .. electrically

"We enjoy life in our all-electric home,"

SAYS MRS. JULES LUSARDI.

"All-electric living is wonderful, particularly in the kitchen. My electric appliances have so many wonderful, automatic features!"

"My electric washer and dryer really get clothes clean and dry . . . quickly, too."

"Electricity makes life a lot more pleasant. For instance, we can control temperatures in individual rooms with our electric heating system. And we use electricity for our built-in range and oven, dishwasher, refrigerator and many other items. What's really amazing is that, with all these conveniences, our average monthly electric bill is only $31.5"

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible material: Exodus 11:1—15:18.

Devotional reading: Psalm 105:23-42.

GOD SETS MEN FREE
Lesson for April 27, 1958

The thought of God should be the happiest thought in the world, but often it isn't. On business contracts the words "Act of God" always mean catastrophe, something dire and dreadful. Just mention God, in a serious way, at some party or in private conversation, and people will stop smiling and look at you in a suspicious, almost resentful, way. It is plain that some people don't like to think about God. They think of Him as the Eye in the Sky, sleeplessly watching. They think of Him as a Cosmic Calculator, forever at work adding up the good deeds and the misdeeds of all human beings, waiting for a slip, a big mistake, a sudden sin, to give Him the excuse to pounce. They think of Him as the Judge, all-knowing, un-forgetting, to whom and from whom there is no appeal.

God the Deliverer

When people think of God [illegible] says, religion becomes a very unhappy and even wicked form of slow self-torture. It is like living in a prison or a concentration camp under the guard's constantly watching eye. Now this is the very opposite of Bible religion. The keynote of the Bible from beginning to end is Salvation, which means Deliverance, which means to be set free. God is not a God who enjoys getting people into trouble, he takes delight in getting them out of it. The root of a man's feeling toward God should not be fear, but loving gratitude.

God and the Ten Commandments

Look at this from another angle again. How do people react to the Law of God, especially as we find His will in the Ten Commandments? Some people, not Christians of course, think of these laws as they may about certain state or national laws; they comply, but with a sour face and a slow heart. Sometimes they spell it out: "I don't like this law, but it's the law and I'm obliged to carry it out. I have no choice." God's law, like man's, seem (to some people) like so many prison bars. But His laws are laws of freedom, not restraint, because he is the freedom-loving God. It is written into the Preface of the Ten Commandments: "I (the Giver of these laws) am the Lord thy God, that brought thee up . . . out of the house of bondage."

A Movie's Mistake

The well-advertised and much-seen picture, "The Ten Commandments," devotes only ten minutes of its nearly four hours to the Ten Commandments. Most of the story is concerned (the narrator says) with the story of freedom against tyranny, of free men under God as against the slavery of life under a dictator. That is quite right about the Exodus of the Hebrew people from Egypt. It was the birth of a free people. By intention, the picture hit the nail on the head. But the picture itself didn't hit that nail at all. Freedom, in the picture, is just getting away, breaking loose, drowning your enemies and leaving your masters behind. But the Bible's idea of freedom is always attached to to a question: What Will You Do With It? Freedom-from is not enough. There has to be freedom-for. The generation that left Egypt were not condemned to long wanderings, as the picture suggested, for that riotous night at Sinai. They were made to die in the wilderness because at a critical moment they refused to fight for the land of promise. (See Numbers 13, 14.)

God's Free Men

God sets men free today - he has always done it - in a more profound sense than changing their status from slaves to citizens. God sets men free in their souls. He creates a free heart as well as a clean one. God's men are not ordinary men carrying an extra load of Must's and Musn't's. God's people are set free from the "law of sin and death", not free to do as they please but free to serve God and man. God's free men discover that freedom under God does not mean freedom from responsibility to God. Quite the contrary. No man can stand in the liberty of faith and at the same time reject his responsibility to the God in whom he says he believes. Freedom as a child sees it means having everything his own way. Freedom for the mature means seeking always God's way.

SHARE-THE-FUN FESTIVAL TO BE HELD TUESDAY

The DeKalb County Share-the-Fun Festival, which features 4-H and Rural Youth members, will be held Tuesday evening, April 29, at 7:30 p.m. at the Court Theatre in Auburn.

All people in the county are invited to attend this fine program of local amateur talent. The DeKalb County 4-H Junior Leaders, Rural Youth and the county extension office are cooperating to plan and present the program.

The objectives of the Share-the-Fun Festival are to stimulate the development of good entertainers among members of 4-H and Rural Youth and to give these entertainers a chance for public expression of their talent.

The Share-the-Fun Festival will include instrumental and vocal groups and solos plus several novelty acts of the contestants choosing. Rural Youth members will present a square dance exhibition while judges of the other talent are choosing the winners of the contest. 4-H members who wish to enter the contest but have not sent in their entry should contact their adult leader or the county extension office on or before April 24.

Winners of the county Share-the-Fun Festival will compete in the district festival on May 6 at Albion. District winners will then go to the state 4-H Round-Up in June, with all expenses paid, where they will participate in state competition.

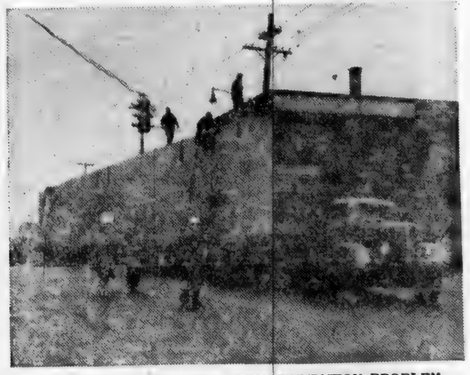
"IF SOMEONE DOESN'T FIND FAULT WITH YOU, YOU HAVE TO WORRY" – New York – Susan Strasberg, one of the youngest stars on Broadway, isn't at all sensitive about criticism. "At the age of 19, if people did not criticize me, I'd be terribly bored. I'd have no place to go," Susan explained. Susan's first Broadway appearance was in "The Diary of Anne Frank"



SOLVING A DIFFICULT TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM Cleveland, Ohio – Ingenious is the word for the chaps who specialize in moving things from here to there. This 91-ton, 112-foot long steel box girder presented a problem when it arrived in Cleveland on three railroad flat cars. The girder is for the Inner Belt Bridge in Cleveland. Solution of the problem of getting it to its destination was solved as you see here. It was put on two trucks, one going forward and the other in reverse. Men on top of the girder moved wires and traffic lights en route for the two miles of the big carry.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Carl Sipe on April 2. The president called the meeting to order and the collect and pledge to the flag were repeated in unison.

Very interesting lessons were given by Mrs. Carl Carpenter whose topic was "Science In Our Lives" and Mrs. Claude Laub whose subject was "Biography of Scientists."

Roll call was taken with 16 members responding.

Club adjourned and the hostess served light refreshments.

On Wednesday evening, April 16, the club held its last meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. Claude Laub.

The lesson covering the efforts of Dr. Frank Laubach to bring literacy to the heathen in his book, "Each One, Teach One," was very well given by Mrs. Forrest Bevington.

Entertainment was in charge of Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser who gave information regarding the passion flower and the dogwood tree and conducted a flower game.

Sixteen members responded to roll call.

A critic's review was conducted by Mrs. Carl Carpenter.

The Saint Joe News

VOLUME LXXIII | ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. | Thursday, May 1, 1958 | NUMBER 18

Local News

Mrs. Lillian Buckingham was a Thursday visitor in Saint Joe, the warm weather bringing her from the Sheeny Rest Home at Butler where she resided for the winter to the old hometown to see how the flowers, etc., in the yard were coming along.

Mrs. Alice Baumgartner was very pleasantly entertained with a carry-in birthday supper on her 79th birthday, April 25. Those present were her daughter, Mrs. Gladys Wasson, her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bailey, all of Spencerville; and her sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Poper of Auburn. The evening was enjoyed very much by this family get-together.

Mr. and Mrs. John Christlieb of Auburn are the proud parents of a baby boy, born Wednesday, April 23, at Souder Hospital in Auburn. Weight 7 lbs. 5½ ozs. Name, John, Jr. Mrs. Christlieb is the former Lois Vinson of Saint Joe.

Funeral rites were held Monday for Mrs. Ralph Surfus, 51, who died Friday of a stroke suffered at the county court house. Rev. Carl Thompson officiated at the services and burial was in Cedar Chapel Cemetery near Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. James Draggoo and son, Tom, of Auburn and Mrs. Marie Draggoo of Saint Joe were in Springfield this week attending the wedding of Jerry Lee Morr, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Morr, and Miss Mary Haines, also of Springfield. The marriage was performed in Central Methodist Church Friday evening at 6:30 p.m.

Gerald Gee of Dayton, Ohio, Walter Gee and son, DuWayne, of Jewell, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gee of Saint Joe attended the funeral of Mrs. Gee's sister, Mrs. George Packer, Saturday at Lakeville, Ind.

M-Sgt. Harry W. Schendel, 34, son of Mrs. Laura Schendel of Saint Joe, is participating in Exercise Eagle Wing, a 101st Airborne Division maneuver at Fort Campbell, Ky. Sgt. Schendel entered the Army in 1943 and was last stationed in Germany.

The Department of Conservation recently revealed the planting of more than 38,000 legal-size trout in Indiana streams in preparation for the opening of trout season May 1. There is an open season the year around on Indiana lakes, while the season on streams extends only to August 31.

Driver license suspensions include that of Ervin Link of R3, Auburn, 60 days for reckless driving.

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Ruth Anne Friend to David L. Walters of Saint Joe was announced this week. The wedding will take place June 1 in the Rehobeth Methodist Church with Rev. Keith Davis performing the ceremony.

Mrs. Mabel Lyons of Auburn has announced that she will seek re-nomination for the office of clerk of the Supreme and Appellate courts at the Republican state convention June 27.

Harvey Carr attended Boy Scout Leader Training course at Camp Big Island April 26 and 27.

Indiana's vast range of high school enrollments is expected to be placed under fire on May 9 when Dr. James B. Conant, president-emeritus of Harvard University, addresses a mass dinner meeting of interested Hoosiers at the Murat Temple in Indianapolis. Dr. Conant is currently heading a 2-year study of 50 high schools in 18 states, including Indiana. The study is being supported by a Carnegie grant. The Indiana appearance will be the firts of a series of state meetings at which Dr. Conant will speak. The dinner meeting is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. May 9 and any interested citizen or organization is invited to attend. Tickets are $4.00 each and reservations may be made by writing to Conference On Indiana High School, Box 47, Bloomington, Indiana. Deadline for reservations is May 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bowser were Saturday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Reed of Auburn. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sutter of Highland; Mr. and Mrs. Gale Bowser of Spencerville, Mr. Jerry Bowser and daughter, Cheryl, of Indianapolis and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Shultz and son, Ned, of Leo.

Ezra Weicht, 81, died Wednesday of last week at Sanders Hospital in Auburn of a complication of illnesses. He had been in failing health for 2 years and ill for 8 weeks. Funeral services were conducted Sunday with Rev. Joseph Ferguson officiating. Burial was in Maple Grove Cemetery at Edgerton.

Mrs. Dora Bowman and Mrs. Mary Christlieb of Waterloo, Mrs. Florence Berndt and Mrs. Alta Warren of Butler, Mrs. Victoria Means of Saint Joe and Miss Ida Reed of Spencerville spent 3 days last week at Indianapolis attending the Grand Chapter Order of Eastern Star.

Gerald Gee, Walter Gee and son, DuWayne, and Mrs. Opal Carper and daughters, Sheron and Laura May, of Fort Wayne were Saturday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gee.

Church League Meets Thursday

Pete Timmerman has announced that there will be an important meeting of the Saint Joe Church Softball League on Thursday evening, May 8, at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held at St. Peter's Lutheran Church in Spencerville.

This will be a meeting to prepare for the summer season of church league softball, and all churches interested in entering competition this year are asked to have representatives present. Election of officers will be held and discussion of rules and schedule will be included in the business of the meeting.

Entry fee last year was $30 and it is anticipated that the fee will remain the same for this year.

Pastors of the churches and team managers are urged to attend the meeting.

Rabies Still Threat To Public Health

A reminder that continued precautions should be taken in the confinement of household pets in this area was issued this week by Mrs. Roy Chapman of Saint Joe. Mrs. Chapman is in charge of local enforcement of the anti-rabies laws of the state of Indiana pertaining to the innoculation of pets and the impounding of strays.

Further outbreaks of rabies not only in DeKalb County but also in the entire state have served to heighten the concern for public health and safety with regard to the animal population. Local citizens have been cooperative in keeping pets in control since the first days of the quarantine on Saint Joe several weeks ago. But with the passing of time, it is a natural impulse to become lax in furthering the precautions and thus bring the possibilty of another outbreak of rabies.

Mrs. Chapman pointed out that though many dogs were innoculated against rabies in response to the public plea for the innoculations, the shots are only 75 to 80 per cent effective. Thus innoculations are partially effective in combating the threat of rabies but are not 100 per cent insurance against the disease. The dog which died of rabies at the outset of the present quarantine had been innoculated, yet died of the disease.

Public cooperation in keeping dogs confined and under control is necessary to further the safeguarding of the health not only of human beings but also of the pets themselves.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Kimes and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer McKay of Spencerville and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Billow and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn attended a district Lions Club convention at Decatur Sunday afternoon and evening. Past-international president S. A. Dodge of Detroit was principal speaker.

Club Votes To Bid For Gym

It has been said, "You can't improve a man's property and surroundings without improving the man."

Which in a nutshell takes care of the business transpired at the Spencerville Community Club meeting Saturday evening. At the well-attended meeting at the Spencerville Fire Hall, it was voted to submit a bid to the Riverdale School Board for purchase of the gym at Spencerville. It is the desire of the club to buy the gym for all community activities, but the greatest advantage will be to furnish a recreation spot for the young people of the community. By this action the club hopes to make a further step toward community improvement.

In other business, the club announced its Clean-Up activities this week and next. All are urged to take part. The town has been divided into territories under individual chairmen as follows:

Front — R. C. Hollabaugh, Wayne Howey and Chalmer Beaty.

Main — Glenn Moore, Pete Timmerman and Davey Doll.

Washington — Bob Melchi and Vaughn Allen.

Auburn Road—Jack Hollabaugh, Paul Fish and Max Ward.

Plattner Road—Glenn Brendel and Kern Butler.

Residents who have not as yet installed their outdoor lights are urged to do so as soon as possible.

A great deal of community interest was shown at the meeting. Residents of Spencerville and the surrounding area are urged to attend the next meeting on Saturday night, May 10, at the fire hall. It is probable that a report can be given concerning the acceptance or rejection of the club's bid for the gym. The school board will consider bids at its meeting Monday evening.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish in this way to thank our friends and neighbors for the flowers, cards and many kindnesses while we were in the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. George Beams

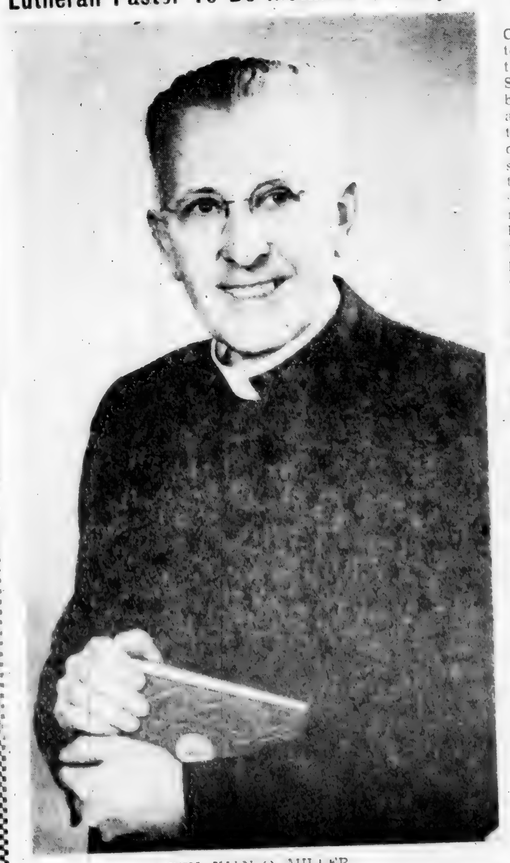
Lutheran Pastor To Be Installed Sunday



REV. IVAN O. MILLER

The Reverend Ivan O. Miller will be installed as pastor of the Saint Joe-Spencerville Lutheran parish on Sunday afternoon, May 4, at 2:00 p.m. Installing officer will be the Reverend Dr. Walter M. Wick, president of the Indiana Synod, United Lutheran Church of America. Rev. Wick will also read the service and preach the sermon. Organist for the service will be Barbara Miller of Detroit, Michigan, younger daughter of Pastor and Mrs. Miller. Special music will be provided by both junior and senior choirs. The service will be held at St. Peter's Lutheran Church in Spencerville.

Women of both congregations are preparing refreshments to be served at a reception following the service.

Friends and neighbors are cordially invited to the service and to the social hour to follow. Everyone is welcome.

Rev. Miller was ordained in 1920 and served the Board of American Missions at Bellingham, Wash. Thereafter he was pastor for 2 years at Princeton, Iowa, and at Oregon, Illinois, for the next 2 years before serving the congregation at Peoria, Illinois, for 6 years. A 10-year service as pastor at Aurora, Illinois, was followed by his service for 15 years at Detroit, Mich., from which he resigned early this year to answer a call from the local parish.

St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Saint Joe and St. Peter's Lutheran Church in Spencerville are affiliated with the ULCA, which is the largest Lutheran body in the United OLDEST NEW ENGLAND FARMERETTE – Gardner, Mass. – Mrs. Victoria Bonislawski, who claims to be New England's oldest woman, observed her 109th Birthday and still puts in an active day on her farm. Here she holds one of the geese on the farm. She still does the household chores. Mrs. Bonislawski, once known as "America's oldest farmerette" was born in Poland in 1849 and has lived in the U.S. since the turn of the century.

IRON CURTAIN ENTRY "MISS UNIVERSE" CONTEST – Long Beach, Calif. – Alicja Bobrowska of Krakow, Poland, will be the first delegate from behind the iron curtain to vie for the "Miss Universe" beauty title in Long Beach this summer. A honey blonde, the 21-year-old drama student is five feet, five inches tall and her measurements in the usual direction are 35-23-35. She will tour the U.S. for three weeks before the pageant opens on July 17.

INVENTOR SOLVES TRAFFIC PROBLEM? – Frankfurt, Germany – The gadget is a One-Man Stand-On Roller powered by a battery which moves on three rubber wheels. It is controlled with aid of the handle and maximum speed is 15 miles an hour.

DOUBTS SHE'S A "BRIDIE MURPHY" – Louisville, Kentucky – Mrs. Patricia Jeanne Williams, 29, of Louisville, who related during a hypnotic trance that she once was a young Confederate Sergeant who was killed in battle 96 years ago, said today she doubts she is any "Bridie Murphy" re-enacting a past life. Mrs. Williams is holding a letter from the Shreveport Public Library which was unable to confirm key parts of the story she told under hypnosis.

PIGGY-BACK "WIND TUNNEL" – Downsview, Ont. Can. – Tests of new aircraft models, usually carried out in a wind tunnel, are now performed on a flying test bed by the De Havilland Aircraft Corp. An Otter Plane is used as the flying test bed here with the model riding piggy-back high above.

LAWS OF GOD

Lesson for May 4, 1958

The moving picture, "The Ten Commandments," will probably still be going strong at the time this column appears in print. Some of our readers will have seen it and liked it; some will feel that the Bible should never be made into a movie at all. Now there have been innumerable stories and novels based on the Bible, and if these are in order, then a movie is in order. But if a picture or a book uses Bible material it should use it and not mis-use it. It may serve to bring out some truths about the real Ten Commandments if we take this opportunity to point out some of the wrong angles of that famous picture.

The Wrong Title

In the first place, the title is misleading. The picture is not about the Ten Commandments. Approximately ten minutes out of three hours and fifty minutes are devoted to the Ten Commandments, and then they are neither explained nor applied except in a superficial way. The picture tells the story, mostly imaginary, of the unknown years of Moses as an Egyptian prince. Some of it is in line with the Bible; for instance, one gets a good idea of what it was to live as an aristocrat in ancient Egypt, as Moses did. Some of it is out of line with the Bible altogether, such as the story of the killing which led to Moses' flight from Egypt. Most of it casts no light on the Bible at all, but is the producer's idea of how it might have happened - ideas ranging from the probable to the highly improbable.

No Piece of Fireworks

And this brings us to our point. What exactly is wrong with the Ten Commandments part of this moving picture? It's a small fraction of the whole colossal spectacle; but it is an important fraction. Three misleading notions which viewers who are not familiar with the Bible might take away can be mentioned. One: In the picture, the Ten Commandments are a piece of celestial fireworks. They do not come to Moses' mind nor through it. A fiery thing looking like something out of a Disney comedy streaks down and carves the Commandments, one by one, on a polished mountain side, while Moses cowers in helpless fear. Later on Moses (in the picture, not the Bible) "throws the book" - the two tombstone size tablets - at Dathan, and in a terrific explosion the earth opens and swallows him up. Thus the Law of God is shown as something altogether out of this world, a sort of celestial magic, a sort of super-hydrogen bomb. This is a long way from the truth about God's law as Paul saw it (Romans 1:14, 15), written on the hearts of men.

No One-Way Religion

In the second place, this picture leaves out, where it ought by all means to be, the Bible story (Exodus 24) which shows that the people accepted this Law or these Laws, and covenanted to keep them. Religion is not a one-way street. Religion is not God making a fireworks-law and throwing it at people's heads. Religion as the Bible presents it is always covenant religion, that is to say two-way religion. Light might as well be darkness unless it is seen. Revelation reveals nothing until men respond to it.

Can One Love Such A God?

And this brings up perhaps the most serious point of all. In the Bible, every law of God comes from His Grace; that is to say, His Will is not an arbitrary set of orders imposed on us by a hostile, still less an impersonal Power, but comes from a loving, personal God. If God were really nothing else but the terrifying, fiery, unpredictable, indescribable being of this picture, what possible meaning could there be in the commandment (Deut. 6:5) to love God with all our hearts? Love may be less spectacular than a whirling pillar of fire - less useful for a colossal show. But when God finally revealed his real Self, it was not in a perfect flame but in a perfect Person. Only as we know and love God personally can we appreciate and love his Law.

HYBRID SEED CORN

FARMCRAFT 39

An early maturing hybrid of superior yielding ability. The plants are of moderate height, the stalks are sturdy and particularly stiff standing, bearing single ears on strong shanks. The cylidrical ears develop deep grains of medium soft starch feeding type texture.

The ability of this strain to finish out plump grains in short seasons, and the fast drying cobs, fits it as first choice in the short growing season area of the 200 to 400 zones.

FARMCRAFT 40

An early maturing hybrid with the ear length and size usually found only in much later maturing strains. This strain has top yielding ability as a full season hybrid across the 400 zones. It is also well liked for later plantings farther south.

Extra ear length packs in higher yields, with no loss of high quality in the grain.

Girls' State representative; a member of the school paper staff; participant in class plays and cheer leader four years. Her plans for the immediate future include entering business and "wedding bells".

Miss Gerig is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Gerig of west of Spencerville. During her high school career she majored in four fields: Science, Social Studies, English and Commerce. She held a class office during her senior year, was the Art Editor of the Riverian, a Girls' State alternate, a member of the Junior play cast and the lead in the Senior play, a member of the Beta Club for three years, a member of the school paper staff, and cheer leader for four years. Upon completion of her high school education, she plans to enter busines for a year and then enter higher education at a yet undetermined college or university.

Board Sets May 17-24 For Clean-Up

The Town Board of Saint Joe will again provide hauling facilities for a Clean-Up Fix-Up Paint-Up Week beginning Saturday, May 17. The board voted to sponsor the campaign at its regular meeting held Monday evening at the Town Hall. Present were members Derwood Ridgway, Lester Pugsley and Orvilie Coburn and Town Clerk Willard Hurni. Several townspeople were in attendance at the meeting, including Donald Kinsey, Ralph Keeler, Roy Bowser, Maurice Kline and Ted Haberkorn who were present in the interest of the Saint Joe Booster Club.

The week of May 27 through May 24 has been designated Clean-Up Fix-Up Paint-Up Week for Saint Joe and the board urges local residents to take particular action to improve their property and thus improve the town. Trucks will be available both Saturdays, May 17 and 24, to haul away the accumulation resulting from homeowners' cleaning efforts.

At the meeting the improvement of streets was particularly discussed, and serious consideration was given to the curbing of the main street and paving of it from the highway to the curb. The accompanying problem of water drainage was interjected and the whole program is to be investigated for possible and probable action in the near future.

The board noted the several "visitors" on hand for its meeting and encourages more townspeople to attend town board meetings and take part in the affairs of the town.

Senator Jenner, We Agree

(Editor's Note:—Having made frequent use of the comments of Clifford B. Ward in his daily column, "Good Evening," appearing in the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel, we pass along to our readers his column of Wednesday, May 7, 1958, with the thought that perhaps they might wish to take appropriate action to further Mr. Ward's endeavor. Those who are in accord with the following are urged to clip the article from the News-Sentinel and send it to Senator William E. Jenner or clip this article and send it to him. This is democracy in action!)

"May 6, 1958

"Senator William E. Jenner
Senate Office Building
Washington, D.C.

"Dear Senator:

"Ever since you anounced a number of months ago that you would not seek re-election to the Senate of the United States, I, like many other persons, have been speculating on possible reasons for your decision. I can understand that you possibly are physically and emotionally tired of fighting what must seem at times to be a very lonesome fight against Communists, pinks, labor racketeers, give-awayers; global balloonists and other persons bent upon injuring the future of the United States, but being physically and emotionally tired is not a valid excuse for withdrawing from a battle. Sickness would be, fatigue, no.

"You have been called many names by many people, while you have been in the U.S. Senate. But you can take pride in the fact that not one of your enemies has ever called you 'intellectually dishonest,' and in this day and age, not being 'intellectually dishonest' is something worth being honored for. It has taken principle to stand where you have stood on all the issues that came before you and it took guts. You have been bruised and bloodied up, but the enemies you have made are the kind that add lustre to you, not disgrace.

"Between now and the state convention of the Republican Party in June, I hope you respond to the desire of many people in Indiana that you run again and allow yourself to be drafted for the Republican senatorial nomination once again. You are too young, too able and too much a fighter for what is right nationally to retire from the Senate, and by allowing yourself to be drafted you will be doing a favor to everyone, but especially to Governor Handley and the Republican organizations up and down the State of Indiana. The average voter is not always articulate in his speech, but he senses something not quite politically kosher in a man who has been elected Governor, announcing after two of his four year term that he will seek the Senate post, with nothing to lose and everything to gain. To be sure the Governor's basic philosophy is the Hoosier philisophy but he should continue to apply it for all of the four year term to which he was elected.

"If Governor Handley is nominated and the Republicans go down in defeat over the State in November, a lot of people in Republican county organizations will start analyzing, to fix the blame. If Republicans are defeated, it will be said that the Handley strategy was to blame and that you are largely responsible for the Handley strategy. Maybe that doesn't mean much to you, but I think it should. Furthermore, I think you have a right to know whether the people of Indiana are behind you or opposed to you and only your running for election this year will answer that question. I am sure that you are the kind of fellow who, if he has a beating coming, wants to take it himself, not let someone else take it for him.

"This country needs you and needs more like you. You can do your country the most good by staying in the Senate, not by withdrawing from public life when neither age nor physical condition requires you to do so.

"I hope, Bill, that you change your mind.

"With best wishes, I am,
Yours truly,
C. B. Ward"

UNION STORY IN CONGRESS YEAR'S BEST

The story of the year is being unfolded right now in Congress.

It's the story of how labor-union money - contributed heavily in recent political campaigns - keeps a majority of members of Congress from enacting laws that would do away with the rackets whereby the dues of the workingmen are stolen or misused.

It's the story also of how Congress, though knowing full well how boycotts of innocent parties are used to further the aims of labor unions, does nothing by way of legislation to correct the abuses.

It's the story of how goons and hired thugs intimidate American citizens who venture to assert their right to work and to cross picket lines.

Plenty of outcries are heard when "Civil Rights" are denied in other fields of Constitutional law, but no such support is given the simple proposition that the American citizen must be free to join or not to join a union and, if he declines, that he must not for such reason alone be deprived of his job.

Today, in certain trades, a citizen cannot earn a livelihood unless he consents to become, against his will, a member of a labor union which can use his dues money to finance the election of candidates for public office with whose views the worker happens not to agree. Here is "thought control" and a denial of the basic principles embodied in the Constitution itself.

Today to cross a picket line in a big strike is to jeopardize one's life. Local police authorities are intimidated by the political power of labor unions and do not give adequate protection to the citizen. Companies that are not parties to a strike are sometimes boycotted if they buy materials or goods from a company that is having a labor dispute.

Financial irregularities have been disclosed in about five major unions. Many of the other big unions have not been investigated as yet. Senator McClellan of Arkansas, Democrat, has thrown the searchlight on the misuse of union funds. The newspapers have been printing articles about it for several months.

Now, however, the time has come for action. But it looks as if a majority in Congress is itself intimidated. Privately many members say they would like to go ahead, but the Democratic party - which is more beholden to the labor unions that are the Republicans - doesn't want to put the legislation through this year because it fears that individual members might be hurt in the coming Congressional elections.

The plan all along has been to bury the legislation in committee in the Senate. There was to be no voting on broad aspects of the labor-union problem. But Sen. William Knowland of California, Republican leader, took the bit in his teeth this week and decided to try for roll-call votes which would make every member answer to all the people and not just to the labor-union lobbies.

At first it was reported that there wouldn't be a chance for action. Senator Knowland, however, determined to attach his proposals to the pending legislation on labor-union welfare and pension funds. He knew that the Senate committee on labor wouldn't report out any broad legislation, so he decided to try to amend the bill on the floor of the Senate. The Democratic leadership had to submit the matter to a vote or be put in the position of sidetracking the legislation.

A change came as the Democratic leadership in the Senate decided to go ahead with the voting.

Meanwhile, President Eisenhower was advised that he could not be indifferent to the opportunity opened up by Senator Knowland's move. So Secretary of Labor Mitchell proposed some amendments that went beyond the welfare-and-pension provisions and sought corrective action on boycotts and picketing. He also sponsored a formula to insure secret elections of labor-union officers.

Though three days of debate were scheduled for the Senate, the result was foreclosed in advance. There were so many conflicting currents that whatever the Senate finally passed seemed already doomed to inaction in the House of Representatives. The Democratic leadership in the House is ready to block legislation that the labor-union leaders oppose.

This labor-union dictatorship, using millions of dollars of workers' dues to exert political influence in staving off corrective legislation, still is on top. That's the story of the year - and, it might be added, the political scandal of the year.

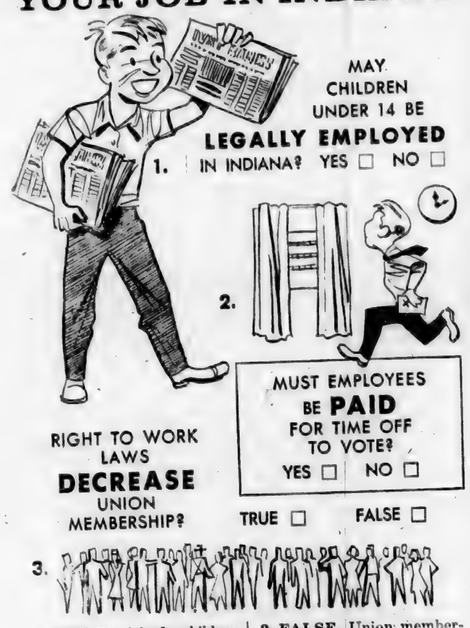
YOUR JOB IN INDIANA



1. YES. But jobs for children under 14 are limited to agriculture, domestic services, caddying or carrying newspapers outside school hours. No child may be employed in work that interferes with schooling.

2. NO. Employees are entitled to four hours off to vote during any general, state, county or city election. Some employers pay employees for time taken to vote, but there is no law to this effect. Usually employers and employees agree among themselves on this matter.

3. FALSE. Union membership has increased in states which have right to work laws. In Georgia, which has had such a law since 1947, W. M. Crim, secretary of the state AFL-CIO, says, "We have more people under union organization now than ever before." Texas now has 350,000 union members, a third more than when the law was passed. Since the Indiana Right to Work Law was passed in 1957, union membership has increased in many areas.

WORKERS NOT SHIRKERS 4-H CLUB

The fifth meeting of the Workers Not Shirkers 4-H Club was held April 14.

The president called the meeting to order. All repeated the pledge to the American and 4-H flags. There were 14 members present. Devotions were given by Susie Coburn.

Four songs were sung after which Health and Safety report was given by Kathy Wasson.

The officers gave a report of their activities at officers training meeting with the club having 100 per cent representation at the meeting.

A demonstration was given by Esther Fetters on candle salad and Marynelle Baker presented a demonstration on frosty orange float.

Everyone judged Janie Kline's refrigerator cookies and Judy Inlow's butterscotch overnight cookies.

The meeting then adjourned.

Recreation was enjoyed by all.

The sixth meeting was held April 28. The president called the meeting to order. Pledges were followed by three songs.

Health and Safety was given by Kathy Wasson.

Devotions were given by Judy Impton. Roll call was answered with favorite colors. 15 members were present.

A demonstration was given by Patricia Coburn on chocolate nut crunchies. They were judged by all. Esther Fetter's butterscotch cookies were also judged by the group.

The meeting then adjourned followed by recreation.

Funds Sought For Mental Health Research

The drive for funds for the mental health program is now underway in DeKalb County.

County campaign chairman Lyle Leas has appointed his area chairmen. These include Mrs. Ray Allison, Concord Township; Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Fisher, Spencer Township; and Mrs. John Engle, Newville Township.

The Mental Health Association strives to combat mental illness by presenting to the public a picture unblemished by superstitions and ignorance and to directly assist the mentally ill by promoting public recognition, consideration and assistance.

Statistics compiled by the National Association for Mental Health indicate that in the years to come, one of every 10 children born each year will need psychiatric help or treatment at a mental hospital during his lifetime. Over one half of the nation's hospital beds are occupied by mental patients and over $1 billion in tax funds is spent on mental illness.

Mr. George Doll has been elected lay delegate to attend the meeting of the Indiana Synod, May 12-14, at Grace Lutheran Church, Columbia City. He and the Rev. Ivan O. Miller will represent the Spencerville-Saint Joe parish, one of the 117 member churches of the synod. The Indiana Synod is a part of the United Lutheran Church, largest Lutheran body in this country. Rev. Walter Wick, president of the Indiana Synod, will complete his first term of office this year. An election for all of the synodical offices will be held at this year's meeting. Delegates will also elect persons to represent the synod at the fall convention of the United Lutheran Church to be held at Dayton. One of the chief items to come before that convention will be to plan the merger of that church with the Augustana Lutheran Church, the Suomi Synod and the American Evangelical Lutheran Church. Indiana Synod will also hear of a plan to make their Wittenberg College at Springfield, O., into a university. Reports from the two seminaries will be given. The church's Oesterlen Home for Children will report on the building of a new reception center and hospital. The Mulberry Home for the Aged and the Synod's youth camp will present their plans for meeting their expanding needs. High point of the convention will be the fellowship banquet Tuesday evening with Rev. Robert Stackel, D.D., guest speaker.

Two Gym Bids Rejected

The Riverdale School Board rejected bids on the sale of the Spencerville gymnasium at its meeting Monday evening, then announced that bids may be submitted until the next board meeting.

Two bids were submitted at the Monday night meeting. The Spencerville Community Club submitted a bid of $25. Dan Ransom of Spencerville submitted the other bid of $300, then withdrew his bid after the community's bid was filed.

The building was constructed in 1919 as a community center through funds obtained in a community drive. The property was later turned over to the Spencer Township school system. With the consolidation into the Riverdale School Corporation, the building became part of that system but was used sparingly as a practice gym and community center.

HYBRID SEED CORN

FARMCRAFT 39

An early maturing hybrid of superior yielding ability. The plants are of moderate height, the stalks are sturdy and particularly stiff standing, bearing single ears on strong shanks. The cylidrical ears develop deep grains of medium soft starch feeding type texture.

The ability of this strain to finish out plump grains in short seasons, and the fast drying cobs, fits it as first choice in the short growing season area of the 200 to 400 zones.

FARMCRAFT 40

An early maturing hybrid with the ear length and size usually found only in much later maturing strains. This strain has top yielding ability as a full season hybrid across the 400 zones. It is also well liked for later plantings farther south.

Extra ear length packs in higher yields, with no loss of high quality in the grain.

AFTER FALL OF FRENCH CABINET — Paris, France — Reporters and photographers surround Albert Sarraut (Center), President of the French Union, after he conferred with President Rene Coty of France following fall of the Government of Premier Felix Gaillard. Sarraut is one of the leaders of the Legislative Chambers. The Gaillard Government fell after five months in control after a debate and vote on the Tunisian-Algerian problems. It was the 25th French Government since World War Two.

VEGAS WAS JUMPING! — Las Vegas, Nevada — Fremont Street, Las Vegas' "Gay White Way of the West" was really jumping last night as millions of grasshoppers, attracted by the bright lights, moved into town. Favorable weather conditions and a bumper crop of desert wildflowers spawned the record host of 'hoppers. Officials are considering blacking out the famed "Glitter Gulch" to entice the insects to move along.

THE BRUSSELS WORLD FAIR — Brussels, Belgium — The Russian and the American Pavilions are the biggest attractions at The Brussels World Fair which opened Thursday. It is too early yet to say which is best "box-office", but here is a view of the U.S. Pavilion drawing in the customers. It has won high praise from all who have seen it and the exhibits it contains.

"I SEE YOU" — Washington, D.C. — The Washington Monument rises majestically in the background as the intricate color and beauty of The Capital's famed Japanese Cherry Blossoms so entice three-year-old David Robertson that he decides to get a better look at them with the help of his spy glasses.

Pete Timmerman Heads Church Softball League

Pete Timmerman was elected president of the Saint Joe Church League at a meeting held last Thursday evening.

Other officers for the coming summer of softball are as follows:

Donald E. Miller—Vice president.

Gerald Kraft-secretary-treasurer.

Entry fee in the league will be $25 this year, a reduction of $5 from the fee charged last year. Of this $10 per team is turned over to the Saint Joe Recreation Club to help defray expenses of operating the ball diamond. The $10 fee is due from all teams using the lighted diamond regularly through the season.

A further change was made in the rules in that a team will be allowed to start a game with but 8 players on the field and add the ninth man when he appears for the game. Last year it was required that a full 9-man team be fielded or the game be forfeited.

Teams which have indicated a desire to participate include Spencerville Lutheran, Newville Church of Christ, Newville E.U.B., Coburntown, Mt. Pleasant, Saint Joe Church of Christ and the combined team of Methodist churches from Concord, Meese Chapel and Rehobeth. Other teams who may wish to enter should contact the officers of the church league as quickly as possible. A schedule will be drawn up in the next two weeks.

Board Sets May 17-24 For Clean-Up

The week of May 17 through May 24 has been designated Clean-Up Fix-Up Paint-Up Week by the Saint Joe Town Board. Members of the board urge residents of Saint Joe to make a particular effort to improve their property during the week for the sake of town and community improvement.

To help with the task of making special efforts to clean up during the week, the board has made provisions to furnish truck facilities on Saturday May 17, and Saturday, May 24, to haul away accumulations of debris, etc., which residents may want disposed of. Placing the accumulations at the curb will insure their disposal.

It is hoped that weather conditions are better than those experienced last year for the clean-up campaign. In the spring of 1957 rain hampered the Saturday efforts and generally dampened enthusiasm for outdoor work.

Improvement in local property is already in evidence, as several homeowners have been busy in the past few weeks improving their property and getting a jump on their neighbors in the clean-up campaign.

Cubs, Scouts To Be At Coliseum

Saint Joe Troop 172 of Boy Scouts of America and Spencerville Pack 3172 Cub Scouts will participate in the fourth Scout-O-Rama to be held on Friday and Saturday, May 23 and 24, at the Coliseum at Fort Wayne. More than 5,000 Boy Scouts, explorer Scouts and Cub Scouts will establish a record participation in the event.

The purpose of the exposition is to give the general public, parents and Scouts themselves an opportunity to see live demonstrations of the scope and value of the citizenship training program of the Boy Scouts of America.

The Saint Joe Boy Scout Troop will present an exhibit on railroading while the Spencerville Cub Pack will have a booth featuring their work on a "happy holidays" theme.

Saint Joe Lions Club Elects Ted Haberkorn

The Saint Joe Lions Club heard Dr. O. I. Kidder, superintendent of Irene Byron Sanatarium, speak on the disease tuberculosis and give a brief history of the establishment of the Allen County institution in 1921. Dr. Kidder reviewed the treatment of tuberculosis and the necessity for finding the disease in its early stages in order to obtain comparatively fast and effective recovery.

The local service club held its annual election of officers during the business meeting and elected Ted Haberkorn president for the club year 1958-1959. Other officers elected include:

Elmer McKay—1st vice president.

Frank Sechler — 2nd vice president.

Blaine Kimes—3rd vice president.

Clifford Billow— secretary-treasurer.

Tail Twister—Forrest Bevington.

Lion Tamer—Roy Chapman.

Board of Directors—Warren Clauser (one year remaining of two year term), Vernie Monroe (one year remaining of two year term of transfer member), and Wayne Storer and Walter Morr, elected to two year terms.

Rural Mail Patrons' Cooperation Sought

Spencerville Acting Postmistress Josephine Crowl and Saint Joe Postmaster Lehr Wilder urge the cooperation of rural route mail patrons in keeping rural mail boxes in good repair. In connection with this request, they announced this week that the U.S. Uost Office Department has designated May 19 to May 24 as Mail Box Improvement Week.

Information on regulations concerning rural mail boxes discloses that persons desiring mail service must erect and maintain boxes conforming to regulations. This aids the carrier in giving speedy delivery and improves the appearance of every home and community.

Postmasters are required to inspect all boxes in the month of May and notify patrons if there are any irregularities to be corrected. The cooperation of all receiving notices will be appreciated by the local post offices.

Listed below are the important items concerning mail boxes:

1. Keep the drive to the box solid and even.

2. Keep box and post solid and level.

3. Group boxes wherever possible.

4. Paint box and post either white or aluminum.

5. Put name on the side of the side where it can be seen by the carrier. Letters should be about 1 inch high.

Little League Revamps Policy; More Boys Play

A call to all boys between the ages of 8 and 13 years has been issued for the coming season of Little League baseball, with the promise that all boys participating will have a chance to play in the games to be scheduled for local teams.

Price Brookfield and Joe Robinson, directors of the Little League activity in Saint Joe, have revealed that a change has been made for the year 1958 with respect to team participation in Little League. All league games will be in a local league, there being four teams anticipated in the league. Past experience with the boys has shown that the competition which has arisen quite naturally in the area competition and in play-off competition has kept many boys from participating tho' the program was designed to appeal to and include all boys who want to play hard ball.

A somewhat spontaneous break-away from past custom is apparent as other communities are also forming their own leagues with more teams and therefore more boys participating.

Mr. Brookfield and Mr. Robinson urge 8 to 13 year olds to come out for Little League and help build a local league which will give an opportunity to more boys to take part. In addition, it is planned to use to some extent the boys who are of Pony League age but who are not members of the Holsom Dairy team due to the surplus of numbers. Parents have an opportunity to provide protection for their young men who play ball as insurance is available through the Little League organization at a cost of $1 per boy.

It is planned to schedule games with other teams from other towns through the summer. But the nucleus of Little League activity locally will be the local ball diamond.

Brass Tacks - 10th In A Series

It is somewhat the nature of man's goodness to speak about the high goals of spirituality as being the prime goal of life but to be unable much of the time to apply the general rules of those ambitions to what we call everyday living - or to put into practical use the goodness of spiritual considerations.

This is not confined only to the private level but extends to affairs of public nature, governmental, political, social. And examples can be found almost daily of the high ideals of Christian men being set aside for reasons of practicality. Leaders in public life are reluctant to speak in plain terms because such speaking would be offensive to many people, though the actions of these people might themselves have been offensive to others. Examination of the speeches given on various special occasions before political groups or labor groups or farm groups or what have you will show a predominant air of "all is well with you" or "you are the backbone of our good fortune," though a share of the difficulties we may be experiencing today may be directly attributed to the selfish goals sought by these same groups. It is not very often that we hear of or read of a public official speaking constructively to these groups and pointing out the pitfalls of too zealous endeavors along group lines. Most of the time there is the inclination to say something that will make everyone present happy with themselves. Even in our churches one may find this bowing to the practical world in order to get along better with the people, sacrificing whatever fundamental doctrine there may be established in the past to keep harmony in the present.

Americans today are coasting somewhat on the past efforts of past generations. We are trying to make ourselves the saviours of the world in a sense by keeping ourselves in a state of mind of righteousness through physical appearance and flowery words. We keep an air of supposed diligence about us with vast expenditures to "make the world free' and to keep something we call "security" for ourselves. We militarize the thinking of our youth with the prospect of military service and make such service, what we usually call a "patriotic duty," become a matter of selfish interest by promising educational benefits and prefence in jobs, housing, financing, and even handing out bonuses occasionally as a reward. The almighty dollar prevails. Patriotism is today not a matter of individual responsibility and desire to preserve and protect our nation. It is a matter of individual desire to protect individual wealth. Americans are not fearful for freedom today so much as they are fearful for losing a high pay scale, a high standard of living, a luxurious life.

But let anyone speak in these terms and they will be scorned.

There are indications that such material-life concern brings troubles in other matters. A radio interview heard the other day offered comments by one of our South American neighbors. The interview was made by Jay Gould on a recent South American farm tour. Mr. Gould himself is not one to mince words occasionally with the group he is primarily concerned with, namely, the farmer. And the opinions spoken by the South American citizen were not what could be called glowing with praise. Another interview with an American citizen in South America gave somewhat the same picture of criticism, and strangely enough, both criticisms came be- Vice-President Nixon is being stoned and cause of the materialism of Americans. If spat upon and jeered in the countries of South America, it would appear to be only something to be expected because of our attitude toward people of South America. That attitude rests upon - money. South American criticisms heard by the touring group brought out the fact that Americans do not know how to live or enjoy themselves, for one thing; for another they think that a dollar bill is a cure-all for the world's troubles and specifically for South America's troubles.

But let any of our citizens speak in these terms and they are scorned.

During the present slow-down of business activity, frequent mention has been made of the strange phenomenon - employment dropped and business slowed, but the cost of living raised. One comment seen recently mentioned the fact that production in other nations in major industries is up while in our country it is down. Imports of goods to this country of certain items is up. The observation was made that this is a result of our own nation's labor pricing itself right out of the market. This may be true, this is probably true. But said in those particular words it does not hurt too much. If plainer language had been used, there would be quite a number of incensed citizens. Because the plain language is that labor is too high. What is labor? No, not union members, not people working in the factories, not the city population as separated from the rural population. Labor is everybody who works. The cost of labor is what everyone gets paid in return for his pursuit of his vocation. Plain words are, "We're paid too much."

Plain words bring the controversial subject down to one basic and fundamental concern of the success of the capitalistic system, much less a basic and fundamental concern of anyone who seeks to do right by not only himself but by his fellow men - "Am I worth what I receive?"

But let a voice be raised to point out the danger of reaching for too much and what constitutes "too much" and again there is scorn.

Through it all there can be seen the unpopular fact that money isn't everything, though we try to make it so. In this nation, where dedication in the past to ideals and principles has resulted in a vast amount of spoils, sure enough - we're spoiled.

FOR PROBLEM DRINKERS

A liquor store sends these cards to clients and prospects: "Since you cannot refrain from drinking, why not start a saloon in your own home? Be the only customer and you will not have to buy a license. Give your wife $55.00 to buy a case of whiskey. There are 240 drinks in a case . . . Buy all your drinks from your wife at 60 cents a drink and in 12 days (when the case is gone) your wife will have $89 to put in the bank and $55.00 to buy another case. . . If you live 10 years and continue to buy all your whiskey from your wife and then die in your boots, your widow will have $27,085.47 on deposit. . .enough to bring up your children, pay off the mortgage on the house, marry a decent man, and forget she ever knew a fellow like you."

REPORT FROM FORMOSA

(Note from Dr. Benson: Dr. J.D. Bales of the Harding College faculty, is lecturing and studying economic, political and social conditions in the Orient and throughout a wide area of Asia. He has just visited Formosa where he lectured in the universities on the nature of Communism. He interviewed Chiang Kai-shek and Hollington K. Tong, Chinese Ambassador to the United States. Following are some excerpts from his report to me.)

TAIPEI, TAIWAN (FORMOSA)—I have just had an interesting interview with Chiang Kai-shek and later I talked at length with Ambassador Tong who happened to be here for a few weeks before returning to his embassy post in Washington.

These leaders of Free China are men of high character, keen intellect and great dedication to the cause of freedom throughout the world. They are in constant touch with many avenues of authentic information out of Communist China. They know what's happenning there.

Ambassador Tong said this morning at breakfast: "The American people should study thoroughly what has happened in Iron Curtain countries. This should include a verification of the statement made by anti-Communist leaders that Red China during the seven years of its rule has killed in cold blood 20,000,000 people, and that 25,000,000 additional people have died of starvation in slave labor camps.

"Some branches of American government have verified these figures. If the people doubt the scope of the Communist mass murders and brutality of slave labor camps let them make further verification. A study will convince Americans that the Communists' treatment of the people of China and the slaughter there is an indication of the fate of the American people if Communism — God forbid — should ever rule the U.S.A."

GRANDPA'S BOY By BRAD ANDERSON

Both Chiang Kai-shek and Ambassador Tong emphasized that the Communist program of "peaceful co-existence" is only one phase of the implementation of the Communist plan for world domination. "It is like a pause or rest in the music," said Ambassador Tong. "It is not the whole piece. It is amazing to find that so large a number of American people simply refuse to believe what Khrushchev has said again and again: 'We are going to bury Capitalism and the United States' .... and 'Communism will conquer the world.' "

Friends of mine in this part of the world, both Chinese and Americans, are enthusiastic about the new book written by Chiang Kai-shek and published by the American firm, Farrar, Straus and Cudahy. Its title is "Soviet Russia In Ceina." It is Chiang's account of his experiences with the Russian and Chinese Communists. It gives historical facts and analyzes the Communists' clever warfare both in theory and practice.

In relating his efforts to work with the Communists in North China immediately after World War II, Chiang shows that the Communists act out their atheistic philosophy of life, repudiate moral law in both their theory and practice. To judge them by the standards of decency to which we hold is to enable them to deceive and destroy us. "In our dealings with the Chinese Communists we have always set great store by ethical considerations, good faith and righteousness. It was our belief that every Chinese could not help but feel loyal to his own country first. That was why we had sincerely hoped to move forward together on the road of democracy to complete our task of national reconstruction.

"What we did not realize was that Communists are Communists, first, last and always. They were traitorous and treacherous all the time. Everywhere they went they set traps for others. Any weak spot in our organization or loophole in our precautionary measures would give them a chance to start trouble. In our war with Communism we made the mistake of judging the Communists by the same yardstick of national consciousness and democratic and ethical concepts" which Christians endeavor to live by. —J.D.B.

Twelve members of the Rural Housewives Club met at the home of Mrs. Clyde Hart on Wednesday, May 7. Ellen Fetters presided.

Each member was presented with a Mother's Day corsage. Berniece Wilder gave the opening number with a mother's poem on "I'd Rather Be Tired Than Lonely." Twelve members responded to roll call with "my favorite hobby." All then gave interesting household hints.

A special collection was taken for Mental Health Week amounting to $5.00. A question and answer contest followed with both humorous and serious sides being discussed.

Marie Ward gave several stunts.

The house was gaily decorated with spring flowers. Mrs. Hart served a tasty lunch and an absent member Mrs. Inez Hadsell, now at South Bend, was remembered with a greeting card.

SPEEDWAY TRIALS BEGIN SATURDAY

Stimulated by a touch of International flavor, interest in the annual 500-Mile Race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on May 30 apparently is on its way to a new all-time "high" as drivers and mechanics prepare for the start of time trials Saturday.

In anticipation of the largest qualification day crowd in Speedway history, gates to the grounds will be opened at 7 a. m. The track will be ready for practice runs at 9 a. m. and the official time trials will get under way at 11 a. m.

Trials also are scheduled Sunday, beginning at noon, with the gates open at 9 a. m., and again on the week-end of May 24-25.

Fifty-six entries—two more than last year—form the official field for this 42nd annual "500," but only the fastest 33 qualifiers will be eligible for starting positions on race day.

As an added incentive, Speedway President Tony Hulman again has posted special cash awards totalling $11,500 for the trials.

Sharing the spotlight with such former "500" winners as Troy Ruttman and Johnnie Parsons is the current world champion, Juan Manuel Fangio of Buenos Aires. Seldom, if ever, has any newcomer to the Speedway attracted as much attention among participants and fans alike.

Whether or not he will attempt to qualify on the opening day of the trials is a question he has not yet answered. If he succeeds in earning a starting position, however, he will be the first foreign driver since Alberto Ascari, in 1952, to accomplish that feat.

Juan Manuel Fangio of Buenos Aires, current world champion, gets some pointers from 1951 Indianapolis Winner Johnnie Parsons during practice for this year's "500" time trials starting May 17.

Nine drivers who have gained front-row starting positions on one or more previous occasions at Indianapolis are included among the contenders for the No. 1 starting spot this year. They are Ruttman, Freddie Agabashian, Jim Rathmann, Pat O'Connor, Tony Bettenhausen, Jimmy Daywalt, Jim Bryan, Paul Russo and Eddie Sachs.

O'Connor, who won the "pole" last year, believes Pat Flaherty's one-lap and four-lap records of 146.056 and 145.596 miles an hour are sure to be broken if weather conditions are favorable. Most of the veterans also are of the opinion that an average of close to 141 miles an hour will be necessary to win a starting berth.

Admission on time trial days will be $1.50, with free parking space available in the infield.

Bible Schools Prepare To Open

Vacation Bible School time is approaching. And an announcement from Coburntown Church of Christ indicates that their school will begin Monday, May 26.

J. Paul Hill, pastor of the church, revealed this week that classes will continue thru Friday, June 6, and the school program will be climaxed by a picnic at Alton Park on the closing day. The closing exercise will be held Sunday evening, June 8, with all children participating. Certificates will be awarded at ths time.

Bible school classes will be held from 9:00 - 11:00 a.m. The school is open to pre-school children through the ninth grade of school.

Featured will be two weeks of singing, Bible study, handcraft and play under Christian supervision. The theme will be, "Bible Sea Adventures," stressing the fact that life is like a voyage across the sea with God as Pilot.

Transportation will be provided if needed. Additional information can be obtained from the pastor, phone Spencerville 44F4.

Invitations have been sent and a general invitation is extended to children of Saint Joe to attend the Bible School at St. Mark's Lutheran Church.

The school will begin Wednesday, May 21, and classes will be held week days thru June 4, except for Memorial Day, May 30.

Mrs. Frank Shull, director of the Bible school, announced last week that Missionary Collection will be taken each day. The school will include a pot luck dinner on Friday, May 23, at 11:15 a.m.

A closing program will be presented Wednesday, June 4, at 7:30 p.m.

Other churches in the area are also planning their vacation Bible schools to begin at the close of the school term.

Our Parent Company
Has Changed Its Name to American Electric Power Company, INC.

and we want you to know why

With a record of more than half a century of progress and service our parent company, American Gas and Electric Company, has adopted a new name: American Electric Power Company. The six company electric network, of which we are a part, will now be known as American Electric Power System.

Though we have changed names, we have not changed our business or made any other changes. We will continue to be an all-electric power system, with but a single service — providing economical, dependable electric power to our customers.

When the American Gas and Electric Company was formed in 1906, the founders provided for the development of gas as well as electrical facilities. They chose a name appropriate to the kind of business they foresaw, but almost from the beginning the company concentrated on developing a modern electric power system. Today it furnishes no gas service.

In 1906, electric power was still comparatively new; electric power systems, in the modern sense, were in the future. Today electricity is an essential tool in helping man better his environment in many ways: to build and manufacture, to entertain, to explore, to give his family comforts and conveniences in living undreamed of half a century ago, to fight famine and disease, and to control climate. Today the world stands on the threshold of new experiences, and electric power, as a result of harnessing the atom and other forces of nature, will be of even greater influence in expanding and enriching human activity.

We are proud that in our sphere of activity we have helped bring about some of these achievements of the past and of the present. We look forward with confidence to our part in helping to bring about through electric power the even greater achievements that can be expected in the future.

The Women of St. Mark's Lutheran Church will hold an open meeting Sunday afternoon, May 18, from 4:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. The subject of the program is "Japan Today." A meal of Japanese food will be served. The program will include a study of the work done today in Japan by the Lutheran Church with an exhibition of interesting data and material. It has been said that to be up to date on world affairs one must know Japan. This study is being presented with the idea of helping those who attend gain new insights into the Japan of today. There is to be no charge for either the program or the meal. However an offering will be taken, which will be sent in its entirety as a personal gift to one of the members of St. Mark's Church who is in full time Christian service in the Japanese church, Rev. and Mrs. William Billow. Neighbors and friends are cordially invited to share in what promises to be a very interesting occasion.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Every once in a while readers offer suggestions for Ye Ed to follow in presenting news of interest for their fellow readers and I appreciate them. But once in a while I can't follow up on a suggestion, like the one Lois Fisher gave the week before the primary election. She suggested having a complete list of candidates published so that voters would know who was going to be on the ballots before they went to the polls, rather than walk into the booth stone cold and face the responsibility of picking candidates. It was a good suggestion and I intended to follow it. But by the time all the ads were set for the candidates the space was gone - and there you are.

I got another "suggestion" last week from someone who wouldn't sign his (or her) name, as follows:

"Read Boy Scout Hand Book Page 76. Quote 'Flags should be cleaned when soiled. Do not display flag if it is in poor condition. That is disrespectful.' Unquote.

"Flag should not be displayed on days when weather is inclement. Never leave a flag up all night.

"Ask any Boy Scout."

I suppose that came because the flag displayed in front of the News Office has become tattered at the edges and somewhat worn. It was asked of me by our eldest Boy Scout one time recently what are you supposed to do with a flag when it's worn out, burn it? He didn't say, your flag is worn out and should be burned — tactful, I guess. But I didn't get the point of the tact and went merrily on my way until, now, somebody anonymously sets me straight.

The wheels were put in motion the same day the above letter was received to acquire a new flag and so, soon now, Old Glory, new edition, will be seen waving at the News Office and Old Glory, old edition, will be retired - worn, perhaps, and tattered, but still Old Glory.

Any disrespect shown the flag by The News was unintentional.

Who knows a more wonderful feeling than that which comes with these warm spring days each year making you feel like getting out and doing things. The re-appearance of green in Mother Nature seems to bring the promise of hope for everything.

One of the fruits of that feeling is the sort of spontaneous effort of people to clean up the place and make improvements where necessary and possible. Hence, the clean up campaigns in Saint Joe and Spencerville. And if the campaigns aren't successful, it won't be the fault of newcomers Pastor Miller and wife and the two congregations he serves. The Lutheran parsonage at Spencerville looks like a million bucks.

And in Saint Joe the Vinsons, like some others, have been seedin' and dirtin' and spadin', etc., to help things out.

Legion Plans Memorial Day Parade. Program

Plans for the observance of Memorial Day have been completed by the American Legion Post in Saint Joe. Included in the observance will be decorating of graves of deceased veterans and a parade and appropriate program at the local cemetery on Memorial Day, Friday, May 30.

Members of the local American Legion Post will visit area cemeteries on Wednesday, May 28, to decorate veterans' graves. Members will meet at the post home in Saint Joe at 6:00 p.m. Cemeteries at Saint Joe, Spencerville and Newville plus Alton, Wharten Bee, Kraft, Jenkins, Concord, Bear Creek and Watson cemeteries are included on the tour of visitation. In case bad weather prevails on Wednesday, Legion members will take the tour on Thursday evening.

On Memorial Day, Legion members will conduct brief military services in honor of the war dead at Spencerville at 9:00 a.m. They will then conduct similar services at Newville at 10:00 a.m. and at Alton at 11:00 a.m. In the afternoon a parade will form at the Post home in Saint Joe at 1:30 p.m. with the Riverdale High School Band, under the direction of Mr. Robert Lowry, Legion members, Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts and any other organizations and individuals who wish to participate. The parade will lead to the cemetery where the band will play a few selections. An address will be given by James Beck, minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ and the American Legion Post firing squad will give a salute to the memory of departed veterans.

The public is invited to participate in the Memorial Day observance.

Saturday Is 'End of the Beginning'

Saturday, May 24, will be the final day of the clean-up campaign in Saint Joe. Continued improvement efforts are expected in the coming months, but this Saturday will be the climax of the kick-off.

Boy Scouts have been asked to cooperate with the local Boosters Club and the town board to help in the Saturday pick-up of accumulated trash. The Scouts will call door to door Saturday to remind residents of Saint Joe of the final pick-up.

Cooperation of local residents is urged.

Ball Diamond To Be Active Thru Week

At a meeting of Little League, Pony League, High School and Church League representatives held last week, assignment of nights for use of the local ball diamond was made. The results of the meeting show that the diamond will have a busy season in 1958. A coordinated program was necessary so that all teams needing the diamond could be given nights for its use.

The schedule for diamond activity shows that the following leagues will participate:

Monday—Church League.
Tuesday—Little League until 8:00 p.m. Church League 8:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m.
Wednesday—Pony League.
Thursday—Little League and High School.
Friday—Church League.

A 10:00 p.m. curfew has been placed on the diamond this year with no inning to start after 10 o'clock except in case of a tie. This is by mutual agreement between the various leagues represented at the meeting.

A charge of $10 per team is made for those teams participating in regular league play, this fee to help pay expenses of operating the ball diamond. Operation of the lighted diamond is through the Saint Joe Valley Recreation Club and club president Ted Haberkorn asks that the fee be paid as quickly as possobile to him, club secretary Joe Robinson or club treasurer Ralph Sechler.

Improvements and repairs are planned for the diamond and the diamond-use fee is needed to pay expenses of the improvements.

The Bitter With the Better

The excellent program presented last week end when awards were presented to deserving students by the P.T.A. for the students' efforts in school activities served the purpose of being somewhat of a "neutralizier" in a sense with respect to the younger generation. For at this program we saw awards presented to those whom we have been inclined to consider only in terms of "hot rodder" in the past. Their achievements in school, for which they were recognized, seemed to serve as a brake on the movement of resentment toward teen-agers in general.

As some of the names were read and the students came forward for recognition, it could be recognized that here were some of the same group who have been eyed somewhat critcially by all of us at times. And it was somewhat a shock to be hit by the realization that, by golly, they are good for something! And with later speculation as to what attitude is best in the situation, it appeared to be the same perplexing problem that faces each succeeding generation of adults who are inclined to opine that the younger generation is going to the devil that is present now.

Seeing the young people in the school all dolled up in their Sunday best served as a tonic. For here was the "irresponsible" generation for a few moments, at least, suddenly becoming quite worthy and almost adult. Perhaps they reverted to form later in the evening, which is quite the natural thing, we suppose. But at least there was the encouraging thought that along with the air of defiance that youth possesses in every generation, there was also the fact that worthy deeds had also been accomplished, that some of these "hot-rodders" who are so exasperating much of the time were not wasting every effort on useless activity. So it became apparent that adulthood has a mountainous task of being patient with impetuous youth and glad for the moments of worthy accomplishment, striving to aim the efforts of young people toward a balance between the wasteful moments and the worthy moments and then later to an overbalance when the greater part of life is aimed at constructive efforts.

At any rate, the class of 1958 and all the other classes did their part during the past school year to make the community proud of their scholastic activities. No little reason for this successful year is the combined effort of the school faculty. The complexion of the school was excellent and the principal is to be commended for the smoothness with which the school was operated. Unfortunately, there will be changes with the coming year due to the departure of some faculty members. Some changes would have occurred, regardless of circumstances. But others quite possibly could have been avoided.

To the faculty of Riverdale during 1957-58 and to the students goes a pat on the back at the completion of a good school year.

STAN MUSIAL AND PROGRESS

It would be interesting to know what the crowd reaction would be if the official scorer at Busch Stadium in St. Louis, home of the St. Louis Cardinal National League baseball team, recorded Stan Musial's batting average at .287. Every baseball fan knows that Musial's average today is near .500 per cent. However, if the official scorer averaged out the nine men in the lineup for a recent Cardinal-Milwaukee game, the average for each player would be .287 - including Musial.

That would mean the scorer would take more than 200 percentage points from Musial. He'd take a few percentage points from the other leading Cardinal batters and spread them out among the less capable. Every player on the St. Louis roster would be equal - so far as the averages were concerned. But would the fans stand for this? I think not. Musial is a great hitter. They take pride in his high batting average. They go out to the stadium to watch this outstanding hitter crack the horsehide.

Musial gets paid on the basis of his batting and his other outstanding abilities. His salary naturally is much larger than that of any other Cardinal player. If the official scorer daily took away part of Musial's batting percentage and spread it out among the other players, and the Cardinal management established an "average" salary for all players regardless of ability, determination, spirit and personal industry, the profession of baseball would lose its zest for most of the players - and, I imagine, for the fans, too!

Any rule or philisophy of "equality" when applied to personal ability - among a group of people - sooner or later has a smothering effect on incentive, and ultimately it breaks down the normal dynamic impulses and capabilities which are inherent among free people in a competitive society. It lowers the productive rate of any group; it holds back progress.

Organized labor unions were created to perform useful services in our American economic system. Collective bargaining by a group of employees with their employer is one of these basically useful services. Constant work toward the improvement of the employees working conditions and income is another. However, some labor unions have fallen into the hands of Communists whose primary objective is to foment constant strife between employer and employees; and some labor unions have been dominated for years by leaders dedicated to achieving a Socialist America.

The policies and practices of some of the non-Communist non-Socialist labor leaders have not always been wise. One of the fundamental flaws in much of the organized labor movement today, in my opinion, is the insistence in many unions that everybody is "equal" in ability on a given job. Some unions are on record for instance as opposed to wage incentives. In an industrial plant, to them, there can be no Stan Musials or Ted Williams, no major leaguers batting and running the bases and showing a competitive spirit.

Our whole free society is based on the foundation of rewards and punishments .... rewards for merit, punishments for transgressions. By holding back natural ability and productivity of individual people the nation's progress and everybody's prosperity is hampered. Certain collective bargainers say: "When workers are paid according to their individual efforts, the union's function of securing high guaranteed wages for all workers becomes more difficult." This is an untenable motive for imposing upon the American workmen and the American nation a policy holding back national progress and individual attainment.

TOO MANY "PEEVES"

Based on the theory that a good editorial writer is "one who wakes up mad," there ought to be plenty of qualified writers today. For most of us can readily achieve that state of mind simply by thinking of the one word, "Government."

This time of the year when we are just beginning to recover from the income tax nightmare, the feeling against bureaucracy is merely a normal state of mind. Greatest difficulty in editorial writing these days is the problem of concentrating on a single peeve when there are so many available.

It was my purpose, for instance, to devote this column to the continuing ban on Pay-As-You-See TV. I am one of those peculiar people who doesn't even own a TV set so my feeling isn't based on any personal desire for the programs Pay-TV might offer. But I just don't think it is any of the government's business whether TV programs are paid for by advertisers, by the public, or by anyone else except possibly the Kremlin. It burns me up to have the FCC assuming this power.

But as I was beginning to reach a state of "seeth" on this subject, I glanced at the unemployment figure headlines and my impatience shifted to that group of spongers who automatically quit their jobs and go on the unemployment rolls when they feel the first attack of spring fever. How can we know how much unemployment is real and how much is of the "why-work when you get paid anyway" variety?

With this question hanging in mid-air the mail came in with a pamphlet digesting the "pork barrel" measures which are being tossed into the Congressional hopper under the guise of "staving off the recession." That brought on a first degree rage which made my other little peeves seem silly by comparison. "What we need in government today" I found myself thinking "are some old-fashioned conservatives like Franklin D. Roosevelt!"

I guess I'll never be an editorial writer. I just can't master that rare ability of being able to get mad at only one thing at a time.

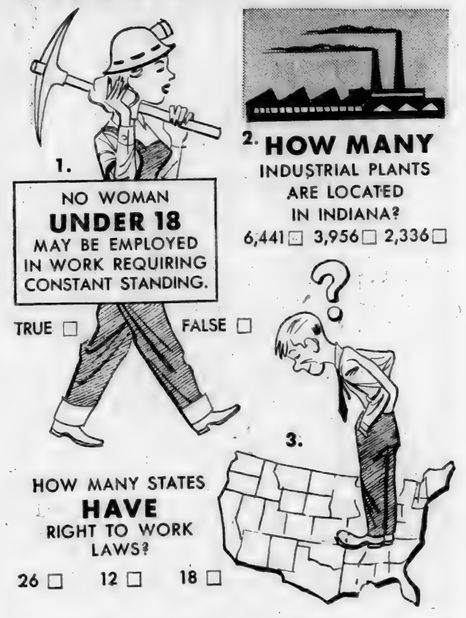
YOUR JOB IN INDIANA



1. TRUE. But there are no restrictions on women 21 years or older, except they cannot be employed in mines.

2. ANS. You are right if you chose 6,441. Eighty percent of all building limestone comes from Indiana. Indiana ranks third among the 48 states in steel production. Makers of automobiles, automotive parts, heavy machinery, precision instruments and soft goods are also contributing to Indiana's rapid growth as an industrial state.

3. ANS. 18. Indiana enacted a right to work law in 1957. This law gives each worker the right to join or not to join a union, just as he sees fit. It means that no employee can be forced to join a union, or any other private organization, in order to get and hold a job.

St. Joe Luth'n. Newville EUB Play Friday

The Saint Joe Church League softball season will get underway this Friday evening at the Saint Joe diamond with the first game scheduled between the Newville E.U.B. nine and the team from Saint Joe Lutheran.

Activities in the league were thrown into high gear last week end with the drawing up of the season schedule by league president Pete Timmerman and Lewis Walter who has been active in the church league also for several years. A change in scheduling of games has been made for the 1958 season with but one game to be played on church league nights, this to start at 8:15 p. m. In past seasons, two games have been played each night. But it has been evident that this means too late hours for some of the younger players and somewhat of a public disturbance for those living in the vicinity of the ball diamond. Thus a schedule calling for only one game per night has been prepared.

Church League games will be played on Monday, Tuesday and Friday nights. On Tuesday nights, the local Little League will have games scheduled, also. These, however, will start early in the evening so that the diamond may be available for the church teams at 8:00 p.m. Fifteen minutes will then be allowed for practice for the church teams before the start of games.

Teams in the Church League number eight and are as follows:

St. Joe Lutheran, Mt. Pleasant, Newville E.U.B., Newville Church of Christ, Spencerville Lutheran, Meese - Rehobeth-Concord, Saint Joe Church of Christ and Coburntown Church of Christ.

After the opener on Friday between Newville E.U.B. and Saint Joe Lutheran, Mt. Pleasant and Newville Church of Christ will face each other on Monday evening and Spencerville Lutheran and Meese-Rehobeth-Concord play on Tuesday. Action on Friday, May 30, will be between Saint Joe Church of Christ and Coburntown.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clauser and son, Bob, and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Baker and daughter, Cynthia Ann, were Sunday dinner guests in the Watt home. Curt Watt who is in the Sanders Hospital in Auburn remains about the same.

A new milestone in the electric power industry was reached this week when an extra-high voltage power line was placed in service between the systems of Commonwealth Edison Company and American Electric Power Company, parent firm of Indiana & Michigan Electric Company. Customers of these two major utility systems, which together serve a population of nearly 12 million, thus have added assurance of continued dependable electric service. The 345,000 volt line is the nation's largest for interchange of a bulk electricity supply between two power systems.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn and sons attended the Cubs-Giants double-header at Chicago Sunday.

In order to have a more effective Bible School this year, the Saint Joe Church of Christ will hold their daily vacation Bible school in the evening from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. from Monday, May 26, until Friday, June 6. The last night will be devoted to the special program at 7:00 p.m. Slides taken during the school will be shown as well as a special program put on by the children. There will be a picnic dinner for the young people on the final day. "We Worship the Lord" is the theme of this year's course. Many hours are being devoted to making this a real Christ-centered school. All children are invited from 3 years of age to those entering the 7th grade. Registration will be Monday, May 26, at 6:00 p.m.

The summer recreation program will get underway in Saint Joe and Spencerville after the first week in June under the supervision of Price Brookfield.

Saint Joe residents were inconvenienced temporarily at the beginning of this week when the water pressure went down to zero. The water tank is being painted, necessitating the draining of the tank. During that time the water supply is coming direct from the well and constant vigil is kept at the pump to maintain pressure. The job should be completed by Friday of this week.

James R. Clauser and son, Gary, of South Bend were Friday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clauser.

Roy Bowser, Hollis Akins and son and Don Keller returned Tuesday from a 2-day fishing trip to Canada which is reported to be very successful.

DeKalb County has been awarded a silver award by Purdue University for outstanding 4-H club work. Included in the leaders of the county clubs are Harriett Baker of Concord Township and Jean Moore of Spencer Township.

Indiana will start enforcing a midnight curfew on taverns on Friday, May 23, as the result of a new ruling which eliminates the fast-time closing on slow-time - or something.

How your neighbors live better . . . electrically

"Now we know what living better electrically means,"

says Mrs. Donald Evans.

"From my all-electric kitchen to our room-by-room-controlled electric heat, we love everything in our new all-electric home. It's really amazing how convenient and comfortable electric living can be. And it's so low in cost. Why, our average monthly electric bill is only $26.98 . . . and that includes electric heating! Electricity makes life easier and more pleasant for us."

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

With only the 33 fastest qualifiers eligible for starting positions on May 30, official time trials at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway will come to an exciting climax this week-end.

More fast cars than ever before are included among this year's entries for the 42nd annual speed classic and the "bumping" process will start as soon as 33 have completed their qualifications attempts.

Drivers of cars eliminated in this manner then will be free to drive any of the other cars not yet qualified and many dramatic last-minute changes in driver assignments are likely.

A special cash award of $1,000 for the fastest qualifying performance will be an added incentive for high speed.

The gates will be opened Saturday at 8 a.m., with trials from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m. Sunday's schedule calls for opening of the gates at 9 a.m., with trials from noon until 6 p.m. Admission will be $1.50 with free parking in the infield.

The Saturday and Sunday sessions also will offer a final opportunity for practice and experimental work by all entrants. Whenever the track is not being used for an official qualification attempt, it will be available for other drivers and an exceptionally busy week-end is certain.

On the basis of their early performance, several highly-regarded rookies are conceded at least a fifty-fifty chance of crowding a few of the veterans out of the starting lineup.

Fans who have not yet purchased their tickets for race day, will have an opportunity to do so while attending the trials. Reserved seats on the main straightaway at $10 each and in the bleacher sections at $5.50 each will be available at the ticket counter in the museum-office building at the main gate to the grounds.

National Champion Jimmy Bryan, at the wheel of last year's winning car, discusses his chances of victory with Speedway President Tony Hulman and Car Owner George Salih.

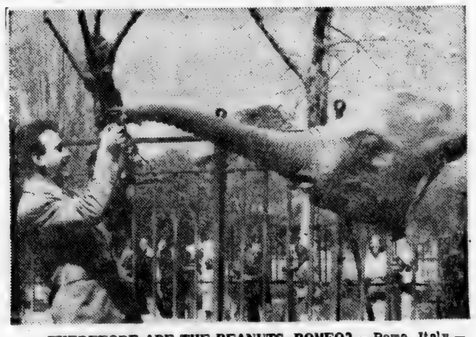
PICTURES OF THE WEEK

TRIPPING THE RAILS IN A CAR — Los Angeles, Calif. — Here's an auto that's at home on a railroad track or a highway. It's called the Fairmont Hy-Rail Motor Car and it has been in use, by the Southern Pacific, on railroad tracks and on regular streets, for about a month. The car is said to be useful in line inspection but with highways becoming more crowded by the day—who knows where it might lead.

PICKING HIS ENTRY FOR CROAKER OLYMPICS — Angels Camp, Cal. — Ronnie Figueira, of Angels Camp, is trying to reach a big decision here as he holds a foursome of frogs. One of them will carry his colors in the International Frog Jumping Olympics to be held at the Calaveras County Fair.

PRIME MINISTERS OF NORWAY AND FINLAND IN WASHINGTON — Washington, D.C. — U.S. Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert W. Murphy was on hand at Washington's National Airport to greet Foreign Dignitaries and their wives upon arrival from Minneapolis, where they participated in the Minnesota Statehood Centennial Celebration.



WHEREFORE ART THE PEANUTS, ROMEO? — Rome, Italy — The popular Pachyderm of Rome's Zoo, who rejoices in the romantic name of "Juliet", prefers peanuts to the grand passion. So here she is poking her trunk into the camera reflector of photographer Luciano Mellace in search of hidden goobers. Spectators outside the barred enclosure are enjoying the unscheduled performance.

HE'LL GROW INTO THE ROLE — Tuebingen, Germany — This interested youngster just couldn't be content to be a spectator as the dignified Civic Guard paraded for inspection at Tuebingen, so he joined the line-up.

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

When a fella makes 100 per cent in school attendance, it's something to be proud of. So, I had better make note of a mis-spelling in last week's paper so that Paul Laux will be recognized for his attendance accomplishment.

With the "Loucks" family and the "Laux" family in Saint Joe, it gets sorta confusing occasionally.

Bob Miller came rip-snortin' in the News Office Monday morning to get it definitely established that, contrary to rumors, he ISN'T going out of business and he ISN'T selling his house to straighten things out. Evidently 6 or 8 people asked him about it Monday and just about that time it got to be old stuff.

—Pity the poor gossips. A tasty morsel like that to chew on - snatched right out of their mouths.

—Ah life in a small town! Oh well.. . . .

It's funny how unrelated actions by different people are timed to bring humorous results occasionally.

At Monday night's Lions Club meeting, Rev. LeRoy Buuck of Auburn was the guest speaker. The topic of his talk was Communism and he remarked something like:

--"this is what happens when Communism takes over- -"

The words were no more than out of his mouth than the effect of a nickel in the juke box in Margaret Chaney's Restaurant was evident as a rock-n-roll thumper boomed forth from the speaker in the private dining room of the restaurant where the Lions were gathered.

Everyone got a laugh out of the incident and Rev. Buuck continued with his talk after the situation had been corrected.

It reminded me of the time a few years back when Clyde Duker got up to speak and the lights went out.

Lora Leighty sends over a couple of photographs of Saint Joe from way back when. You can take a look at them in the News Office window.

St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Saint Joe was the scene of the wedding Sunday of Delores Davis and Larry Emenhiser. The ceremony took place at 2 p.m. with Rev. Ivan O. Miller, pastor of the church, officiating. Palms, candelabra and mums were used as altar appointments. Parents of the bride are Mrs. Dale Moyer of Auburn and Mr. Keith Davis of Antwerp, Ohio. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Roland Emenhiser of Spencerville. The bride selected a waltz-length gown of chantilly lace over satin, fashioned with a bouufant skirt and a sculptured bodice having a bateau neckline and tapered sleeves extending to form points at her wrists. Her fluted half-hat was edged with seed pearls and the fingertip veil was of imported silk illusion. Pink carnations and roses formed the bridal bouquet. Mrs. Thelma Gerig, pianist, and Miss Cleo Gerig, vocalist, presented a musicale preceding the wedding ceremony. Guests were seated by ushers Lee Davis of Spencerville, brother of the bride, and Mike Emenhiser of Hicksville. Robert Stepp of Fowler served as best man. Miss Suzanne Baker, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Miss Linda Davis, sister of the bride attended as maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Miss Andrea Carr. A reception was held in the church basement after which the newlyweds left for a trip through the south. Both are graduates of Riverdale High School in Saint Joe. The groom is serving in the U. S. Navy and is at present stationed at Norfolk, Va.

Herb Amstutz and son, Allen, attended Cinerama and the Detroit-Yankee ball game at Detroit Saturday.

Five students from DeKalb County are among the approximate 1800 candidates for baccalaureate and advanced degrees in the annual commencement exercises of Purdue University to be held Sunday, June 1. Mary Corinne Wilder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lehr Wilder, will receive a degree as bachelor of science in home economics.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ewell of Saint Joe have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Nola Yvonne, to James A. Sharar, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Sharar of Holly Hill, Fla. The bride-elect is a graduate of Riverdale High School and is presently employed by an Auburn firm. Her fiance attended Richmond Senior High School and is employed in Fort Wayne. The wedding will take place June 14 at Trinity Lutheran Church in Auburn.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday for Sam Mumaw, 80, who died Saturday in the Sheehy Nursing Home at Butler where he had been a resident for the past 7 years. Survivors are four nieces. Mr. Mumaw was a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church at Saint Joe. Rev. Joseph Ferguson officiated at the services. Burial was in the Knights of Pythias Cemetery at Saint Joe.

Leonard Jarrett who recently suffered a heart attack has been confined in Hicksville Community Hospital and is improving.

VOLUME LXXIII ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. Thursday, June 5, 1958 NUMBER 23

Around the Town

With the Editor

After taking another look at those pictures Lora Leichty sent over to us, I see that a lot of familiar names are listed below one of the pictures. Do you recognize these: Paul Curie, Archie Olds, Zay Sailer, Merritt Brown, Dale Walter, Fay Reichelderfer, Leslie Meek, Aubrey Miller.

There are several others in the photograph, also.

—See 'em in the News Office window.

I heard a click-click at the front door latch one day last week but couldn't see anyone at the door. When I heard it again, I investigated and there was a little face that came into view as I approached the door, a face on a little boy not big enough to be seen from the rear of the shop. I opened the door and the little boy said, "Where's Herbie?" I finally got my caller identified. It was Richard Holden and he was looking for his brother, who showed up about that time and took over.

At first I thought somebody was making fun of the door latch again, when it click-clicked and no one opened it. Every so often someone remarks about the old stick that served as a door latch until a couple of years ago.

—Richard and I didn't have much of a conversation, but one thing is for sure - he's a cute kid.

Lew Walter had his Mt. Pleasant girls at the ball diamond for practice last week. A few of them were wearing what I guess you call "skorts", a skirt but short like shorts. One of the young ladies thus attired was Rose Surfus and her dignity became a little ruffled because of the skorts she wore.

During batting practice Rose got on base and as she came roaring into third, she made the decision that a slide was necessary. Well, Rose slud, as Diz would say, and she came into third with what I guess you would call a sitting slide. As the dust cleared Rose had a somewhat perplexed look, what with that slide and her in skorts and that third base area not too comfortable to slide in. The boys watching snickered and laughed, and finally Rose rose with a dignified air, ran around the corner of the school building with the comment, "I've got to brush off," then re-appeared ready for more action.

—Da-ti-da -"I like short skorts" - dum-dum.

Maude Porter of Fort Wayne stopped in Tuesday to pay her subscription and asked why the paper is so little sometimes. I explained that weeks like last with a holiday are short and things sorta slow down and we sorta slow down with 'em. Now this week, it's another story. Yours truly is a delegate to the State Lions Convention at French Lick and in order to take care of that responsibility, I took the liberty of cutting down to four pages so that me and the Mrs. can make it this week end to the convention.

—I hope we get along o.k. Neither one of us knows a lick of French.

School Board Takes $675 For Gym

A bid of $675 by Argil Richmond of Saint Joe was accepted by the Riverdale School Board Monday for the gymnasium and community building at Spencerville. The school board met Monday night at the Riverdale High School in Saint Joe.

Four other bids were received on the property. They were from Von Tharp of RI, Auburn, who bid $650; Earl Chamberlin of Saint Joe, $600; South Side Auto Parts of Fort Wayne, $502.50 and the Spencerville Community Club $25.

At a previous meeting held May 25 the board had rejected two bids, one for $25 from the Spencerville group and another for $300.

Mr. Richmond did not reveal his plans for use of the building which was constructed in 1919 through funds obtained in a community drive. It had been used since its construction and until the consolidation of the Concord, Spencer and Newville township schools as a gymnasium for the Spencerville High School. Since the consolidation, it was used sparingly as a junior high gym and community center.

Trustees of the community organization which built and maintained the building gave title to the Spencer Township trustee for use by the school. However, there is no record of the transaction. It is reported that the building was turned over to the trustee for use by the school because of inability to pay maintenance costs. The school township's interest in the property was transferred to the Riverdale corporation with the consolidation.

Curt Watt Dies At Age 86

Funeral services will be conducted Friday for Curtis Monroe Watt, 86, who died Wednesday morning at Sander's Hospital in Auburn. Mr. Watt had been patient at the hospital for 4½ weeks as a result of complications of heart disease.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at Concord Methodist Church with Rev. Keith Davis officiating. Friends may call at the Baidinger-Walter Funeral Home at Spencerville until Friday noon. Burial will be in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe.

Survivors include the widow, Rossie V. Watt; a daughter, Mrs. Warren Clauser, of Saint Joe; a son, Carl E. Watt, of Montgomery, Mich.; a brother, Ira Watt, of Brandon, Fla.; 9 grandchildren and 9 great-grandchildren.

Services Held For Edith McNabb

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. Tuesday for Mrs. Edith Edna McNabb, 49, of Spencerville. Services were held at the Baidinger-Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville.

Mrs. McNabb died at the Souder Hospital in Auburn Sunday morning. She suffered a cerebral hemorrhage May 26 and had been a patient at the hospital 6 days.

Survivors include the husband, Glenn McNabb; a daughter, Joy, at home; a brother, Leroy Thrailkill, of Hart, Mich.; and two sisters, Mrs. Dessie Strannis, of Shelby, Mich., and Mrs. Mary Oswalt of Marion, Ind.

WORKERS NOT SHIRKERS 4-H CLUB

The eighth meeting of the Workers Not Shirkers 4-H Club was held May 19 in the home economics room. The president, Esther Fetters, called the meeting to order.

Pledges were given by Kathy Wasson. Health and safety was given by Kathy Wasson.

Roll call was answered by a favorite sport. There were 14 members present. A demonstration was given by Linda Doub on peanut butter-pickle-lettuce sandwich. A demonstration was given by Susie Coburn on chocolate milk float.

Everyone judged Joan Vinson's sniker-doodle cookies and Susie Coburn's chocolate milk float. A work period followed.

Hereafter 4-H meetings will be held on Monday afternoon instead of Monday night.

The meeting adjourned and recreation enjoyed by all.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Well, we had a nice trip to French Lick over the week end for the Lions convention. That hotel is really something; they have wonderful dinners. They have wonderful prices, too.

We stopped at the West Baden College grounds on the way back and got a glimpse of the big dome in what used to be another hot-springs bath hotel resort. It was sold during the depression to the Jesuit order of the Roman Catholic Church and is now devoted to the training of men for teaching and missionary work. If you ever get down that way stop at the college. The dome is the second largest unsupported dome in the world and is practically one of the wonders of the world.

On the way back we dined at Maxwell's Steak House in Bedford and had de-e-e-licious sizzling steaks, excellent service, good looking waitress - things I ALWAYS notice, just ask the wife or my sisters-in-law.

—That's right. A good portion of the trip was spent in eating.

I see where the gasoline prices are getting played with again. Up they go, down they go, up they go, etc. Between here and French Lick there was a spread of 6 cents on the price of the same gas.

Now our local dealers are in on the price drop. Trouble is, the one who takes it on the chin is the guy who sticks the hose in your gas tank.

CONCORD JR. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Coniord Jr. Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Lois Strombeck on the evening of June 3 with Betty Rediger serving as co-hostess.

Phyllis Uehlein called the meeting to order. Devotions were given by Norma Diederich. History of the song of the month, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," was given by Betty Rediger.

The lesson of good grooming was given by Norma Diederich and Ellen Fetters. Roll call of new household hints was answered by 17 members. Special leaders were present to given reports. Final plans were made for the club trip to Chicago June 18 and 19. More plans were made for the fair booth and camp at Limberlost was discussed.

The meeting was closed with group singing the club prayef. Phyllis Uehlein and Eunice Rediger entertained for the social hour after the meeting. Lunch was served by the hostess and co-hostess.

Youth Killed In 2-Car Collision

16 year old James Dale Snyder of near Saint Joe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Snyder, was killed instantly about 1 a. m. Saturday in a violent 2-car crash at an intersection two miles west of Saint Joe. The boy died instantly of a crushed skull. The driver of the other car, Corwin Joseph Leonhart, also 16, and a resident of R1, Auburn, suffered a deep laceration near his left eye, other facial and head lacerations, bruises and shock. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Leonhart. Both boys were riding alone.

Authorities reported that the Leonhart youth failed to stop for a stop sign at the intersection of county roads 51 and 60 and ran into the Snyder car. Larry Snyder, a brother of the crash victim, and Lynn Robinson, traveling ahead of James' car, turned around to investigate when they failed to see his headlights. They were the first to arrive at the crash scene.

Survivors in addition to the parents, are three other brothers, Richard, serving with the U.S. Navy, and Rex and Van, at home.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday at Auburn with burial also at Auburn.

This Oughta Be Good- - -

A special bit of entertainment (?) is being planned at the ball diamond in Saint Joe on Thursday, June 19. The entertainment will be a game of hardball between the Saint Joe "Over 30" Club and the Riverdale High School team. The game is being promoted by Coach Price Brookfield of the high school and Coach Joe Robinson of the "Over 30" nine.

The game will be played at 8 p.m. at the Saint Joe diamond and local ball players, over 30 years of age, are invited to participate in the game. There was some question as to the name of the team, whether it should be the "Over 30" or "Groaners," but it was decided that before the game the team should be called "Over 30" and after the game - well, who can tell.

Residents of the community are invited to attend this special attraction as many of the local armchair managers will have an opportunity to show how it should be done.

Summer Youth Program Opens

Price Brookfield, director of the summer recreation program in Saint Joe and Spencerville, has announced that the program will get underway this Friday morning when the boys' group meets at Spencerville at 9 a.m. It had been planned to start the weekly Wednesday swimming trips on Wednesday of this week, but bad weather postponed the first trip.

The program for the summer is intended to accommodate both boys and girls, but, according to Mr. Brookfield, there haven't been enough girls attending the weekly recreational sessions to justify its continuation. The recreation director urges girls in the Saint Joe and Spencerville communities to either contact him to indicate their desire to have the program continue for girls or attend the sessions at Saint Joe on Tuesday mornings or at Spencerville on Thursday mornings at 9 a.m.

Monday mornings are devoted to the boys at the Saint Joe ball diamond. Other recreational activities in addition to baseball can be included in the morning session if the boys so desre. On Friday the boys meet at Spencerville for recreation at 9 a.m. The Wednesday swimming trips will begin next week, weather permitting. A school bus will pick up boys and girls who wish to go to Hamilton Lake from the school at Spencerville and at Saint Joe at 9 a.m.

Girls and boys in the community are invited to participate in the summer recreation program which is carried on through the cooperation of the Riverdale School Corporation.

'Help Wanted.' Young and Old

"We can use more boys" is the comment from Little League coaches this week. Also needed is a sponsor for one of the teams and adult coaches to assist the boys and operate the teams.

Though there are around 40 boys now participating in Little League activity in the local program, there is still room for more. Four teams will compete in the local league this summer, three of which have sponsors, the fourth team yet to have a sponsor. The sponsors thus far are Sechler's Pickles, Saint Joe Lions Club and Casey's Mobil Service.

The schedule for June games was announced this week. The first game, scheduled for Tuesday, was rained out and will be played at a later date.

Games scheduled are:

Tuesday, June 10 - Sechler's vs. Lions.

Thursday, June 12 - Casey's va ???.

Tuesday, June 17 - Sechler's vs. ???.

Thursday, June 19 - Lions vs. Casey's.

Tuesday, June 24 - Sechler's vs. Casey's.

Thursday, June 26 - Lions vs. ???.

Boys in the local school area are urged to participate in the Little League program which is being conducted this year on an all-local basis for boys 8 to 12 years of age. Another sponsor would be welcomed as would men who will help to lead the young boys in their baseball efforts. Volunteers can contact Coach Brookfield.

Booster Club Memberships Sought; Public Park Project Advances

The membership committee of the Saint Joe Booster Club is currently conducting a membership drive in the community. The committee, composed of Lehr Wilder, Jack Bowser, Donald Yeiser and Roy Chapman, is endeavoring to enlist the support of Saint Joe and vicinity residents by selling memberships in the club which is dedicated to the improvement of the community.

Memberships are available at $12 per year or $6 per half year. Memberships now being sold for $6 will be valid for the remainder of 1958. Those which have been sold or will be sold at the yearly rate of $12 will be valid for the remainder of this year plus the first half of 1959.

Several committees have been appointed in past weeks by the president of the Boosters, Frank Sechler, and the executive board of the club. One of the committees is currently at work promoting the establishment of a public park at Saint Joe. The committee, Donald Kinsey, Roy Bowser, Merle Guilford and Ed Storer, has been working in cooperation with other club members and the town board and has negotiated with Roscoe Walter to obtain approximately 7 acres of land at the north edge of Saint Joe for lease as a public park.

A verbal agreement has been reached with Mr. Walter for obtaining a lease on the land and the town board and the committee now have been advisted that property owners in the corporate limits of Saint Joe will have to sign a petition supporting the lease on the property which lies just outside the corporate limits of the town. Public approval is necessary before the town can assume the operation of the proposed park.

A great deal of enthusiasm has been aroused within the club over the prospective public park addition to the town and it is expected that Saint Joe residents will be contacted in the near future to sign the necessary paper supporting the action.

Mr. Walter has cooperated with the club in its endeavor and is offering the property on a long-term lease basis.

Other committees have been appointed and will be able to function as they see fit between the quarterly meetings of the Booster Club. These committees include:

Industrial expansion - Ted Haberkorn, Maurice Kline, Warren Clauser.

Community improvement - (removal of old buildings) Orville Coburn, Andy Monroe, Joe Robinson.

Mosquito control - Lloyd Dunten, Herb Amstutz, Bob Miller.

Roy I. Bowser, Gene Casebere, Warren Clauser, Merle Guilford, Joe Robinson, Frank Sechler, Ralph Sechler, Roy Reidenbach, Maurice Kline, Ralph Keeler, Ed Storer, Donald Kinsey, Lloyd Dunten, Leon Kees, Orville Coburn, Richard Loucks, Albert Wade, Joe Walter, Bub Shockley, Andy Monroe and Ted Haberkorn.

The next meeting of the club will be held Monday, June 30, at 8 p.m. at the fire station in Saint Joe.

Local News

Rain cancelled two church league games on Monday and Tuesday of this week. Last Friday night Spencerville Lutheran defeated Newville E.U.B. 13-8. This Friday night Saint Joe Lutheran plays Saint Joe Church of Christ. On Monday it's Coburntown vs Newville E.U.B. and on Tuesday it will be Meese-Rehobeth - Concord vs. Mt. Pleasant.

The Mt. Pleasant Girls softball team defeated the Saint Joe Girls by a 24-17 score last Thursday at the Saint Joe diamond.

The DeKalb Circuit Court ruled last week that two Steuben County township trustees acted in good faith and within their discretionary powers in closing the Metz High School and Junior High School. A group of 37 Steuben County residents sought to re-open the schools at Metz through court action.

The Saint Joe Girls Softball Team will sponsor a bake sale this coming Saturday, June 14, in the News Office at Saint Joe. Proceeds from the sale will be used to buy equipment for the team.

Shirley Christlieb filed suit for divorce last week in DeKalb Circuit Court from Dallas L. Christlieb. The wife seeks custody of three children, support and a fair share of their property as alimony. She accuses her husband of cruel and inhuman treatment in that he drinks, stays out all night, curses and threatens her and fails to provide adequately for his family. The couple married February 14, 1953, and separated June 3, 1958.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn attended the Indiana State Lions Club Convention at French Lick over the week end. On the trip down, they were Thursday night guests of his sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Appleman, at Bloomington.

Supper guests one evening last week in the Baxter Bowling home were Mr. and Mrs. Victor Brown of Winter Park, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Deisler of Fort Wayne and Mrs. Bessie Hart of Saint Joe.

12 head of cattle in a herd of 22, owned by Lawrence Wagner and his son, Merle, of Rl. Auburn, were struck by lightning and killed sometime early Tuesday morning resulting in loss estimated at $2,000.

Mrs. Violet Baker received her masters degree in elementary education from Ball State Teachers College at Muncie at commencement exercises held June 8. Mrs. Baker is a fifth grade teacher in the Riverdale Elementary School at Spencerville. Those who attended the commencement were Mr. Roy Baker and Mary Jane, Melissa Kelley of Hicksville, Mrs. Duyane Amstutz of Spencerville and Mrs. Lela Northrup of Saint Joe.

Mrs. Elnora Blue underwent surgery at Sacred Heart Hospital Saturday and is recovering satisfactorily.

The Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department will honor Mr. and Mrs. Ray Moore at a pot luck supper to be held next Monday evening, June 16, the regular meeting night for the department. The supper will be served at 6:30 p.m. and all members of the department and their families are invited to attend.

Driver license suspensions include that of Eston Hathaway of Garrett and Frank Boucher of Auburn.

Two Indiana state parks, Pokagon and Whitewater, and the Morgan-Monroe State Forest will become amateur radio emergency nerve-centers late this month in connection with an annual world-wide "field day" operation planned by radio hams and amateur clubs on this and other continents. The 60-foot tall toboggan tower at Pokagon State Park will become a giant radio transmitter when members of the Indiana, Michigan and Ohio Radio Club and the Northeastern Indiana Amateur Radio Club assemble for their joint field exericse. The 24-hour field exercise starts at 4 p.m. Saturday, June 28, and continues uninterrupted until 4 p.m. Sunday, June 29.

Saturday night shopping on Main Street, Indiana, is becoming less popular with Friday night becoming a favorite of customers, a survey of 135 Hoosier cities and towns has indicated. Although Saturday night still leads, at least 10 Indiana communities switched from Saturday to Friday night shopping hours this year, the study by the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce revealed. Among the 135 communities, there are 49 with Saturday night shopping exclusively, 40 open Friday nights exclusively, 13 open both Friday and Saturday nights, 3 open Monday and Friday nights and 2 open Monday and Thursday nights.

Mrs. Clara Bowling attended the Parkview Methodist Nurses Alumnae in Fort Wayne last Tuesday evening.

The Saint Joe Boy Scout Troop will hold a bake sale in the News Office on Saturday, June 28.

The Rural Housewives Club met at the home of Mrs. Edna Perkins on Wednesday of last week. In the absence of the president, Marie Ward opened the meeting with a poem, "Road To Happiness." 12 members and 2 guests, Mrs. Josephine Shuff, a former member, and Mrs. Mary Baker, answered roll call with "my wedding picture" and details of "my wedding." Flossie Rediger read "Little Things." Mrs. Shuff favored with "Growing Old" and "Memories." Each club member then gave interesting hints of various kinds. Mrs. Mary Baker was welcomed into the club as a new member. Gladys Hart entertained with a contest of Bible characters. A social hour followed, the hostess serving colorful refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. John Crothers visited Mr. and Mrs. John McAndless of Butler, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Howard Swanson of Richmond Center, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Mellick and family of Wellington, Ohio, on Thursday and Friday. The Mellick twins had been entertaining the old-fashioned measles.

A single day record of 55,329 vehicles used the Northern Indiana Toll Road on Memorial Day, a recapitulation of holiday traffic over the Hoosier superhighway showed recently. The new single day record for the largest number of vehicles using the facility eclipsed a former record of 52,942 registered on the Saturday before Labor Day 1957.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wade, Marlyn Funk and daughters, Rietha and Renee, motored to Anderson, Mo., over Decoration Day week end and visited in the Clarence Williams home.

St. Peter's Ev. Lutheran Church of Spencerville will hold the closing exercises of the Vacation Church School on Friday evening, June 13, at 7:30 p.m. After a short service, in which the school will demonstrate some of the work taught during the two weeks it has been in session, the parents and friends will inspect handwork that has been done and there will be light refreshments. Staff members include Mrs. Ruth Shilling, Mrs. Georgia Butler, Mrs. Betty Wilson, Mrs. Garnet Furnish, Miss Marie Woodring, Miss Joy McNabb, Mrs. Stella Miller, Mr. Frank Laudahn, Mrs. Phyllis Laudahn, Miss Sharon Smith and Mrs. Alice Norris. The theme of the school was "Knowing Jesus." Special attention was given to the work of the Christian Church in Japan.

All parents of retarded children are invited to attend a meeting of parents and teachers at the Wee Haven School building in Garrett on Wednesday, June 18, at 7:30 p.m. Your child does not need to be enrolled in school in order for the parents to attend this meeting.

Cheryll Collins of Saint Joe and Judy Furnish of Spencerville, the committee in charge of the Luther League of the Lutheran churches at Saint Joe and Spencerville, announce a meeting of the youth of both churches on Sunday evening, June 15, at 6:30 p.m. in the Spencerville church. A special feature is a welcome to the college students home on vacation.

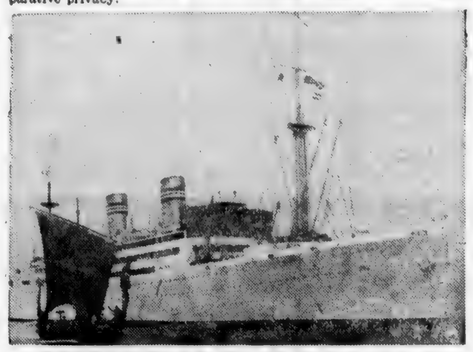
PICTURES OF THE WEEK

COMBINED BEACH UMBRELLA-DRESSING TENT – Frankfurt, Germany – A pretty model is demonstrating something new for the beach. It is a beach umbrella in cretonne and is a double-duty gadget. At Left the model carries it as an ordinary beach umbrella. At Right, the sides unfurl to protect the owner from the elements or to permit the owner to change in or out of a bathing suit with comparative privacy.



VIKING RENDEZVOUS – New York – The sixty-nine foot ancient oar and sail-propelled Viking vessel used in Kirk Douglas' production, "The Vikings," provides sharp contrast to Norway's most modern ship, The Stavangerfjord of the Norwegian-American Line, as they rendezvous off the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor.

A VERY ANGRY YOUNG LADY INDEED – Windsor, Eng. – Her eyes brimming with tears of frustration, 23-months-old Vanessa Joan Melhuish brandishes her riding crop and looks about for someone, or something, on which to vent her anger. Vanessa, youngest member of the Royal Windsor Horse Club, suddenly found herself deprived of a mount at the Royal Windsor Horse Show.

TWO BIRDS IN THE HAND – New York – The feathered mendicant on the fingertips of Adolph Tirsch had just found a "soft touch" on Duffy Square and was, no doubt, congratulating himself on having a monopoly on the free meal when company literally dropped in on him. A second pigeon landed on the back of the first one, to the latter's chagrin and to the joy of the photographer.

IKE AT THE CONTROLS – Washington, D.C. – Robert W. Sarnoff, President of the National Broadcasting Company, explains the operation of the control room in NBC's four million dollar broadcasting center to President Eisenhower after the Chief Executive spoke at the building's dedication ceremony. The ceremonies were broadcast coast-to-coast and marked Mr. Eisenhower's first appearance on live color television.

BARE-HANDED BEE BUSINESS — Little Rock, Ark. — Gib Wilson, a bee-keeper hobbyist, gets ready to lift a colony of bees, bare-handed, into a box after they settled on a Cadillac in Little Rock. Mrs. Fred R. Prioleau had parked her car in a downtown spot only to return and find that the bees had taken over.

CENTRAL'S YOUNGEST STOCKHOLDER — 12 — Albany, New York — Harriet Shermer, 12, of Richmond Hill, New York, who has the distinction of being one of the youngest stockholders of New York Central Railroad is shown eating lunch in the Palace Theater while attending the Annual Central Stockholders Meeting. Harriet owns twelve shares, one for each of her 12 years.

PRINCE MIKE TAKES A STEP TOWARD CITIZENSHIP — Los Angeles, Calif. — Prince Michael Romanoff, Beverly Hills restaurateur, took the next-to-last step in his 36-year struggle to obtain American Citizenship. He appeared for examination at the Immigration and Naturalization Service offices and passed with flying colors. All that remains is for him to take the oath of citizenship.

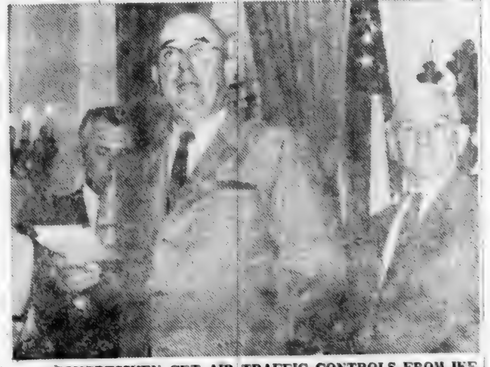
NEW CHAIRMAN OF GOVERNORS CONFERENCE DECORATED — Bal Harbour, Florida — Governor Leroy Collins, of Florida, receives a lei from Manu Lucas of Honolulu at the Luau Dinner given the Governors during their 50th Annual Conference at Bal Harbour, Florida. Governor Collins, Democrat, was chosen Chairman of the Conference to succeed Gov. William G. Stratton, Republican of Illinois. His election represented a political setback for Northern Liberals who had been backing Governor Meyner of New Jersey.



CONGRESSMEN GET AIR TRAFFIC CONTROLS FROM IKE — Washington, D. C. — Representatives Prince H. Preston, (D.—Ga.) Left, and Cliff Clevenger, (R.—Ohio), top members of a House Appropiations Subcommittee urging Emergency Air Traffic Controls, meet White House newsmen after conferring with President Eisenhower. After the meeting, the Chief Executive ordered five emergency steps be taken to prevent mid-air collisions of civilian and military aircraft such as the Maryland crash which killed 12 persons.

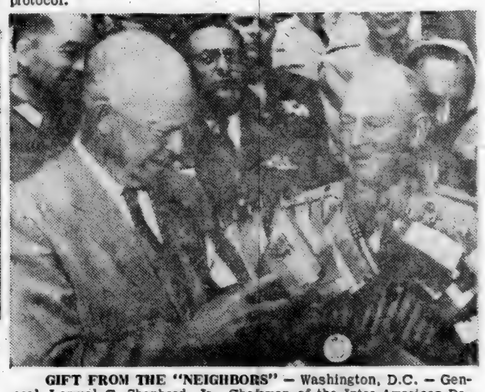
MOTHERING PIGEON — Lynn, Mass. — Patricia Kasabuski, of Lynn, is happy in her newest role, that of "mothering" Squeaky, a 3-week-old pigeon, found by her father in a trash barrel when the bird was hatched. Patricia keeps Squeaky on a leash while taking a stroll. When he is old enough to fly, Squeaky will be released.

BIG ASSIGNMENT FOR CRADLE FIDDLER — Brighton, Mass. — Jodi Hackell is only seven months old and still in the three-corner pants stage, but already she has an ear for music — particularly the music of Dad's bass fiddle. Here Jodi gets the fiddle into position for some hot strumming.

THE RIGHT IDEA BUT THE WRONG HAND — Vatican City, Italy — As the colors of the famous Swiss Guard were carried past during the colorful ceremonies marking swearing in of new members of the historic Papal organization, a young hopeful, uniformed in belt and helmet, performs a snappy salute as he stood with a Papal Gendarme (Left). His idea was fine, but he's saluting with the left hand — something that is frowned upon by purists in military protocol.

TAKING DAD'S PROMOTION IN STRIDE — Philadelphia, Pa. — Promotion ceremonies are mysterious and lengthy sessions to a two-year-old, so Kenneth Webb found himself a nice soft spot on the carpeted floor while his dad, Detective Herman L. Webb was being promoted to Detective Sergeant of the Philadelphia Police Force at City Hall.

JAYNE MOBBED IN CANNES — Cannes, France — Actress Jayne Mansfield is carried in the arms of her husband as they pushed through the throng that had gathered to catch a glimpse of the film beauty upon her arrival from London. Jayne and Mickey are in Cannes for the film festival.



GIFT FROM THE "NEIGHBORS" — Washington, D.C. — General Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., Chairman of the Inter-American Defense Board, presents a bank of miniature flags of the 21-Latin-American Nations to President Eisenhower after the Chief Executive conferred with the Military Chiefs at the White House. Representatives of some of the "Good Neighbors" stand in background.

The 1958 Harlan Day committee has announced that an amateur talent contest will be held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, July 31, August 1 and 2. $200 in prizes will be awarded. The contest is open to all ages. All amateurs in the Tri-State area are urged to enter promptly. Contestants are requested to write: Harlan Day Talent Show, Box 16, Harlan, Indiana. The following information should be given: name, address, phone, type and description of act. All contestants will receive cash awards. Best of 30 acts of those auditioned will be selected for Thursday and Friday evening program. Top three for each evening will be chosen for Saturday evening finals. Auditions will be held at the new Harlan gym located at the northwest edge of Harlan on the Spencerville Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Selye Hadsell of Columbus, Ohio, were Memorial Day week end visitors of Mrs. Inez Hadsell.

The public is cordially invited to the dedication of the new Roadside Park on US27 between Auburn and Waterloo on Tuesday, June 17, at 7 p.m. Devotions will be given by Rev. Norman Detroy, pastor of the Waterloo First Evangelical United Brethren Church. Music will be by the Harmonettes of Butler and the Waterloo High School Band. Officers of the roadside council include Miss Ilene Balliett of Saint Joe, recording secretary.

The Saint Joe Lions Club met Monday evening at St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. Bob Wilder gave a reading, "Johnny Appleseed," and Rev. Ivan O. Miller presented a talk and showed slides about India. The next meeting, on June 23, will be Ladies Night and will be held at the Hobby Ranch House in Fort Wayne starting at 7:00 p. m. Roy Chapman, chairman of the program for the evening, has arranged for an interesting program, stereophonic reproduction of sound. Installation of officers will be held, with International Counsellor George Sockrider of Aubnrn serving as installing officer.

Mary Wilder Departs For France

Miss Mary Wilder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lehr Wilder of R1, Saint Joe, left Sunday for France where she will spend the next five months with French farm families under the auspices of the International Farm Youth Exchange Program. Miss Wilder graduated from Purdue University last Sunday with a bachelor of science degree in home economics.

The record of Miss Wilder in her work is an impressive one. She participated for 10 years in 4-H club work in DeKalb County and in the summer of 1956 was an apprentice home agent at the county extension office in Auburn. In the summer of 1957, she was apprentice agent in the Allen County extension office.

Miss Wilder left by air for Washington, D.C. Sunday. She is scheduled to sail from Montreal, Canada, on Tuesday, June 17. She is scheduled to spend a few days in Paris before joining a farm family in rural France. She will visit 4 or 5 French families in various parts of the country before returning home November 1.

Several DeKalb County organizations, including the Saint Joe Lions Club, participated in the sponsorship of Miss Wilder's trip. Mail may be addressed to her in care of Garth Thorburn, Assistant Agricultural Attache, American Embassy, Paris, France.

DeKalb County commissioners ask the cooperation of residents of the county in curbing destruction of county road markers and intersection signs. Damage to the signs is costing local taxpayers hundreds of dollars. In addition to damage to the new road marking signs purchased at a cost to the county of $7,000, vandals have wrecked stop signs and other highway markers.

The Saint Joe News

VOLUME LXXIII ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. Thursday, June 19 1958 NUMBER 25

Around the Town

With the Editor

Maurice Hollabaugh would like to have this letter passed along to residents of Newville and Spencer townships:

"Dear Republican Voters of Newville and Spencer townships:

"As you have selected me as your delegate to the 1958 State Convention I would appreciate your opinion and choice of candidates especially your choice for U.S. Senator.

"The convention will be next Friday, June 27th, at Indianapolis and I will be leaving late Thursday afternoon, therefore would be happy to hear from any of you before that time.

"Thank you for your help.

Sincerely yours,
M. H. Hollabaugh"

Now, I don't want to stick my nose into your district, Maurie, 'cause we don't live in either one of the townships which you represent. But it looks like the best man to pick is someone who can JENNERate a lot of enthusiasm in the Republican Party.

—Understand, that's just an opinion.

It sure was a surprise, and a very pleasant one, to see Herman and Mayola Zuber and Earl Kinsey this past week. They came back to the Hoosier state for a few weeks' visit and have been making what rounds they can to visit friends in this area.

Fern Carr pulled the surprise on me. She called to me Tuesday noon as I crossed the street to the shop, "Hey Ted, c'mere a minute."

I went, and there were Herman and Mayola, big as you please, in the hardware.

—Now that was the wrong way to say it - - big as you please. Mayola actually is a few pounds lighter and a few years younger looking since way back in '50 when they left Saint Joe. Herman seems to be the same ol' Herman, although he didn't tell me any jokes when I talked to him. Earl is a healthy tan and happy.

Another old face seen in Saint Joe last week was that of Harry Shuff who is back home in Saint Joe after several months in Arizona. The family, I understand, is coming back to Saint Joe later.

With the girls' softball team having a bake sale in the News Office Saturday, they were right on the ball with some news items, to wit:

Pamela Wasson was a Saturday visitor of Alice Vinson.

Carolyn Voirol visited Joan Vinson Saturday afternoon.

The team defeated the Mt. Pleasant girls last week, 18-17.

The sale netted the girls about $25 for softball equipment. I had heard them talking about a team party that evening, and when the sale was over I kidded them about throwing a bake sale and then having a party with the money.

—I dont think they liked it.

Fiction—

Going into the doctor's office, Merle Guilford spotted a sign which read:

"First call $5, second call $3." So, when he greeted the doctor, he said: "Well, doctor, here I am again."

Spencerville News

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ferguson and son returned home Sunday from a week's vacation trip down south in Tennessee. Miss Lynda Ferguson of Sneedville, Tenn., is spending a few weeks with Helen and Henry Ferguson. They report nice warm weather down south but rain was needed quite badly. Lynda Ferguson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Ferguson of Sneedville.

Word has been received from Mr. Arthur Sziemeister who served the Lutheran churches at Saint Joe and Spencerville last summer that he has been called by First Lutheran Church in Lyons, N.Y., and has accepted the call, effective the first week in July. Mr. Sziemeister was graduated from the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Germantown, Pa., on May 14. He will be serving a church in a city of approximately 5,000, the church numbering over 1,000 baptized members and 500 communing members. Mr. Sziemeister will be ordained in his home church in Buffalo, N.Y., on Sunday, June 29.

Mrs. Melba Chapman and daughter, Peggy, and Mrs. Viena Rude were Fort Wayne shoppers Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Church and family returned home Sunday after a ten-day vacation with his parents and other relatives near Flint, Michigan.

The Butchers' beautiful new ranch-style home is set in a grove of trees.

AND, OF COURSE, IT'S all-electric!

"We're certainly happy with our all-electric home," says Claude Butcher, a feed mill owner. "Our monthly electric bill averages only $27.99. And our electric heat is clean, quiet and comfortable. No space is needed for a heating plant, either."

Claude's wife is also enthusiastic: "I like the 'sunshine feeling' of electric heat and the room-by-room control. Electric heat is healthful, too. Our whole family has never felt better."

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

There Oughta Be A Law

Laws are made to protect. But sometimes a person feels that "there oughta be a law" because he has found particular enjoyment from something and feels a sort of desperation at his inability to pass on to others the feeling of enjoyment or satisfaction which has been experienced, and so he turns to ways to compel his fellow men to know the same enjoyment.

The age of fast living now upon us has brought enjoyment, certainly, to most people through the conveniences that have been given to Modern Man. Once in a while, however, there is an old-fashioned idea tossed in somehow which makes one stop to consider occasionally the merits of all the modern conveniences. One of these "old-fashioned" experiences, if we may call it that, is that of the enjoyment of a big front porch at home, just sitting on that big front porch and watching the world go by. Once in a while it is the most relaxing comfort to be found, that of finding a comfortable chair, more likely an old rocker, and just sitting for a period of time. Just sitting is particular appropriate on a sunny Sunday afternoon or in the evening. Particularly we mention Sunday because of that day's appointment as the day of rest. How much of a day of rest it is varies to a great degree with every person and family. It seems sometimes that more front porches would contribute to the ease of relaxing - just to sit down and do nothing, sort of unconsciously easing oneself into a mood of relaxation.

Knowing the enjoyment that comes from a big porch, we have been tempted to comment "there oughta be a law making a porch a requirement on all houses." But this is not a very commendable way of approaching the subject of relaxation, to force someone to do something; the purpose would be defeated. But in a figurative sense, however, there oughta be law law making more big porches a universal necessity. It should be added, however, that they must be used to be effective.

Nature seems to be in no hurry to get anyplace, and just sitting on the porch and observing a part of nature about one's home has its effect upon the sitter. And there is always a little variety added to those restful moments as the screech of tires is occasionally heard. But overall, these interruptions are a futile attempt by mankind to destroy the restful moments that can be found in the homey atmosphere of a big front porch.

What Fools We Mortals Be

Mankind can work himself into a dither now and then and come up with some of the most fantastic solutions to the problems he brings upon himself.

Today throughout the nation, there is being promoted as a counterattack upon the "recession" the sale of automobiles. Now, we are not questioning the fact that a great deal of business in he United States is related to the automotive industry. What is so astounding is that a whole nation can put so much faith in the promotion of but one industry as a means of giving the national economy a healthy boost. Particularly alarming is the fact that such a promotion only adds to the idea that the automotive industry is particularly important to the survival of our national prosperity, thereby adding fuel to the fires of the automobile industrial unions which seek more and more pay and fringe benefits as each contract with the manufacturers comes to an end. Right now the demands of the unions have been admittedly set aside because of the let-down in the sale of automobiles. Labor leaders themselves have publicly stated that it would be useless for the unions to demand more at this time when production is drastically dropping off. Union workers even work without a contract, which is somewhat of an eye-brow raiser. Can we imagine what a club Americans are placing in the hands of the heads of the automobile industry unions when the nation promotes automobile sales as a means of stimulating the economy?

This is but another instance of people making themselves do what they know they should not be doing. Listening to the radio commercials promoting "you auto buy" week brings the feeling that the radio announcers themselves are reading copy which they cannot particularly "put their heart into." Not only is the consumer urged to buy a new car but also to buy everything he needs in his home, using his credit to do so. At a time when lending institutions are faced with payment difficulties experienced by their customers, more credit buying is being urged! There seems to be little thought for the idea that perhaps too much credit buying brought on the current dilemma, that a slow-down in buying is due to the consumer's dollars going to pay for what he has bought on credit in the past year or two. What will happen next year and the year after should everyone buy now on credit? There would have to be a slow down somewhere.

The whole idea merits inspection with a feeling of doubt, because it is completely out of character for Americans to be making themselves subject to the demands of one particular group because it supposedly pulls the purse strings on the whole nation, and because the idea makes Americans subject to greater personal indebtedness.

If this nation is depedent upon the automobile to keep the high standard of living which we now have, then it is time for this nation to be destroyed by its own weakness so that another birth of freedom can be experienced and mankind make a fresh start.

The best thing that can happen for the entire nation is that the automobile sales promotion now being presented to the public not be too successful. Should it be a success, and first reports in this area appear to indicate that it will be, we fear there will be even greater inroads into our everyday life by unionism.

Sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

A Tale of No Whoa

An interesting news release came from New York this week. It concerns the winnings of one of the contestants on a TV quiz program. The "pretty walking encyclopedia", from Brooklyn who has run up such an impressive string of victories over her opponents on the quiz show now has amassed a total of $253,500 in prize money.

The interesting - nay, frightening - part of the news release comes at its conclusion. The young miss is in debt to the tune of $2,000 which she borrowed in order to stay on the show, having quit her regular job. And of the $253,500 money won thus far, about $200,000 is due the federal government for income taxes and another $17,000 to the State of New York for taxes. If our arithmetic is sound, this leaves $36,500 "clear."

Think of it - out of $253,500, only $36,500 remains for the individual.

Ah, we can hear the complacent ones now - - "I'll take $36,500 ANYTIME!"

SUMMER FUN - IN MODERATION

Each year as the pleasant summer months approach, most Hoosiers begin to give some thought to a brief respite from their customary chores - in short, a vacation.

The shorter vacation periods often times cause difficulties for an individual, since we find that one is apt to try and crowd too many strenuous activities into a relatively short period of time.

The "well-done" sun bather who spends an hour on the beach the first day at the lake rapidly discovers that the attractive sun tan he was seeking cannot be come by in a single day, and that the hour on the beach has brought nothing but dehydration and great discomfort.

Physicians tell us that we should not attempt to acquire a sun tan in a hurry, since the ultra violet rays of the sun will play havoc with the skin if it is exposed too long. For the first exposure, the body is able to withstand only about 10 or 15 minutes in the sun, without ill effects. A short exposure of this kind will start the tanning process, and each ensuing exposure may be for a longer period of time, until the desired tan is achieved.

Then there's the case of the over-anxious aquatic enthusiast who rushes to the lake for a swim while still munching on the remains of a hurriedly consumed lunch. It is a widely known fact that one should not swim for at least one hour after eating. When a meal is consumed, much of the body's blood is drawn to the stomach to aid in digestive processes. If an individual goes swimming immediately after eating, the blood moves from the stomach to the muscles used in swimming. This causes a conflict in the system, and cramping results. Another word of caution concerning water safety - swim only in areas set aside for this purpose, where guards are provided; do not swim so far from shore that fatigue takes over before you can return to your starting point.

Summer eating habits, too, should be considered by individuals, whether they are on vacation or are participating in their normal routine. The experts tell us that it's the amount of energy expended which determines the amount of food we require - so if an individual is more active, physically, during the summer months, his food intake should measure up accordingly.

Nutrition authorities agree that the preparation of simple meals should be a rule for summer meal times, but that they should include milk, meat, eggs, fruit and green vegetables each day. Skipping a meal can place as much strain on the body in June as it does in January.

It's a good idea, too, to drink plenty of water during hot weather, but to avoid extremely cold drinks which may upset the digestive tract and cause thermal shock, health authorities say. Additional salt should be eaten by individuals, in order to replace the salt lost through perspiration, unless they are on a restricted salt diet due to a heart condition.

Since over-exertion causes a number of difficulties during hot weather, moderation in activities should be the keynote. And don't overlook those 40 winks, for adequate rest is imperative in building and maintaining resistance to disease.

Indiana State Library

Kenneth Coburn To Be Installed As K.P. Head

Kenneth Coburn of R1, Saint Joe, will be installed as Grand Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias at state rites to be held Tuesday evening, July 2, at Auburn. Mr. Coburn is a member of Saint Joe Lodge No. 400.

The installation ceremony is scheduled for 8 p.m., to be conducted by Grand Secretary Otto Shuman of Waterloo as installing officer, Grand Prelate and Past Grand Chancellor Elton Marquart of Fort Wayne and Grand Master-at-Arms and Past Grand Chancellor Harvey T. Ott of Wolf Lake.

Saint Joe Lodge 400 and Auburn Lodge 191 are hosts for the state gathering which is expected to attract 200 members of the Knights of Phythias from lodges throughout the state.

Chancellor commander Joe Robinson of the Saint Joe Lodge and chancellor commander Howard Knepper of the Auburn lodge have been preparing for the installation.

Mr. Coburn was born January 30, 1907, in the house where he now resides. He attended grade school at Coburns Corners and high school at Spencerville. Mrs. Coburn is the former Zola Wolford. The couple has two children, Shirley and Floyd.

Mr. Coburn received his rank of Knight at Saint Joe in March of 1926. He became inactive but later was reinstated at the lodge in Saint Joe. Under Otto Shuman, past grand chancellor, he served as district deputy. In 1953, he was elected to his first state office as grand outer guard.

NEWVILLE TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Newville Township Home Demonstration Club met Wednesday, June 11, at the club house with hostesses Leitha Stairhime, Elva Hook and Daisy Roberts. There were 29 members, 2 guests and 3 children present.

The president, Lois Guiff, opened the meeting with the membes repeating the club creed.

Devotions were given by Dorothy Meek. Singing of the hymn, "America," and the song of the month, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," was led by Irene Emenhiser. The lesson of Good Grooming was given by Leta Shafer and Elsie Meek. Lois Guiff gave a report on the council meeting. Various committees then gave reports. Roll call was answered by 29 members and there were 2 new members present, Mrs. Ethel Fields and Mrs. Ruth Webb.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. After all business was concluded, the meeting adjourned with the singing of the club collect. Birthday contributions were made by Mary Guthrie, Elsie Meek and Gladys Impton.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostesses. Recreation was led by Anna Hursey.

The club will meet at the club house July 9 for its annual picnic with hostesses Della McDonald, Kathryn Krieg and Gladys Impton.

Lions Install New Officers

The Saint Joe Lions Club installed officers for 1958-59 at its final meeting of the current year Monday evening.

The wives of members were present for Ladies Night and were entertained at the Hobby Ranch House in Fort Wayne. 56 members and guests were present.

International counsellor George Sockrider of Auburn served as installing officer for the following club members:

Ted Haberkorn, president.

Elmer McKay, first vice - president.

Frank Sechler, second vice-president.

Blaine Kimes, third vice-president.

Clifford Billow, secretary-treasurer.

Forrest Bevington, tail twister.

Roy Chapman, Lion tamer.

Directors—Warren Clauser and V. R. Monroe (for second year of two-year term); Wayne Storer and Walter Morr (elected to two-year terms).

The program for the evening included a demonstration of stereophnic sound equipment and accompanying explanation by Russ Weber and Jerry Pasternak of the Magnavox Company of Fort Wayne.

A report on the Indiana State Lions Convention held at French Lick recently was given by Ted Haberkorn.

In addition to the installation of new officers, presentation of the president's pin to the new president and past-president's pin to the outgoing president, attendance awards were given to three members of the club who accomplished the mark of ten years' perfect attendance. Receiving pins for this record were Lynn Fisher, Virgil Kimes and Maurice Kline.

Local News

The Saint Joe Boy Scout Troop will hold a bake sale in the News Office on Saturday, June 28.

The Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department was one of several in this area called to Butler late Tuesday evening to assist in fighting a blaze at the Butler Company. A frame and metal building at the south side of the main brick structure was destroyed in the blaze which threatened nearby homes and industry. Estimate of the damage has been set at $200,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn and son, Phil, were Sunday evening guests of his parents at Fort Wayne.

John and Bob Stiver, Jane Kline, Peggy Chapman, Allen Amstutz, Mike and Dave Haberkorn and Stanley Lake are enjoying a week of camp at U.L.C.A. Camp Lutherwald at Howe.

Riverdale band director Robert Lowry is continuing the building of the school band through the summer months with rehearsals held Wednesday and Friday evenings at the high school in Saint Joe. Afternoon sessions are held with grade school pupils and the 6th graders then rehearse with the high school band in the evening. Mr. Lowrey reports that he has started some 35 grade and high school students in the past year in band work.

The Newville E.U.B. Church will hold an ice cream social on Thursday night, July 17.

Mrs. Anna Hursey, Mrs. Leona Mason and Mrs. Edna Jenkins were dinner guests last Thursday of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Bingaman at Byran, O.

55 4-H beef club members from DeKalb County attended a tour held last week. Farms visited were the Rock Reinhart farm, Andy Crow farm and Gary Sible farm near Saint Joe; the Leota Schrader farm near Concord; the Joe Baker farm near Concord and the Tim Hornbacker farm and the Tommy Smith farm near Auburn. Animals were judged at each of the stops.

Though farmers nationally voted 83 percent in favor of wheat quotas, the farmers in DeKalb County showed typical Hoosier independence by voting 45 for and 48 against quotas in a referendum held Friday of last week. Less than 25 percent of the eligible farmers in the county bothered to go to the polls. 386 were eligible. 94 went but only 93 voted. At Jackson Center farmers from Jackson, Butler, Concord and Spencer townships voted 9 for and 16 against marketing quotas. At Butler farmers from Wilmington, Stafford and Newville townships voted 12 for and 8 against.

The Spencerville Methodist Church will hold an ice cream social on Saturday, July 19, starting at 5 p.m. on the church lawn. The menu will include sandwiches, potato salad, baked beans, pie, cake, coffee, kool-ade and ice cream.

Driver license suspensions include that of Eldon Lee Birky of R1 Spencerville, Sidney E. Hardin of Saint Joe and Daxid Schurr of Garrett.

For the convenience of boys at Saint Joe and Spencerville who wish to attend recreation activities at both places on Mondays and Fridays, Price Brookfield has announced that a school bus will take boys from Spencerville to Saint Joe at 8:45 a.m. Mondays and from Saint Joe to Spencerville at 8:45 a.m. Fridays. Boys will be returned to their respective starting places at the conclusion of the mornings' activities.

Philip Washler, 19, of Saint Joe and Karen Hill, 17, of Leo have obtained a license to wed, according to information from the county clerk's office.

Fort Wayne and area fans will have an opportunity to see championship rodeo at the Fort Wayne Speedway on August 29, 30, 31 and September 1. The Independent Order of Odd Fellows is sponsor of the rodeo. Tickets are now available at 1111 South Clinton St., Fort Wayne.

County assessor Clayton Hartman has listed an increase of $1,810,805 of assessed valuation of personal property in his final report on 1958 assessing. The comparison is taken with the 1957 assessing report which did not include machinery, equipment and inventory assessments of industries. The actual increase is estimated at considerably under $500,000.

The Saint Joe Lions Club will sponsor an ice cream social in Saint Joe on Saturday, July 26.

In Church League competition, Saint Joe Church of Christ defeated Newville E. U. B. Friday night, Meese-Rehobeth-Concord defeated Saint Joe Lutheran and Spencerville Lutheran got a forfeit from Newville Church of Christ in make-up games Saturday. Other games, Newville Church of Christ defeated Meese-Rehobeth-Concord on Monday evening and Spencerville Lutheran beat Mt. Pleasant Tuesday evening. On Friday night Coburntown meets Saint Joe Lutheran. Next Monday Saint Joe Lutheran plays Spencerville Lutheran and Tuesday night Newville E.U.B. plays Newville Church of Christ.

Businessmen Invited For Farm Tour

DeKalb County businessmen have been invited to make a tour of county farms and view soil conservation practices now being observed. The invitation has come from the DeKalb County Soil Conservation District Board of Supervisors. The tour is scheduled for Wednesday, July 2.

Russell Housel, president of the district board of supervisors and a member of the state conservation committee, has announced that the tour will include several stops at farms in Fairfield and Smithfield townships.

The trip is designed as a rural-urban friendship tour to show businessmen of the county the work and progress made in DeKalb County agriculture the past several years through soil conservation practices.

All interested businessmen are urged to attend. The tour will start from the Wible Building at Union and Seventh streets in Auburn at 9:45 a.m., Wednesday, July 2. The first stop on the automobile tour will be at the Eugene Krehl farm near Corunna. The tour will then proceed with visits at other farms in Smithfield and Fairfield townships, including the Ora Smith, Kenneth Mertz, Eugene Grate and Dale Rakestraw farms.

At noon a chicken barbecue will be served under sponsorship of the Waterloo Equity Exchange, the Auburn Grain Co and the DeKalb County Farm Bureau Coop. Tentative plans are to serve the barbecue at the Mertz farm.

County soil conservationist Robert VanLeuven of Auburn said the tour will provide businessmen with an opportunity to see conservation practices in operation in the county. Contour strip farming, fertrization, farm management and other conservation practices are included in the tour.

Local businessmen who plan to make the tour are asked to notify Stanley Means as soon as possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Brown and Nancy attended the wedding of the daughter of the minister who married the Browns at Pendleton, Indiana, on Saturday afternoon. From there they went to Indianapolis where they were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Garten and their granddaughter, Janie. The Gartens are owners of Sutton Garten in Fort Wayne. Then Saturday night the Browns were all night and Sunday guests of Mr. Brown's brother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown and son, Billy, returning to their home in Spencerville late Sunday evening.

Week end guests in the John Weidner home was Mrs. Angela Lloyd of Maumee, O.

The Spencerville Community Club had a special meeting in the Lutheran Church basement Tuesday evening with Miss Phyllis Gratz present to instruct them in the proper method of incorporating the club.

The W.S.C.S. of the Methodist Church met with Mrs. Lynn Fisher on Wednesday afternoon. Plans are being made for their annual ice cream social which will be held on July 19 on the church lawn.

Sunday dinner guests of the Glenn Brenaels were the Earl Norrises of Fort Wayne and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Norris and daughter, Jeanie, and son, Jim.

Maurice Hollabaugh and Jake Hoover suffered minor injuries in a car accident Sunday near Edgerton, Ohio. The men were returning home from a fishing trip.

SYMBOLS OF MACKINAC BRIDGE DEDICATION; 3-DAY FESTIVAL AT STRAITS, JUNE 26-28

Mrs. Michigan | Water Sports | Celebrities | Miss Michigan

Land Sports | Ceremonies | Music | U.S. Defense

All Michigan is pretty excited about its new $100,000,000 bridge which now joins the two Michigan peninsulas, spanning over five miles of water. Dedication of the world's longest suspension bridge at the Straits of Mackinac climaxes a three-day celebration, featuring three big parades, a queen for each of Michigan's 83 counties, huge displays and demonstrations by all branches of the armed services, industrial, marine and agricultural exhibits, land and water sports and recreation shows, historic markers unveiled. Labor's ceremonies honoring the five men who lost their lives in the building of the Bridge, dedication of a new Museum on Mackinac Island, a re-enactment of Jean Nicolet's going through the Straits in a birch bark canoe in 1634 seeking a route to China, music, dancing, fireworks, celebrities, distinguished visitors, important State, national and international figures participating in the final ceremonies on Saturday, June 28. Thousands of visitors are expected. Four cities will actively participate: St. Ignace and Mackinaw City at the ends of the Bridge, Cheboygan just southeast of Mackinaw City, and Sault Ste. Marie, northeast of the Straits.

Betrayed!

Betrayed! A strong word - a dangerous word, for it implies deliberate action. But betrayed is the word for the latest development in the workings of the Riverdale school system. We have betrayed ourselves.

A death-blow was struck this week with the revelation that the oldest teacher in years of service on the Riverdale faculty is leaving our school to accept a position with a nearby school. There may be personal reasons involved to be sure; there always are those reasons by which we can explain our actions. But the non-personal reasons in this instance must not be overlooked. The greatest of these is the dismal failure of this community to back up its teachers, to live up to its responsibilities to a stable school faculty, by failing to maintain a salary schedule, among other things, which will not only attract capable teachers to Riverdale but also keep them here when we get them.

One of the selling points in the move to consolidate was the fact that we would be able to offer an expanded curriculum, or at least that was the impression received in some quarters. We would have a better school because we would be bigger and have more to work with and for. To date, there is little difference to be noted in the school program offered to local students, particularly in the high school. There appears to be little progress along this line, unless such progress hinges on the construction of a new school building. If that is the case, then the planning has been inconsistent, for we have had but a 50-cent building fund levy for the past three years, a drop in the proverbial bucket in contrast to the need. Next week the board will consider raising the levy to 80 cents, an increase of 30 cents.

But what is happening in the meantime? Though any increase in funds for the construction of a new school is welcome, there must be care taken that we not end up with a beautiful empty shell to, call "our school." There is little to be gained in having a modern structure if there is no faculty to man it, no stable faculty. We are not going to have a stable, capable faculty as long as Riverdale remains a proving grounds for other school systems. It is rather significant, we think, that three former Riverdale teachers are now members of another school system in DeKalb County. One of these, formerly our principal, was subject to great criticism while serving here. Yet, he is considered capable enough to be assistant principal in a larger school elsewhere in the county. The others may have had other reasons than those of a monetary nature for leaving Riverdale. But it certainly is true that the complexion of a community and its responsiveness play a big part in any person's decision to go elsewhere, and that complexion for a public servant includes monetary reward.

Just a few months ago the teachers in our school presented to the school board a suggested salary schedule. Their aim was to help our school system by offering to teachers a salary which would be attractive, which would make our system possibly become the choser rather than the seeker. Certainly we can get teachers with what we pay now. But it has been shown, and never more dramatically than in the past week, that we are not going to hold them. Better schools do not come cheap. Better schools do not just happen. They are made. They are made by conscientious efforts to reward those who serve in the schools with deserved better living standards through the salaries which they receive for their services. Though there was an increase of $250 made in reply to the teachers' request, this did not keep up with the trend elsewhere; and it certainly did not help us to become chosers. If anything can be pointed out as the deciding factor which is tempting our teachers to leave or to consider leaving, it is the refusal of the school board to install the salary schedule as presented by the teachers. This may seem to be an uncompromising attitude at first glance, that the teachers want all or nothing at all. But it must be remembered (look up the schedule as printed in this paper on March 13 and March 20, 1958) that the proposed schedule was not unreasonable. It would have set up a good sound basis for establishing the "better school" we sought by consolidation.

We would be most happy to see a new school constructed for our students. We still hope that the day is not far off when that dream becomes a reality. But if a new school is going to be obtained at the cost of the few career teachers we yet have, at the cost of a stable and capable faculty, then we withdraw our support of a higher building fund levy (it should have been a dollar all this time!) and say "No! No! No!" to this toying with our educational system. Much as better physical facilities appeal to us, the appeal of strong faculty character appeals much, much more. Use the money for our teachers.

We have a few suggestions to make:

(1) That the general public attend the meeting Monday evening (Riverdale High School, Saint Joe, 8:00 p.m. DST) of the Riverdale School Board and voice their opinions concerning the situation. Though the meeting is designated for the hearing on the 80-cent building fund levy, the matter of losing teachers has become important enough to need airing along with the building construction fund.

(2) That the general public study carefully the salary schedule which the teachers presented recently and see if it is not a reasonable and a justifiable schedule to provide for a school which seeks to improve itself. Remember the cry of today for a good basic American educational system. This doesn't mean someplace else, somebody else. THIS IS IT! HERE! NOW!

(3) That the school board seriously reconsider the teachers' suggested salary schedule in the light of present circumstances - more specifically, that the board adopt that schedule. We do not want the shame again, that is our deserved lot, such as is ours now when a teacher of 16 years' service is lured away by another school.

(4) That the school board be composed of a more representative segment of our community, of people from the laboring group, from the managing group, from the businessmen's group, from the professional group, not of a group almost 100 per cent agricultural in background. Each individual who works for himself or for somebody else and in a different occupation than that of his neighbor has a way of looking at circumstances which differs from the manner of approaching the same subject of his neighbor. The best interest of our school will be served when all segments of the population are respected in the operation of the school. At present the Riverdale School Board does not represent to best advantage the Riverdale school community, and this lack of over-all representation is the primary reason for the difficulties being encountered in setting a competitive pay schedule for teachers.

(5) That we all recognize the fruits of "just coasting" as we apparently have been doing, losing valuable faculty members, being content with just trying to keep abreast of changing conditions and failing to do so. We rode a bicycle Sunday afternoon. It was fun. The most fun was the easy part, coasting. But in life - including school - coasting means heading in one direction - downhill.

Local News

Mrs. Freida Guilford of Saint Joe, a teacher in the schools at Saint Joe and Spencerville for the past 16 years, has announced that she has accepted a position as teacher in the Leo schools for the 1958-59 school year. With several teachers already committed elsewhere and the possibility of still further developments, the Riverdale faculty will undergo a major change for 1958-59.

Frank Sechler, Scoutmaster of the Saint Joe Boy Scout Troop, announced this week that the Father and Son Fishing Derby, jointly sponsored by the Scouts and the Saint Joe American Legion Post, will be held Saturday, July 12. The entry fee is $1.50, which includes entry in the fishing contest and refreshments of hot dogs, potato chips and beverage for both father and son on the contest date. Boundaries of the contest are the Ohio state line to the Spencerville covered bridge on the Saint Joe River. The refreshments will be served at Dills Bridge south of Saint Joe at 4:30 p.m. Rain-out date is Saturday, July 19. All fathers and sons in this area are invited to participate. Prizes will be awarded in various categories for fish caught during the contest, 4:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. All proceeds will go toward payment for resuscitator obtained by the Scouts as a project for the community.

Real honest-to-goodness home made ice cream - right from the old-fashioned freezer. That's what the Saint Joe Lions Club promises at its annual ice cream social to be held Saturday, July 26, in Saint Joe. Yessiree, ice cream "while you wait and before your eyes" is the theme of this year's social. There will be the other social menu items as in previous years, sandwiches, potato salad, baked beans, pie, cake and beverage. But the "big deal" is homemade ice cream - old-fashioned made and good! - under the supervision of three homemade ice cream experts from the Lions Club. Wayne Storer, Blaine Kimes and Frank Sechler.

Postmaster Lehr Wilder revealed a new regulation which will go into effect with the new postal rates August 1. The regulation governs short-rate letters (letters with insufficient postage). In addition to payment of the postage due on the letter, the addressee will be assessed an additional 5 cents, levied as a handling charge.

Mrs. Imo Epler of Dania, Fla., was a guest for a week of Mr. and Mrs. Boxter Bowling of Saint Joe, leaving for Warsaw Monday for a visit with her son.

Miss Coburn Is Candidate For Fair Queen Title

Sixteen girls from DeKalb County will compete for the title of Popularity Queen at the county fair in a contest being staged for the Wee Haven School at Garrett and sponsored by the Xi Beta Kappa and Epsilon Epsilon chapters of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority of Auburn.

The number of candidates from each of the high schools in the county was based on enrollment. The candidate representing Riverdale is Miss Charlotte Ann Coburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coburn.

August 1 is the opening date for the contest. The queen, who will be crowned on Friday evening at the DeKalb County Fair, will be the one who receives the most votes at a penny a vote. The queen will receive a prize of $100, the first princess $50 and the second princess $25. All proceeds of the contest will go to the DeKalb county school for retarded children.

Photographs and cannisters of all the candidates will be placed at some centrally located firm in the down-town area of Auburn during the months of August and September. In addition each girl will have her own posters and canisters which she will place in a convenient location.

Each girl will be sponsored by a civic group or a business firm which will provide transportation for her in the opening parade of the fair. Tne Saint Joe Lions Club will sponsor the entry of Miss Coburn.

The contest will continue during fair week and will close at 5 p.m. Friday of fair week. At 8 p.m. the same day the coronation ceremonies will take place at which time the queen will be announced. A scoreboard in the Beta Sigma Phi booth will show the standing of each candidate during the fair. The queen and her princesses will ride on the sorority's float in the parade on Saturday morning.

Over 30's Play On 17th

Price Brookfield announced the Little League schedule for July and August this week. In addition, he announced that the Over 30 vs. High School hardball game, rained out recently, will be played on Thursday, July 17, as part of a double header. The first game will match the Saint Joe Little League All-Stars against Butler.

The schedule is as follows:

July 3—All Stars vs. Butler.
July 8—Caseys vs. Merchants.
July 10—Lions vs. Sechlers.
July 15—Lions vs. Caseys.
July 17—All Stars vs. Butler and High School vs. Over 30.
July 22—Lions s. Merchants.
July 24—Caseys vs. Sechlers.
July 29—Merchants vs. Sechlers.
July 31—All Stars vs. Butler. 2 games.
August 5—Lions vs. Sechlers.
August 7—Caseys vs. Merchants.
August 12—Caseys vs. Lions.
August 14—All Stars vs. Butler. 2 games.
August 19—Sechlers vs. Merchants.
August 21—All Stars, Sechlers and Lions vs. Caseys and Merchants.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank everyone for their cards, flowers and get-well wishes during my recent stay at the hospital and upon return home.

Mrs. Elnora Blue

Around the Town

With the Editor

Once in a while - I should do it more often - I glance through the papers sent to me on exchange by editors of papers in other small towns. Last week was one of those times when I make an inspection and found that the Antwerp Bee-Argus had picked up our local from two weeks ago about Arthur Sziemeister and his church call. Then I began wondering if someone in Antwerp knows the young man.

I'm still wondering.

A glance through the Avilla News revealed Editor Gieseking's column "Views from the . . . Editor's Desk" which this column is a twin of. He proclaimed the joy of the sport of fishing.

Editor Don Houk put the bee on the town council's secretive sessions in the Edgerton Earth which brought the thought that The Editor gets the hell for saying publicly what a good many folks have already been thinking.

Then a look at the front page of the Tri-County Truth from Churubusco brought this bold item into view:

"STANGLAND'S TRACTORS TAKEN!

"The U.S. government this morning attached two farm tractors owned by Ethan Stangland, R2, Albion, to satisfy a fine and costs levied against Stangland for exceeding his wheat quota.

"Deputy U.S. Marshal Robert Curtin, Jr., placed stickers of attachment on the two tractors and is expected to remove them from the farm later today (June 26).

"The tractor, a Model RC Case, is used by Stangland mainly for cultivation. The other, a Model DC Case, is used for the major part of the farm work.

" 'Loss of both tractors now practically puts me out of business during the busy part of the season,' Stangland said, adding that he still has corn and beans to cultivate and hay to make. He has 135 acres of his 176 acre farm under cultivation.

"After placing the stickers of attachment on the tractors, Curtin left to seek a method of transporting them from the farm, leaving a deputy on quard.

"Curtin was acting under the authority of writs issued by the U.S. District Court of Appeals for Northern Indiana."

I don't know. It seems like the time is coming close when we'd better spout off about how bad off WE are instead of always pointing out how bad off other nations are.

But then, that's what happens when we go to controlling everything - we think. It's sort of a choice between depending on the sun and the rain and depending on almighty man.

I think I've got a little more confidence in Mother Nature over the long run.

The Baileys were visited by a deer last Saturday, according to Fern Carr. It was out in the barnyard with the Bailey pony when it was frightened and took off over the fences.

Steward Reunion

The Steward Reunion group held their annual get-together Sunday, June 22, 1958, at the Kado-Lato Farm, home of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Hart. About 80 relatives and friends enjoyed a picnic dinner and the facilities of the kitchen and gourd showroom.

After the dinner, various forms of entertainment were enjoyed, including horse shoes, walks through the timber, moving pictures shown by James L. Reed, and just visiting. In the early afternoon the group enjoyed ice cream and cake and other food yet remaining on the tables.

Among those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. Chester E. Wolf of South Bend; Mrs. Francena Lake, home from California; Mr. and Mrs. James L. Reed of Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dissinger and 4 daughters of Auburn; Mrs. Paul Drerup and 6 children of Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Dale Steward and 2 daughters and George Steward of Fort Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Edgar and 2 sons of Hoagland; Mrs. Richard Reed and 4 sons of Pierceton; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Steward of Garrett; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Steward of Garrett; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Baidinger and 3 sons of Garrett; Miss Vera Silberg of Garrett; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Shultz and son of Grabill; Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Pugsley and 2 daughters of Garrett; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Steward of Spencerville; Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Walter of Spencerville; Mr and Mrs. Karl Hart and son of Spencerville; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Melchi and 4 children of Spencerville; Miss Arminta Steward of Spencerville; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Timmerman and 4 children of Spencerville; Mrs. Minnie Tyndall of Spencerville; Miss Vera Reed of Spencerville; Ida Reed of Spencerville,

During the business meeting correspondence and greetings from cousins at a distance were reported as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. John George of Clermont, Fla.; Jessie Weber of Fort Wayne; Mrs. H. Brunkhart of Fort Wayne; Mrs. D. H. Cannon of Rainier, Oregon, Mr. Dewey Steward of Russell, Kansas; Mrs. Victor M. Vondy of Snyder, Colo.; Mrs. Hazel Roberts of Medford, Oregon; Mr. Garnet B. Wilson of St. Helens, Oregon; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Zimmerman of Novato, Cal.

Election resulted in the choice of Carol Pugsley for president, Marcel Pugsley for vice president and Ida Reed for secretary-treasurer.

Schemmer-Witt Vows Taken

MR. and MRS. DANIEL SCHEMMER

Candlelight and palms with American Beauty roses provided the background for the marriage of Miss Bonnie Witt of Fort Wayne and Mr. Daniel Schemmer of West Lafayette at 6:00 p.m., June 7, at the North Highlands Church of Christ in Fort Wayne.

Officiating for the double ring ceremony was Mr. Darris Hamilton of Fort Wayne and Mr. Daniel Schemmer of Marion. Mrs. Sue Waggoner of Spencerville accompanied Mr. Ron Waterman, soloist, of Cincinnati.

The bride wore a ballerina gown of white lace on taffeta. The molded bodice featured a high neckline and elbow-length sleeves. She wore white lace gloves and carried American Beauty roses on a white Bible. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a tiara of lace and seed pearls matching her gown.

Mrs. Betty Ward of Spencerville served as matron of honor and Mrs. Joy D'Antuono of Marion served as bridesmaid, wearing ice-blue gowns in design of the bride. They are sisters of the bride and groom. They also wore matching head bands and carried colonial bouquets of candy-striped carnations.

Julie Ward of Spencerville and Candace D'Antuono of Marion served as flower girls and carried a basket of rose petails. Their dresses and head bands matched in blue organdy. The flower girls are nieces of the bride and groom.

David Kissell and Dean Dudden of Fort Wayne, friends of the bride and groom, served as ring bearers in brown and white suits. Mr. John Witt, brother of the bride, and Mr. Kenneth Schemmer, brother of the groom, served as best men. Miss Karen Witt, sister of the bride, and William Carey of Fort Wayne served as candlelighters. Lynn Witt, brother of the bride, and William Carey served as ushers.

Mothers of the bride and groom selected navy dresses with white accessories. They wore corsages of candy-striped carnations.

A reception followed immediately in the church social room. A five-tier wedding cake, topped with miniature bride and groom, centered the table.

The couple will reside at 219-16 Nimitz Drive in West Lafayette, where Mr. Schemmer will study for his Ph. D. and teach engineering classes at Purdue University.

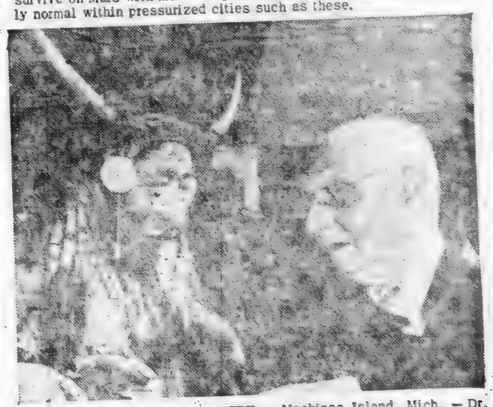
TAKES THE OATH — New York — As Governor Averell Harriman watches, New York Secretary of State Carmine De Sapio swears in Margaret Mary J. Mangan as a Justice of the City Court of New York. Miss Mangan was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Justice Birdie Amsterdam who was appointed to the State Supreme Court.

COOLER IN THE REAR — Knoxville, Tenn. — Here's one fine way to beat the heat as demonstrated here by little Debbie Raiford, 4. With the mercury soaring, Debbie decided to make delightful use of a handy fan.

FUTURE MARTIANS — New York — Though many stories have been based on the invasion of Earth by "men from Mars," the future may be just the opposite. Scientists believe that men can survive on Mars with moderate protection, and that life can be nearly normal within pressurized cities such as these.

TRIPLE THREAT — Champaign, Ill. — Between classes, the Stark Family's triple assault on the citadels of higher learning pause to chat. Left to Right on the campus of the University of Illinois in Champaign, Ill., are: Fred Stark, 20, a Junior in pre-medecine; Dottie, 18, a Freshman, and Treasurer of the University Senate; and Tom, 22, a Senior in political science who plans to enroll in a Presbyterian seminary next fall.

PICK OF THE CROP — Pingtung, Formosa — With her arms, legs and face well-protected against heat and insects, this young Formosan Miss helps with the pineapple harvest on the Island. A hundred-thousand persons make their living from the booming industry that brings Formosa more than $6,000,000 a year in export income.



HOMAGE FROM A CHIEF — Mackinac Island, Mich. — Dr. Frank Buchman (Right), founder of Moral Re-Armament, is greeted on his 80th Birthday by Chief Walking Buffalo of the Alberta Stoney Indians. Twenty-four years ago the Chief had made Buchman a blood brother and given him the name of "A-Wa-Zan-Zan-Tonga," which means "Big Light in Darkness." The conference was attended by 889 delegates from 34 nations.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reasoner, of Saint Joe celebrated their 56th wedding anniversary on Sunday, June 29, with a 5 o'clock dinner. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Reasoner of Fort Wayne, Rev. and Mrs. Ivan Miller of Spencerville and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Foltz of Saint Joe.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Means and family of Covington, Tenn., are spending their vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Means and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser at Saint Joe.

The Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department has been plagued by a series of false alarms which appear to be resulting from a defect in the telephone system. For instance, Walter Fetters was a surprised one last week when he dialed "0" for the long distance operator; instead he set off the fire alarm and got Harold Yeiser's query: "Where's the fire?". The trouble will soon be corrected, if not already.

Youth Service Starts Sunday At Coburntown

This coming Sunday, July 6, the Coburn Corners Church of Christ will conduct its first morning worship services for pre-school and Junior age people. This program will be under the supervision of the church elders with Mrs. Lavon Hart, Mrs. Carlton Wilmot, Mrs. Frank Laub, Mrs. Chester Davis, Jr., and Mrs. Paul Hill as leaders.

Through this channel, both mother and child will benefit. For the child, services can be geared to their age level with their interests and problems in mind. Services will be adapted to their understanding. For the parents, they can give their undivided attention to the worship service. It becomes a joy rather than a burden to bring their children to church. For the adult worship service it is made more reverent.

In making the announcement of the junior church services, Paul Hill, pastor of the church pointed out: "The Lord would have parents bring their children up in 'the nurture and admonition of the Lord'." A cordial invitation is extended to all without a church to worship at the Coburn Corners Church of Christ.

Services are as follows:

Bible school 9:30 a.m.; morning worship 10:30; youth meeting 7:00 p.m.; evening service 8:00; mid-week service, Wednesday at 8:00 p.m.

Boosters Hold 1-4-ly Meeting

The Saint Joe Booster Club held its quarterly meeting on Monday, June 30 at the fire hall in Saint Joe. Seventeen persons were present.

President Frank Sechler called for reports from the various committees. Projects in progress include establishment of a town park, curbing and paving of specified streets, attraction of new industry, removal of mosquito-breeding haunts near the town and removal of unsightly buildings.

The board was asked to consider changing the by-laws to designate memberships as including husband and wife where necessary, rather than on a strictly individual basis.

Following a discussion of general club interests, the meeting adjourned.

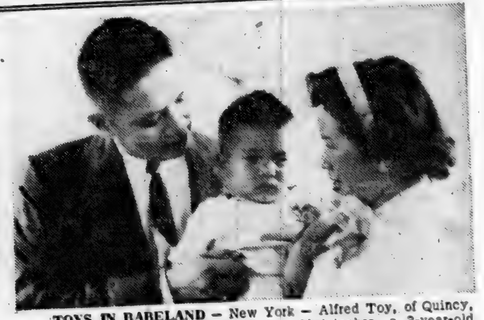
GOING MY WAY? — Paris — To help out a lovely lass like Sylvie Solar, drivers going the other way would probably turn around to make sure they were going her way. Sylvie was practicing for her role as "Miss Auto Stop, 1958," in Paris, when the driver of this old car got the picture, though not quite in the picture.



TOYS IN BABELAND — New York — Alfred Toy, of Quincy, Mass., greets his new adopted son, Christopher, a 3-year-old Chinese boy, on the boy's arrival at Idlewild Airport from Tokyo. Holding him is Mrs. Toy. Christopher is one of the first children to arrive in the U.S. under a new WAIF (World Adoption International Fund) program to unite Hong Kong orphans with American adoptive parents.

CITY SLICKER — Chicago, Ill. — Just a few blocks south of Chicago's bustling loop (background), corn flourishes under the cultivation of a city farmer and the protection of a pair of scarecrows. The "farm" is located between railroad tracks at about 16th Street in the City.

ROLLED OUT OF A BARREL — Berlin — Without its one-time liquid contents, this large wine barrel still brings amusement to a large group. The barrel was donated by a wine manufacturer to Berlin's playgrounds, and the children love to crawl in and out and to play house in the barrel.

SEXTANT APPEAL — Miami, Fla. — Polishing up their celestial navigation, four Air Force Officers check their sextants, maps and techniques against the heavenly body of Betty Thompson in Miami, Fla. The flyers won second place in the Continental Air Command's Navigation Contest held in the area. They missed first place because of Gals — that's a term used to define magnetic deviation in small units and is derived from the astronomer Galileo.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Means and family of Leo, Mr. Walter Means of Fort Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Means and Mrs. Walt Bilger and grandchildren of Auburn, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Means of Saint Joe and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Means of Covington, Tenn., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Means at Crooked Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Etzler and daughter, Bebe, of Dallas, Texas, spent a few days in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Strombeck.

Mr. and Mrs. Lenard Fisher and family attended the golden wedding anniversary of his parents Sunday, June 29, at Peru, Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Pugsley and family have moved to Garrett. Mrs. Pugsley will teach in the Garrett High School in 1958-59.

William McIntyre, the Better Farming and Better Living Agent, announced this week that the enrollment for the fall classes is being taken now by the township council members. The fall class will be limited to 25 farm families on a first-come first-served basis. Council members include: Concord, William LaRowe and Neil Prentice; Newville, Wayne Benninghoff and Wilbur Beree; Spencer, Robert Walter and John Mason.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Hauke of Fort Wayne were Saturday visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn and sons.

Members of the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department fogged the town for mosquitoes Saturday night, but the brisk winds Sunday evidently blew in a new crop of biters since they were out in force again on Monday and Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Arlo Green of Chicago were Thursday night and Friday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Pugsley.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Pugsley were Sunday guests of the latter's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. George Edwards, at Devils Lake, Michigan.

Michael Beebe, 9 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Beebe of near Saint Joe, was injured slightly Monday evening when he rode his bicycle into the path of a car driven by Mrs. Garnet Wasson, also of near Saint Joe. Mrs. Wasson was driving east on county road 59 approaching the Sible farm when she saw the boy approach the road. When she saw he was not going to stop, she attempted to brake her car, skidded 30 feet before striking the boy and then traveled another 15 feet before coming to a stop.

Two thefts and a burglary were reported Tuesday by DeKalb County farm residents. At the James Warstler residence north of Saint Joe burglars stole a 6-quart stainless steel sauce pan, a 3-quart stainless steel sauce pan, two 2-quart sauce pans, a heavy aluminum 6-quart sauce pan, one silver tray, an undetermined amount of cans of canned goods, a 6-ounce jar of instant coffee, one 10-inch skillet and 15 packages of meat from the family deep freeze. An undetermined amount of corn and gasoline was taken from a farm home at Hamilton and a farm tractor battery was taken in another theft near Corunna.

REALISTIC APPROACH TO ABSTRACT ART – Pittsburgh, Pa. – Four-year-old Michael Thomas does what most of us want to do while trying to make head or tail of a piece of abstract art. Michael is employing the upside-down technique while looking at a painting. P.S. Even upside-down he didn't dig it.

CUTE? – NOT ON YOUR LIFE! – Los Angeles, Calif. – They may look like playful pups but if you were "Little Red Riding Hood" you would know the difference right away. Standing with MaMa Wolf in the cage at the Griffith Park Zoo, this trio seems fuzzy and frolicsome, but, as their names imply – Little Bad Wolf No. 1, 2 and 3 – these grey timber wolves can't be tamed, trained or civilized in any way.

REBEL TANKS IN INDONESIAN CITY – Bukittinggi, Indonesia – Rebel tanks roll through the streets of Bukittinggi after the city was occupied by rebel forces. The U.S. State Department has granted export licenses for shipment of small arms to the Indonesian Government of President Sukarno, officials disclosed. Licenses for the small arms had been blocked since the outbreak of hostilities in Indonesia in February. Officials emphasized that approval of these licenses did not mean there had been any lifting of the general American embargo against major military shipments to Indonesia until hostilities end.

A PICTURE ON HER 100TH BIRTHDAY – Seattle, Wash. – Mrs. Eugenia Brown, who has been painting for 80 years, interrupts work on a canvas to pose for a picture on her 100th Birthday. The picture of the aircraft carrier Bon Homme Richard is intended for her great nephew, who served on the carrier while in the Navy. Mrs. Brown was born in upper New York State and came to the State of Washington 50 years ago.

Local News

Driver license suspensions include that of Dorise A. Boyd of Garrett as the result of an accident.

The sheriff's office is completing an investigation into the theft of a motor scooter and diesel fuel oil involving three boys and two girls, all teenagers. The scooter was taken at Butler and ridden to Saint Joe where it was abandoned. The diesel oil was stolen from the Donald Miller farm near Saint Joe on July 1. The oil, mistaken for gasoline, was put into the tank of a car driven by one of the girls. The girl's mother discovered the fuel oil when she had difficulty in starting the car later and took it to a service station in Saint Joe.

Charges of failure to yield the right-of-way have been filed in Auburn city court against Corwin J. Leonhart, 16, of west of Saint Joe, as a result of a fatal accident in which James Dale Snyder, 16, of near Saint Joe was killed. The charges were filed after investigation by county and state police officers and the county coroner.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hauke and sons of Fort Wayne were Wednesday callers in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn and sons.

Dennis Lee Baker, 18, of north of Saint Joe and Jeri Lohman Walter,, 19, of R3, Auburn, were handed identical fines of $25 and costs of $13 in city court at Auburn Wednesday afternoon of last week. The young men pleaded guilty to charges of illegal possession of fireworks. No charges were filed relative to speeding when the young men attepted to elude police. A firecracker was tossed from the car in which the two youths were riding. Policeman J. W. Rittenhouse observed the act and gave chase. He was forced to reach speeds of 100 miles per hour before he stopped the fleeing car a mile east of Apburn. State laws provide for a fine of up to $100 or a jail term up to a maximum of 90 days or both for conviction on the offense of illegal possession of fireworks.

Mrs. Nettie Minnick of Harlan, 107 years old and thought to be the oldest active Methodist, is featured as one of four "Unusual Methodists" in the July issue of Together, the Methodist magazine for families.

Over a million dollars was mailed to county taxing units in the past week. The division of tax dollars included $55,637.58 to Riverdale School Corporation, $3,060.99 to Saint Joe Town, $1,690.73 to Concord Township, $1,232.78 to Newville Township and $1,027.37 to Spencer Township.

Carol Baker won second place in room improvement, senior division, in the county 4-H judging contest held July 1 in Auburn.

Two Harlan teenagers, Richard R. Harris, Jr., 18, and Dennis Henry, 17, were painfully injured Friday evening when the 1957 Ford convertible in which they were riding, driven by Harris, failed to make a curve on state road 101 southwest of Newville and crashed. Harris was booked on a charge of driving to the left of center. The car was being driven at an excessive rate of speed when it entered a curve. Harris was treated for a possible jaw fracture, cut on the lower lip, bruises and scratches. Henry suffered a rupture of the left ear drum, bruises and scratches.

Glen Kinsey suffered a stroke last Thursday evening and is now confined at an Auburn hospital.

Frank Sechler, Scoutmaster of the Saint Joe Boy Scout Troop, announced this week that the Father and Son Fishing Derby, jointly sponsored by the Scouts and the Saint Joe American Legion Post, will be held Saturday, July 12. The entry fee is $1.50, which includes entry in the fishing contest and refreshments of hot dogs, potato chips and beverage for both father and son on the contest date. Boundaries of the contest are the Ohio state line to the Spencerville covered bridge on the Saint Joe River. The refreshments will be served at Dills Bridge south of Saint Joe at 4:30 p.m. Rain-out date is Saturday, July 19. All fathers and sons in this area are invited to participate. Prizes will be awarded in various categories for fish caught during the contest, 4:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. All proceeds will go toward payment for resuscitator obtained by the Scouts as a project for the community.

There will be no issue of this paper published Thursday, July 24.

Real honest to goodness home made ice cream - right from the old-fashioned freezer. That's what the Saint Joe Lions Club promises at its annual ice cream social to be held Saturday, July 26, in Saint Joe. Yessiree, ice cream "while you wait and before your eyes" is the theme of this year's social. There will be the other social menu items as in previous years, sandwiches, potato salad, baked beans, pie, cake and beverage. But the "big deal" is homemade ice cream - old-fashioned made and good! - under the supervision of three homemade ice cream experts from the Lions Club, Wayne Storer, Blaine Kimes and Frank Sechler.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Hurni are grandparents again, a daughter being born to Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Hurni of Westville.

The Development Of Communism

by Vickie Crow

(One of the winners of Riverdale P.T.A. student recognition awards recently was Miss Vickie Crow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Crow of Saint Joe. During the school year of 1957-58 Miss Crow submitted a composition in April which was considered to be an outstanding effort. The following is the first installment of that composition.)

Preface

Communism has become one of the major threats to our democracy. Instead of looking at Communism from the standpoint of what it really is, our people make judgment on the basis of the propaganda they hear. Some of the people in the United States who have become communists claim that they were drawn at first out of curiosity as to what communism really was. They were then fooled into believing that communism was really the ideal society that Karl Marx intended it to be.

By looking at communism and realizing its weaknesses in theory, it will not be successful in overthrowing our democracy. Only by completely understanding communism can it be defeated. Knowledge can stop helpless victims from being fooled into believing communism is ideal. Realizing that communism can never work is a better means of destroying it than all the propaganda in the world.

It is because I wanted to know exactly what communism is that I selected this topic for my term paper.

All through the ages men have desired to be equal. Men have dreamed of a utopia in which everything would be evenly distributed, in which there would be no jealousy or hatred. They have dreamed of a society where peace would prevail.

The ideas of a communistic society are not new. Many early philosophers have written about an ideal society which would be based on principles similar to those of communism. One such philosopher was Plato. His theory on common relations had one very interesting clause. He advocated that all children should be taken from their parents at birth and that their identity should be lost. By doing this, people would not be partial to anyone. Plato also believed that the ownership of private property should give way to state control of all enterprise. Of course the state would be controlled by the people. Therefore, the people would control all enterprise. Plato was one of the more famous philosophers who believed in a type of communism. There were others of less importance.

MODERN MRS. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The June meeting of the Modern Mrs. Home Demonstration Club was held at the home of Geneva Miller with co-hostess Betty Miller. The meeting was called to order at 8 p.m. by the president, Phyllis Sipe.

All repeated the club collect. Ruth Timbrook gave the devotions. The song leader, Nancy McBride, gave the history and led everyone in singing the song of the month, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart." The lesson on grooming was given by Janice Burley and Gay Varner.

Phyllis Amaden read the roll call and everyone was acknowledged by giving individual topics. Two visitors were recognized, Mrs. Carol Boger and Mrs. Marilyn Carr. Marilyn joined the club, making the 29th member.

The club was invited to the Country Charm Club at Waterloo in June. A family picnic was planned for late in June.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Dorothy Markle on June 26.

For this month the president turned the meeting over to the vice president, Lois Akey. The club collect was repeated by 16 members and 1 guest. Devotions were given by Arden Dwyer. The history and song of the month were given by Dorothy Christman and the chorus was sung by members.

Lois Akey and Sharon Bowser gave their lesson on grooming. To make money the club will sell peppermint candy which can be stored for months.

Sharon Beaty and Sharon Smith showed several ways to make baked goods out of a master mix.

The club then discussed different crafts to do for the next meeting. The meeting was adjourned by singing the prayer, and a social hour was enjoyed by all.

VOLUME LXXIII ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. Thursday, July 17, 1958 NUMBER 29

The Development Of Communism

by Vickie Crow

The theory of communism as we know it today is credited to Karl Marx. Marx's theories are the basis of modern communism. Many of Marx's ideas can be explained by studying the man's character and the times in which he lived. Karl Marx was born May 5, 1818, in the Rhine province of Germany. He was a brilliant scholar; his marks in school were superior. He was a temperamental individual, and because of this, he made few friends. Marx felt he was superior to his fellow students. In order to make them feel their inferiority, he made sarcastic, cutting remarks. Maybe Marx actually felt inferior to someone or something himself. Many times when persons try to elevate themselves, it is because subconsciously they feel inferior to someone else.

Marx's feeling of inferiority could have begun in a number of places, but it is most probable that it started in his home when he was a young child. It is a tendency for parents to compare a child with another person, such as an older brother or sister. This could have happened to Marx. When he was in school, Marx decided that physical work was a waste of time and effort. He concentrated his time on studying. Marx's parents probably harped at him about his attitude and compared him with someone else who was industrious. They possibly ignored his high marks in school in their effort to interest him in some type of work. Being temperamental and sensitive, constant lecturing would have a great affect on Marx. Maybe he took his spite out on other people by making sarcastic remarks. Whatever the reason, his personality made him an unpopular individual.

Marx's writings show that he was dissatisfied with life as it was; he wanted it changed. Marx was on a high intellectual level. The nature of an intellectual person demands many things to interest him. For Marx, this demand could not be fulfilled completely enough. Understanding the time in which Marx lived helps to explain this. The average person at that time was mainly interested in earning enough money on which to live and in going to church and a few social activities. Marx was restless and probably desired to learn of new things. This is probably one reason why he so strangely believed a new type of society was needed for the people. He was dissatisfied; others must be too. He may not have realized that he believed what he did because his natural intellectual level cried out for a change.

Another important factor which had a great affect on his writing was that Marx was an atheist. When he was approximately twenty, Marx lost faith in God. Some of the works which Marx studied were a great factor in his developing a belief in atheism. Several of the men whose writings influenced him tended to stress materialism and atheism. At the time Marx began to study works tending to support atheism, he was at a very impressionable age. Possibly if he had read works stressing theism at that age, it would have made some difference in his life. However, Marx turned to atheism. This factor later had a great affect on Marx's writings.

Marx had considerable financial worries. He refused to work most of the time. He believed his time was valuable and should be spent doing something worthwhile. His family suffered much because of this. He mentioned in his writings once that his wife was harping and complaining because of their poor financial status. Did Marx blame himself for his poverty? No, the fault was not his. The society in which he lived was to blame. His poverty was blamed on the fact that capitalism created a society with distinct classes. He, unfortunately, was in the poor class.

Marx wrote several articles dealing with political and social problems. On works concerning communism, or, as he called it, "scientific socialism," Marx collaborated with a friend, Frederich Engels. Engels was born in the same area of Germany as Marx and at approximately the same time. Engels enjoyed life and was quite gay. He made friends quite easily. Marx and Engels were almost exactly opposite in character and personality.

The factors which were common to both Engels and Marx were that they were both on a high intellectual level and they were both atheists. Why was Engels an atheist? There is no apparent answer to this question. Engels did not do as much extensive reading on the subject of atheism as Karl Marx. His personality did not have as many characteristics which would tend toward a belief in atheism as Marx's had. One answer to this question may be in the fact that Engels neary detested his father. His father was a true theist. Engels had probably grown up with the belief in God around him. Church going may have lost its true meaning to him. It might have first become habit. Losing belief in a god would have been no great loss to him. Also, by claiming to be an atheist, Engels struck a deep blow at his father whom Engels hated.

Engels was on a high intellectual level. When Marx first met Engels, it was probably his high plateau of thinking which attracted Marx. Later various fields were found to be of interest to both of them. Engels and Marx became close friends. They collaborated in their writings and wrote what is the basis of modern communism.

Marx and Engels believed that many changes would have to be made in order to set up the ideal communistic government. The most important change would be that all private property would be confiscated by the state. The state would be controlled by the people. All property would be managed by the state for the good of the people.

Marx and Engels believed that a classless society could be created by having everything controlled by the state. If the state controlled everything, no individual would be able to monopolize a business and become wealthy. Marx advocated that the working class had constantly been in disputes with the middle class. By taking away private property from the wealthy and eliminating strife, Marx claimed that one of the major causes of war would be stopped.

Marx and Engels based much of their ideas about the dissatisfied working class on events during their own lives. The Industrial Revolution was just beginning to really develop, and capitalism was starting its rise. During the early part of the Industrial Revolution, the middle class greatly prospered. Working conditions for the factory workers, however, were not very good. People were forced to labor long hours for little pay. The conditions under which the workers toiled were very unfavorable. In general, the feelings of the workers were as bad as Marx had stated.

Another part of Marx's theory of communism stated that all religions should be abolished. Marx believed there was no God. He also said that through the ages wars and arguments had been fought in the name of religions. Lives had been lost in the name of a supreme being that did not exist. Remove religion and another cause of war would be eliminated. Anyway, communism was to be everything, including religion. Any worship would be the worship of communism.

Another point that Marx dwelled on was the fact that agriculture and industry should be improved and expanded. By increasing the output of goods, the state would be strengthened. Marx believed a large output would increase trade. Trade would lift the economy of the state and the standard of living of the people. The people, Marx believed, would be satisfied with the "things" a new economy could give them. As long as the people were satisfied, the state would be strong, because it would have the firm support of the people.

Marx stressed the importance of schools. Children were to be provided with a free education. Child labor would be abolished so that children could go to school. It would be important that the people were educated. The strength of any nation lies in the hands of the people. Marx probably realized this. A strong state and one that would advance would have to be managed by intelligent people. Education would provide an intelligent group of people. Education would also be taught with a slant toward the communistic point of view. It would serve as an excellent means of strengthening the state.

Marx believed that eventually capitalism would destroy itself. With the downfall of capitalism, the peoples of the world would establish a communistic system. Marx was not sure how long people would continue to struggle in a capitalistic societf. He wrote that the working class should revolt soon against the middle class instead of waiting for a peaceful change from capitalism to communism. After all, if capitalism was going to decline, why not help it a little? The sooner that communism was developed, the sooner the people would have a better society. In 1847 Marx and Engels organized the Communist League. This league must not have been very successful because it was dissolved five years later. Another organization for the advancement of communism, the First International, was begun in 1864. This league was also dissolved.

A number of political parties which followed Marx's theories of a communistic society were formed during the next few years. One of the most influential of these parties was the Russian Social Democratic Labor Party. This party split in 1903 and formed the Bolshevik and the Menshevik parties. These two parties were to have much to do with organizing the communistic state in Russian today.

Faith - and a Bar of Soap

How often does a family hear these words - "Your hands are dirty; go wash them with soap."

Those are familiar words to most mothers and fathers, and familiar, too, to their offspring. But how significant are those words in the matter of Christian faith? They may seem to be far removed from any association with religion. Yet if we stop to think, we find that all too often our daily lives are marked by an almost automatic faith in something, like a bar of soap, to the extent that there is no question of the object's ability to perform the task that is expected.

How much more meaningful would be human life if is faith in material and man-made blessings were a reflection of faith in spiritual considerations. The belief in God that man has professed is not manifested to any great extent in human living. It is a common and somewhat accepted characteristic of the religious world, at least to the eyes of the average layman, that the practice of spiritual qualities is sufficient if it only done on Sunday, or just on Sunday morning, or just in specific "religious" matters. In other words, it is a popular concept of Christianity that agreeing with what the preacher says from the pulpit, nodding assent to the revelation of Scripture and "The Truth" as it is proclaimed is all that is expected or necessary. This is because in the art of everyday living we fear there is too much room for our fellow man to "take" us in one way or another; and so, we are on the defensive by keeping ourselves unaware of those qualities of a spiritual nature which we say are so admirable. It isn't so much a matter of the undesirable "do unto others before they do unto you" as it is "do unto others in such a way that you won't leave yourself wide open." This is certainly a far cry from the wise words heard from the pulpit; yet it appears to be the way of the world today.

It would be a sad world if all professed Christians were one hundred per cent a failure in this respect. And strangely enough when we fail in these opportunities to be witnesses to the Christian faith, we yet recognize that someone who would have done differently would have been a better person for it, that someone quite possibly being even ourselves. It is a fact that we generally behave not as we ought to but as we want to. This is wrong, unless a person wants to behave as God wants him to. But most of the time, it is easier to be practical than to be a martyr and so we live in a practical world governed by practical actions. And as a result we become overcome by practical problems.

Great men in Christian history are remembered for their bravery. Yet if they were living today and acting today as they did in their time, they would be considered "foolish," "crackpot," "a little off," etc., just as they were in their day. Even Christ was a "trouble-maker" to men in the religious world. But the trouble he caused we today accept as "the right" as opposed to "the wrong." And we wonder frequently how men could be so blind to His righteousness.

There is no Christ walking the earth today in a literal sense. But He does walk on earth, and will for some time to come, in the lives of men who accept Him. Faith is more than just saying "I believe." It reflects in everyday living a belief that living as closely as one can according to the revelation of God's Word is the one true way not only to eternal life but to earthly happiness. If one cannot think as he says he believes, then he does not truly believe.

Today's troublesome times are no different from those which have been experienced in the past by mankind. Conditions may differ, different people are involved, material appearances look different. But the whole picture is the same one that goes on continuously. How to face a problem is as much a problem today as it has been for a long, long time. How we approach that problem shows how much faith we have in God. Asking one's self "What would God have me do" is one thing. Doing what we answer is another. The more constant are men in obeying their better judgment, the more at peace they become, hence the more peaceful world there is. The lack of peace in the world today is but a penalty for the lack of constancy.

We wouldn't be in such a quandary today in these United States if, as a God-fearing nation, we faced our problems by acting according to the query, "What would God have us do," starting at each individual life and going on through our government up to national representatives and finally the president. Being practical is a poor excuse for doing other than what ought to be done; it is only a means of justifying an easier way. Doing what one ought to do itself involves practicality. If the strictest application of "giving to God" were to be chosen, it would probably be said that a perfect giver gives everything he earns or has to The Church. But God would not look upon this as a true expression of Christian giving because the giver would be ignoring all his responsibilities to his family, his community, his nation. All things must be considered in doing what ought to be done and practicality will have its part in what is done. But often a decision is made where being practical means that a moral duty or obligation has been by-passed to satisfy human nature.

Each day as we admonish a child to "wash your hands with soap," we show unbounded faith in the cleaning qualities of that small bar of bubbles and lather. There is no question but that the soap will wash away the dirt and the hands will be clean. Even if a stain remains on the fingers after a scrubbing, there is yet the knowledge that the hands are cleansed. To the Christian, evil is like the dirt on one's hands. Christ washes the dirt from life; the washing may not remove all the stain, but in time useful living will wear the stain of evil away. There is no guarantee that one washing will keep unceasing cleanliness; for evil can stain a life as quickly as life is made clean. But there is the faith, as in the bar of soap, that washing (the life of Christ) will make one clean.

Again, each day as we amonish a child to "wash your hands with soap," we show unbounded faith in the cleaning qualities of that small bar of bubbles and lather. Would that we showed the same faith in the soul-cleaning qualities of dedicated Christian living.

1. Indiana is 20th ☐ 14th ☐ 8th ☐ in the nation in manufacturing. Answer: 8th. Indiana ranks 8th among the 48 states in the value added by manufactured products.

2. Professional baseball can be played on Sunday mornings in Indiana. Answer: False. The law states that baseball and ice hockey may be played on Sunday only after 1:00 P.M., and it must be played at least 1,000 feet away from a church.

3. Right to Work Laws reduce wages. Answer: False. U. S. Department of Labor figures show that wages increase faster in Right to Work states than in states without such laws.

PICTURES OF THE WEEK

ATOMIC WAGON TRAIN — Longview, Texas — An electrically-powered scale model shows the features of a proposed rubber-tired train which would travel over a rough terrain, powered by a nuclear or a conventional engine. Its size is illustrated by the dump truck model alongside. The gigantic but nimble train could conceivably be operating within a year. Electric motors would be geared directly to all 52 of the train's 10-foot-high wheels, and a special steering arrangement would insure that the last car would follow in the tracks made by the first one.

THE EYES HAVE IT — London — To set off her emerald-green eyes, lovely Barbara Joyce, 23, picked a red rose from her London garden. Barbara thinks her eyes are her best feature and has insured them for $280,000, which should make the whole girl nearly as expensive as the national debt. Barbara stars on TV as the heroine of a mystery show.

SALINA, KANSAS — This wheat on the Allan Hocking farm near here all but hides two of Hocking's sons that were playing in the fields. Jimmy, 5, has to hang around brother Bruce's neck to keep from getting lost. Record yields are expected in the 1958 harvest.

TURKISH DELIGHT — Istanbul, Turkey — Lovely to look at, 19-year-old student Ezel Oleay displays the winning form that made her Beauty Queen in a contest sponsored by the Istanbul newspaper "Yenigasete."

SHOPPING FOR A FISH DINNER? — New York — Junior, a three-months-old kitten, at the Pet Show of the Boys' Club of New York, is interested in a bowl of tropical fish. Chances are that part of the latter exhibit will become fodder for the former if someone doesn't do something about it — but fast.

VOLUME LXXIII — ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. — Thursday, July 31, 1958 — NUMBER 30

Around the Town

With the Editor

Mrs. Buckingham is ill at the Sheehy Home in Butler. A little bird told me she would be very happy to hear from some of her friends from Saint Joe right now. A card will be good, but a visit - well, that would be tops.

Another bird told me that the local fire department appreciates the enthusiasm and help some of the boys want to offer when the truck pulls out of the station. But they're taking a chance.

The thing is, the fire department has insurance only on its members. If something should happen to a rider on the truck and he isn't officially a member of the department, there would be no insurance coverage for any injuries. That could be costly.

So, the department asks that only its members hop on the red wagon when she sallies forth in answer to a fire call.

—And it seems to me there is still a law on the books setting a distance of 500 feet as the minimum between the fire truck and anyone following in an automobile. At 50 miles per hour, it doesn't leave much time to act if a fireman slips off and a car is right behind.

Bill Hurni says that when he and the Mrs. became grandparents again recently, grandson David was quite pleased that it was a girl. If it had been another boy, David was definitely going to leave home. He's tired of getting beat up by his brothers.

Foster Gee brought in a radish what am a couple of weeks ago. I didn't measure it with a tape. But it was as big as my open hand - about as big as a good-size potato. He said that wasn't the only giant radish he has gotten from the Gee Garden.

—Me, I'm waiting for the tomatoes.

It pays to advertise.

Saturday morning already we had a call from Auburn for some of the home made ice cream from the crank freezers. Somebody had seen the ad in the Auburn papers. So, the lady came to the Lions social that evening with a portable cooler and got two quarts, we packed it in ice, and her husband, who is ar invalid and who was "just dying for some home made ice cream," got what he wanted.

There sure was a bunch of people in town that night. Some of them got to see old friends they hadn't seen in a long time.

—All those club reports will have to wait until next week's paper, I'm afraid.

Insulation Firm Starts Sept. 1

Richard Howey of Leo announced Monday of this week that he and George McCrory, also of Leo, will begin limited production of cellular fiber insullation at Saint Joe by September 1. Announcement of the new business venture came as work began on repairing and improving the building formerly used as a feed mill at the B&O railroad crossing at the east end of Saint Joe.

Mr. Howey, a former resident of Saint Joe, revealed that the firm began as "just one of those crazy ideas" that blossomed into serious consideration. The two men may yet receive a third person in the partnership and will require the services of another workman at the start of operations. Mr. Howey indicated that the firm may reach an employment of 8 persons when full production is reached.

The insulation to be manufactured at Saint Joe is made of pure cellulose pulp under a special process, chemically treated to resist fire and repel rodents. When production begins on a limited basis in September, output should be around 2 tons per day.

The name of the firm is Homac Products. Negotiations were completed recently with Roscoe Walter of Spencerville, owner of the building to be used in the manufacture of the insulating material, in which the firm obtained a lease on the building. Some of the facilities already present in the building can be used in the new enterprise and are being renovated.

New Service Station - Sp'ville

Workmen have begun dismantling the building housing the Spencerville Shell Service Station in preparation for the construction of a new building on the same site.

Plans have been in the making for some time to provide new facilities for Glenn Akey, manager of the station, and his staff. But actual work had been delayed until this week. By Wednesday the roof had all but disappeared from the old building, in adition to parts of the woodwork. A temporary office has been set up nearby to allow the firm to continue business without interruption.

It is expected that the old building will be completely dismantled by the end of this week. Construction of the new building should begin soon thereafter.

H. C. Borthwick Drives In Front Of Train. Killed

Howard Crosby Borthwick, 73, of near Saint Joe was fatally injured Monday afternoon when he drove his 1936 Chevrolet sedan into the path of a Wabash railroad freight train at a private crossing near his farm home. The accident occurred at 4:40 p.m. as Mr. Borthwick apparently failed to see the approaching train.

Injuries included a basal skull fracture, multiple fractures of the ribs and arms, and internal injuries. The victim was not thrown from the car, but the car rolled 80 feet down the railroad right of way, pushed by the north-bound train.

An ambulance rushed Mr. Borthwick to Souder Hospital in Auburn, but he was dead on arrival.

Mrs. Borthwick reported her husband had driven from their home across the tracks to feed 20 chickens they kept in buildings west of the crossing. He had finished feeding the chickens and was headed east back to his home when he drove into the path of the locomotive on the second section of a local Wabash freight, train no. 96. The train was traveling at a speed estimated at 40 miles per hour.

Mr. Borthwick was born on September 11, 1884, in Daleville, N. J., son of the late Menzo W. Borthwick and Emogene Jennings borthwick. He married Gertrude Winn on December 23, 1907, the couple observing their golden wedding anniversary last December.

The Borthwicks lived at Defiance, Ohio, and New Castle, Indiana, before moving to the Saint Joe community 44 years ago. Mr. Borthwick had studied at Defiance College and studied for the ministry. He was engaged as a carpenter in this community for many years.

Survivors include the widow; a daughter, Mrs. Pricilla Drummond of Columbia, Mo.; two sons, Howard Russell Borthwick of Camino, Cal., and Ronald L. Borthwick of Newark, O.; a sister, Miss Rozella Borthwick of Washington, D. C.; and 8 grandchildren. A sister and a brother preceded him in death.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the Saint Joe Church of Christ with James Beck, pastor of the church, officiating. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe.

Fishing Derby To - - - Nope, It's K.O.'d Again

Editor's Note or Bulletin or whatever you might call it—(Read the following with the knowledge that "something drastic" did happen and the Father and Son Fishing Derby has again been cancelled. The following item was written before an announcement came from a last-minute meeting Wednesday evening at which Derby officials decided to postpone the event until probably late in August. More rain has made river bank conditions unsuitable for staging the Derby. But keep the general idea of the following in mind for future reference.)

Unless something drastic weatherwise happens before Saturday, the Saint Joe Boy Scout and American Legion Father and Son Fishing Derby should be able to occur without more difficulties.

The derby was originally scheduled for the 12th of July. But with heavy rains in this section of the country, the Saint Joe River swelled and made it impractical to hold the derby with any amount of comfort. July 19 was the rain-out date; but the river was yet high enough to force cancellation to a later date. Enough time was then allowed to give the waters a chance to drop and Saturday, August 2, was set for the derby - and still is.

Lots of prizes will be given for the most fish, the biggest fish, the smallest fish, etc., etc., at the conclusion of the derby Saturday afternoon at 4:30. The derby starts Saturday morning at 4:30 a.m. and anglers can get an early start in seeking to win one of the prizes. A lunch is served at the end of the derby at Dills Bridge south of Saint Joe with entry in the derby and lunch for father and son all included in the price of $1.50 per team.

Over 20 prizes will be awarded to winning teams. Fathers and sons are invited to participate in this activity to enjoy the fun and fellowship. Men who happen to be son-less at the present time can obtain one for the derby as there is sure to be a surplus of boys in the area - as usual.

The boundaries of the contest are the Saint Joe River from the Ohio State Line to the Spencerville covered bridge. No fishing from boats is allowed.

John DePew Killed In 'Copter Crash

The body of Airman 2-C John H. DePew of R1, Auburn, was flown Monday to the Maguire Air Force Base in New Jersey along with four other servicemen killed Friday afternoon in the crash of a U.S. Air Force helicopter on the Greenland ice cap. The young man, son of William C. DePew of R1, Auburn, and Mrs. Orleva Funk of R1, Avilla, had written his family that he expected to be home on leave on August 4 for reassignment to an Air Force base in New Mexico. He planned to marry Miss Jessie Plummer of Waterloo while home on leave.

Airman DePew was born June 30 1936, in Butler Township south of Garrett. He attended Riverdale High School where he graduated in 1955. He was active in athletics, particularly basketball and softball.

In January of 1956 the young man enlisted for 4 years in the U. S. Air Force. He lived with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaiah DePew, before his entry into service. He served in Texas and Massachusetts before his assignment to Thule AFB in August of 1957.

The helicopter in which the five servicemen were riding was attached to an air rescue squadron and was on a routine mission when it vanished in a cloud bank and crashed. The craft was last seen in the air by a sister ship from the 55th Air Rescue squadron. It had also been in radio communication before disappearing into the clouds.

The Thule base is on the northwest coast of Greenland.

Survivors in addition to the parents and paternal grandparents, are 3 brothers, James, Charles and Robert, all of Auburn, 5 half-brothers and four half-sisters.

Connie Fisher Is Graduate Nurse

Dr. N. H. Gladstone was the principal speaker for commencement exercises of the Parkview-Methodist School of Nursing on Sunday, July 27. Graduation services were held at the Wayne Street Methodist Church in Fort Wayne at 3 p. m.

Among the 45 students who successfully completed three years of nursing education was Miss Constance Lee Fisher of Saint Joe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lenard Fisher. Miss Fisher is now eligible to take state board examinatons to become a registered nurse.

The Development Of Communism

by Vickie Crow

World War I had a great deal to do with the communist rise to power in Russia. After the Third Balkan Crisis, Austria-Hungary declared war against Serbia. This brought Russia into the war. Russia considered herself the protector of the Balkan countries against any aggressor. Russia suffered greatly during the war; many of the Russian men were killed. The Russian people were very restless because of this situation. In 1917 a revolution took place, and the Russian czar, Nicolas II, was overthrown. The Menshevik party gained control and a type of dictatorship was set up. The leader of the Menshevik party, Alexander Kerensky, became the head of the government. The Menshevik party wanted to continue fighting the war. The majority of the Russian people wanted peace. The Bolshevik party wanted Russia to get out of the war. Therefore, the majority of the people favored the Bolshevik party. In the October Revolution of 1917, the Bolshevik party was able to seize power. The man who then came into power was the man who led the Bolshevik party, Vladimir Lenin.

Vladimir Lenin was born in 1870 in Russia. At that time Russia was ruled by Alexander II. Alexander II had believed in liberalism when he first came to the throne. He had issued the Emancipation Law in 1861 which freed the serfs and gave them more liberties. He had tried to reform the Russian government. Two years later there had been a series of revolts. Given a few liberties, the peasants now wanted complete independence. Alexander II suppressed these revolts and set up an absolute monarchy. Many liberties were taken away from the peasant. Alexander II believed that liberalism encouraged revolts.

By the time Lenin was born life in Russian was well controlled by the czar. As Lenin grew, he probably constantly heard talks of revolution. Lenin was probably spurred to revolt partially due to the atmosphere in which he lived while he was young.

In 1881 Alexander II was killed by a bomb that was thrown into his carriage. Alexander III came to the throne. He was an individual who believed in absolute monarchy. He had a secret police system which helped to keep down any revolutionary activities. Lenin had a brother who was active in a group which was planning to assassinate Alexander III. This plot was discovered; Lenin's brother was hanged. This incident probably was a deciding factor if Lenin was debating whether or not to take part in any revolutionary movement.

Lenin began to read some of the works of Karl Marx. He became very interested in the new ideas which communism had to offer. Lenin joined an underground movement in 1893 called the Russian Marxists. Lenin was arrested for belonging to a revolutionary movement that was trying to overthrow the government of the czar. He was sent to Siberia in exile. He was quite bitter about this. That incident probably made him more anxious than ever for a revolution. After he was released from exile, he traveled and wrote about the need for a revolution. He became a leading figure in the Russian Social Democratic Labor Party. When that party split into two main groups, he became the leader of the Bolshevik group. After Lenin defeated Kerensky, the leader of the Menshevik party, in a stuggle for power, he became the dictator of Russia.

Lenin's main contribution to Marx's theory of communism was putting it into practice. He helped to spur the revolt which set up communism in Russia. Lenin started Marx's ideal society.

Lenin had a few ideas of his own which he thought should be developed for the good of communism. Marx had advocated that capitalism should be overthrown. Lenin agreed with this. He believed one way to spark revolts was by propagandizing organizations in the capitalistic society. He said that a closely knit party should be formed whose main function would be to infiltrate schools, churches, clubs, political parties, labor movements, etc. For this purpose Lenin helped to organize the Communist Party.

In 1924 Lenin died. A struggle for power then began. Yosif Visarionovitch Dzhugashvili Stalin finally emerged as dictator.

Sgt. Walters A Prisoner

T-Sgt. Chalmer Walters of Spencerville is among 43 American Air Force personnel who are being held in "protective custody" during the uprising in Iraq which began on July 14.

The group of Americans include 5 officers and 38 men who flew to Habbaniyah, Iraq, June 17 to train Iraqis in the use and servicing of F86F sabre-jets.

When the uprising occurred, the Americans suddenly found themselves restricted to the local area of the huge air base, surrounded by Iraqi guards.

More than 1,100 British Royal Air Force personnel and families also are confined to the base, a huge sprawling air field in the desert about 55 miles west of Baghdad.

The RAF continued to operate a section of the airfield as a communications and staging post after the British withdrawal from neighboring Jordan two years ago.

The Americans came to the base under a U.S. agreement with the former administration of King Faisal, who was killed in the July 14 revolt. Under Faisal, Iraq was a key member of the anti-communist Baghdad pact. The new government is expected to leave the alliance made up of Britain, Turkey, Pakistan and Iran.

The Americans have not been harmed and there have been no serious incidents with the Iraqis, United Press International reported.

Sgt. Walters is the son of Henry Walters of Spencerville and Mrs. Mary Walters of Hicksville. He has been in the U. S. armed services for 11 years.

GUARDING FREEDOM

Lesson for August 3, 1958

An old prisoner named John came into the warden's office at the penitentiary. "Why don't you ask for a parole," asked the warden for this was a model prisoner. John said he was not interested. All his people were dead by that time, and most of his friends. No job could be had on the outside. John had no use for a freedom that meant no more than the privilege of starving to death.

Freedom that is nothing but taking off the chains, opening a gate, freedom that is only never hearing the words "You must" — without ever feeling "I can"; this is freedom nobody wants.

Freedom Is Basic

This should be particularly interesting to Christians; for freedom is at the very center of the Christian life. Christ has set us free for freedom, Paul writes. But Christian freedom does not mean that we can now do whatever we like. Freedom does not mean we are never under orders. It does not mean we should never accept any man's authority. It does not mean that we shall run around, each man working out his own little rebellion. A Christian can take orders from other people, and if he is in a subordinate position (as most of us are to somebody) it is usually his Christian duty to take orders and to carry them out as best he can.

Christian freedom means that whatever other authorities have the right to tell us what to do and what not to do, our topmost authority is God. Christian freedom means that we have no right to consent to, or to obey any brand or sort of tyrant or dictator who sets himself up as final judge and controller of other men. Christian freedom means that when a man, or men, ask us or order us to do what we know is contrary to the will of God, we have to say as Peter and John did to the police court in Jerusalem, we must obey God rather than men.

The Price of Liberty

"Eternal vigilance," our revolutionary ancestors said, "is the price of liberty." That is to say, freedom always has to be guarded. Let us give a thought to two enemies of Christian freedom, one outside us, one inside.

One is the state or the community around us. This turns out to be an enemy of freedom when a Christian is discouraged or prevented from speaking out in any way which might seem to criticize the community or the state That was what got Amos into trouble. The chief priest warned him not to preach any more there in Bethel: "It is the king's sanctuary, and it is a temple of the kingdom," he said. In other words, the church belonged to the king and the king could not be criticized, much less condemned. The Lord had commanded him to speak, not the king, and he insisted on being heard. So in our time there are people in politics and out who say that ministers have no business criticizing the government or the "American way of life." True ministers know their call is from God, not the government, not any other organization whatever. In Atlanta, Georgia, a group of ministers put out a statement condemning segregation as practiced there. If they had thought of the state, or the public in general, as their authority, they never would have dared open their mouths.

Threat From Within

More subtle than attack from without is the attack on freedom from within. There are in our country far more persons who are slaves to their own sins than persons who are slaves (in body or mind) to the state. Christian freedom is a precious thing, because freedom is what makes the difference between ourselves and the lower animals. If a man lets himself drift into sin far enough, he reaches a point of no return, like a man in a rowboat floating down toward Niagara Falls. When a man forges his own chains, he may even admire the chains as his own handiwork. But a man who cannot and dare not say NO to himself has failed to guard his freedom against his worst enemy—himself.

Jackson Twp. Gets Invitation From Riverdale

The Jackson Township trustee and advisory board and other interested persons have been meeting with Auburn school officials regarding the possible consolidation of the township's school system with that in Auburn. 50 persons attended a recent meeting in the Maggimis school with an apparent majority favoring a consolidation proposal joining Jackson Township with the Auburn school system. No official decision was reached at the meeting.

Jackson Township has been a hotbed of school discussion for some time with factions favoring this or that action apparently on the basis of geographic location. Many students from the eastern section of the township attend Riverdale schools. However, there are a number from the south section who attend Leo, in addition to those to the west who go to Auburn.

That every avenue of solution might be evident, the Riverdale school board adopted a resolution on July 7, 1958, which reads as follows and has been delivered to the proper officials:

"July 7, 1958

"To: Jackson Township Trustee and Advisory Board

"The following resolution has been adopted by the Riverdale School Board of DeKalb County, Indiana:

"BE IT RESOLVED that the Riverdale School Board of DeKalb County, Indiana requests that the Jackson Township Trustee and his Advisory Board be invited to attend a meeting with the Riverdale School Board before taking any action concerning any consolidation at any time. There are over 80 students attending school at the Riverdale School Corporation from Jackson Township and said school corporation has a definite interest in said students of Jackson Township and the area from which they come in that corporation.

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Riverdale School Board is interested in the above numbered students so they are able to make their budgets accurately and make all arrangements for the education of their own resident students as well as the students received into the corporation from Jackson Township.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Hull were July 20 guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hull.

Oh-h-h, That Ice Cream

The main stem was jammed last Saturday night, a rare sight in little old Saint Joe these days, as scores of people came to enjoy the ice cream social sponsored by the Saint Joe Lions Club.

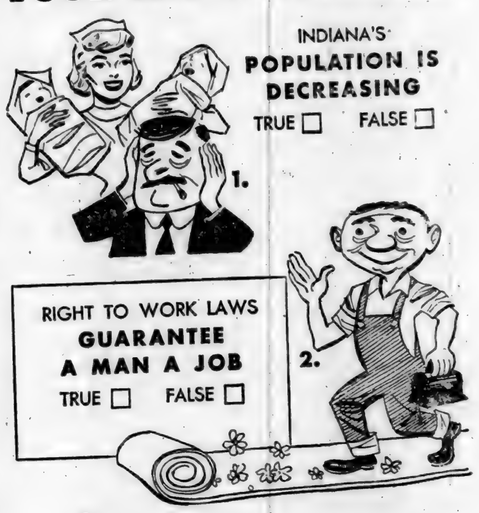
The social was slated to begin at 5 p.m., but there were few on hand to be served before 5:30 arrived. It appeared it might be a slow evening at first but the crowd swelled by 6:30 p.m. and remained fairly constant for the next two and one-half hours.

The big attraction was the ice cream made on the spot by members of the Lions Club and their wives. The women prepared the mix and the men cranked the old-fashioned freezers to produce genuine home-made ice cream. And evidently it was good; the men had to crank out something like 71 gallons!

The weatherman was good that day, presenting a perfect evening for a social. And the night before several townsmen had helped to fog the town in an effort the eliminate the discomfort of mosquitoes. Their effort was successful.

All in all, everything was perfect to provide the Lions Club an opportunity to raise a little over $200 with which to carry on its community service activities.

YOUR JOB IN INDIANA



1. Indiana's population is decreasing. Answer: False. Indiana's estimated 1957 population was 4,533,000, which places it 10th in the United States. Indiana's population in 1950 was 3,934,224, which was 12th in the union.

2. Right to Work Laws Guarantee a man a job. Answer: False. Right to Work Laws create no new rights. Instead, these laws protect a person's fundamental right to work without having to join a union against his will.

Group Seeks To Nullify Action In Sale Of Sp'ville Gym

A group of Spencer Township citizens are attempting to uncover records, if any, of transactions involving the transfer of title to the community building and gymnasium which was sold recently by the Riverdale school board to Argil Richmond of Saint Joe. The building was sold for $675.00. The investigating group seeks to establish any previous transfers of the property.

The group undertaking the investigation is doing so because of the desire to make use of the building as a youth center. The Community Club, which was organized in Spencerville in the past year, submitted bids of $25 on two occasions when the school board was considering the sale of the building. Members of the group are continuing their search for records of any transactions because of the questionable legal authority of the board to sell the property.

Legal counsel is being obtained from two sources, one from Auburn and another from Washington, D.C., in the effort to clarify the situation. Bids were asked for by legal notice published last April by the school board. At the meeting held May 5, one bid of $300 by Dan Ransom of Spencerville was received, in addition to the bid of $25 by the Spencerville Community Club. Mr. Ransom had indicated his willingness to withdraw his bid in favor of the club and while he was sought that evening to bring offiical notice of his withdrawal, a change in plans was reportedly made and both bids were rejected. It was announced that bids would again be taken on June 2. At that time several bids were received and the building was sold to Mr. Richmond for the high bid of $675.00.

Since the representatives of the club had acted in good faith and reportedly followed the suggestion of the board that they bid the amount of $25.00, only to have the property sold to a private owner with questionable authority to do so, they undertook the present investigation in hopes of establishing the proper legal ownership or trusteeship of the property.

In recent years the property had been considered the responsibility of the township school system. With the consolidation of Concord, Spencer and Newville townships into the Riverdale School Corporation, the schol board assumed the liabilities arising out of use of the Spencerville building. The decision was then made to dispose of the property.

Play-offs Start

Church League play-offs began Monday night with Coburntown defeating Newville Church of Christ 11-7. Tuesday's game between Saint Joe Lutheran and Mt. Pleasant was rained out and will be played Saturday night.

Other play-off games include:

Friday—Meese - Rehobeth - Concord vs. Spencerville Lutheran.

Monday—Saint Joe Church of Christ vs. Newville E.U.B.

VIENNA DOLL, 1866-1958

Vienna L. Doll, daughter of Solomon and Esther Shilling, was born December 12, 1866, and departed this life July 13, 1958. She lived her entire life in DeKalb County. She was the last of a family of 11 children.

Mrs. Doll was united in marriage to John R. Doll of Canton, Ohio, on December 24, 1895. To this union were born four children, John, Jr., who died in infancy, and the following who survive Mrs. Doll: Esther K. Fitch of near Garrett, George R. Doll of Spencerville and Alice Josephine Clark of Fort Wayne.

Other survivors are seven grandchildren, seventeen great-grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

During the last 50 years of her life, she was a member of St. Peter's Lutheran Church in Spencerville, having transferred there from the Concord Methodist Church which she had joined as a young girl.

Although illness prevented church attendance the past seven years, her faith and trust in God and her church never weakened. After a life of more than 91 years, God called her to her reward.

LEGAL NOTICE

To the Taxpayers of Riverdale School Corporation, DeKalb County, Indiana, you are hereby notified that upon the 7th day of July, 1958, that the Board of School Trustees of the Riverdale School Corporation, DeKalb County, Indiana, by resolution duly adopted and pursuant to notice therefore given and under and by virtue of Chapter 57 of the Acts of the 84th General Assembly of the State of Indiana, approved February 27, 1945, as amended, duly adopted a plan whereby a Cumulative Building Fund be provided for the erection, construction, purchase and remodeling of school buildings for classroom purposes, purchase of real estate and equipment for new buildings for classroom purposes and the payment of rentals for renting or leasing of real estate for school buildings for classroom purposes, and the levying of an additional tax in said school unit, and that such a fund be provided for by a tax levy of 80 cents on each $100.00 of assessed valuation on all property in that taxing district taxable for such purposes, such tax to be assessed beginning with the levy for 1958 payable in 1959 and annually thereafter for a total period of 12 years as provided by said Act. Final approval of the aforementioned resolution by the State Board of Tax Commissioners will invalidate any previous tax rate which has heretofore been approved for this purpose.

That pursuant to said Act, any ten or more taxpayers in the taxing district of Riverdale School Corporation, DeKalb County, Indiana, other than those who pay poll tax only, may file a petition with the County Auditor of DeKalb County, Indiana, not later than ten days after this publication, setting forth their objections to such proposed levy. Upon filing of such petition said Auditor will immediately certify same to the State Board of Tax Commissioners.

Mary Wilder Writes From France

Mary Wilder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lehr Wilder, is spending the summer in Europe as an exchange student. A recent letter from her gives an insight into French farm life, and portions of her interesting letter are printed herewith for the enjoyment of News readers. The letter was written July 23 to the Wilder family at Saint Joe.

"Last week in my third home, we made hay nearly every day. They were a winderful family. There were eleven at home (including the parents), one married, and two in the service. One boy spoke very good English. Three of the children were about my age and we had a wonderful time together. The first night I arrived, we went to town to celebrate Bastille Day. They had fireworks, and we danced in the village square. It was 2:00 in the morning when we got home.

I rode on a motorcycle for the first time when we visited the plastic factory where the married daughter worked. They gave us a complete tour from the time they started to make plastic from cotton till they wrapped the finished product, which was dolls of all sizes. My host brother translated and it was really interesting.

"We all went to the mountains to pick raspberries for jelly. I have never seen so many raspberry bushes in all my life. . . .

"My family got a big kick out of seeing me in blue jeans and a sweat shirt. I never wear them unless other girls in the family are wearing slacks. In my first family we always wore slacks to do chores. In my second home I never wore them, and in my third home I just wore them to pick the raspberries.

"Things are quite different in my fourth home. It is the first place I have been where the girls worked in town rather than on the farm. I am left at home with the parents who are about the same age as you, Daddy and Mother, but physically they are the age of Grandpa and Grandma. The married son does the farming with the help of a hired man (I guess he is about 19 or 20). Both of these families have apartments in the same big house with my family. There is also another family living here in the house for a months vacation. The man is a tax collector for the government. They have two sons (about 15 and 11) that speak good English and the father speaks fairly good English. My host family does not have a car, but this family does. We are living about six miles from Switzerland, and they have taken me there twice this week. We visited Geneva and the big lake that is there. They say that there are more flowers in Switzerland than in France. You see window boxes of flowers in about every window plus many flower gardens. There are many tourists in Geneva and you often hear people speaking English. We went window shopping and in some shops they have the prices posted in American money too. As you might guess, there are many jewelry stores selling the famous Swiss watches and clocks. I saw watches in the form of rings, pins, tie clasps, key rings, necklaces, and the usual bracelet style.

" I have been mountain climbing a couple of times and think that I got some good pictures. You often see boy scouts camped in the mountains near here and the cows are daily sent to the mountains to graze. I go to sleep and wake up to the sound of cow bells.

"My present home is in the village of Vesancy. It is just a few kilometers from Divonne which is well known for its 'health baths.' The lady who is here on vacation takes one every day. I don't know what they claim to heal.

"Believe it or not, my host family has a bath room. It is the first one I have seen since I left Paris and the first bathtub I have seen since I left Montreal.

"I guess the thing that has bothered me most in France is the flies. I haven't seen a single screen door or window. Some of the families attempt to keep the flie out, but others don't seem to care. They hang blankets in the doorways or sometimes long colored strips of plastic. There are a few of those filthy fly strips around, but I haven't seen any fly spray used.

"There has been a lot of rain here this week - nearly every day - and when it rains, it is cold. My sweaters really feel good.

"I have worn a hole in the bottom of my black flats from walking so much, so I must soon buy a new pair. They are not worth repairing. I have spent very little money here, but I have had very little chance to spend it.

"This week end (July 26-27) I will be moving to a different department, but I don't know where. The office of the Cercle de Jenue (the young people's organization that has charge of us here) is very slow in passing out information. I never know when or where I am going until the last minute. Since I have been here, I have averaged one train ride a week. It is very tiring! The train service is very good here, and they always run on schedule. Many people use them because if the distance is too great for a bicycle, then they must go by train.

"I saw quite a few big American cars in Geneva, Switzerland. They just barely fit into the tiny parking spaces! There are very few parking meters around here, and they are quite a novelty for the French people.

"Last night a French family visited me that had spent nine years in the States. The man was an engineer in New York City. It was very interesting to talk to them. They said that they missed America very much.

"Yesterday, we stopped at a Shell Service Station in Switzerland. They REALLY give service! After you buy gas, the attendant goes out to the street and signals when it is safe for you to drive out. One night this week we went to an outdoor theater to hear the favorite French singer of the young people. He did his share of wiggling around, too.

"I hear quite a bit of America's music here. In fact, at the dance I spoke of earlier they played 'Jail House Rock' and 'Rock Around the Clock.' I was not too proud of our music. They played about six in a row, and the boys made me dance every one. I was really out of breath. . . ."

Water Safety Demonstration

The DeKalb County Red Cross has announced that a water safety demonstration will be conducted Monday, August 11, at 7 p.m. at the Garrett swimming pool.

Boy Scouts of American Legion Troop 161, joined by Red Cross water safety personnel, will demonstrate methods of water rescue. A row boat and canoe will be afloat in the pool. Under the guidance of Scout Leader Gordon Velpel, DeKalb County Red Cross first aid chairman Leroy Close and Fort Wayne Red Cross safety service chairman L. D. Klopfenstein, the Scouts will demonstrate rescue by safe methods.

Lines (ropes), floats and life preservers will be used. The boys will show how to give needed assistance in water without getting wet.

All county residents are invited to the Garrett pool for this timely show of water safety, a performance of vital interest to everyone.

Riverdale Tax Up 56c

Riverdale School Corporation, which includes Concord, Spencer and Newville townships, leads the list of taxing units which will show an increase in levies over 1958. The proposed rate for Riverdale is $3.12, 56 cents over the $2.56 rate for 1958. Eight townships in DeKalb County show an increase for 1959 with 5 taxing units able to make reductions.

The proposed rate of $3.12 for Riverdale includes a raise from 50 cents to 80 cents of the cumulative building fund levy. Increases in teachers pay accounts for an additional 17 cents' increase with the remaining 9 cents coming in general operating cost increases.

The proposed Riverdale tuition rate of $1.29 will raise an estimated $51,543. The proposed $1.03 special school levy will raise an estimated $41,436. The budget shows $124,892 to be raised by direct taxation in the three townships. The total budget estimate for operation of the schools is $197,400.

Jackson Township's proposed rate increased 18 cents to $2.56. That compares with a levy this year of $2.38. A high operating balance kept down the proposed increase despite a jump of $10,000 in transfer tuition.

The budget calls for $1.22 tuition rate, $1.22 for special schools, 2 cents for fire fighting and 10 cents for the township levy.

In two townships, Spencer and Newville, the rate is the same. The Newville Township levy is proposed at 30 cents with the Spencer Township levy at 14 cents.

In Concord Township, a 1-cent boost in the rate to a total of 21 cents is proposed. The proposed levy does not include the poor levy which last year was 18 cents. Next year's township rate is proposed at 11 cents compared with 7 cents this year. The rate for fire protection, 13 cents in 1958, is proposed at 10 cents for 1959.

Candidate For Queen Seeks Votes

Charlotte Coburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coburn of near Saint Joe, began her campaign for votes last week in the popularity contest being sponsored by the Beta Sigma Phi Cultural Sorority, Xi Beta Beta Kappa and Epsilon Epsilon chapters of Auburn. Miss Coburn has distributed posters and cannisters in business establishments in this area so that local residents may cast their "votes" for her by their contributions placed in the cannisters.

Money received from donations placed in the cannisters will be given to the Wee Haven School for Retarded Children, located at Garrett, after prizes and expenses have been allowed.

Sixteen girls are participating in the popularity contest. The one receiving the most "votes" at a penny a vote will be crowned queen on Friday evening, September 26, at 8 p. m. at the DeKalb County Fair. The candidates will ride in the opening parade with their sponsors on the evening of Tuesday, September 23. On Saturday, all the candidates will ride on a decorated float of the contest sponsors.

The queen will receive a prize of $100, the first princess $75 and the second princess $25.

The complete list of candidates and sponsors is as follows:

Charlotte Coburn, Saint Joe, Saint Joe Lions Club.
Linda Bailey, Leo, Rieke Metal Products Corp.
Susan E. Bashore, Auburn, Auburn Jaycees.

Fogger Brings Comfort To Saint Joe'ers

The battle against the mosquito is being staged at Saint Joe this summer as the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department continues to make frequent use of the fogging machine purchased last summer. Several foggings have been made in the past few weeks with results varying according to weather conditions which follow the foggings.

In addition to the possibility of little help from fogging due to the weatherman's whims, there has entered another problem in the form of a new, or seemingly new, specie of mosquito which at first sight appears capable of carrying off its intended victim. This new variety is several times larger than those in abundance locally for the past several years. And the formidable appearance of their size is enhanced by the presence of stripes on their legs, which gives the impression that one is being bitten by a "tiger" mosquito. These new king-size jobs are not Saint Joe's exclusive property, there being reports of their presence in other localities.

Generally speaking, the results of the foggings have been good and Saint Joe townspeople are able to carry on their normal activities in far better state of mind than those people living in areas where no means of combating the insects on a large scale is available. And the men who carry out the fogging operations are carrying on a welcome public service for the town.

Foggings are usually spur of the moment operations, with Babe Coburn, Mose Yeiser or Andy Monroe keeping an eye open for a calm evening. Then three or four men are located to act as traffic controls to warn motorists passing thru the town of the possibility of heavy fog. A barrel of compound is prepared, 35 gallons of oil seal and 15 gallons of DDT chemical compound. The pick-up truck carrying the fogger and compound then slowly winds its way through the streets and alleyings taking a route that will lay the most effective blanket of fog. A slight movement of air is best because it carries the fog slowly across the local area, settling for long periods of time in those places which are sheltered. In this way the full insect-killing effect of the fog is achieved. Though the fog is harmful to insects, the combination of liquids used by the local unit is not harmful to human beings.

About two hours is required in making a full and thorough fogging of Saint Joe. Thus, with time required in making preparations for the job plus actual fogging, the men behind the machine and the flagmen give two to three hours of their time with each application.

In some towns it has been reported that the mosquitoes have built up a resistance to the DDT compounds used. In those cases, a new formula has been put in use. Perhaps in a year or so Saint Joe will find itself facing immune biters and will have to find a new combination with which to fog. Only time will tell.

For those who may have forgotten, the fogging machine was purchased in the spring of 1957 when Saint Joe residents subscribed over $800 in only two weeks to help pay for the machine. The total cost w as around $1300 with the balance plus the cost of the chemicals needed in operating the machine covered by an appropriation in the budget of the town of Saint Joe.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

On Wednesday evening, July 2, the Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Carl Carpenter.

Committee for the evening was Mrs. Carl Carpenter, Mrs. Stanley Means and Mrs. Carl Sipe.

The president called the meeting to order and the collect was repeated in unison.

Fourteen members responded to roll call and Mrs. Perry Jump of Hicksville was a guest.

Mrs. Harvey Carr was voted in as a member of the club.

After a short business meeting, the committee conducted entertainmnet. The club then adjourned and delicious refreshments were served buffet style.

WORKERS NOT SHIRKERS 4-H CLUB

The 11th meeting of the Workers Not Shirkers 4-H Club was held July 7 at the Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. Meeting was called to order by the president, Esther Fetters. The pledges were given.

Roll call was given by "are you completed." Two songs were sung. Old and new business was discussed.

Everyone judged Judy Impton's tea wing.

The meeting was adjourned.

The 12th meeting was held July 14 in the Lutheran Church basement. The meeting was called to order by the president. Pledges were given. Old and new business was discussed. Demonstration was given by Joan Vinson on chocolate float. Peggy Chapman's chocolate chip cookies were judged. Refreshments were enjoyed by all after which the meeting adjourned.

GOVERNMENT

Lesson for August 10, 1958

When a preacher tells the truth about liquor from the pulpit, that isn't news. But when a preacher in a New Jersey church took out a bottle of liquor from the pulpit, and told his congregation where he got it, that was news. It was a college town and there were laws closely regulating the sale of liquor, only the police paid little attention to the laws and the public paid rather less. Preachers aren't supposed to know where illicit liquor can be had; but this one did. He made things so hot for the police department that finally he was offered the job of mayor—and he took it. His congregation gave him a leave of absence, and he went to work trying to get the laws enforced. His enemies made it hard for him. He himself was "tailed" (as the detective stories put it) day and night; if he drove one mile above the legal speed limit, some policeman was right there to give him a ticket. But he outlived the embarrassments and he outfought the underworld and he showed that you can have good government if you want it. And then he went back to his preaching People listened more than they used to, for now they knew this was a man.

Politics and Religion

A vice president of the United States stepped off the train in a big city. Even a vice president rates at least one reporter, and so there was one there. He asked the V.P. his views on a matter in the public eye at the time, but the high offical did not oblige. "I came here," he said, "to speak to a men's Bible class. Politics and religion don't mix." "Politics and religion don't mix" is what every shady character in or on the fringe of politics would like us all to believe. Men who view public office as a chance to build up their private fortunes are only to glad if the church people will look the other way. Religion that is worth anything, religion that resembles and is drawn from the religion of the Bible, is interested in political questions. We cannot escape from government of some kind.

Eyes To See

Norman Thomas, a Presbyterian who was a sort of perpetual and never successful candidate for President, years ago, was talking to a room full of students for the ministry. "Don't use your pulpit for a political platform," he said. "If you feel called and impelled to go into politics, get out of the ministry at least for the time being, and do your fighting in the political arena." Mr Thomas was warning against a real danger. It is true that what a minister is trying to do, and the way he tries to do it, are different from what (let us say) a good congressman is trying to do and the way he tries to do it. It is also true that most ministers are not trained in political science and still less fitted for the sort of scramble that most legislative bodies are. Nevertheless, the minister, and the church generally, ought to be able to see the moral issues involved in public affairs, problems and decisions, Most "political" questions, local or national, affect human beings; and whatever affects human beings is a concern for all Christians.

In There Fighting

The church, as an organization, should never turn itself into a political pressure group. A church no better than a political party need not be surprised if it receives no more respect than a political party. Nevertheless Christian people, helped by their ministers and their churches, ought to be, and are, in there fighting for better government, juster laws, better law enforcement. In our Congress and Senate there are many convinced and committed Christians. At a great Christian men's convention last year the most effective speaker (many believed) was none of the visiting spell-binding preachers, but the Christian governor of the state. Every branch of government can use, and sorely needs, Christian men who will try to apply in public affairs the sturdy faith that is in them.

Word from the W. E. Wengers of Roachdale, Ind., states that their son, John, is employed at Brownsbury Bank near Indianapolis, while Billy is at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., for 2 weeks in the Army Reserve Camp. Billy will be a senior this year in high school.

Mr. Roscoe Garman was released from Souder Hospital Monday and is recuperating at his home south of Spencerville.

The Willing Workers Class of St. Peter's Lutheran Sunday School met last Sunday in the church basement with Miss Gaylon Markle as hostess for a potluck dinner.

The Spencer Township Home Demonstration Club met July 9 at Alton Park, entertaining the 4-H club with a pot luck dinner. The meeting was called to order by Nellie Allen. Each 4-H girl told her name and her father's name. The creed was led by Elizabeth Stemen. Devotions were led by Eleanor Crothers. Several songs were sung by all. Roll call was "childhood ambition." The reading of the minutes of the last meeting was followed by the treasurer's report given by Eleanor Crothers. The club prayer was sung by all. There were 17 members, 14 4-H girls and 5 children present. The next meeting will be with Winifred Hart.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Edd.

Please put in your newspaper.

Ask the Public of Riverdale School.

If they don't think the way people are laid off of their jobs and farm crops poor as they were last year taxes are high enough now. They gave teachers more pay they got along before why can't they now. We haft to

I think instead of adding on taxes they better lower them eighty cents might help someone else. Pay for your trouble Thanks.

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

You will find enclosed my check for $2.00 to cover my subscription for 1958. . .

I have enjoyed the news and the editorials. . .

My congratulations for your recent BETRAYED. And for your policy of recognition of young people and their accomplishments in the community. The series by Vickie Crow, THE DEVELOPMENT OF COMMUNISM, is a timely example of the great value to the area that a far sighted Editor can give.

Sincerely,
Della Kryder,
Mrs. Harold Kryder,
R2, Grabill, Indiana

Mrs. Kryder enclosed a page from the Orlando (Fla.) Sentinel, June 8, 1958, on which the newspaper pictured the entire graduating class with their major subjects in high school and the type of work which each preferred, noting that 'the 34 graduates pictured on this page have expressed the desire to work in the Winter Park - Orlando area." The full page ad was sponsored by the American Fire and Casualty Co. which pointed out that the education of the 34 represented a sizable investment by the taxpayer and that it is a way to protect that investment by considering the graduates' qualifications and fitting them into local business enterprises.

Other letters in recent weeks include one from Ralph Baughman who is now serving Uncle Sam in the Air Force. Ralph says he appreciates receiving The News — and we are happy to send it. Another service letter came from Ted Hollabaugh and Hank Markle who are now back home becoming accustomed to the rigors of civilian life.

Two letters of thanks came several weeks ago from Clifford B. Ward and Sen. William Jenner in appreciation for our editorial comment on the Senator's political position. Another letter, from Philip Willkie, would serve its best purpose in its entirety. So we will present it next week.

Insure your vacation fun

... phone ahead and be safe
... phone home and be serene

Make sure the "No Vacancy" sign doesn't apply to you when you reach your chosen vacation spot. A phone call ahead will take care of it.

And—when you're there—phone back home regularly. That's the way to have peace of mind and to keep your finger on things.

So have fun and a good rest. Your telephone will help you both ways!

Big Fish -?

Oh-h-h-h-h, there'll surely be some giant fish caught in the Father and Son Fishing Derby in a few weeks. With this waiting around for the weather to dry up a little, it gives those fish a chance to fatten up in time for the Saint Joe Boy Scout and American Legion sponsored event.

It looked for sure like last week was going to be the week. But rain came again and upset all the plans. The derby will be held late in August or in early September.

Fathers and sons will have a chance to show their fish-catching ability from 4:30 in the morning until 4:30 in the afternoon on the date to be set for the contest. The Saint Joe River is the site of the derby with the boundaries being the Ohio state line and the covered bridge at Spencerville. No fishing from boats is allowed, but if anyone wants to wade in after 'em, they can. Most likely method seems to be to settle under a shady tree in a comfortable chair with a good supply of refreshments and mosquito dope on hand. (This is fishing?).

Lots of prizes will be given away at the conclusion of the derby. A lunch of hot dogs, potato chips and beverage will be served at Dills Bridge also at the conclusion of the contest time. It takes only $1.50 for both father and son to enter the derby, and the price includes the lunch for both.

Tickets are obtainable from Boy Scouts.

NEWVILLE TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Newville Township Home Demonstration Club gathered at the noon hour July 9 for a picnic lunch and their regular meeting at the club house. 27 members, 9 children and 2 guests were present. The guests were Mrs. Mary Asbury and Miss Eileen Laux.

After a delightful lunch, the president, Lois Guiff, called the meeting to order with the club repeating the club collect.

Devotions were given by Mrs. Daisy Roberts. Song leader Edna Mickelson led the singing of the hymn "Abide With Me", followed by the song of the month, "On the Banks of the Wabash."

Roll was then called, followed by the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting which were approved.

The lesson on club program planning was then given by Edna Mickelson. The trip committee then reported on the plans for the trip to Toledo on July 30. Collections were then taken. Mrs. Dorothy Meek contributed to the birthday box.

The social hour was in charge of Elva Hook, Marie Buckio and Ida Brush. The meeting was adjourned with the singing of the club prayer song. Hostesses for the meeting were Della McDonald, Elva Hook substituting for Mrs. Gladys Impton, and Kathryn Krieg.

The next meeting will be August 13 at the home of Mrs. Daisy Roberts in Saint Joe with Mrs. Mary Guthrie and Mrs. Berniece Miller as co-hostesses.

A white elephant gift exchange will highlight this meeting.

Around the Town

With the Editor

We had another one of those colorful sunsets Thursday—you know, the kind that accompanies a sort of yellow cast in the sky. It gives everything so much more color, like looking at the world through yellow-tinted sunglasses.

A bird tells us that Bill Vinson was one who thought of giving Elizabeth Milliman a hand with her housepainting. I guess Bill thought better use could be made of Saturday afternoons by some of our men-about-town, and Elizabeth's house got a coat of paint—or as much as is possible what with this lousy painting weather this summer.

I couldn't figure out who those girls were Saturday morning—they came out of Jackson's as I came out the back door at home, and they stared at me, and I stared at them. When I got a closer look I found out it was the Shuffs, back in Saint Joe from Arizona.

Jesse Loftus stops in every so often. He did this week to point out that Wednesday marked his 85th birthday. Like Old Man River, Jesse just keeps rolling along.

What a catastrophe—imagine a Cub fan going to Chicago and not seeing the Cubs play.

We went to Chicago Sunday for the double-header. But as we drove past the ball park, a voice came over a loud speaker system, "Standing room only!" So, we went to the museums.

We had a good time; there is a lot to see in the museums. But, like ol' Bert Wilson used to say, "There's nothing like fun at the old ball park."

On the way home, I noticed Mike was strangely silent as we sailed along the toll road. Finally, he announced that there were 1,005 cars going west between the service areas we had just passed—about 34 miles between them. Dave began counting cars between the next areas but got distracted and gave up. Their souvenirs flutes were the item of interest by that time and we had music to scream by.

I've been reading lately in the papers about the troubles they've got in Las Vegas what with the battle of the "bare bosom" going on in the night clubs there. The Roman Catholic Church even got into it and laid down the law for its members.

Ah-h-h, aren't we lucky we aren't out there in that big fight over those floor shows, what with all those terrible goings on out there. Yessir, we sure are lucky to be back here peaceable-like.

Lessee now, where's that Nevada roadmap. . .

Alternates—Leon Kees and Joe Smith.

Trustee, 3 years — George William Harter.

Installation of officers was held at the last June meeting with past commander Ralph Sechler serving as installing officer.

Businessmen At Ashley To Pay Law Officer

Ashley businessmen have voted to hire a town marshal on a part time basis until a fund budgeted for 1959 by the town becomes available January 1, 1959. The decision came at a meeting held Monday evening.

The meeting was the second weekly meeting called by town officials and businessmen to discuss means of curbing continued vandalism and reckless operation of automobiles in the community.

Businessmen will pay the salary of the part-time marshall until January 1.

Ashley has been without police protection for about a year, having previously employed the services of a town marshall.

More than 25 Ashley businessmen attended the meeting with town officials and Deputy Sheriff Dorsie Likens and State Troopers V. E. Osborn and Charles Buse.

1 Family - 1 Hour - 2 Accidents

The Vinson family of Saint Joe had its share of excitement for a short time to come, at least, as they were involved in two car mishaps Saturday in the space of one hour.

At noon Charles Vinson, 19, now residing in Fort Wayne, and Karl Sliger, 28, of Corunna, crashed at Auburn at an intersection as their vision was obscurred by Pioneer Day shoppers at the county seat. Both motorists were watching pedestrian traffic as Vinson turned right onto Seventh Street and Sliger turned left onto Seventh and their cars collided.

Damage involved $75 to the Vinson Nash and $50 to Sliger's 1955 Ford.

About an hour later, Mrs. Berneda Vinson lost control of the 1953 Kaiser she was driving as her attention was distracted. In her excitement she stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake and the car skidded across the pavement. The wheels had slipped off on the right side, then the car skidded 200 feet, then went across to the left side and traveled another 65 feet before coming to a halt. The car was considered a total loss.

Mary Lou Vinson and Nancy Vinson were treated by an Auburn physician. Mary Lou sustained bruises and a cut on her nose. Nancy was treated for bruises and a sprained ankle.

The accident occured on the blacktop between Auburn and Saint Joe.

D&H Tavern Again Visited By Prowlers

The D&H Tavern had callers again last week end. In a break-in a few weeks ago, pennies were taken. This time the ante was raised and an estimated $10 stolen from a juke box in addition to an undisclosed amount from a vending machine.

The break-in was discovered Sunday morning when Harry Loucks entered the tavern at 10 a.m. to sweep. The tavern had been closed at 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

Entry was gained by breaking a window on the south side of the building. The burglars ripped off the back of the juke box and carried away the cash box and vending machine.

School Board Protests Butler Editorial

An editorial in the Butler Record-Herald two weeks ago prompted a visit to the office of that publication by members of the Riverdale School Board and county school superintendent Roger Hess. The editorial appeared in the issue of July 31.

In the editorial, the predicament faced by the Riverdale School Corporation concerning its financial status and need for new facilities was revued and compared to the situation which faces many other communities. However, there were apparently some exceptions taken to the views of the editor by the Riverdale board and the county superintendent and the visit was made last week.

The group asked for a retraction of the editorial because it allegedly contained false and misleading statements.

As a result, the paper contains a note of regret from the editor this week if he has been guilty of publishing misleading information.

Those who called on the editor of the Butler paper were Dick Crow, Walter Morr, Stanley Davis and Frank Laub, in addition to Mr. Hess.

The Development Of Communism

by Vickie Crow

Stalin was born in 1879 in a small town in the province of Russia named Georgia. His father was a poor cobbler. Stalin's mother was ambitious and wanted to see her son go to school. Stalin attended the Orthodox Theological Seminary to study to enter the priesthood. He studied there for four years. At the age of seventeen Stalin left the seminary. Soon after he made friends with some of the followers of Marx and became active in revolutionary movements.

There were probably two main reasons why Stalin turned toward the Marx theory. One was the fact that he had lived in such poverty. Almost all persons who are extremely poor have a desire for a change in society. Stalin was no exception. The idea of a classless society in which there would be no individuals who would monopolize wealth probably appealed to him. The other factor which might have caused Stalin to be swayed toward communism was his experiences in the seminary. If four years in a seminary caused Stalin to join a movement which professed atheism, it is apparent that his attitude toward the church was not one of belief in God. Stalin's mother was responsible for his going to school. If the decision had been in his father's hands, Stalin would have followed his father's trade and become a cobbler. Stalin's mother probably decided that he would study the priesthood, because it seems that she ran the household. Perhaps Stalin was never really interested in becoming a priest. Four years of studying something he disliked may have caused Stalin to turn against it. At any rate, when he left the seminary, Stalin joined a party that believed in no supreme being.

When the successful revolution broke out in 1917, Stalin was an important leader. After Lenin became dictator, Stalin became an important figure in the Communist Party. He held various high offices. Lenin began to feel that Stalin was becoming too powerful. He stated that he definitely did not want Stalin to be his successor. Lenin probably wanted to see Trotsky succeed him. Trotsky and Lenin had both been leaders during the October Revolution when the Bolshevik Party had overthown the Mensheviks and their leader, Kerensky. Trotsky was, therefore, a close friend of Lenin.

After Lenin's death many men were struggling for the high spot that had been vacated. Stalin's main rival was Trotsky. They disliked each other immensely. Their differences were political and personal. Politically, their main differences were based on the rate of speed at which communism was growing. Trotsky thought that revolutions should take place in other countries soon and that communism should be started elsewhere. Stalin said that all effort should be placed on making Russia strong and secure. Other countries could come later. Stalin finally won in the struggle between Trotsky and himself. In 1929 Stalin became the dictator of Soviet Russia. He had Trotsky exiled in the same year.

Stalin ruled Soviet Russia with an iron fist. He attempted to make several changes in the name of communism. The one which probably had the most effect was his attempt to make the farms into collective state farms. Many of the peasants were bitterly opposed to this. Rather than give their crops to the government, the peasants allowed them to rot in the fields. They killed a great number of animals rather than give them up; the amount of livestock in Russia decreased by half. Stalin had the few crops that the peasants had kept for themselves taken for the government. This produced mass starvation. The peasants agreed to the collective farms after that. There was no other choice.

Stalin was a firm dictator. All revolts against the communist regime were suppressed by cruel tactics. Yet he was supposedly looked upon as a great and wise leader. Stalin died in the Kremlin on March 5, 1953. A struggle for power followed. Just as Stalin eliminated his rivals, Nikita Khrushchev has eliminated his opponents.

Today communism in Russia is not exactly what Marx had in mind. True, the state has become greatly industrialized and strong. Private enterprise has been abolished. Religion is being eliminated. Communism is not being accepted, however. Revolts have been staged. Communism is facing a crisis. Will it succeed?

In Conclusion

Communism is gaining and will probably continue to gain a strong foothold in the world. It will continue to grow until people realize on what a weak theory it is based.

One of the main ideas in Marx's theory is to create a classless society. The society in Russia is not classless. The leaders of the Communist Party are certainly in a higher class than the workers in the factories. No matter where communism would be established, it would be impossible to create a classless society. There will always be some type of government. There will always be men who will lead that government. There will always be workers who will follow the leaders. The leaders will be on a higher level. There will always be a class.

A classless society is against the laws of nature. Some persons are born with a higher mentality than others; some people have the ability to rise above the crowd. As long as people are not born with equal abilities, how can a society be created where everyone will be equal?

Communism also professes atheism. The communists say there is no supreme being. People need to believe in something or someone supreme. In the most ancient of times people believed in a god or gods. They didn't know as a fact that a god existed. Yet, they belived. Belief in a supreme being gave their lives a purpose; it gave them hope of a life after death.

People now and people in the future will not want to believe that death ends all. Not even communism can make people want to believe that. People need a god to give them hope.

Finally, if people can be convinnced that there is a god, people will not believe in atheism. A god may not make them saints, but knowing that a supreme being exists will keep them from believing in atheism. People know that there is bitter, and there is sweet; there is black, and there is white; there is night, and there is day; there is evil, and if there is evil, there must be good. If it so much easier to do evil, there must be some reward for doing good. There must be a god that directs people toward goodness.

Communism may grow and be the government of many lands. But, it will never create the utopia of which people have dreamed. It will not succeed in conquering and ruling the world because it is weak in theory and can never be practiced successfully according to such a theory.

MINORITIES

Lesson for August 17, 1958

The Bible is a man's book. But that's not all. The Bible is a property-owner's book, it is a book for the "dominant classes" of society. This does not mean it is not for everybody. But the fact is, the laws and the letters and indeed most of the Bible, you will discover when you read it carefuly, is adddressed to people who are in positions of authority. It is all the more remarkable, therefore, and a sign that the Bible is inspired by something besides wishes of the dispossessed—all the more remarkable that the Bible writers speak out clearly on behalf of the depressed classes, the little people, the people who could not speak for themselves, the people who probably could neither read nor write and of course had no Bibles themselves.

The Stranger

In ancient times everybody belonged somewhere. People did not move about from city to city, from farm to farm, as they do here. In America, on the average, every family moves once every five years. In ancient Palestine a family would stay in one locality for 500 years, wars and pestilence permitting. Strangers were not (as with us often) interesting people, to be invited out and "cultivated." Strangers were under suspicion—what would a man be doing so far from home? The strangers in any land were a voiceless, voteless, disorganized minority. Yet God commanded the Hebrew majorities to remember that they themselves were strangers once in Egypt, and to take special care of strangers in their own land.

The Hired Man

Some hired men are stable members of the community. They contribute to its welfare in various ways besides doing their jobs well. But there are workers who drift about, sometimes in large numbers. Last winter many thousands of migrant workers were stranded in heatless sheds in Florida's sensational cold spell. Their work was gone, they had no place to live, no hope of earning anything until crops farther north began to ripen. Such workers are another minority group. They do not stay in any one place long enough even for the children to get started in school. If one of them dies it will be hardly mentioned in the paper. Whatever happens to them, many respectable people think, "Oh, it's only one of those tramp workers."

Does your community give any kind of recognition or help to migrant workers? Do cotton-pickers, bean pickers, summer hired help, have any place to go in your community? Do Christians have any responsibilities for them?

The Disrespectables

Everybody is a sinner. But some people are outrageous sinners, and they are another minority. A pessimist might say that you have to be a pretty outrageous sinner to be worse-than-average enough to be noticed. Such were the tax-collectors or "publicans" of the New Testament. They were "bloodsuckers" and everybody knew it. For a present-day Christian, the minority corresponding to these "sinners" would be the classes the church generally gives up, washes its hands of, forgets: boys in reformatories, for example, men in the penitentiary, ex-convicts. Jesus was accused of having too much to do with such people. Is your church more like Jesus, or more like the Pharisees, in its attitude toward them?

No Lines Drawn

We have minorities outside the church. What about minorities inside it? Does the church have second-class members as certain states and countries have second-class citizens? St. Paul mentions what were then the sharpest lines dividing men from men—Jew from Gentile, slave from free man, male from female; and he tells us such lines do not belong in the Christian church. They should never be drawn. Any church setting limits or qualifications to its membership which were not drawn by Christ and his apostles, raises at once a fair question: is this any longer a Christian church?

Letters to the Editor

Philip H. Willkie
Attorney-at-law
Rushville National Bank Building
Rushville, Indiana

June 7, 1958

Mr. T. E. Haberkorn, Jr., Publisher
Saint Joe News
Saint Joe, Indiana

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Enclosed please find a statement of my views, which I would appreciate being included in your Letter to the Editor column.

It is my firm belief that if the Republican Party is to win at the polls in November, it must take a positive stand on the real issues to-day. America became the number one power of the world through industrial strength, strength that won the Civil War for the north, strength that won two World Wars, and strength which has given us the highest standard of living in the world. If our position in the world is to be maintained, our party must take the stand that in our schools we produce educated youths capable of the challenge.

The Russian government boasts that it will destroy capitalism and that our grandchildren will live under socialism. If America is to remain the number one power of the world, it must maintain a productive capacity superior to theirs. The Russians are obviously not superior to us, although they are presently challenging us in the field of industrial strength and the production of Sputniks, intercontinental ballistics missiles, and jet transports. Our real threat is THEIR RATE OF GAIN.

I strongly and humbly believe that the educational program as followed in many of our schools to-day has caused some of our present difficulties. DEWEYISM, a philosophy of so-called progressive education, followed in many of our high schools to-day, is destroying the American public school systems. DEWEYITES preach that there is "no virtue in hard work" and that only a fractional percentage of our youth is capable of taking academic courses. The vast majority of our students, without proper guidance under this system, ELECT courses on "life adjustment," "fundamental living" and similar educational frills, and are automatically awarded diplomas before mastering the fundamental "three R's."

American strength was achieved through ingenuity, discipline and hard work. We have eliminated many of the essential requirements of history, math, literature, foreign language and science. The Republican Party, as the conservative party, should stand by the principles that made it great. Therefore, I believe that the Republican Party should fight for a conservative school curriculum.

If America is to remain free, our boys and girls of to-morrow must better understand the meaning of responsibility and discipline. The stakes are high, and we must act now if we hope to keep America strong and stem the rising tide of juvenile delinquency. If America is to remain strong, it must have the capacity to produce, for only the "productive can be strong and only the strong can be free."

Sincerely yours,
Philip H. Willkie

Dear Ted and Friends,

I know that you are very busy now but won't you come to France for a few moments with me. I'm sure that you will like it here as much as I do. You'll recognize many familiar things, including the weather. There has been a lot of rain recently. All in all you'll find the same contrasts of mountains and plains, rivers and seacoast and busy cities and open farmlands that you've seen all your life.

France is smaller than Texas, but a third larger than California, or about one-eighteenth the size of the United States. It is a land of some 43 million people.

The people are very economical in their habits and almost every foot of soil is put to some use. It is a country of small diversified farms. In fact, seventy three percent of all French farms are of less than 25 acres.

I am now living in the department of Ain. In case you have a map handy, I can be located near Gex, which is six miles from the Swiss border. If you climb the mountain behind our home, you can see the Alps and beautiful Geneva, Switzerland. As it is a tourist region, you will see cars from every country in the world and hear every language spoken.

No matter what your age, you will do much walking and bicycle riding, as these are important modes of transportation. You'll find that it isn't necessary to go many places, because the barber, the postman, the breadman, and the grocer will visit your home often.

In any French village, public entertainment centers in its cafes. The cafe is the place where a man takes his family after the evening meal to talk, to meet friends, or to read the newspapers.

The women are very proud of their cooking, so you will often find yourself eating eight course meals. Lots of cheese and bread are included in the meals along with the same fruits, vegetables, and meats that we eat in Indiana. Soup is eaten once a day in most homes.

In case you are wondering, I am keeping very busy, too. I am traveling with the International Farm Youth Exchange Program. It is my job to convey the right ideas about you —the American people, to help wipe out misunderstandings, and create understanding between the peoples of the world.

Sincerely,
Mary Wilder

We took the liberty of publishing one of Mary's letters to her family last week, not knowing that she had sent a message to our readers thru The News. But we are happy to have this second letter containing a little more about the homelife of France as seen thru the eyes of an American young lady.

We particularly are aware of what appears to be the practice of the art of good fellowship thru the social contacts made as a part of the French everyday life. With such a good background in the community life, it is difficult to understand the French political strife.

If their family social life is as attractive and homey as Mary pictures it, we can come to but one conclusion—"they ain't got TV!" —Ed.

New Paved Road To Auburn

Another improvement to county roads in the Saint Joe area was completed this week with the opening of the road north of Saint Joe from Clayton A. Baker's farm north to State Road 8. The former gravel surface is now blacktop.

The new addition to hard-surfaced roads in this area gives convenience not only to those who reside along the road but also to those who find it necessary to make occasional trips to the county seat. The dust-free road is also smoother riding.

There now are four ways of going to Auburn from Saint Joe, all by hard-surfaced roads.

Local News

Mrs. Clara Ammerman of Ambia, Ind., is visiting her granddaughter, Mrs. Frank Sechler, for several days.

Mrs. Arlo Green of Chicago was a guest of her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Pugsley, over the week end. All attended the Pugsley Reunion at Findlay, Ohio, Sunday.

Resurfacing and rebuilding of Auburn streets began this week with asphalt seal and concrete paving included in the program of street improvement. Improvements are being made in both shopping and residential areas.

Mrs. Forrest Bevington of Saint Joe and Mrs. Everett Mavis of Auburn visited Mrs. Lillian Buckingham Sunday at the Sheehy Rest Home at Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. James Clauser and son, Gary, of South Bend and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Liechty and daughter, Dianne Kay, of Berne were Sunday dinner guests of the Clauser family. Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Baker and daughter, Cynthia Ann, were afternoon callers.

Two former presidents and four ex-vice-presidents, all elected from Indiana, were honored this week in the official naming of 6 new service areas being constructed in the Northern Indiana toll road. Total cost of the new areas will be $2,080,000. Each area will provide restaurant and filling station facilities, They will be named in honor of ex-presidents William Henry Harrison and Benjamin Harrison and former vice-presidents Schuyler Colfax, Thomas A. Hendricks, Charles W. Fairbanks and Thomas R. Marshall.

AND YOUR FUEL BILLS GO DOWN

Ordinary heaters pile the heat up on the ceiling until some of it finally seeps down to the living level. If you own an ordinary heater, you know how costly and uncomfortable that system is! Siegler does just the opposite . . . your floors in every room get heated first. Heat is not wasted on the ceiling and out the chimney. Don't close off rooms this winter and pay high fuel bills to boot . . . order your new Siegler now.

Kiwanians Aid Riley Hospital

Indiana Kiwanians have passed the half-way mark in their voluntary program to provide modern equipment for the new half-million dollar outpatient clinic at the Riley Hospital for Children. The announcement was made by the Riley Memorial Association.

The new facility, made necessary by a 100 percent increase in out-patient visits to the hospital by Inidana children during the last 10 years, is gradually swinging into service and will be officially dedicated soon. Members of Indiana Kiwanis clubs are providing surgical and other specialized equipment, thru voluntary gifts, costing about $80,000.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to extend my personal thanks to all the Saint Joe friends and neighbors who have sent me cards and flowers and in various ways remembered me during my long illness.

Mrs. Borthwick

Now tragedy has come into our family and we want to express our gratitude for the many kindnesses which have been shown us.

As usual, words are inadequate, we had no need for which we did not have an offer of assistance. Please accept our heart-felt thanks and appreciation for every way in which you helped, and for every offer of help which you gave us in the death of my husband, our father and our brother. May God bless and keep you all is our prayer.

"Regardless of the season, our electric heat pump always keeps us comfortable," says Mrs. Wayne Seaver.

"It heats in the winter and air-conditions in the summer. The heat pump filters dust and pollen from the air and dehumidifies, too. Imagine, all this—and it didn't cost us any more than any other heating and cooling system would have cost."

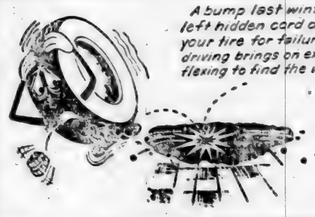
SUMMER TIRE TRUTHS

Two and one-half miles of cord give muscle to average tire—cords must flex 700 times each mile you drive.

Cord flexing plus hot road surfaces can cause tire temperatures as high as 270°F in summer turnpike driving.



A bump last winter may have left hidden cord damage, marked your tire for failure when vacation driving brings on extra heat and flexing to find the weak spot.

The longer a tire is driven the greater the impact danger. In lab tests, new nylon cord tires withstood 650,000 impacts, new rayon cord tires 50,000. After 24,500 miles, nylon stood 204,000 impacts, rayon, 7,800.

Safety-conscious aviation field led in adopting nylon cord, now used 100% on military and commercial planes and available in 280 brands of passenger car tires.

VOLUME LXXIII — ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. — Thursday, August 21, 1953 — NUMBER 33

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

With the run on bean shooters a couple of weeks ago and the grocers' supply of beans dwindling fast, our front yard and porch became a battleground. Now it looks like a nursery with all the sprouts dotting the lawn.

Kathryn Lindstrom sent in her subscription renewal a few weeks ago from Florida. She said:

"I've enjoyed it (the paper) the past year. And when I see a familiar name it's like meeting an old friend."

Another renewal came from Mrs. T. R. Spalding who said she would send a letter for publication later. The Spaldings now live in Clarendon Hills, Illinois.

Still another letter came from Don Ruhl at Avilla. Don wondered about the five bucks he gave me at the ball diamond recently to apply on his subscription. Little wonder that he wondered because his paid-up date hadn't been changed. But, nope, I hadn't forgotten about it; it was just waiting patiently along with a few other renewals to be changed.

Don's P.S. reads:

"What has happened to our Cubs? I hope that the chewing gum business stays good so P.K. doesn't have to sell Banks."

—That makes two of us.

This is just one of those summers, I guess. It never really got a good start. And now some of these chilly evenings make it almost necessary to go down and clean out the furnace and light up again. Heavens to Betsy, we only shut the fire off six or seven weeks ago.

I took a ride to Newville at noon Monday to see what the damage amounted to from the storm. I went out of town a little ways after passing thru Newville and turned off. The road was unfamiliar but it was scenic and I kept going until I began to wonder where this was going to end up. And the gas tank said one-fourth. I passed a big field of gladioli and then went over a bridge. A road was on the other side so down it I went. A turn at a blacktop still didn't bring any familiar surroundings until I came back into Newville and passed the hard-working men and boys who were helping to clean up their community by clearing trees, branches and debris from the streets.

I had a nice ride that day but for a while expected to end up in Toledo—or some place.

Jerry Emenhiser Reported 'Fair' After Explosion

Jerry Emenhiser, 24, of Saint Joe suffered severe burns Tuesday morning when an explosion occurred at his home at about 11 a.m. He is presently confined at Parkview Hospital for treatment of first degree burns to his face and second and third degree burns to his body. It was reported Thursday morning that he was able to get some sleep for the first time Wednesday night having previously been unable to rest due to his painful burns. His condition was considered "fair" Thursday morning.

The complete and accurate account of the explosion cannot be given due to the injuries to Mr. Emenhiser which hinder his talking. However, what information can be gathered indicates that Mr. Emenhiser was in the small home, located at the northwest edge of Saint Joe, with the Emenhisers' baby. Mrs. Emenhiser was visiting with a neighbor, Mrs. Marjorie O'Brien. As the women talked they heard the explosion and hurried from the O'Brien home to see two doors lying on the ground, one at the rear of the Emenhiser home, the other at the north side. As they looked Mr. Emenhiser literally came flying out the side door, his face and body covered with burns and much of his hair burned away. Mrs. Emenhiser immediately took him to Hicksville to the hospital and he was then taken to Fort Wayne. Gene Casebere was summoned in the meantime from his service station and he doused flames on the roof of the house with a garden hose. The Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Departent was also summoned but its services were not needed.

Mr. Emenhiser had placed the baby on the living room floor prior to the explosion. He went to the basement and lit a match apparently to light a water heater, although this has not yet been confirmed. There is a possibility that gas leaked somewhere in the line from the bottle gas containers outside the house. And when the match was struck, the explosion resulted.

The baby was unharmed, but a glass top to a candy dish in the same room was broken and the knobs were off the television set, although it is not known if the knobs had been removed for some reason by Mr. Emenhiser or were blown off by the force of the explosion. Mrs. O'Brien reported that clothing placed on a cupboard at the back of the home was burned. Insulation ripped from the walls was charred.

In addition to the two doors which were blown off, a window at the side of the house was shattered.

Mr. Emenhiser's clothing was aflame as he bolted from the house. His wife and Mrs. O'Brien smothered the flames before he was rushed to the hospital for emergency treatment.

Storm Rips Newville Sunday

A violent storm ripped the Newville community Sunday afternoon causing damage estimated at upwards of $20,000.

Sudden and violent winds, accompanied by hail and rain, hit the area at about 2:40 p.m.

Included in the damage was the destruction of buildings on a mink farm owned by Mervan Conine. Pens were twisted and broken, releasing around 500 mink. The animals were later captured although all were not recovered.

A roof was ripped from the Byron Smith home, part of it falling to the ground in front of the Smith home, the remainder carried eastward an estimated 300 yards and dumped in a cornfield.

Many trees and limbs of trees fell to the ground from the fury of the storm. Damage was averted in a few instances when trees growing near residences blew down but did not fall against the houses.

The storm hit the Allen Haller farm west of Newville before proceeding in an easterly direction to ward the Newville community. A mass of black clouds with rolling white clouds beneath was reported seen as the storm approached. No funnel shaped clouds were observed, although Lehr Wilder reported seeing what appeared to be a funnel-cloud "on its side."

At least a dozen homes in Newville suffered damage. Power lines, telephone lines and trees blocked streets and roads. An old barn east of the Haller farm was flattened by the wind. Several television antennas were twisted.

County School Nurse Begins Official Duties

Mrs. Esther Nessel of Waterloo officially began her duties as county school nurse last Friday. She was appointed to that position recently by the DeKalb County commissioners. Her office will be in the office of the county superintendent of schools.

Mrs. Nessel is being assisted in setting up her office and program by Miss Frances Roush, consultant nurse of the State Board of Health. Miss Roush was in Auburn Friday and will return one day a week for the next several weeks.

Mrs. Nessel will serve all schools in the county. She is a native of the community north of Waterloo. She received her training at St. Joseph Hospital in Fort Wayne and was employed there this summer.

Hartke To Speak At Bar-B-Q

Mayor Vance Hartke of Evansville, who is the Democratic candidate for U.S. Senator from Indiana, will be the main speaker at a free barbecue to be held in the shelter house at Waterloo next Wednesday, August 27, at 8 p.m. The event is being sponsored as a "get acquainted with your candidates meeting." Everything is free and serving will begin at 6:30 p.m. The serving will be handled by the various county and township Democratic candidates.

The public is invited to attend this event which will provide an enjoyable and interesting evening. Mayor Hartke is known as a colorful speaker, campaigning vigorously thriughout the state of Indiana. He is a new figure in Indiana Democratic politics.

Mr. Patrick Purdy, Democratic candidate for county judge of the circuit court, will be master of ceremonies. Arrangements are being made by Cleve Grube, county chairman, and Mrs. Monica Dunn, county vice-chairman. The event is sponsored jointly by the Democratic Central Committee and the DeKalb County Young Democrats. The various committees are composed of Herbert Jackson, Mrs. John Fee, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tuttle, James Duncan, Clark Kelley, Loren Dunn and Wayne Voss.

Three Sp'ville Youths Go To Fair Contests

Three DeKalb County 4-H members have won the right to represent the county in the Indiana State Fair judging of 4-H electric projects. The three are:

Girls' division II — Sharon Kay Smith, R1, Spencerville.

Boys' division I — Walter Goldsmith, R1, Spencerville.

Boys' division II — Lynn Witt, R1, Spencerville.

Miss Smith will compete in table lamp entries, Goldsmith portable aircompressor and Witt, also portable air compressor.

The exhibits were placed at the state fairgrounds Monday and will be released September 5. The exhibits will be located in the 4-H exhibit hall at the Youth Building.

25 4-H members were present August 12 for judging of county, entries in the three divisions represented. 17 projects were judged in the three divisions with the three Spencerville 4-H members being declared the winners.

IU Plans Social For Frosh

Local high school graduates who plan to enroll next month as freshmen at Indiana University have been invited to a get-acquainted meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday, August 25, at the Fort Wayne I. U. Extension Center.

Robert Wilder of Saint Joe, a freshman-to-be, has been invited to a special before-school activity, the Freshman Camp September 5, 6 and 7 at McCormick's Creek State Park.

The get-acquainted meeting will bring representatives of both the I. U. Junior (freshman) Division and the Alumni Office to show color movies and to answer questions of the students and their parents on academic studies and extra-curricular activities.

The affair is sponsored by the Fort Wayne I. U. Alumni Club.

Joy-Killer

Somewhere back in time past, months or years ago, we remember seeing an article in which famous personages gave their ideas as to the saddest word in the English language. There were many good ideas on the saddest word, including "never," "no," "maybe," etc. One which was missing and which we happened to mentally pick out as our candidate for the list was "but-". Ever since reading the article "but" has been our favorite sad word - or perhaps the description should be "the most disappointing or depressing word." At any rate we have another candidate for top honors in this field which now ties our previous selection for first place. The new candidate - "retaliation."

Did you ever stop to consider how much the human race lives in retaliation? You can find it in all phasas of human relationships. Even people who hate the idea of retaliation cannot escape its use. When a person is hurt by another's remarks or actions, there is a satisfaction to be gained by retaliating in some way. No matter how close the ties may be, "getting even" is the devil that pops up so often. It's difficult not to say, "I'll show 'em" or "I'll show him" or "I'll show her" when one gets rubbed the wrong way.

Take a look. Retalliation shows everywhere - between husband and wife - between brother and brother or sister - between friend and friend - between friend and foe- between businessman and businessman - between businessman and customer - between farmer and laborer - between employer and employee - between just about any combination you want to pick out. So often the only effort we make is to get even.

It should be noted that we exist in an air of action and reaction. Thus, a fine line must occasionally be drawn between a normal or justified reaction and a reaction that is prompted by a desire to retaliate. All retalliation is reaction but not all reaction is retalliation.

In thinking about this retalliation business, it popped into mind that a group of people whom we have come in contact with, who have been generally unretaliatory in nature despite what may be done or not done to or for them, is the clergy. Even with the differences that are present in the practice of religion and the presence of human frailties and failings in the lives of all men, we have seldom noted a clergyman acting in a manner that can be called a way of getting even. We suppose this is the result of their absorbing those things which they are trying to get soaked into their congregations, which should be a good "selling point" for the teachings they expound.

But getting back to this matter of retaliation, it can be a sort of game one can play with himself, or herself, to be mentally alert for those instances when we react in a retaliatory manner. Asking the question, "Why am I doing this" will quite often bring the sad realization that what is being done is done in retaliation. And constructively, it accomplishes exactly nothing.

SNOWBALLING ANNOYANCES MAKE DIVINE HEADACHES

I suspect that if you summed up the causative background behind most tragedies, major and minor, you would find that in most cases it was the snowballing of minor annoyances that finally launched the avalanche.

This occurred to me as I listened to the thrashing the word "divine" takes in female conversation, both in America and England. Everything is "divine." You look divine. What a divine tie. What a divine day. The show was simply divine. The dinner was divine.

I swear, in England once I heard a lady say of a recently dead relative: "She looked simply divine in the casket." Now, please. The only justification I know in the world is contained in the phrase: "To err is human, to forgive divine," and that points straight upstairs, not at the divine spot of egg on my vest.

While I am outlawing current words that have lost nearly all of their former meaning I would list the likes of adorable, cute, delicious, darling, sweet, lovely and charming when applied to everything from hearing aids to the weather.

I will thank you to drop the word "sweetie" from the language altogether. Things have gone too far when the girls are calling the girls sweetie and the boys are calling the boys sweetie. Please, Sweetie, give it a rest.

The English, whom I adore (there, d'you see, they've got me doing it), have been driving me nuts for years with several habits of speech that have become widely infectious. No Englishman or woman ever introduced anyone properly—none that I ever met, anyhow.

I may be in London or Nairobi for the first time in my life, and my host or hostess will preface every handshake with a mumbled "d'you know erh-hum-hah?" Even if er-hum-hah is his mother. And the host turns swiftly away as if embarrassed at the association with either party on the grounds that they might actually tell him their names and so force him to introduce them properly. As for the "do you know" bit, if I knew the other gent or lady, he wouldn't have to introduce me.

I prefer not to be addressed as "friend" by comparative strangers, and you please will not call be Bud or Doc. And you will refrain from calling me by my surname on slight acquaintance. You will call me Mister, if you please. I got last-named to death in the war, and will have none of it now that I'm a free man.

People who intersperse every breath-pause in a sentence with "see what I mean?" or "d'you see?" — pronounced "joosee" with no question-mark — have lost my trade indefinitely, d'you see? Understand what I mean?

"As a matter of fact" grates my nerves, but not as much as the British "in point of fact." I'm an honest guy. I believe you. You don't have to say "believe me." What are you telling me, lies, that you have to keep calling attention to the fact that it's a fact? You are writing fiction already? And "believe me," delivered so earnestly, ranks right along with "I mean to say."

The Spaniards have one that also drove me nuts. Everything that is pretty or attractive or cute is "mono," mono meaning monkey originally, and degenerating into "cute." I got tired enough of it to buy a pottery baboon and plant it in the bushes in the front year. Any time anybody says the flowers or food or house is mono, I just say, "Naturally. How mono is my mono?" Then they usually shut up on the "monos" for a spell.

Well, it's a delicious day, couldn't be more divine, utterly charming, so I think I shall go the country, couldn't be lovelier there now, and give this a rest. I mean to say, Sweetie, as a matter of fact, d'you see, it's hot as hell in town, and couldn't be more divinely sticky. That's because my nerves are beginning to crackle and I don't want to hit anybody with a chair. Understand what I mean?

Enrollment At Riverdale Set For August 29

It's been a short, short summer for everyone. But it must appear particularly short to the students in the community who must face the fact that in just one day over one week they must register for the coming school year, and that classess will begin on the following Tuesday, September 2.

The joy-killing news of reopening of Riverdale's doors came this week as Principal Joe Smith announced the schedule of classes for the upper grades and county superintendent Roger Hess revealed the complete list of Riverdale faculty members.

Mr. Smith pointed out that registration of students will be taken on Friday, August 29, at 9:30 a.m. DST. Students will be picked up by school busses on regular routes and taken to the elementary school at Spencerville and the junior high and high school at Saint Joe. To facilitate registration, each student should bring a pencil.

The book rental system will be in effect in both schools. The fee for elementary grades is $7.50 and for upper grades $8.00. This money should be brought to school on Tuesday, September 2, when books will be distributed. Teachers would prefer not having the rental fee brought on registration day to ease their first-day duties.

Mr. Smith has prepared a schedule of classes for the upper grades which is shown in the accompanying table. Students may study in advance to see from the table which classes they may wish to sign for. The time for each class has not been shown as there is an adjustment in class time to be made. The lunch hour will be from 11:55 to 12:30 DST.

The faculty, as announced by Mr. Hess, is as follows:

Joe Smith — high school principal and teacher of social studies.

Howard Hill—grade principal and 6th grade half-day.

Burmell Walter—R1, Butler, mathematics, science.

Russell Guinther, Kendallville, vocational agriculture.

Price Brookfield, Saint Joe—social studies, driver training, athletic coach.

Kenneth Bender, Fort Wayne—commerce.

Doris Mann, Spencerville—English and Spanish.

Robert Lowry, Auburn — music.

Ruth Robbins, Saint Joe — science, grade 6.

Eugene Buzzard, Fort Wayne—social studies, physical education.

Cline Manges, Garrett — English.

Richard Hartung, Huntertown—mathematics and science.

Carolyn Ferrell, Angola — girls physical education, social studies.

Charles Rawlings, Saint Joe—grade 6.

Forrest Bevington, Saint Joe—grade 5.

Violet Baker, Hicksville — grade 5.

Florabelle Kuehn, Waterloo—grade 3.

Blanche Middaugh, Auburn—grade 4.

Mabel Miller, Garrett — grade 4.

Frances Allen, Ashley — grade 3.

Gladys Impton, Saint Joe—grade 2.

Margaret Bacon, Ashley — grade 2.

Mary Platter, Butler — grade 1.

Frances Huddleston, Saint Joe—home economics.

Ellen Gobel, Saint Joe, grade 1.

The county music teacher will be Mrs. Robert Lowry.

Teachers in the county schools will meet in the assembly room of the court house at Auburn at 10 a.m. Thursday, August 28, for teachers' institute. In the afternoon teachers will meet in their schools to make plans and arrangements for registration of students on Friday.

Wee Haven Holds Open House Aug. 23

Wee Haven School for Retarded Children will have an enrollment this fall of 25 children, an increase of 4 from last year's enrollment of 21 children. The Wee Haven school building consists of but two rooms at the present time. But architect plans include additions that can be made when funds become available. Present capacity of the school is only 25.

Ages of enrollees range from 6 to 17 years and the children come from DeKalb, Noble and Steuben counties.

Parents of the children pay $5 per child per week and furnish their transportation. A few parents drive as much as a hundred miles per day to bring their children to school, and they feel the results are gratifying.

In addition to regular classroom studies and speech work adjusted to the child's development, special emphasis is placed on developing muscular coordination and training the child in social amenities. Frequently these children have been isolated and have had little contact with other children before coming to the school. After a period of training they have been able to take their place in social groups.

The school is financed by service organizations, by contributions from individuals and professonal groups, by home demonstration and farm clubs as well as different sororities and women's clubs and circles.

On Saturday, August 23, an ice cream social and supper will be served by the parent-teacher association of the school. Serving will be from 5 to 7 p.m. The school will be open for the public for inspection at that time. Residents of this area are invited to visit the school at Garrett and see what progress is being made locally in the program of mental health.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible Material: Isaiah 30:1-5, 15-18; 31:1-3; Micah 4:1-7; Malachi 2:10; Acts 10:1-35; Ephesians 2:13—3:21.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 11:1-9.

INTERNATIONAL

Lesson for August 24, 1958

Where can the will of God be most fully done? Where on this earth today can we come closest to finding the kingdom of God? To put it in still another way: where in this world would you find the place most like heaven? Walter Rauschenbusch, an outstanding Christian of 50 years ago, used to give the same answer most of us would: the Christian home. Ask the opposite question: among all the forms and institutions of human relationships, where do you get farthest away from the kingdom of heaven? Where is God's will most rarely done? Rauschenbusch said: in international relationships. In other words, if a home can sometimes remind us of heaven, international affairs sometimes remind us of hell.

Man's Other Religion

Nevertheless, if a Christian is committed to justice, and if he believes that justice is always God's will and intention, then he will believe in justice in international affairs, too—if it can be had. That's just the trouble. There are more obstacles to justice across national lines than anywhere else in the world. One of these is that nationalism is, as has been said, "man's other religion." Always and everywhere, whatever men's professed religion might be, the rival altar is always the altar of the State. The State claims absolute sovereignty, demands absolute loyalty; and that one reason is why international relationships are so hard to make just and fair. For when the interests of two "absolutely right" countries clash, how can justice be found unless they yield to some authority among themselves?

Entanglements

Does the Bible cast any light on this dark area of human life? It certainly gives us no blueprints; but it does give us inspired hints. One of these is the warning Isaiah gave his people, about 700 B.C., against alliances which would do more harm than good. Does this mean we should scrap the United Nations? Not at all. The United Nations is not the kind of thing against which Isaiah warned Israel. That was a tiny nation, and they were constantly tempted to seek security by military pacts with big nations like Egypt. That, said Isaiah, is just selling yourselves into slavery. Egypt never made any pacts except for Egypt's benefit; and an alliance between Egypt and Israel would be like one between a lion and a lamb; it would only serve to feed the lion and it would be the end of the lamb. The United Nations is a quite different thing. Most Americans do not realize the immense good that goes on, under its auspices, in many areas of life—child welfare, health services, education aids to business, and many other ways.

Warless World

The prophet Micah, looking to the far future, sees a warless world. Not a world in which nations armed to the teeth refrain from attack for fear of retaliation, but a world in which no one will be even studying war any more. Is this possible? It may be, now, no more possible than a world without death. But just because death is inevitable, doctors and health services do not give up their fight against it.

Prince of Peacemakers

Most Christians have a kind of hopeless feeling about international affairs. What can we do about it, we ask. One thing we can always remember—that international conflicts begin with bad impressions that one nation's citizens make on others. The world today sees Americans everywhere—tourists, business men, soldiers, missionaries. What sort of impression are these people making? What missionaries are trying to do is sometimes canceled out by what some stupid junketing congressman or private soldier on leave does or says. The more people are won by us to Christ, the more likely it is that these unofficial ambassadors of ours over the world will be Christians, and so the greater will our influence be toward peace.

"WHAT I LIKE BEST ABOUT ALL-ELECTRIC LIVING IS MY KITCHEN..."

says Mrs. Norman Goshert.

"It contains my electric range, refrigerator-freezer, automatic washer, electric dryer, ironer and even my electric water heater. Having everything so handy, makes my days a lot easier."

Mr. Goshert, who works in an electronic company's purchasing department, also likes electric heat because, "It's noiseless and so clean. Living electrically is modern, all right, and it doesn't cost us any more! Our average monthly electric bill is only $31.29, for all this convenience and comfort."

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

The Goshert family: (left to right) Kathy Jo, 4; Mrs. Goshert; Steve, 5½; Mr. Goshert; and Jeff, 22 months.

"I can get through with my laundry and ironing much faster with all my electric appliances so handy."

PICTURES OF THE WEEK

SOME DISH(ES)! — Alice Olson poses — not too happily — with some 500 pieces of melamine dinnerware at the National Restaurant Association show at Chicago's Navy Pier. This, the experts claim, represents the young mountain of dishes used in an average week by a family of four.

A pretty model, dressed as a Southern Belle, depicts the days of yester-year as she poses at the North Entrance of The Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia. The 178-year-old resort is steeped in tradition and history and has been host to thirteen U. S. Presidents.

PEACEMAKER AND GIRL — George Montgomery plays a tough sheriff of frontier [illegible], Kansas, and [illegible] with his bride in Warner Bros.' "[illegible]."

LINGUISTIC LITTER BINS — In an effort to keep Windsor tidy this season, litter bins have been placed at strategic places in and around this famous Berkshire town with wording in 15 different languages — including Russian, and also experiments are being made with paving stones bearing the words "No litter please, Penalty £5"

GREEN-FINGERED SEVEN-YEAR-OLD — The Ewell Horticultural Society held a show recently at West Street School, Ewell, Epsom, Surrey, where a seven-year-old youngster swept the board in the junior section, walking away with two first prizes and a diploma.

TWO DIFFERENT SPECIES OF DEER — The children's section of the Whipsnade Zoo in Bedfordshire has a tiny, 18 inches long, two-week-old baby Chinese Water Deer called "Nicky" who is being brought up by Zoo Hostesses, and also a one-week-old, but bigger, Formosan deer that has been deserted by its mother and is also in the care of Hostesses.

A STERLING SIGN — Atlantic City, N.J. — Shapely movie actress Jan Sterling, whose husband, actor Paul Douglas, used to be a lifeguard on the New Jersey shore, had a street named in her honor when she came to Atlantic City. Here, Jan prettily obliges by putting the sign up herself.

THE KEY TO JUSTICE — Dar Es Salaam, Tanganyika — The Lord High Chancellor, Lord Kilmuir, Britain's top Jurist, in his official robes opens the doors of the new High Court in Dar Es Salaam, Tanganyika, with a silver key. The ceremony brought the pageantry of traditional English justice to African soil.

SOME COOKIE — Paris — No half-baked beauty is Annie Douarin, a gay Parisienne who has won the title of "Miss Biscuit." The 20-year-old charmer displays her delectable attributes in the famed Bois de Boulogne for the admiration of all lovers of French pastry.

TASTY DISH — New York — Sporting a chef's hat and a low-cut gown, actress Denise Darcel adds buxom charm to a steak dinner which she is serving to Peter Lind Hayes (center) and Mary Healy (left), husband-and-wife stars of "Who Was That Lady?". The 100th performance of the comedy was celebrated with a steak and champagne supper party.

DEDICATE NEW PIER — Brooklyn, N.Y. — Aerial photo shows new $8,250,000 Maersk Line Terminal, Pier 11 in Atlantic Basin, Brooklyn. Pier 11 is the first of ten new Piers to be completed by The Port of New York Authority under its $85,000,000 redevelopment program.

CHANGING WORLD — Vienna, Austria — The road from life in a Communist-controlled country to a role in a major Hollywood movie isn't an ordinary one, but it's the path taken by 19-year-old Babara von Nady. The winsome lass, who fled her native Hungary during the revolt of 1956, is now playing a leading part in the movie, "The Journey."

A BROOM'S HER ONLY WEAPON — Rome — This shop assistant uses a broom as an emergency weapon in the "War of Monte Sacro" (a section of Rome) against an army of caterpillars, crawling from the nearby riverbank. Since chemical warfare has been tried and found wanting as a means of stemming the tide of caterpillars that threaten houses and gardens, entomologists have called in "troops" of red ants as an "anti-caterpillar" measure. Until the recruits get here, however, a broom seems to be the only practical weapon.

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

Like Foster Gee said, it was just our turn to have trouble.

The trouble was with the septic tank - or the tile to it. And it took Morgan Hopkins and me a whole day to get the trouble corrected. We were digging like sixty for 8 or 9 hours Monday. Our yard was beginning to look like a grave yard with all the holes we started. But that's what you run into when you don't know the plumbing layout of your house.

We consulted Yeiser's Divining Rod Service right off the bat but didn't find what we wanted from the indications the rods gave when Mose used them. Then we dug where it looked like the drain ran and found - nothing. Then we hear the tape, or snake, pounding under the ground at the basement door, so we dug there and found - not exactly nothing because there were tile there, but they were all clear. Finally at the fifth hole, I guess, Morgan pulled out a big gob of those fine little roots that play havoc with drainage. And we were all happy again.

Another good thing resulted from all that digging, besides getting our troubles corrected. I got a nice batch of nightcrawlers, giant size. Unfortunately, we whacked several of them in two as we dug, not being able to see them. One of the fatalities measured a foot long when his two parts were held together. And they were found three and four feet down; the ground was good and moist.

Here it is bowling season again. And all the keglers are either starting this week or going to start next week, we hear. Once again there are several teams from around here participating in league activity. So we'll have to get the low-down on the individuals and the teams so that you can read about them in your favorite hometown paper - that is, if we can talk Saint Joe's most enthusiastic and devoted bowler into gathering some of the information for us. Who is it? Surely there is no doubt that the title belongs to Dick Freeburn.

Dave, Phil and I stopped in at Milt Ritenour's alleys at Butler Sunday evening for 3 games. Milt said he still has openings for teams. He refinished the alleys and I wasn't used to the slick approaches, almost falling on my favorite seat the first few frames.

Dave rolled a 96 the first game and gave me a hard time until the last two frames. Then in the third game, we both got tired and the scores really went to pot.

The radio weatherman the other night mentioned that temperatures for the last week of August are averaging out at what is normally expected for the last week of September. So we must be a month ahead of schedule. That means, evidently, that Christmas will come at Thanksgiving - or is that an incorrect assumption? I know some people would just as soon get them both overwith at the same time.

While we're on the subject, a quick glance at the calendar shows that there are only about 95 shopping days until Christmas. Don't say you weren't warned.

Don Ruhl's comments about the Cubs last week could be extended a little further this week. With the Cubs losing ground fast in the past two weeks, not only should we worry about Mr. Wrigley selling enough gum so that he won't have to sell Ernie Banks but we might also suggest that the team stick some of the gum in the palms of their gloves what with their defensive defects here lately.

—Ain't that an awful way for a Cub fan to talk? Shame on me.

Boys 8-11 Can Register Friday For Cub Scouts

Registering of boys for Cub Scout activities will be taken Friday evening of this week as the Spencerville Cub Pack begins its fall activities. Rechartering of the club is due in September and boys must be registered before that time in order to make the renewal complete.

The Pack Committee has issued a letter to parents of Cub Scouts urging the parents' cooperation in furthering the Cub Scout program. The letter points out that parental participation during the past year was poor and consequenly the local pack suffered for it. Active participation by parents is necessary or the greatest benefits from the Cub Scout program are not received.

The meeting Friday will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Spencerville Methodist Church. The Methodist Church at Spencerville is the sponsor of the local Cub Scout program. Parents of boys age 8 to 11 are urged to attend the meeting and register their sons for Cub Scouting.

On Thursday of this week the Cubs take a train ride to Kendallville to visit McCray Corporation and the Puritan ice cream plant.

Trustee Ballot Shy Name On GOP Side

With the deadline of September 1 for certifying candidates to fill vacancies on the November 4 election ballot, voters in Concord Township find themselves without a candidate for trustee on the Republican ticket. Also vacant are the three advisory board positions on the Republican ticket. If any choice of candidates is to be presented to the voters in the township, certification of candidates to fill the vacancies must be made by the deadline. If no candidates are selected, the present trustee, Walter Morr, and the Democratic candidates for advisory board will automatically take the offices.

Other trustee vacancies exist on the Republican ticket in Fairfield and Richland townships. There are also vacancies for two justices of the peace in Union Township, six constable positions and 15 advisory board, in addition to the three advisory board vacancies in Concord Township.

The Democrats had only 1 trustee vacancy following the May primary and that has been filled by certification. Only one advisory board vacancy exists for the Democrats, that in Newville Township. Two vacancies exist in Newville Township on the Republican ticket.

1910-'20 Classes To Hold Reunion Sept. 14

Clark Scoles of Fort Wayne announces plans for a reunion of class members and teachers for the years 1910 to 1920 inclusive of Concord Township High School. The reunion will be held Sunday, September 14, at the Cheesetown School House (Alton Community Hall)), located 2 miles east of Saint Joe or 1 1-4 miles north of Coburn's Corners Church on State Road 101.

All members of the above classes, teachers and their families are invited to attend.

Pot luck dinner will be served at 1:30 p.m. DST. Covered dish and table service for individual families should be brought, along with plenty of stories of old school days.

Church League May Change To Hardball

Pete Timmerman president of the Saint Joe Church League, has called a meeting of churches participating in the league to discuss the possibility of changing games from softball to hardball for the 1959 summer season. The meeting will be held next Thursday, September 4, at 7:30 p.m. at the Lutheran Church at Spencerville.

There have been occasional comments on the proposed change from time to time in the past. And apparently a game last week between some of the church league players and the high school hardball team started more thinking on the subject.

Representatives of churches participating in the league are urged to be present next Thursday night.

Mail Route To Extend Service

Postmaster Lehr Wilder announced this week that 7 families of rural Saint Joe will be among 300,000 farm families in the nation who will benefit from extensions of rural delivery service. The extension was revealed by Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield.

The improvement in rural service is based on the standard of benefitting two families per mile instead of the forrequirement of three families per mile. Mr. Wilder said that the addition of the seven families to the Saint Joe route will mean an addition of but a fraction over two miles to the present route.

The rural free delivery service began on October 1, 1896, with three experimental routes from Charles Town, Uvilla and Halltown, West Virginia. In 1957 there were 31,669 rural routes with a daily mileage of 1,586,456, and an average length of 50.09 miles.

The Saint Joe rural delivery route is 53.85 miles in length and is served by Robert Johnson.

Garman-Yoder

Miss Kathleen Yoder of R2, Auburn, and James H. Garman, R1, Spencerville, were united in marriage at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, August 24, in the Leo Methodist Church. Rev. B. D. Nysewander performed the double-ring ceremony.

Musical selections were presented by Mrs. Richard Worman of Leo, organist, and Morris Ringenberg of Leo, soloist.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Lawrence Yoder of near Auburn and Mr. and Mrs. R. Stanley Garman of near Spencerville.

Maid of honor at the wedding was Miss Carol Yoder, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Julia Burdge of Indianapolis, Miss Charlotte Greenfield of Auburn and Mrs. Lynda Smith of Auburn.

Richard Garman served his brother as best man. Ushers were Dave Willets of Leo, John Smith of Auburn and Terry Garman of near Leo.

A reception was held immediately following the wedding in the church basement. Servers at the reception were Miss Bev Crosby of Leo, Miss Loretta Burdge of Indianapolis, Miss Valorie Secrist of Grabill and Miss Joyce Souder of Grabill.

After a honeymoon trip to the south, the couple will reside near Auburn.

Pin In A Balloon

Whatever a person's politics may be in the state of Indiana, this coming November election should prove to be interesting. It will be interesting to note the feelings of, in particular, the members of the Republican Party, the strength of those feelings as reflected in election returns.

One of the contributing factors to a successful campaign is the enthusiasm which not only the higher-ups in a political party feel and show in boosting their candidates but also the enthusiasm which the average voter himself feels. This year it looks as if the enthusiasm in the Republican Party in Indiana may be lacking to some degree. Whether it will be lacking in sufficient amount to cause a major turn in voting results remains to be seen. But it is evident that with the governor of the state now seeking another office, though he has yet two years of his governorship to serve, the enthusiasm which greeted him as a gubernatorial candidate may be lost as he becomes a senatorial candidate. Though there is a regulation which prohibits the governor from seeking another office while serving as governor, the Supreme Court of Indiana has given an o.k. to Governor Handley's candidacy for the U.S. Senate; this gives a tasty morsel for the opposition to chew upon.

We know not of the legal considerations which allow the governor to seek the post being vacated by Senator William Jenner. Perhaps it is legally possible for him to seek another office, though that seems to violate the prohibiting provision. Even so, there is the matter of moral obligation to those voters who have placed him in office. It certainly should not be made a matter of criticism that a man seeks to attain high office. But what can be criticized is the manner and means by which he seeks it. Two years ago the governor took a moral pledge, as does any candidate seeking office, to serve the people for the full term of the office which he sought, barring major illness or circumstances which would force him to vacate his office. Those circumstances do not include, however, attaining another and higher political office. That pledge has been broken. An even greater moment of misfortunte is that in which Senator Jenner, a champion of a good many solid Republicans, gave his endorsement to our governor and, to some eyes, forced upon the Republican Party in Indiana the candidacy of the governor.

Certainly, here was the opportunity to become senator. But here, also, was the moment when the sincerity of a man was being tested. Can there be any question that many Indiana voters feel that they have been "deserted" or cast aside? Governor Handley would have been the recipient of far more respect as governor for the next two years than he will be (should he be elected) as a United States Senator. Even the promise from some of his supporters that he will be "another Jenner" falls dead. Indiana Republicans want the real thing, not something "just as good."

Lack of enthusiasm seems to be the lot of Republicans not only in Indiana but over the whole nation. We have a president who was elected not by Republicans but by Democrats though he ran on the Republican ticket. This may seem a good omen in some respects, that a party candidate receives support from the opposition. The exception is that such bi-party suport also indicates party platforms are becoming in some instances quite similar, governmental poliices are becoming uniform. This tendency has destroyed and is destroying the opportunity of choice which much be exercised in this country in order for representative government to exist. Much as Senator Jenner's efforts are respected by Indiana Republicans, more to be respected is the people's right to choose. Though a different set of circumstances has been evident in Indiana politics, the same result has occurred as has occurred in national politics (for Republicans, at least) - political enthusiasm has been squelched.

If Governor Handley is elected to the United States Senate this coming fall, it can be considered at least a minor miracle. For there is too much to be feared from this thought - "the office is bigger than the man."

GOOD EVENING

One of the defects in our country today is the seeming dearth in Washington of truly outstanding men in the top spots of our three branches of the Federal government. Our Supreme Court is made up mostly of legal and political second-stringers. Any respect shown them has to be on behalf of the offices they hold, not because of their individual merits as highly-intelligent, professionally-qualified men.

In both houses of Congress, there is again the same lack of outstanding leadership. There are no truly outstanding leaders in either party or in any particular camp. The liberals are as bad off as the conservatives. Those conservatives who might be outstanding leaders are either old or tired and the two add up to the same thing.

With all due respect to the President of the United States he is an amiable fellow, with a personal sense of integrity and a sincere desire for peace at home and abroad, but he is no intellectual giant. Had not the accidents of fate lifted him from a relatively low military post to the Presidency, he would today be living a retired life, possibly in a trailer down in Florida near some golf course. This is not an intended unkindness, but a statement of personal opinion.

It may just possibly be that there is a sort of anti-intellectualism in this country which resents outstanding performance in anyone and which regards mediocrity higher than excellence, and that this anti-intellectualism extends into politics as well as other things. Certainly much of the resentment which the late Senator Robert Taft encountered in many places within and without his own party was resentment over the obvious fact that plus an unusually high I.Q. he had a wealth of knowledge and experience upon which to draw in approaching any political problem.

This sort of thing amounts almost to a conspiracy to place incompetent rather than competent men in office and to inject mediocrity into situations where there should be superiority. A truly able leader today has to work almost as hard not making his leadership qualities obvious as he does in acquiring the qualities that make him a leader. Too often you find national professional groups picking their most average fellow to lead them rather than their outstanding ones. Incompetence is afraid of competence and average intellects are fearful of superior intellects. Whatever success Herbert Hoover has had in the latter years of life in improving his public relations has been due to his skillful masking of the fact that his is an outstanding brain. And, of course, he had been aided in this by the fact that he is no longer competing against anyone else.

One of these days there needs to be a revival of interest on the part of our universities in preparing more men for government service in high political offices. We may be able to afford poor local and state government where it exists, but we cannot afford poor national government in today's world when national survival is the risk in almost every day-to-day decision.

The number of men in high places in Washington who would be worth listening to by a group of college seniors wishing to learn something of value in an hour's talk would be very small.

As we have intimated this is mostly the fault of the people generally. We have become fearful of superior minds and have chosen to honor inferior ones with great responsibilities of which they are incapable.

—Clifford B. Ward in the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

Bible Material: Proverbs 23:29-35; Daniel 1:1-20; Habakkuk 2:9-16; Romans 13:11—14:-23.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 5:11-23.

IS IT FAIR?

Lesson for August 31, 1958

Even the people who talk most about social justice are often silent about one thing which readers of the Bible will find plainly there: the drink problem. It should be remembered that whiskey was invented long after Bible times. All the warnings about strong drink, in the Bible, are about wine and the equivalent of beer, the "lighter" liquors. The passage from Proverbs gives a vivid picture of personal trouble caused by such liquors. Daniel gives the story of the first total-abstinence society on record, an outstanding success on a health basis. Habakkuk the prophet lines up "giving his neighbor drink" right along with stealing and murder. Paul puts the whole thing in a new light: the truth of Christian brotherhood.

Ask A Modern-Day Question: It is Fair?

All of which raises the same question, in various ways. Isn't the use of liquor, as it is done in the United States in this 20th century, a very obvious example of social injustice? Social justice, we may remember, is just carrying into all relationships the spirit and principle of the Golden Rule. It is being fair to all concerned.

But is it fair to give a lame person a shove? Is it fair to put a stumbling block in front of the blind? Alcoholics are called "sick" and alcoholism a disease. But it is a fact that it ranks fourth in all the diseases of our nation. Alcoholism would never get a start without the background of social drinking. No drug used by "addicts" gets nearly as many people into trouble as does alcohol. Is it fair to give the weak as much of a push downhill as American society does?

Policeman's Friday Night Offers Insight Into Problem

A young minister spent his Friday nights, one summer, riding around with policemen in squad cars. With very few exceptions, the calls for help were due to drink. Family quarrels, thefts (to get money for liquor), beatings, rapes, and murders: all starting from a few friendly drinks. This young man came to the conclusion that the money put into that city's treasury by liquor licenses was more than matched by the money taken out of treasury and private funds to pay for the damages the liquor creates. It is true, that city claims to be the "whiskey capital of America" but the reader is invited to look around in his own town and figure the cost to the taxpayers of troubles caused by alcochol. Is it fair?

Movie Make-Believe Paints Problem In Wrong Color

Movies sometimes do the same kind of harm. Some years ago there was a popular series of movies featuring a husband and wife who were married both on the screen and off. In all their pictures they were a gay, happy couple. He drank "like a fish" and she drank with him and it never seemed to affect either of them. (How could it? Stage liquor is like stage money—a weak imitation of the real thing.) Not long after that, the papers reported that this actress had divorced her charming Prince Barleycorn. And for what? Doing in real life what he was paid to pretend doing in pictures: drink when he felt like it. Reel life and real life were vastly different.

DISASTERS, natural or man-made, call for immediate stocks of medical supplies and often other equipment for furnishing safe drinking water, electricity or other essentials in order to save lives and aid the victims. Civil defense stockpiles of litters and other supplies are located in 43 fully-manned U. S. warehouses for use in times of national emergency or major natural disaster on presidential approval when other supply sources are exhausted. (American Red Cross Photo)

CIVIL DEFENSE warehouse worker at Lebanon, Pa., stacks cases of medical supplies, part of a vast store kept in Office of Defense and Civilian Mobilization warehouses against the day when enemy bombs might leave millions of Americans injured. (ODCM Photo)

THIS IS A VIEW of a civil defense portion of the 14-acre underground storage facility in a converted limestone mine near Neosho, Mo. It has built-in automatic sprinklers and special ventilating equipment. The Office of Defense and Civilian Mobilization has stockpiled here for use after attack about 2,500 tons of supplies, including Army hospital cots, stretchers, and supplies and equipment for 200 complete civil defense emergency hospitals of 200 beds each. Superimposed in white is a map of ODCM storage sites across the nation at strategic locations. (ODCM Photo)

SURVIVAL STOCKPILE

ODCM Has Vast Supplies In 'Bank' If U. S. Is Hit

One of the nation's largest "bank accounts" against the possibility of enemy attack is the Office of Defense and Civilian Mobilization's stockpile of strategic materials.

Stored away in 43 ODCM warehouses across the United States are about $225,000,000 worth of medical and engineering supplies —enough to aid millions of Americans after an attack.

MEDICAL STOCKPILES include 1,932 civil defense emergency hospital units and back-up supplies estimated sufficient for the emergency medical care of 4¼ million persons for three weeks.

In the engineering stockpiles are approximately 25,000 tons of equipment and supplies. They contain material essential to restoration of public facilities — water pumps, generators, purifiers, storage tanks, pipe and similar items.

To assure that this survival "hardware" will be located where it would be most needed after an attack, ODCM has chosen warehouse sites' convenient to but outside the nation's 92 critical targets.

Among these storage sites are three "general reserve" warehouses with stockpiles designed to supply any section of the country. Most unusual of these reserve storage areas is the vast, underground warehouse in a converted limestone mine near Neosho, Mo.

IN THIS HUGE privately-owned cave, shared by ODCM with the stockpiles of industrial concerns, is 14 acres of space served by special automatic sprinkling and ventilating equipment.

DEEP WITHIN a mountain in southwestern Missouri, freight cars await unloading of civil defense equipment to be stockpiled there for use in case of enemy attack. The siding, extending 600 feet into the mountain, can accommodate 16 railroad cars simultaneously. The Office of Defense and Civilian Mobilization facility, part of a limestone mine, contains a vast array of medical supplies and "hardware" to be used in recovery operations in the event of an attack on the United States. (Courtesy Southwestern Limestone Co.)

TYPICAL UNIT of civil defense stockpiled engineering equipment showing the pumps, generators, water purifiers, and some of the miles of flexible-coupled pipe which could be used after an attack to provide a stricken community with pure water. Some of this "hardware," grouped in "Ten-Mile Units" to service ten miles of pipe each, already has been used in natural disasters to pump out flooded areas, and to bring in and purify water for towns with dry reservoirs. VOLUME LXXIII ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. Thursday, September 4, 1958 NUMBER 35

Jim Wasson Improving After Accident

The condition of James Russell Wasson, 16, of northwest of Saint Joe was reported as satisfactory Thursday morning. The boy, confined at the Lutheran Hospital in Fort Wayne, suffered serious injuries Saturday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile in front of his home. The accident occurred at 4:30 p.m.

Jim had been working with Andy Crow, 16, for the latter's father, Dick Crow. The injured youth was riding a tractor driven by Andy, towing a load of baled hay. Jim jumped off the tractor when it stopped in front of his home and ran from the right side to the left across the road. As he did so, he was struck by a car driven by Mrs. Joan Bice, 21, of New Haven. The injured youth's vision was obstructed by the load of hay and Mrs. Bice was unable to avoid hitting the boy as he suddenly appeared in front of her car. Jim was struck by the right front of the Bice car.

Injuries suffered were a broken left leg, broken nose, a slight concussion of the brain, bruises and shock. The Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department was summoned to render first aid until an ambulance arrived to take the injured boy to the hospital.

Jim is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wasson.

The John Weldners had as week end guests their granddaughter and family, the A. Fishers, of Cincinnati.

The Ladies Aid of St. Peter Lutheran Church met Thursday evening, September 4, in the church basement with Ethel and Ruth Shilling and Janice Hollabaugh as the hostess committee.

Mrs. Agnes Baker of Auburn was a holiday week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Kimes.

The Town and Country Bunco Club met at Chaney's Tuesday evening with Mrs. Roy Chaney as hostess.

We are happy to report that Mr. Roscoe Garman is much improved.

The annual McNabb Reunion was held Sunday at Eckhart Park in Auburn with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chaney and family, Mr. Glen McNabb and daughter, Joy, and Mrs. Wilda Walter of Spencerville attending.

Saturday evening supper guests of the Virgil Kimes family were Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Kimes and son of Kendallville.

Mrs. J. K. Ridgway is recuperating at her home near Spencerville following a recent operation.

Thursday to Monday guests of the Roy Chaneys were Mrs. Chaney's brother and wife, the Bernard McNabbs of Dearborn, Mich.

The Glenn Brendels were Monday guests of his sister and family, the Robert Blaisings, in Fort Wayne.

Mrs. George Doll is a patient at the Lutheran Hospital in Fort Wayne after a very severe fall at her work in Fort Wayne, from which she suffered a broken arm.

Mrs. Glenn J. Brendel and daughter, Susan, spent the week end with her parents, the E. Norrises, in Rome City.

Tuesday, after school, the Order of Rainbow for Girls began their fall activities by going to Key Lanes for bowling. Throughout this winter they will bowl regularly and hope to improve their scores. Their summer social events included a surprise birthday party for their Worthy Advisor, Phyllis Baker, at the home of Lois Fisher in June. Each guest was presented with a yellow rose corsage in a bit of net. Bingo was played and after Phyllis had opened her lovely gifts, refreshments were served. In July there was a picnic for the girls and their families at the 4-H park at Crooked Lake. August found them going to Fort Wayne for an afternoon of miniature golf and then eating out before returning home. These events were in addition to their two regular meetings each month.

Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Zimmerman attended the 741st Army Engineers convention ed at the Washington Hotel at Indianapolis last week end.

The body of Lavon Baker, 55, of Spencerville was sent to Tennessee Saturday morning from the Baidinger-Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville. Mr. Baker, an employee of the Universal Tool Co. in Butler, died Friday morning in Souder Hospital in Auburn where he had been a patient for five days with a heart ailment. Survivors include the widow, Minnie; four daughters, Mrs. William Bishop of Spencerville, Mrs. R. L. Kugler of La-Otto, Miss Caroline Baker of Auburn and Mrs. William Hamilton of Fort Wayne; two sons, James and Thomas of Spencerville; four grandchildren; and a sister, Mrs. Forrest Ridenour of Ligonier. Funeral services were conducted Sunday in Somerville, Tenn. Burial was at Laconia, Tenn.

Fairfield Meese, a former resident of Saint Joe now living in California, is visiting friends in this area. Mr. Meese was born and raised here before leaving Saint Joe in 1911. The last time he visited Saint Joe was in 1919. He finds the town quite different in many respects but is having fairly good success in locating old friends with whom he enjoyed his hoyhood.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Means and Mrs. Lela Northrup of Saint Joe, Walter Means of Fort Wayne and Sadie Coy of Auburn spent Sunday in the Ray Means home.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clauser spent Wednesday and Thursday at the State Fair.

The DeKalb County Farm Bureau directors met for the August meeting at the Farm Bureau building in Auburn Monday night. A copy of road resolutions were given each township chairman. Election of officers for the October meeting was discussed. Tax school will be held in the court house September 10 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The annual meeting will be held Octiber 23 at 8 p.m. at the court house. A district meeting will be held at Columbia City 4-H building October 24 from 10 a.m. to 3 p. m. All membership drive workers are urged to attend. Plans were made for a Farm Bureau booth at the fair. On September 11 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. the community leaders flower show will be held at St. John's Reformed Church, Fort Wayne. The next board meeting will be held September 16 because of the county fair.

Beginning - New Historical Series

The News begins a new feature with this issue, a series of incidents from American history entitled, "This Week In American History." The feature is written by William Brodie.

Each week an incident of American historical fact will be presented, incidents selected to correspond with the publication week of this paper. The first of the series takes the date September 5, 1774, and presents an interesting and brief account of one of the facts of history that make the background of today's America.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

FIRST CONTINENTAL CONGRESS

A very important meeting began in colonial Philadelphia on Monday, September 5, 1774. Fifty five delegates attended. They came from all the colonies except far-away Georgia. They met and held their sessions, lasting seven weeks in Carpenter's Hall down at Fourth and Chestnut Street. They were the members of the First Continental Congress.

The delegates were meeting to consider grievances against the English government, and steps to correct them. Outstanding men of the colonies were there, among them Samuel and John Adams from Massachusetts, and Patrick Henry and Richard Henry Lee from Virginia. George Washington was also there, wearing his uniform.

Congress was meeting at a time of terrific tension. The stage had already been set for the outbreak of conflict at Lexington and Concord the following spring. The British Parliament had clamped down the four Intolerable Acts on Massachusetts. The port of Boston had been closed. The Massachusetts charter had been annulled. Persons accused of crime against British authority were to be sent to England for trial. It was now legal to quarter troops in any town in Massachusetts.

Massachusetts appealed to the other colonies for aid. From Maine to Georgia came support through the "Committees of Correspondence" that had been set up. United action through a central authority was needed. The call went out for an intercolonial meeting and the date and place set for September 5, 1774 at Philadelphia for the First Continental Congress.

Peyton Randolph, the big, cheerful Speaker of the Virginia House of Burgesses, was chosen as President of the Congress. Charles Thomson of Philadelphia was made Secretary. The delegates agreed to vote by provincial units, each having one vote. There were conservatives led by Joseph Galloway from Pennsylvania, and radicals led by Samuel Adams of Massachusetts.

The Congress condemned the Intolerable Acts as unconsitutional and tyrannical. It approved defense measures for the colonies. It adopted the "Continental Association" boycott against British goods. On September 17 the Congress, led by the radicals, endorsed the "Suffolk Resolutions" from Suffolk County in Massachusetts. These resolutions, urging defiance against British laws, demanding arming of the people's militia, and economic sanctions against England, were carried to Philadelphia by Paul Revere, the ever-ready messenger on horseback.

On October 14 the Congress approved a "Declaration of Rights." And after preparing an address to the king and to the English and American people, The First Continental Congress adjourned on October 26, resolved to meet a second time on May 10, 1775 if their grievances had not been redressed.

The overall effect of this Congress was to push the colonies farther along the road to rebellion. Also, the people of the colonies began to think of themselves as Americans, rather than colonials. Patrick Henry summed up this feeling at the first session. "Government is dissolved," he said. "We are in a state of nature. The distinctions between Virginians, Pennsylvanians, New Yorkers and New Englanders are no more. I am not a Virginian, but an American!"

THE DAY'S WORK

Lesson for September 7, 1958

Can we talk of social justice and our jobs at the same time? If we can't we must admit that social justice will not work where perhaps it is more needed than in most places; it won't work where we spend most of our waking time, in that area of life than means so much to us: namely our jobs. Take away a man's job and you have destroyed the basis of his self-respect. Take his job and you leave him rootless, a drifter, unhappy and without meaning in a world that can find no use for him.

"Work, or don't eat"

When we turn to the Bible we should expect to find that the book which says so much about social justice (remember, the name is not important but the thing is!) would give some hints about how this principle of all-around fairness affects the day's work of men and women. And such is the case. The Apostle Paul, one of the "workingest" men that ever lived, had a problem church at Thesalonica. The Christians there had somehow got the notion that the end of this world was right around the corner. They were like people working in a field when a tornado is moving across the prairie; they take a lot more interest in the tornado than in finishing the job. So these people had quit their jobs and were living, it seems, on their good-natured and still working friends. Paul moved right into that situation with a sharp order, "If any one will not work, let him not eat." Work in short, is part of a Christian's duty. The world does not owe anybody a living, no matter how pious he is.

What's wrong here?

The Sabbath Commandment does not start with the Sabbath. It starts with the other six days: "Six days you shall labor. . ." Old Testament and New alike set up work as part of the "whole duty of man."

But—here is where trouble begins. In our society as at present organized, it often happens that a man who wants to work can't. Farmers sometimes have a hard time understanding that this is so. A farmer can find more to be done than he can do, year in year out. But the factory worker, the professional man, doesn't always find it so simple. The factory has a lay-off, or merges with another one, or just closes down. Thousands of men and women in a distant state can be thrown out of work by one decision in a New York office. As for the professional man, in hard times he does not have the clients he used to have. His expenses go on, his debts pile up, but his patients (if he is a doctor, for example) don't pay, they can't pay because they are out of work. So it may come about that literally millions of people, the highly educated and trained as well as countless unskilled workers, find themselves either working for nothing or not having a chance to work at all.

"Do it with your might"

The wise reader will reflect on many other ways in which social justice and the day's work are related. But lest we forget, we must call to mind another important side to this. Suppose I get what the world really owes me—not a living, but the chance to make a living; suppose I have a job, then what? Society has fulfilled its part by making work possible for me. What is my part now? One thing surely is that I should give the job everything I've got. Social justice means seeing that no man is jobless.

Social justice also means that no man with a job lies down on it.

There are certain industries where the "workers" have things so well sewn up that it is almost impossible to fire a man unless he actually gets drunk on the job. It is surely social injustice to demand a job and at the same time demand to hold it whether one really works at it or not. Social justice, applied to the day's work, isn't all the responsibility of society—it is the responsibilty of the workers as well. A Christian, especially, shows the genuineness of his Christianity by the way he goes about his day's work.

CONCORD JR. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Concord Junior Home Demonstration Club met August 4 at the home of Eunice Rennecker with Phyllis Uehlein serving as co-hostess.

The president, Phyllis Uehlein, called the meeting to order. Edna Perkins led the song of the month, "There's Somethin' Bout the Air In Indiana." The club collect was repeated by the group. Devotions were given by Hazel Schrader. Special leaders gave reports. The secretary's report was read and approved. Roll call was answered by 10 members with "last of garden recipes."

Edna Perkins gave a report on roadside council. Pennies march was collected. The club dismissed by singing the club prayer.

Dorothy Fetters and Doris Prentice had the entertainment for the evening. The hostess and co-hostess served a delicious lunch.

A fine of $1 and costs and a six-months suspended sentence were given Jose Dias, 25, Wednesday at Auburn as a result of his arrest early Sunday morning. The Mexican citizen was caught by Dick Loucks as the former left the D&H Tavern with 8 bottles of beer after the establishment had been closed after the midnight Indiana Saturday curfew.

Investigation by the sheriff's department showed that a rear door had been forced open at the rear of the tavern. The arrest of Dias followed the apprehension of Dias as he left the tavern with the 8 bottles of liquid refreshments. Dias has been employed during the summer as a pickle picker in this area.

PTA To Open Year With Social 'Ice Breaker' And Entertainment

The first meeting of the 1958-59 year for the Riverdale P.T.A. will be held next Tuesday evening, September 16, in the high school gym at Saint Joe. Meeting time is 7:30 p.m.

Ted Haberkorn, president of the organization, announced this week that Tuesday's meeting will be a combination "Meet the Teacher and Meet the Parent" social. Each member of the faculty will be identified by a name card as will the parents who attend the meeting. There are several new members on the Riverdale faculty and the name cards will assist parents in recognizing those teachers whom their sons and daughters have in daily class instruction. In a like manner, the teachers will be helped in identifying students with the parents during the informal get-acquainted social hour following a short business meeting.

During the social hour refreshments of donuts, coffee and milk will be served.

Assisting in the planning of the social meeting are Mrs. Robert Musser and principals Joe Smith and Howard Hill.

Introduction of the faculty will be made during the meeting by the two Riverdale principals.

The Riverdale school band will play several selections to open the meeting, under the direction of Mr. Robert Lowry.

As a special entertainment attraction, Miss Karen Woodard of Payne, Ohio, will present her novelty baton twirl and dance routine. Miss Woodard has appeared in several amateur talent contest in the area winning several high placings. She recently won the Harlan Days Talent Contest.

Patrons of the Riverdale schools are urged to attend Tuesday's meeting and make themselves known to the faculty of the school.

Local Churches Win Softball League Trophies

In the play-offs of the Saint Joe Church League, completed the last week of August, Saint Joe Church of Christ defeated Mt. Pleasant to win the championship trophy. The Saint Joe team came through the season undefeated.

This year's sportsmanship trophy was won by the team from St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe.

A meeting of the league was held last week and election of officers brought the following results:

Burmell Walter, president.

Lewis Walter, vice president.

Lavon Hart, secretary-treasurer.

A discussion was held concerning a switch to hardball from softball in the league next year. No action was taken on the change with further discussion to be held at a later meeting.

The outgoing president, Pete Timmerman, expressed his appreciation to those who assisted in the operation of the league during the past season.

Cong. Adair To Visit Auburn Monday

Fourth District Representative E. Ross Adair is making his customary tour of the counties he serves. The tour began September 9 at Bluffton and will conclude with his visit at Garrett on September 16.

Because of the lateness of Congressional adjournment it was neressary to streamline the tour of the counties in the Fourth District.

Constituents throughout the district have been asked to meet with Cong. Adair to discuss legislative or governmental problems when he is in their neighborhood. He will be at various post offices in the counties during the official tour.

Upon completion of the tour Cong. Adair will open his district office in Room 310 Federal Building, Fort Wayne.

Cong. Adair will be in Auburn Monday, September 15, from 9:30 a.m. until noon.

On Tuesday, September 16, he will be at Garrett from 3:30 p.m. until 5 p.m.

Language To the Fore

With the dawn of the space age apparently at hand, and the problems which accompany its coming, there should be an even more conscientious approach to the field of education than that which has been utilized before. With the possibility of space travel, a new field of transportation as yet somewhat unbelievable but conceivable, there will come an accompanying acceptance of intercontinental travel as an everyday occurrence. There is a normal pattern of accepting as commonplace that which has been considered rare, in the face of a new discovery or development in some general field. For instance, in the days of the caveman, a distance of a mile was a distance of quite some length. With the growth of civilization and the improvement in methods of raising food and the greater congregating of people into communities, the field of travel expanded though yet on a still quite limited basis. As man trained the horse to carry him, the scope of travel widened, but a journey of one hundred miles was a rarity. With transportation then bringing forth the automobile and its improvements, the railroad, the first airplanes and passenger liners, one hundred miles became nothing; but not everyone could or would travel to a foreign land. And so now, with the possibility of interplanetary travel looming before us, it seems that those journeys which we consider today as something to talk about - a trip to South America, a trip to Europe, a trip to any continent other than our own - those journeys will become as commonplace in the future (how distant?) as is a Sunday drive of 50, 60, 70, 100 or more miles for dinner and sight-seeing today.

This may seem to be highly imaginative train of thought. But it is only a matter of ten years or so since the idea of jet airplanes was also highly imaginative, something somewhat inconceivable. Today jets are the accepted fact. As far as military aircraft are concerned, propellor-driven aircraft are now quite quaint!

So, if we let ourselves imagine a little further, we will see that with greater travel by all segments of the population in the future, one of the first problems to be overcome is that of people of one nation being unable to understand people of another nation: in other words, the language barrier. If there is to be the greatest benefit derived from our future contacts with foreign peoples, it will be necessary for the cultural side of life to be cultivated. Americans will need to concern themselves with learning at least a basic understanding of other languages, and the more the better.

Certainly it is not possible for Mr. Average American to become a learned interpreter, able to converse no matter what language may be spoken. But the knowledge of one or two languages in addition to English cannot help but be a great force in overcoming the misunderstandings which can and could arise over native customs, laws, etc. Knowing the language helps to know the people.

Americans today are fearful of the possibility of being "behind" in scientific knowledge, of being overwhelmed because our output of scientific personnel does not match that of our competitors, the Russians. "Power" is the by-word, even though fundamentally America is not power-minded. We become afraid of what our competitor does. Even though what he does is what we preach against, we stoop to his measures to some extent. We attempt by all means, even those of our lawless competitors, to prevent all human suffering, yet fundamentally believing that human suffering is necessary in preserving man's freedom. Physical strength, the tool of our competitor, becomes our tool. By the same means which he uses to control people, we seek to free them. Forgotten is human understanding. Forgotten is the fact that common people are more capable of understanding one another through one another rather than through a few diplomats. And forgotten is the fact that understanding of language is the prime step in the relationships between the common people.

So it would appear that going off the deep end in pursuit of scientific know-how is not the proper approach to lasting peace. We can and will have scientists capable of the greatest advancements possible as long as there is the opportunity to think for oneself and to have the challenge of competition ever at hand. With a free mind a man seeks to improve himself; and as long as he does scientific knowledge advances. If it is true that our nation is "behind" Russia in scientific developments, is it not possible that this is the result of depriving science of its freedom by turning over to government more and more control of advanced scientific development?

Would we not, then be improving ourselves for the benefit of all by being as concerned for knowledge of foreign language as we are for knowledge of higher mathematics and science? Should we not be adjusting our educational system to provide more language study and start this study at a lower level than the high school age group? It appears that there will be more gained in the world of tomorrow (5, 10, 15, 25 years) by language study by our youth than by courses which they take only to fill their daily schedule. Language study is virtually on the threshhold of becoming a necessity rather than remaining in its present standing as an elective.

SACRILEGIOUS BLASPHEMY

Over and over again you are urged to bring your family and attend Bible School and Church. Frequently, we feel that some people believe that we are being "overly religious" in doing so. The other day an editorial appeared in the June 15, 1958, edition of Action Magazine and it is the best example I know that shows the great need for religious training today. This is what happens when the Word of God is neglected and disregarded. The editorial is as follows:

"Youthful Blasphemy

"In a Methodist youth magazine called Contact there recently appeared a paraphrase of the Lord's Prayer which shocked us. Undoubtedly many good Methodists got the same reaction.

"It seems that the Methodist Youth Fellowship in the Barstow (Calif.) First Methodist Church, with the evident approval of its ministerial staff, decided to pep up the ancient petition so that modern youth could appreciate it. The result:

" 'Oh, Daddy O, Who art the Most, hurray for your support. My personality integrate, all physiques develop, my nervous system calm in body as in mind. Prepare me new tempo, our daily jive, and release us from parents and other repressed individuals. Lead us into more self-expression and much less boredom; for you are the coolest, gonest and hepest drive from now on. Amen.'

"What kind of religious training have such young people been given? Have they been so utterly abandoned by their so-called spiritual leaders to the pressures of worldliness that they have lost their respect for sacred things? Is there no rebuke for sacrilegious blasphemy? If this represents the results of 'religious education' in Barstow, it is time the Methodist Church there put up the sign 'Ichabod' over its door and quit business."

—J. Paul Hill, Minister, Coburn Corners Church of Christ.

HUMAN ABOVE ANIMALS

Members of Congress have been deluged in recent weeks with letters favoring a bill (H.R. 8308) which provides for the establishment of humane methods of slaughtering livestock. The bill if enacted specifies that after December 31, 1959 Federal agencies would purchase livestock products only from meat packers who use humane methods approved by the Secretary of Agriculture. This measure was introduced during the last sessession and passed the House.

Support for this measure comes mostly from well-meaning but shortsighted people who have only the welfare of the livestock at heart and not that of the livestock industry.

While the proposed bill as written would affect only packers, farmers see it as an opening wedge to broader interpretation which could easily double the cost of livestock production and increase the cost of meat to consumers.

GRANDPA'S BOY, LAUNCELOT — By BRAD ANDERSON

On a voluntary basis, several large meat packers are using humane methods of slaughter. They are gassing hogs with carbon dioxide to desensitize them before "sticking" them, and they are using a captive bolt pistol to stun cattle before their throats are cut to drain the blood. There are indications that these humane methods are already paying off through fewer bruised hams and other parts of the carcass. It should be pointed out, however, that while the bolt pistol costs only $200, the cost of a carbon dioxide installation may run to $40,000.

Assuming the packer could adapt to this humane killing method with no additional cost to consumers, there is still a real danger in this or similar legislation. The danger is to farmers and consumers.

If livestock must be slaughtered "humanely" in the packing plant (incidentally, poultry is not included), why shouldn't it be handled or killed humanely on the farm or in the glue factory? Such questions would probably follow. This would mean that farmers would have to desensitize pigs when they remove their tusks, vaccinate them, castrate them or butcher them at home. Cattle and calves wolud have to be given a "hypo" before they could be dehorned, branded, tested for TB or Bang's or before they could be killed for home consumption.

It is highly unlikely that farmers would be permitted to handle the drugs needed in these processes, so a veterinarian's services would be required. Aside from the terrific cost of such, it is doubtful that our veterinarians could find enough time to perform all the services when needed.

The additional cost, both in time and in money, to the livestock producer for such "humane" activities would have to be paid by someone, either the producer or the consumer. Very likely the farmer would be stuck with it, thus further reducing his already small profit.

It should be remembered by those concerned with the welfare of animals that farmers are the ones who give better care to more animals on a regular basis than any other group. It is a business with them, and one that consumers urgently need to encourage.

It is shortsighted to legislate additional expense onto the livestock industry, when farmers need all the encouragement they can get.

Placing livestock's comfort for a split-second above the permanent welfare of all who eat meat makes about as much sense as heaping curses on the sheriff's head when he kills rabid dogs which have bitten children. If we are to maintain our national sanity in these troubled times, we must place the welfare of human life above the split-second comfort of animals.

—Hoosier Farmer, July 1958.

BEHOLD, THE EDITOR!

A child is born to a mercant in town. The physician getteth 10 plunks. The editor writeth a stick and a half and telleth the multitude that the child tippeth the beam at nine pounds. Yeah, he lieth even as a centurion. And the proud father giveth him a White Owl.

Behold, the young one groweth up and graduateth. And the editor putteth into his paper a swell notice. He telleth of her exceeding comliness. Like unto the Roses of Sharon is she, and her gown is played up to beat the band.

And the dressmaker geteth two score and four iron men. And the editor geteth a note of thanks from the sweet girl graduate.

And the daughter goeth on a journey. And the editor throweth himself on the story of the farewell party. It runneth a column solid. And the fair one remembereth him from afar with a post card that costeth six for a jitney.

Behold, she returneth! And the youth of the town fall down and worship. She picketh one, and lo, she picketh a lemon. But the editor calleth him one of our promising young men and geteth away with it. And they send unto the editor a bid to the wedding. And behold, the bids are fashioned in a far city.

Flowery and long the wedding notice which the editor printeth. The minister geteth 10 bones. The groom standeth the editor off for a 12 months subscription.

All flesh is grass, and in time the wife is gathered unto the soil. The minister geteth his bit. The editor printeth a death notice, two columns of obituary, three lodge notices, a cubit of poetry, and a card of thanks.

And the editor forgeteth to read proof on the head, and the darn thing cometh out: "Gone To Her Last Roasting Place."

And all that are akin to the deceased jumpeth on the editor with exceedingly great jumps. And they pulleth out their ads and cancelleth their subs, and they swing the hammer even unto the third and fourth generations.

PEGLER EXPOSED IT LONG AGO

George Q. Lynch, president of the Pattern Makers League—one of the small and respectable and aristocratic unions of the Labor movement—has called on the AFL-CIO to apologize publicly to Westbrook Pegler for its defamations of Mr. Pegler over years since he first exposed rottenness and the crookedness and corruption and crime in certain portions of the labor movement. Mr. Lynch's demand for the apology is contained in an editorial to be printed in his own union's official publication. It was made available to Mr. Pegler in advance and printed in his column on this page yesterday. It brought out that the systems of evil in labor leadership now being exposed so fully were revealed by Mr. Pegler 15 or more years ago.

Neither George Meany, President of the AFL-CIO, nor any other of the top leaders of union labor today are going to apologize to Mr. Pegler. It is not "expedient" for them to admit now the rottenness that existed or their own part in tolerating and covering it up where possible. And an apology would change nothing.

But it is well that the American people should know that Mr Pegler exposed the rottenness and crookedness and corruption at the top levels of some portions of union labor 15 to 20 years ago. His exposures sent some people to prison, but too often the public and Congress and state legislatures and other officials hastily ran the other way after reading Mr. Pegler's revelations. Labor leadership merely called names and deplored "this persecution" when they should have been prosecuting or helping in that direction.

Such details as the individual skulduggery of Dave Beck, Sr., and Dave Beck, Jr., and Jimmy Hoffa were not exposed by Mr. Pegler 15 years ago because this skulduggery had not been committeed at that time. But the corrupt systems existed and the same type of skulduggery was committeed by others and Mr. Pegler exposed it from A to Z. Now the big credit goes to the McClellan Senate Committee and to various other investigating agencies. But the real credit belongs to Westbrook Pegler. Nothing can change that.

HERE'S THE ROAD TO ABSOLUTE SECURITY

We are spending money with one hand to build up what we are energetically tearing down with the other. The fact that we are doing both these things in the name of national security apparently makes them acceptable at home, however confusing they may be abroad.

So long as we follow our present course, $39 billion—or $100 billion—cannot buy security. Money can perhaps buy defense. But security is a matter of moral fiber—a personal willingness to face life's hazards with confidence. No legislature can decree a state of public self-assurance.

In this country's recent past, no legislature needed even to try.

We were then a self-reliant people. We stood erect, bending over only to seize our own bootstraps and tug ourselves a notch nearer our personal destiny. We were brash, rude, uncultured, uncouth by European standards, but we built railroads and cities and private fortunes—and private debts. We grew into and across the Indian country where safety depended on the Sharp's rifle over the mantel and a distant cavalry troop which Congress sometimes forgot to pay. We accepted responsibility for our own aged, our own infirm, and our own mistakes.

We were not necessarily happy, because we had problems. But we had little time to grieve. Many of us died poor. Most of us died young.

But we died free.

And, in dying, we attained the only absolute security that any living thing can ever reach.

Today our national policy seems to accept that the spirit of self-sufficiency is dead — or perhaps ought to be

A casual glance at laws passed or proposed gives evidence of the governmental belief that nobody who depends on his own resources can do anything.

Government will, or wants to, help farmers, small businessmen, students, the aged, the disabled, the poorly housed, the lowly paid, the veterans. It is eager to build sewers and dams and power lines and bomb shelters.

It is ready to guide the setting of prices, prescribe courses of action.

It is equally ready with equalizing taxation and stigmatizing scrutiny to discourage those who rise too high or grow too big.

Such policies may improve national comfort, or happiness or complacency, but to urge them as necessary to national security is a misuse of language.

In life, as in modern traffic, no person can be secure. Alertness, skill and acquaintance with the nature of danger, can increase safety in traffic. They can also increase safety in life where the risks increase with the importance of the enterprise.

Since the nation is really a group of persons, it follows that the safest nation is that one with the most alert and skillful body of citizens.

Any government policy which purposes to remove the need for alertness or the need for skill, not only fails to increase national security—it weakens national safety.

GOD IN BUSINESS

Lesson for September 14, 1958

Where can we find God? In church, yes; in the great out-of-doors, yes. In prayer in the quiet room, or under the mighty far-off stars. God is everywhere.

But is God in Business? We don't mean, is God doing business. He always is, of course. We mean, is God in the business life of our time? Is he on the stock exchange, is he in attendance at board meetings of great corporations, is he in the little country stores, is he in horse trades or on used-car lots? "The Economy" is a phrase used so often nowadays that even teen-agers must know in general what it means. "The Economy" is today's jargon for all the financial doings that keep our industrial and agricultural wheels going, the word includes those four pillars of all business anywhere any time: production, marketing, accounting and finance. Is God in the economy of America?

Simple Honesty

Now it might be that not a reader of this column is a "business man." For all that, every reader is engaged in business some way or other part of the time. "Money isn't everything, but money's into everything." If we live, breathe and eat groceries, we are connected, more or less, with the vast web of buying, selling, owning, renting, earning, spending (yes and wasting, which is economics gone mad), all of which we lump together under the head of "The Economy" or just "economic life." Let us think not of something big, something a congressman might plan for. Let us thing of economics on Main Street, at the supermarket, on the bus, maybe our few dollars at the bank. Let's forget about the hundred-dollar bills and think about small change.

Are we honest about all these things? Does our religion affect the way we price what we have to sell (if only a few eggs or bales of hay)? Do we make honest statements about what we buy and sell? The command of God is: "Thou shall not steal." Nothing is said about "Thou shall not steal a whole lot," or "Thou shall not steal unless thou canst get by with it". Taking any kind of advantage of any other person (or corporation, for that matter) so that they are the poorer for what you did, is stealing.

Is It a Sin To Be Rich?

There are so many condemnations of rich people in the Bible that some readers of it have the impression that God condemns rich people just because they are rich. This is not true. A more careful reading shows that whenever a wealthy person is denounced in the name of God, it isn't because of his wealth, by itself. There are too many highly-praised persons of wealth in the Bible to allow us to believe that wealth is a sin, period. The point is not: how much do you have, or what is the amount, in dollars, which is the limit a good Christian can have? The point is: how did you get what you have? Jesus' brother James calls down doom on certain rich farmers, not because they had money but because their wealth was gained by underpaying their hired men. Making money by making men poor is stealing, and sin.

Is This Spirit Possible?

Saint Peter gives us what is better than a rule: he tells us the right kind of spirit that a Christian ought to have. Our gifts, he writes, are to be employed "for one another"; service is to be rendered in such as to glorify God. We all feel that this is the right spirit for "church work." But is it practicable to take this same spirit into business, into our economic life? Is it possible, in business transactions, to serve one another for the glory of God? This is a vital question. If we have to say No, it is not practicable, then we are saying that we can be Christian only in our leisure time, not our workingtime. If we want to live as Christians around the clock, throughout the week, then we shall have to think out ways in which we can carry this spirit of devotion to God and man into the dollars-and-cents world. Can it be done? Each reader is challenged to make the experiment.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

DEATH OF WILLIAM WALKER

On the morning of September 12, 1860 William Walker died before a firing squad on the tropical beach of Trujillo, Honduras, in Central America. It was the end of the greatest American filibuster.

Five feet, five inches tall, weighing 125 lbs., he looked like a little school teacher. Yet in his day William Walker was a hero to most Americans. There was popular appeal and romance in the way he fought through to power, even if short-lived.

Walker was born in Nashville, Tennessee in 1824. As a youth he was a sissy, studious and a bookworm. He was never to use tobacco or liquor, and he always behaved like a gentleman, even when he led some of the roughest adventurers. Nothing about the appearance of this little man with the light hair and pale face full of yellow freckles, who spoke a nasal drawl and seldom smiled, would have indicated leadership — nothing except his eyes. They were large and blue-gray and burned with an almost supernatural light. People were spellbound by his eyes which seemed to reflect his great faith in his own star of destiny as a leader.

His first opportunity came in 1853 before he was thirty. He was in California at the time, practising law at Marysville. A filibustering expedition with Walker as leader sailed from San Francisco and landed in Lower California to set up an independent republic with Walker as "President." Soon afterwards he "annexed" the state of Sonora, Mexico. But the United States Government cut off shipments of supplies and men, and this adventure came to a quick end.

Two years later with another group of adventurers Walker went to Nicaragua where he took the side of a revolutionary party. His troops won victories, took possession of the capital, then Walker became Secretary of War. A year later he took over the country and had himself elected President. One of his first official acts was to reestablish slavery in Nicaragua, where it had not existed for many years.

The new government was recognized by the United States. Walker seemed to have achieved his goal. But he made the mistake of taking sides against Cornelius Vanderbilt in a struggle for control of the American-owned transit company engaged in transportation between Atlantic and Pacific ports. Vanderbilt's agents helped to build a Central American alliance against Walker and cut off his supplies. With no outside aid, and surrounded by enemy forces, Walker was defeated after two years in power. He surrendered in May, 1857 to Commander Charles Davis of the U.S. Navy whose ship was patrolling the Nicaraguan coast.

In November of the same year Walker slipped out of New Orleans on a ship with another force and landed on the Nicaraguan coast. There he was quickly arrested by another American naval officer and brought back to the States again.

Walker was to try once more. He had visions of himself as an empire-builder. His last attempt was made in the summer of 1860. This time he was stopped by Captain Norvell Salmon of the British naval patrol who arrested Walker on the coast of Honduras as he was trying to make his way into Nicaragua.

The British officer guaranteed protection to Walker's men. But on a technicality, stubborn Walker, who still claimed to be President of Nicaragua, was turned over to the Honduran authorities. At last his enemies had him firmly in their grasp.

They led William Walker out after sunrise to the level sand along the beach. He went quietly and courageously, and faced the firing squad with head held high. They laid William Walker's body in a shallow grave under a palm tree, all his dreams of empire buried with him.

HIS WORK'S NOT ALL "OFFAL" — San Francisco — Artist Dante Pessagno, applies paint to canvas while at work in the yard of his brother's home. Pessagno, 44, came to San Francisco from Italy in 1954. His brother Aldo was already here — well established and a stockholder in the Scavengers Protective Association, a group of garbage men, and a hardy worker on the refuse trucks. Dante joined him and went to work too, then had to stop work because of a cut on the hand. At just about that time — the Scavengers completed their new office building and needed some decorations. Aldo mentioned Dante for the job, and after seeing his work, members of the Association decided to let Dante paint for his salary instead of hauling rubbish. Pessagno works in oils, in water colors, and in India ink. He has completed a mural map of San Francisco for the Scavengers' lobby, and several scenes of his native Italian countryside for the offices in the building.

LO! He was taken to Fort Wayne Saturday after a diagnosis of polio was made.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Clauser and daughters, Joyce Ann and Sandra Lee, of South Bend, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Liechty and daughter, Dianne Kay of Berne, and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Baker and daughter, Cynthia Ann, and Mrs. Rossie Watt of Saint Joe were Sunday dinner guests of the Warren Clauser family.

On Sunday, September 7, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Jarrett entertained to a pot luck dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Curie the following people: Mrs. Cora Curie, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Mavis, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Bevington and Cindy and Steve, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Jump, Mr. and Mrs. George Frederick and Mary Jane and Billy, Mr. and Mrs. Garold Cook and Ann, Kay and Jane, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Brown and Larry, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Curie and Charles and Leota, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Evans and Johnnie and Janet, and Robert Jarrett. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Curie were afternoon callers.

Judy Furnish, Mary Vinson and Frances Waters were Wednesday visitors of Jim Wasson who is recovering at home from injuries suffered in a recent accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Jarrett called on Andrew Ward and Jerry Emenhiser at Parkview Hospital Monday. They chose the wrong visiting hours to be able to see Mrs. Ray Littlefield and infant son.

Jerry Emenhiser is improving though not too comfortably, following the grafting of skin on severely burned areas. He suffered the injuries in an explosion at his home recently.

MIXED LINE-UP — At her Kennels, near Petworth (Sussex), Mrs. M. Hazelman breeds dogs of all shapes and sizes, but every one an aristocrat. Several champions have been produced at these kennels, appropriately called The Variety Kennel. Now being brought up there is yet another "breed" a young lamb named "Daisy May" which was one of triplets born on a nearby farm. After being abandoned by it's mother, the lamb was given to Mrs. Hazleman and is now quite "at home" with the dogs.

BACK TO SCHOOL — Actor Ricardo Montalban receives a kiss from two of his children Anita 9, and Victor 6, while Mark 10, and Laura 11 look on. The children left for Los Angeles VIA an American Airlines flite to go back to school. Ricardo was on hand to see them off.

THE RAINS CAME — Searcy, Ark. — A bumper crop of bumbershoots fills a hallway at Harding College in Searcy, Ark., where it's not a fit day out for man nor coed. With all the criticism leveled at U.S. education lately, it's reassuring to note that the students know enough to come in out of the rain.

CLEVELAND, Ohio — After nearly matching the world's record for consecutive Caesarian births, Mrs. Thomas B. Murray proudly shows off her 10th child delivered by this surgical technique. The new baby, named Ruth Ann after her mother, was delivered by Dr. E. P. Monaghan, who has been the chief physician at all 10 operations. Two American mothers share the world's record with 11 Caesarian-delivered children apiece.

STEP CHILD — London — On her toes, this pony-tailed youngster demonstrates her dancing skill at the "cradle" of British ballet, the Rambert School of Dancing in London. The dancer, upstaging another child whose arm and face appear behind her, may be a celebrated ballerina of the future if she can stand the ten to fourteen years of instruction at the school, where many stars of ballet started.

GOING 'GATOR — Cleveland — An unusual cargo for a wheelbarrow, even in a zoo, is this 400-pound alligator named Albert. Since Albert has a tendency to wander away unless he is watched, reptile keeper Mike Tunauckas of the Cleveland Zoo, gave him and the other 'gators a lift when they had their "coming out" for the summer months.

AZUSA, Calif. — Six Chesapeake Bay retreiver pups suddenly found themselves in dire circumstances when their mother died during their birth. However the ingenuity of owners, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Goldston of Azusa, resulted in the construction of the device pictured here. An example of contentment are Suzy, Duke, Pat, Mike, Radar and Queenie.

RUSSIAN SPACEMAN — Stuttgart, Germany — It looks as though the Russians have succeeded in putting a man in orbit, as this Cossack dancer makes like Superman. He's caught in mid-flight during a performance of the Omsk Choir and Dance Group at Stuttgart, West Germany.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Fairfield Meese, better known as "Skeet," has been playing host to several townspeople in the past few weeks as he takes them to lunch and passes along his bits of information about the town of Saint Joe from 'way back in the early 1900's. I've been the recipient of his benevolence a few times and remarked about it this week. He said, "Well, I figured if I took the editor to lunch, maybe he'd say something about me in the paper." So the bribery has paid off.

On Wednesday morning "Skeet," Ralph Sechler, Derwood Ridgway, Frank Sechler and I were conversing at the News Office. The old-timers were tossing about some of their enjoyable experiences when they were kids. Some of the recollections come quicker as a result of remembering nicknames, such as that of Mr. Meese, and it pointed out a similar pattern of nicknaming in these parts yet today.

From "Skeet's" accounts of some of the affairs of those good old days, it sounds as if a familiar trio was made up of him, Derwood Ridgway and Casey Williams. He has told of the difficulties the boys had one time in collecting for some of their labors. The muck field across from the school was put out in onions by someone whose identity isn't quite certain. But the above three boys were hired to top the onions at a specified rate. They worked like beavers and each had two dollars pay coming for the work performed. The onion grower balked at paying the boys for their hard work, explaining that it was too much money for what they had done. Evidently the boys' fathers or somebody cornered the onion man thereafter, because the boys later got their money.

They used to go swimming at a swimming hole close to the cemetery. There was a rope from a tree and they would swing out over the water and somersault into the river. The guy that could do a double somersault was really somebody. And there was a ladies swimming hole, too, I understand, and some story about tying clothes in knots. But the president of the town board would like to squelch that one, I believe.

It's quite an enjoyable experience to have someone like "Skeet" come back to Saint Joe from out of the past and renew old acquaintances and relive those boyhood days. I get a bang out of those stories about the local lads. They're interesting — and could be blackmail material sometime in the future.

From what I can remember of my school days, there wasn't any year in which I was glad to get back to school. Perhaps my parents know differently, they remember what I did better than I do from those early days. But what I do remember is what is probably the typical boy's opinion on the subject — "I hate it." I don't even remember that other kids were glad to get back, not like some of our Saint Joe youngsters appeared to be when the first day of school was at hand a couple of weeks ago. They didn't have to catch the bus until around 9 o'clock on registration day and, m'gosh, here were groups wandering around the stores shortly after 8 a.m. They seemed to be reflecting a joy at going back to school, some of them starting school as first graders. The younger generation is often thought of as somewhat below the past generations. But from what was seen on the streets of Saint Joe on opening day, I'd say the kids have it all over my bunch of companions and myself as far as attitude toward school is concerned. They must have parties every day or something. Who the heck could like school???

How tempus fugits sometimes hits you with a jolt. A couple of days after school started, Mr. Burmell Walter walked past the shop and waved. He must have been going for his car at the garage or something. And it suddenly dawned on me that "there goes Burmell Walter, one of our faculty. But he's only a kid!" The confusion came from the fact that he isn't a kid anymore. I had come to think of him in terms of a bat and ball, first base and Mt. Pleasant, from association for the past several years in our church league. But while he was playing he was also preparing for the teaching profession. So even at the tender age of 29 (if Jack Benny can be 39, I can be 29), I can appreciate the sensation of seeing kids grow into adulthood.

S'funny, though. I don't feel any older. My sisters in law say I don't act it, either.

A man in a Rambler with a "D. C." license plate stopped in Tuesday evening as I worked in the shop and said he has the ideal slogan for the November election campaign: "Return the government to the people" is the slogan and the gentleman, who wished to remain unidentified said it could be used by either party and no one would be offended.

How true, how true.

Don Yeiser wonders what a guy has to do to win.

Last Thursday he rolled a 172 as the Yeiser Standard Service bowlers competed in the regular Thursday schedule. That's a pretty good score and one to talk about. The trouble was that everybody was hot in the same game.

Look at these scores:

Dick Freeburn 207, Ted Crow 186, Harold Yeiser 183, Richard Davis 180 and Don's 172 for a game total of 928.

High Water Again Stops Fish Derby

Once again the Saint Joe Boy Scouts and the American Legion Post have found it necessary to postpone the running of the Father and Son Fishing Derby which had been re-scheduled for this coming Saturday, September 20.

Bad weather has forced cancellation of the derby for the past several weeks. It had been originally schedulled for July 12, but rain swelled the Saint Joe River causing postponement. It took some time for the waters to recede and with the recent sunshine, it was felt that the river banks would be suitable for use in the derby this week end. The date was set last week, but the rains came early this week and the river went up again. Frank Sechler, the harried derby chairman, announced the latest cancellation Tuesday morning.

The new date for the derby is Saturday, October 4. Fathers and sons may enter the derby and enjoy a lunch at its conclusion for only $1.50 per team. 21 prizes have been donated for the derby in addition to money donated for the food. Fishing will be done in the Saint Joe River from the Ohio state line to the covered bridge at Spencerville.

Donors of prizes are: Forrest Bevington, Myers Elevator & Coal Co., Keller's Garage, Casey's Mobil Service, Jiggs' Motor Service, Roy I. Bowser Store, Yeiser's Standard Service, Amstutz Hardware & Furniture Co. and Lester Baker Co. of Saint Joe; Grimm's Clover Farm Store of Newville; Furnish Barber Shop, Fisher's Corner Market, Spencerville Shell Station, Paul Hoover and Laux Bait & Tackle Shop of Spencerville; and Main Auto Supply and Vim Sporting Goods Store of Fort Wayne.

Donors of food are: Sechler's, D&H Tavern, Dunten's Market, Clauser's Trading Post and The Saint Joe News.

Bob Honaker Injured As Car Skids

Robert Honaker, 26, of Saint Joe suffered a broken left shoulder, lacerations on his head, a deep cut under his left armpit, shock and bruises at 7:50 p.m. Wednesday when he lost control of his 1954 Mercury and skidded off state road 1. The accident occurred 3 miles south of Butler as the highway was wet and slippery due to rainfall. The driver lost control on a slight curve on a downhill grade. The southbound vehicle skidded across the pavement and onto the berm on the esat side. It hurdled a culvert and ditch and traveled an estimated 170 feet before it downed a telephone pole: The car then spun and traveled another 30 feet before it halted.

Honaker was thrown from the car, apparently as it hit the telephone pole, and landed 20 feet beyond the car.

The injured man was taken to Sacred Heart Hospital for treatment of his injuries.

The car was listed as a total loss with damage set at $600. Damage to fence on the Edward Scott farm was $50. Estimated damage to the telephone pole was $75.

Homecoming At Mt. Pleasant Sept. 21

Homecoming services for the Mt. Pleasant EUB Church will be held Sunday, September 21.

A special program has been planned for those who will attend the services. The Sunday School hour will be held at the regular 9:30 hour, with all the adult and young people classes meeting as one class. Rev. Charles Barkley of the Barkley Nursing Home will be the leader of the lesson. Special music from the church will also be presented during the morning hour.

The Rev. J. Clair Peters of Butler, now associated with the Greater Chicago Sunday School Association, will be the guest speaker at both morning and afternoon services.

Rev. Peters, who has been in the Butler community for about 4 years, has been a minister in the United Brethren in Christ denomination for a number of years. Before coming to Butler, Rev. Peters was associated with the U.B. publishing house at Huntington, Ind.

All friends of the church are invited to come and spend the day with old friends and new. A carry-in basket dinner will be held at the noon hour. Afternoon services will begin at 2 p.m.

PTA Opener Well-Attended

Approximately 225 parents, teachers and students attended the meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. held Tuesday evening at the high school in Saint Joe. The meeting opened the current year of programming for the organization.

Mr. Robert Lowry led the Riverdale band in several selections to open the evening. Karen Woodard of Payne, Ohio, then performed a novelty baton twirl and dance number after which the president of the P.T.A., Ted Habberkorn, gave a few announcements concerning the organization. Mrs. Leonard Jarrett was "elected" to serve as secretary of the P.T.A. Mrs. Merle Guilford resigned as secretary recently as she is now teaching at Leo. Mrs. Carlos Church will serve as chairman of the room mother committee.

Mr. Howard Hill, principal of the elementary grades, introduced the members of the grade school faculty after which Mr. Joe Smith introduced his faculty at the junior high and high school. Miss Woodard then presented another number and a few more announcements were made, including the presentation of information about obtaining an opaque projector for the elementary grades. Mr. Hill indicated that there was need for such a projector and said that the cost would run from $250 to $400. The president asked that P.T.A. members consider the purchase of a projector and be prepared for voting on the approval of its purchase at the October meeting. Miss Woodard, who had been enthusiastically received for her first two numbers, then concluded the program with two more twirl-dance routines.

The business meeting was followed by a social at which those attending the meeting were invited to get acquainted with one another. All wore tags with their name imprinted. Refreshments of donuts, coffee and milk were served. Assisting with the refreshments and tagging were Mrs. Robert Musser, Mrs. Paul Moore, Mrs. Harold Kagey, Mrs. Max Doub, Virgil Smith, Herb Amstutz, Burmell Walter and Joe Smith. Stage preparations were handled by Ray Means and Roy Hensley and daughter, Sue.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

BATTLE OF ANTIETAM

One of the saddest days in American history is September 17, 1862 because it was also the bloodiest day on American soil. For on this bright late summer's day two armies of fellow-Americans, the Union and the Confederate armies, fought and slaughtered each other to a standstill on the battlefield at Antietam Creek.

General Robert E. Lee's army, moving north and invading Maryland, had taken a strong position on the south bank of Antietam Creek, a little stream flowing into the Potomac River. General "Stonewall" Jackson, having captured Harpers Ferry, 18 miles away, two days previously, had hurried most of his troops back to join Lee's army at Antietam Creek. The center of Lee's line was before the village of Sharpsburg, Maryland. General George McClellan's Union army had followed the Confederate forces and caught up with them on September 16. Now the two armies were drawn up on opposit sides of Antietam Creek.

The country was beautiful here. On all sides spread golden fields of wheat, wide acres of green corn, pastures of sweet-smelling clover and timothy rippling in the warm breezes, and big orchards of luscious pears, peaches and apples. And here thousands of Americans in blue and other thousands in gray faced one another tensely for the big battle shaping up.

There was skirmishing and an artillery duel on the afternoon of the 16th. The armies camped on the field that night in preparation for the fearful day ahead. At sunrise of the 17th the battle opened with an assault by the Union forces against the Confederate left flank. Hooker's, Mansfield's and Summer's corps attacked Jackson's troops. The fighting was desperate as the swirling ranks of blue dashed against the gray. Three times the Union charges broke the Confederate line. Three times counter-charges threw the Union troops back. General Mansfield was killed; General Hooker wounded.

In mid-morning the Union attack shifted to the center. Here began the terrible fight in the "Bloody Lane," a sunken road where concentrated fire left heaps of dead piled against the rail fences. The Confederate center was driven back.

Came the afternoon and the attack on Lee's right flank by Burnside's men charging across a stone bridge over the Antietam. They were pushing the Confederate line back when reinforcements in the shape of 3,000 of General Hill's division dashed into the battle after an 18 mile march from Harpers Ferry. They fell upon Burnside's men and drove them back across the bridge. And then night came, the firing stopped, the slaughter ended.

The two armies reeled back, bleeding and battered, to their original positions. Strewn over the bloody, dismal battlefield were more than 23,000 dead and wounded men, divided almost equally between the two armies. Along Antietam Creek every stalk of corn had been sheared off as though cut by a knife, and the dead lay in rows almost as they had stood in ranks. The cries of the wounded and the sickening smell of death and mangled flesh rose in the night air.

Antietam was a drawn battle. Lee retreated back across the Potomac, but McClellan did not pursue. Neither side won, but America's loss was measured in the thousands of her brave sons who fell on the bloodiest single day of a war between brothers.

On Sunday, September 14, the classes of 1910 to 1920 inclusive of the Saint Joe High School held a reunion at Alton Park. Gray Woodcox of Garrett presided. Following a dinner the afternoon was spent in renewing friendships and reminiscing. 16 members of the classes were present. It was decided to hold a reunion next year. Officers elected were William Quance, president, Mrs. Gladys Treesh, treasurer, and Mrs. Pauline Baumgartner, secretary.

Mr. Donald Noragon, a graduate of Riverdale High School, entered the professional accounting school of International College at Fort Wayne on Monday, September 15.

Mr. and Mrs. James Beck and family and Mr. and Mrs. Millard Gruber of Fort Wayne were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Elizabeth Milliman. Afternoon guests were Mrs. John Milliman of West Unity, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Milliman and daughter of Napoleon, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Means and family of Leo and Max Miller spent Sunday in the Ray Means home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goodson of west of Saint Joe returned this week from a successful and enjoyable fishing trip in the north country.

Mrs. Marie Draggoo, Mr. Fairfield Meese and Mr. and Mrs. Derwood Ridgway enjoyed cards with Mr. and Mrs. John Strombeck Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clauser, Jr., and daughter, Susan Kay, of South Bend spent Sunday night and Monday with the Clauser family.

The 1947 class of Saint Joe High School held their annual reunion Sunday at Eckart Park in Auburn. Those present were Wayne and Marilyn Surfus, Mike and Tommy; Joan and Allen Hollinger, Denny and Kay; Lawrence (Bud) and Jane Brown and Bret; John and Jerry Stonebraker, Joan, Kathy, Susan and Sammy; Jim and Pat Kinsey, Stanley, Brad, Danny and Pamela; Carolyn and Howard Miller, David, Larry and Denny; Betty and Don Houser, Mark and Max; and Dick Goings. Those joining the group in the afternoon were Margaret and Lowell Gaskill; Chuck and Beverly Rosenberry; Wayne Hook and son, David; Gene and Norma Diederich, Cary, Shelley and Roger. New officers are: Chuck Rosenberry, president; Betty Houser, secretary-treasurer.

Driver license suspensions include those of Robert Burniston, William Grawbadger and William Heffley, all of Auburn rural routes.

JUSTICE FOR ALL

Lesson for September 21, 1958

The last man on the totem pole is still a man. The man at the bottom of the ladder, the man underneath the heap, the last man, the least man: if there is no justice for him then there is no justice. For the ideal of justice, as the Bible upholds it, is that ALL men shall be treated with fairness, and more—with consideration, pity and helpfulness in the name of God. If everybody gets fair treatment except the bottom layer, then when you who have been fortunate all these years slip into that bottom layer you will discover there was not so much justice as you thought. In Mark Twain's story "The Prince and the Pauper," the prince thought everything was smooth and fine; but when he changed places with the pauper and looked at things from the seamy side, he could not find justice anywhere.

Who They Are

So-called justice which only "divides the spoil with the strong" and leaves no share for the weak is only so-called. It is precisely the persons who cannot fight for themselves, the little people without votes, the unimportant people, the forgotten and obscure, those who live and die in the shadows, it is precisely these whom a true and Christian justice will not forget. The strong will get their share and more besides if they can get by with it. It is the weak who need protection and defense.

The Bible lines them up for us, and a sorry rag-tag lot they are to look at. Here is the poor man who needs a loan and (as everybody knows) will never be able to pay it back. Here are the people so poor that they cannot buy food, but have to live on the wheat they pick up from somebody else's harvest field, the grapes they pick off some land-owner's vines. Here is the family uprooted, wanderers on the face of the earth, without home or job. Here are the nameless, faceless people totally obscure, for whom history has no name except in the lump—"the multitudes." Here are the sick people too poor to have a doctor; here is a woman some doctor has made poor. Here are the people in prison, here is a beggar shivering at the back door.

What They Need

Of course, such helpless people need not have been so helpless if perhaps society had been differently organized, or if there had been better laws. Such desperate situations ought to be prevented in the first place, to be sure. For example, it has not been a lifetime since there were beggars on all roads. The tramp and the hobo were common sights. Now how long is it since you have seen a tramp? How many beggars do you know by sight? The reason why we have fewer beggars now even in a depression than we used to have even in times of prosperity is partly due to the fact that the man who lost his job in hard times used to have nothing; now he draws unemployment insurance. Prevention of poverty is much easier than curing it. Nevertheless, with all the prevention we have the wit and the courage to provide, we still have the problem cases, the hopeless and helpless ones.

Forgotten Folk

It is not only individuals who have run into personal hard times who need help, but whole groups and classes of people in trouble, need help, more fair treatment, than they usually receive. There are, for example, the people in the mental hospitals of America, a half million of them at a recent count. Unless your state is a most unusual one, such patients in your state do not have nearly enough doctors, nurses, attendants or attention. Then consider that for every patient who can get into a mental hospital, even the understaffed, overcrowded ones we have, there are numbers of others who cannot be admitted. What is being done for these people by your church, your community, your state? Or consider juvenile delinquents, or adult lawbreakers on parole. Does your community ignore these bottom-rung derelicts, or does it do anything to help them, or to prevent their being 'derelicts?

REBUILDING STONEHENGE — Workmen at Stonehenge tackle the most tricky operation in the present program of restoration on this ancient site. The work consists of raising stones of the trilithon — which fell in 1797 — from their resting places, for later reconstruction and re-erection. In order to raise one of the fallen uprights, a semi-mobile, sixty-ton crane with a specially constructed cradle having spring-loaded slings, was used.

New Building For Local Exchange

General Telephone will be in the moving business soon in Saint Joe. The moving will involve the central office equipment in the local exchange.

According to D.F. Buesching, division manager of General Telephone, detailed plans have been worked out so that the moving can be accomplished without interruption to local telephone users. The equipment will be moved with the automatic dial system in operation.

When company plans called for the rehabilitation of the Saint Joe exchange, it was decided to replace the present office with a new building. The new concrete block office, constructed at the rear of the present building, measures 14 by 17 feet. One wall has been left open so that the equipment in the present office can be jacked up on rollers and literally rolled to its location in the new building. The equipment will continue to operate throughout the move, which is estimated to take about 2 hours.

Rehabilitating the Saint Joe exchange is part of General Telephone's multi-million dollar construction program now underway in the Hoosier state.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish in this manner to say "Thank you" to all for the many kindnesses shown in our recent sickness and loss, also for the many floral offerings and the minister for his words of consolation.

Dear Voters:

I fundamentally believe that all the voters have the right to know and should know about the candidates who are asking to represent them in Government. It is their duty to get acquainted with the voters. It is humanly impossible to meet all of you personally, So I am using the means of the printed word to visit with you.

I was born on the Marvin Leas farm near Hudson, Indiana, on July 12, 1911. I am the second son of the family of nine children of Warren and Leola Spangler Leas. My family moved around while I was a young boy and I attended grade school at Ashley, Hudson Clink one room school, Helmer and Salem Center. While in grade school I took up music, and along with other members of our family played in our own family orchestra. I played in the Steuben County band and Orchestra, the Angola City Band and the Garrett Legion Band.

My family raised onions and potatoes as well as participating in general farming. As a boy I spent my summers astride an onion row and winters in school, doing chores, cutting corn in the fall and wood in the winter. The old cross-cut is a very familiar tool to me. I attended and graduated from the Salem Center High School. While in high school I was on the basketball, baseball and track teams all four years. I played in the Orchestra and Band and won recognition in County E say, Debate and Constitutional Oratorical and Music contests.

After high school I ran a gasoline service station and raised onions and potatoes. I organized and directed the Ashley Town Band which played concerts Saturday nights on the streets of Ashley. I also worked as an officer of the DeKalb County Sunday School Association and in its Young People's Division. I was superintendent of the Sunday School of the Reformed Church west of Ashley for a number of years.

I attended Indiana Law School one year and took the complete correspondence law course of LaSalle Extension Univeristy of Chicago. But due to the depression and getting married, I never went further with the study of law. I felt my first obligation was to my new family.

I married Miss Helen Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mason, dairy farmers of Jackson Township, DeKalb County, in 1934. I bought the Alvarado Country Store, located south of Metz, Indiana. These were rough years for those of us who remember them. Our store served as both business and home. My two older children, Beverly and Richard, were born at the Alvarado Store and not in a modern hospital room. I helped out with our meager resources by driving Richland Township School Bus and in the summer helping neighboring farmers. While at Alvarado I joined the Wittenberg Brotherhood and the Alvarado Methodist Church.

At the death of my father-in-law in a tragic tractor accident, we sold our store and moved to the farm in DeKalb County, where I worked on the farm and part-time in the Auburn Kroger Store.

In the fall of 1937 I obtained a full-time job at the Angola Kroger Store. We moved to Angola where Mrs. Leas kept students. This with my work in the store paid for a home in Angola. We lived there 5 years. I started in the basement working stock, was promoted to produce manager, to relief manager and manager of produce department of the Fort Wayne Kroger Drive-In Market at Wayne and Harrison streets in Fort Wayne. In 1942 I was appointed store manager of the Auburn Kroger Store and district manager of The Kroger Company with the supervision of 12 stores in Fort Wayne and surrounding territory. I was asked by the company to move to Marion and I asked to move back to Auburn as I liked the community and all my friends were located here. I had my choice and I took the Auburn store. I resigned in 1950 to go into business for myself. I bought the Star Theatre in Fremont, Indiana. Noting TV antennae shooting up, I saw the handwriting on the wall for theatres and sold out, then opening Leas Quality Market in 1951, located on the north side of the court house square in Auburn.

We have built our business to one of the finest independent super markets in Indiana. We have now incorporated and have stores in Auburn, Garrett and Angola. We have Donald Friend, manager of the Auburn Store; Wendell Emerson, manager of the Garrett Store; and David Timberlin, manager of the Angola Store. I am president and general manager of our new corporation.

Mrs. Leas and I have three fine children, Mrs. Beverly Leas Timberlin, wife of David Timberlin; Richard Lyle Leas, who is in the U.S. Army at Camp Ord, California; and Natalie Elaine Leas, in the fourth grade at Riley School in Auburn. We are very fortunate to have the privilege of sponsoring Miss Elizabeth Becker of Mainz-Gonsenheim, Germany, as a citizen of our great country. We are enjoying very much her stay with us.

I am a member of: the Auburn Methodist Church, the board of directors of the Auburn Chamber of Commerce, the Indiana State and national Chambers of Commerce, Union Township Farm Bureau, the Odd Fellows and K.P. lodges, the Auburn Lions Club, the Methodist Men, the Parent-Teacher Association, Gideon's International, Fort Wayne Chapter of Dale Carnegie Club where this year I won the prepared speech contest of the district and state and placed third in the midwestern contest. I am first vice president of the Indiana State Grocers' and Meat Dealers' Association, treasurer of the DeKalb County Mental Health Association and headed the drive this year in DeKalb County. I belong to the DeKalb County Roadside Council and am very much interested in highway improvement, having served as president of the Steuben-DeKalb Road Improvement Association for 2 years.

No one lives by bread alone. I personally feel that we as laymen must take an active interest in Government. Too many of our laws are made for the interest of pressure groups and not for the greatest good to the greatest number. To have a poor, dishonest, selfish Government is for good men to do nothing. I know I will personally take a financial sacrifice in assuming this office which I seek. But I am tired of seeing the citizens of DeKalb County being used by an outside engineering firm to get contracts by a man who represents us in our State Legislature whose interest is more for his employer than for the people of DeKalb County. I fully realize I do not know all the answers to all the questions to be answered in our State Legislature. I feel confident there are people in DeKalb County who have the answers; they are as near as the telephone. I propose if elected to get all my answers from affected DeKalb County citizens and not from any lobby or pressure groups. I believe the farm and its welfare are still the basis of our American economy. Industry must thrive and the individual incentive and desire for advancement should never be hampered by primitive taxation. I believe the full crew bill must be on our statute books for safety and for the welfare of railroad workmen. I cannot condone our last legislature's passage of the mis-named "Right To Work Law." I cannot feel it was passed with the interest of Labor at heart. Organized labor has come a long way to lift up our standard of living. I cannot believe we should back up.

I believe our Government is the world's largest business and needs to be more businesslike to be successful. Government is for all the people and not for any select few. I recognize the need for taxes, but taxes must be equitable and characterized by justice and fairness. I believe Indiana is still a part of the United States and as we collect over 9 milion dollars for the Federal Government from DeKalb County, we have a right to ask for some of those dollars back. Also, we should use the matching funds which accumulated by the 3 cents per gallon on gas we all send to Washington which is sent back to be used in matching funds on our roads. Steuben, Allen, Noble and Lagrange counties use all of their matching funds. I feel we should get all we can out of our tax dollars—God only knows taxes are plenty high. I feel our future is bright—we must go forward—there is no place for a "status quo" in an advancing America.

I tell you here and now my qualifications. If you sincerely feel I can do this job, vote for me. If not, I ask that you vote for Mr. Charles Miser who has held this office I seek for 18 years. His record speaks for itself just as my accomplishments and character give the sum total of what I am. I ask for your vote and support—I will not let you down.

Gratefully yours,
LYLE LEAS
Candidate for State Representative

Around the Town

With the Editor

Yessir, when county fair time comes, you might as well roll up the sidewalks for a week. Oh well, it only comes once a year; let's have some fun.

Little Linda Church rode in the opening night parade at the fair, representing Charlote Coburn who is one of the 16 queen candidates at the fair. When Linda was first approached about participating in the parade, she was quite enthused but also somewhat hesitant. It finally came out that she thought it might be on TV and that scared her a little.

How about some concentrated donations to the queen contest to boost our candidate. Proceeds from the contest go to a very worthwhile cause, the Wee Haven School For Retarded Children, located in Garrett. The Saint Joe Lions have cannisters for Charlotte at their lunch stand, and there is a stand at the fair just for voting for the queen.

Voters Must Register By Oct. 6

Monday, October 6, 1958, is the deadline for registration of voters in DeKalb County for the fall election to be held on November 4. Voters wishing to register or transfer registrations may do so at the office of the county clerk at Auburn. County clerk Walter Manon has reminded voters that all persons who failed to vote in either the primary or general election in 1956, and have not been re-instated, must register. Voters who have moved from their precincts since the last election also must transfer registration. All eligible voters who expect to be absent from the county on election day may file application for an absentee ballot. Applications will be accepted to and including Saturday, November 1. November 1 is also the deadline for voting absentee by person in the clerk's office. It is the last day absentee ballots will be mailed. All marked absentee ballots returned by mail must be received in the clerk's office in time to be delivered to the polls before they close election day.

Registration officers have been assisting in the registration of voters for the fall election. Included are Walter Stewart and Harvey Hull of Concord Township, Albert Impton and Fred Gengnagel of Newville Township and Marguerite Hoffman and Frances Doll of Spencer Township.

Oct. 5-11 Is Letterwriting Week

International Letter Writing Week will be celebrated in Saint Joe during the week of October 5 to 11, Postmaster Lehr Wilder announced today.

Twenty-one years ago, realizing the importance of written communication, the Post Office Department joined in the observance of an annual letter writing week, an event celebrated to emphasize the meaning and value of letter writing as a link between people throughout the world.

Postmaster General Summerfield explained that by participating in both International Letter Writing Week and National Letter Writing Week this worthwhile objective is promoted between all peoples everywhere.

"As we all know so well," Mr. Summerfield said, "a personal letter is next to an actual visit, the most intimate means we have to communicate with our fellow human beings. Letters between our citizens and between peoples of different nations are a sure method of establishing a friendly relationship and understanding.

"I urge all citizens of Saint Joe to join in this celebration of Interantional Letter Writing Week. And at the same time, don't overlook your friends and relatives in America. Write them a letter, too!"

County Has 29 Miles New Blacktop

29 miles of blacktop pavement were added to the DeKalb County road system during the first 8 months of 1958 according to a report from the Dekalb County commissioners. With the addition of the new hardtop surfaces, the county now has 234 of its total of 751 miles of roads surfaced with blacktop. This year's addition of hard-surfaced mileage is the largest yet made in any previous full year.

The resurfacing of roads was not the only improvement made in the road system. The report listed such items as reditching, replacement of pipe, repair of bridge, hauling of fill dirt, repair of guard rails, etc.

Band Director Seeks New Members

Robert Lowry, director of music in the Riverdale school system, has announced the second annual meeting for parents of students interested in learning to play a musical instrument and participating in the activites of the Riverdale school band. The meeting will be held on Thursday October 2, at 7:30 p.m. DST., and will be held in the south building of the high school in Saint Joe.

The purpose of the meeting is to acquaint the parents and the students with the various band instruments and discuss the selection of instruments according to the abilities of the students and the needs of the band. Assisting in presenting a review of school band participation will be Mr. Harold McCabe, representative of Tom Berry Music Company of Fort Wayne.

Mr. Lowry inaugurated the annual meeting for prospective band members and their parents last fall. The response at that time is reflected in the growth of the band in only one year. Though the increase in members has meant an accompanying condition of inexperience, a marked improvement in the enthusiasm of the band has been evident. Further progress is expected in the coming years with the present program of early training in the music department.

Mr. Lowry has indicated that students from the fifth grade up through high school are invited to attend the meeting and bring their parents. Not only does the child gain a greater appreciation of music through actual playing of an instrument, but he also enjoys the fun of participating in many activities. Riverdale's band has been holding extensive marching drills to acquant the younger members with marching routines. The band marched in the opening parade of the county fair Tuesday evening of this week and also furnished music for the special programs of entertainment during the evening.

On Monday evening, September 22, Diana Miller celebrated her 9th birthday with a party. 12 guests attended, including Peggy Chapman, Sharon Holden, Connie Beck, Larry, Lois and Florence Bice, Mary Lou Collins, Elaine and Pamela Church, Becky Stiver and Brad Alan and Keith Bradtmueller of Woodburn. Gifts were opened and lunch was served, after which Mary Lou Collins favored the group with her tap dancing talent. Others proved how well they could use the hoola hoops. It was an enjoyable evening for all.

Driver license suspensions include those of Luella King of Ashley and Edward Saxton of Auburn.

Larry Emenhiser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Emenhiser of Spencerville, and husband of Delores Davis Emenhiser, has been honorably discharged from the U.S. Navy attached to the U.S. Naval Receiving Station, Norfolk, Virginia. The Norfolk Naval Receiving Station processes approximately 8,000 men a month on their way to and from naval activities all over the world.

Miss Musette Woodcox, 81, daughter of the late G. W. and Martha Woodcox, died early Saturday morning, September 20, at the New Castle State Hospital where she had been a patient 25 years. She was born in Saint Joe. Private services were held at Baidinger-Walter Funeral Home Monday and burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe.

Marine Sgt. Clayton B. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. Baker of Saint Joe, is serving with U.S. Marine forces in the Mediterranean with the 2nd Battalion of the 6th Regiment. A unit of the U.S. Sixth Fleet amphibious forces in the Middle East, the regiment is part of the 2nd Marine Division based at Camp Lejeune, N.C. The leathernecks departed from their home base earlier this month.

The DeKalb County Farm Bureau board of directors met Monday night at the Farm Bureau building in Auburn. Delegates to the state convention November 12-14 were elected: Frances Nelson and Wayne Voss, with Mrs. Clark Stahl and Mrs. Bruce Gurtner as alternates. Election will be held at the annual meeting on October 23 at 8 p.m. Mrs. Guy Gross, state Women's Leader and state second vice-president, will be the speaker.

Homecoming At Spencerville Oct. 12

St. Peter Evangelical Lutheran Church in Spencerville will hold its annual homecoming on Sunday, October 12, according to an announcement by Pastor Ivan O. Miller.

Regular worship and church school hours will be observed on the homecoming day with worship held at 9 a.m. and church school at 10 a.m.

A pot luck dinner will be served at noon under the supervision of the Ladies Aid Society. "Old-timers," former members and friends are cordially invited to observe the occasion with the congregation.

Miss Barbara Miller of Detroit, daughter of pastor and Mrs. Miller, will be the guest organist for the service.

CONCORD JR. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Concord Junior Home Demonstration Club met at the home of June Baker on Monday evening, September 8, with Katy Crow as co-hostess.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Phyllis Uehelin. All repeated the club collect. Devotions were given by Dorothy Simanton.

Betty Rediger gave the history of the song of the month, "Shine On Harvest Moon." The secretary's report was read and approved. Roll call was answered by 15 members. Discussions were held concerning the fair booth, rummage sale, a letter from a cosmetic company and achievement day. Edna Perkins gave a report on the entertainment of the 4-H girls.

Election of officers was held with the following results:

President, Rose Means.

1st vice president, Ellen Fetters.

2nd vice president, Hazel Schrader.

School Bus Drivers Receive Compliment

Riverdale school bus drivers were included in 57 school bus drivers in DeKalb County receiving commendation from State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilbur Young in a recent statement. Mr. Young stated, "According to records received from the Indiana State Police there have been no DeKalb County accidents in which school buses were involved this year. Probably we have failed to recognize sufficiently in the past the careful efficiency of the school bus drivers because although they drive twice daily at peak traffic hours and over extremely hazardous highways, their accident record has for several years been a good example for other states."

The 57 school bus drivers in DeKalb County travel 2,259 miles per day. Of the 6,218 pupils enrolled in public schools, 2,580 ride the school bus.

"I am proud to recognize the school bus driver as an important member of our educational staff," Mr. Young concluded, "for upon him rests an important segment of responsibility for the success of our whole education system. We are working together for the building of a strong nation through the development of our greatest natural resource, the children of each local community."

NEWVILLE TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Newville Township Home Demonstration Club met for its regular meeting on September 10 at the club house with hostesses Leta Schafer, Deloris Inlow and Gladys Hart. 19 members and 1 child from the Spencer Township Club were guests.

The meeting was opened with Edna Mickelson, Kathryn Krieg and Irene Emenhiser singing a song. The club collect was repeated and devotions were in charge of Elva Hook. Songs were led by Edna Mickelson, the hymn "Brighten the Corner Where You Are" and the song of the month, "Shine On Harvest Moon."

Roll call was responded to by 26 members. There were also 3 children present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Correspondence and business matters then were reviewed.

Collections were taken and Charlotte Kimmel contributed to the birthday box. The social hour was in charge of Cynthia Sipe, Dorothy Meek and Irene Emenhiser.

The group enjoyed group singing of favorite songs. Refreshments were then served by the hostesses and the meeting was adjourned.

"BLACK FRIDAY" GOLD PLOT

One of the most scandalous pieces of financial trickery ever to be tried in the United States was the gold plot of Jay Gould and James Fisk, Jr. that came to a climax on Friday, September 24, 1869. That day went down in our history as "Black Friday" because of the ruin, confusion and misery it brought to many persons and business firms.

Jay Gould and Jim Fisk were both unscrupulous speculators in their thirties at the time. Foxy, whispery little Jay Gould was a financial wizard without principles or honesty, and big, brassy Jim Fisk was a swaggering scoundrel. Both men, as partners, made fortunes from shady stock manipulations, wrecking railroads, and other sharp deals. As directors of the Erie Railroad they had swindled Cornelius Vanderbilt out of millions through stock fraud.

In the spring of 1869 the two worked out a scheme to "corner" the ready gold supply of the United States. With them were Abel R. Corbin, brother-in-law of President Grant, and several associates from the railroad and financial fields.

The nation was on a paper money basis at the time. Gold was dealt in as a speculative commodity on the New York exchange. For the accommodation of importers and other businesses the government sold a million dollars of gold every month on the open market.

In addition to President Grant's brother-in-law, Gould and his fellow plotters got Daniel Butterfield, head of the New York Sub-Treasury, into the scheme to keep them informed of government policy. Jim Fisk brazenly tried to involve the President himself in the scheme during a party Fisk gave on his steamboat. Innocently enough, the President was nearly convinced that it would be better for the country; especially the western farmers with their big grain crops, and for the railroads hauling the crops, if the government suspended its gold sales. And, somehow, the President was induced at this time to go away on a visit of several weeks to a remote town in Pennsylvania.

On September 2 Gould began buying gold on a big scale. The price then was 133, that is, it took $133 in greenbacks to buy $100 in gold. A few days later Fisk began buying heavily. The price of gold rose to 140. The New York Tribune called for government action, but Secretary of the Treasury George S. Boutwell would not act in the President's absence. The plotters continued to buy gold in big quantities. By September 23 they had forced the price up to 150 and a panic theartened. Business firms and banks needing gold were faced with ruin by the artificially inflated price of gold.

On the morning of the next day, Friday, the 24th, Fisk bought tremendously and forced the price up to 162. The New York exchange was in a panic. Hundreds of businessmen were ruined. Others faced ruin by having to buy gold from the plotters at their price. A financial crisis loomed before the nation.

Then the government stepped in. The President had returned to Washington, and in response to frenzied letters and telegrams he ordered the U. S. Treasury to sell millions in gold on the open market. The crash came at noon. The price of gold fell to 133. The plot was wrecked, but not before many honest men were ruined.

The plotters themselves lost heavily, including Jim Fisk. Brazenly he managed to repudiate his obligations. Many other speculators were ruined. But not foxy Jay Gould. He had discovered in time that the government would sell its gold and, betraying his own partners, he secretly sold his holdings at a big profit.

A congressional investigation that followed later placed an ugly smirch on Grant's administration, but the President himself was shown to be guilty of nothing worse than foolish innocence.

Group Makes Research Trip

A group of 60 prominent poultry and livestock feeders from this area, among them Neil Prentice, Orville Gick and Ralph Newcomer, recently visited the 620 acre Wayne Feeds Research Farm at Libertyville, Illinois, 35 miles northwest of Chicago.

Accompanying the group, which left Fort Wayne by bus and private cars, was Clifford Billow, manager of Myers Elevator & Coal Co. of Saint Joe. W. F. Burbank and Frank Gondek, Wayne Feeds sales representatives, arranged the all-day tour.

After arriving at the Research Farm, the men were conducted on tours of the hog, dairy and calf barns, chicken and turkey houses, dog kennels and bio-chemical laboratories, where they observed poultry and livestock and other animals on experimental feeding and testing programs. Later, they met the staff personnel at the farm who addressed the group during lunch served at the farm's auditorium. The speakers included Ed Adamson, hog and beef cattle specialist; Robert McVicker, poultry director; Bill Watts, educational service director; Dr. Merle Brinegar, assistant director of research; and Dr. J. E. Hunter, director of research.

How your neighbors live better . . . electrically

"Living ELECTRICALLY means much more to us than we ever thought it would,"

Says Mrs. William Poole,

"and our average monthly electric bill is just $39.89, including electric heat!"

"When you look at all the electric appliances we have, our electric bill is low," continues Mrs. Poole. "I was really surprised when I counted all the different things electricity does in our home today. We are really living the modern way . . . electrically."

Electricity is even more of a bargain when you realize that I&M's electric rates have never gone up. Mr. Poole is a realtor and knows costs. He says, "Reddy Kilowatt surely does a whale of a job for the money we're paying him."

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

What did you expect?"

Say, have you been out at night this week. Did you notice those bright moonlit evenings? They sure are pretty. Reminds me of a commercial on TV—cool and crisp and clear.

I always hate to see summer leave and fall begin. This year it wasn't so bad—there wasn't any summer to leave in the first place.

But then with fall, there's basketball, and pretty leaves, and basketball, and the smell of smoke, and basketball, and Big Ten and pro football games, and bowling, and basketball games, and bowling, and - - - say what has summer got anyhow!

Hospitals Take Action Against Skin Disease

Due to the appearance of staphylococcus aureus, a garden variety of bacteria which has become resistant to penicillin and to many of the other "wonder drugs," precautionary measures to stop the spread of such bacteria have been taken in two DeKalb County hospitals.

Sacred Heart Hospital at Garrett has announced that no obstetrical cases will be admitted until further notice, because of the appearance of the bacteria in the maternity ward and nursery. Souder Hospital at Auburn has asked for strict adherence to visiting hour regulations and has designated particular entrances to use in visiting patients on particular floors.

Staphylococcus aureus is an air-borne bacteria which causes painful boils and abcesses, hard to cure infections of the digestive, urinary and respiratory tracts, and fatal pneumonias. While the very young and the very old have been its principal victims, it has afflicted all ages. Fortunately, the staph germ does not run through a neighbornood as do measles or chicken pox. It thrives best in the contacts of a hospital. This same strain of staph has been reported from Boston to Seattle to Houston and it has caused trouble in England, Germany, India, New Zealand and Australia. Some authorities insist that any hospital which hasn't seen it simply hasn't been looking.

We Lose A Subscriber

"I have decided to have my St. Joe News stop. I don't get it very often, so just stop it. . . ."

The above is an excerpt from a letter received this week from one of our (should we say "former") readers. It should be read by the U. S. Post Office Department, not any individual in particular, just the whole Post Office Department. It represents the latest in a series of incidents and comments which cause us to be skeptical of the need for higher postal rates which we now pay and which we may be paying in the future. The latest raise in postal rates was necessary to offset a hike in pay rates, so we end up no further ahead than before.

Before we bring the wrath of postal workers upon our head for saying that they shouldn't have had a pay raise, let us point out a couple of things. One, the Post Office Department is a public service facility which performs a very important function in a free society, that of providing fast and efficient transmittal of the written word. We should say this is the function the postal service ought to perform. The above quotation from a letter brings doubt to our mind as to whether or not the service is being performed as it should. Two, anyone working in the department should be concerned first with giving the best possible service to the mail which comes into his hands. Even the mail which is sent by other than first class deserves good handling in its proper time. If good service is given by the postal department, we do not begrudge them adequate pay for the services.

But it appears that the Post Office Department has become too concerned over whether or not it operates in the red and gives lesser consideration as to the quality of service. One of the privileges which this paper enjoys is that of second class mailing, which means that our paper gets delivered for a smaller amount of money than would be necessary under other conditions with first class handling. We submit, however, that if the paper does not get delivered or if it is handled in an atmosphere of what can only be termed "who cares", then the postal service has fallen subject to a moral breakdown which cannot be tolerated in a free society. Prompt, efficient mail service is too precious a commodity in this nation to be tampered with.

Here are a few of our known examples of poor postal delivery and service:

The above letter which sounds as if we lose a subscriber because the paper doesn't get delivered.

Comments on two different occasions in the past few months from an advertising agency which receives (or is supposed to receive) copies of papers from the many publications in which it places advertising, to this effect: "We average 10 per cent a week in papers we don't receive," - these papers on regular mailing lists.

A change of address sent to us (for which we pay 5 cents) for a subscriber who has been living in a different city for over 2 years.

Copies of this paper which take 3 and 4 days to reach subscribers living 10 to 20 miles distant.

True, this paper is mailed second class; first class comes first. But the indications are that second class means "take care of it when you feel like it" or some such attitude. For this we do not feel inclined to be paying ANY amount of postage. On the other hand, we would be willing to approve further increase in our mailing costs if we could be certain of getting more consistent service. Our mailing bill amounts to only pennies a week, frankly speaking. And frankly speaking, it often is worth only pennies a week. Larger papers will possibly cry out at the prospect of higher postal rates; their larger circulations and physical dimensions could bring financial hardships with substantial postal increases. But for us, one of the wee little fellows, our cost of mailing the paper could double again and we wouldn't holler, but only provided that the Post Office Department, from the Postmaster General on down to the last clerk in the smallest office, take more pride in the public service it performs and provide conscientious handling of all mail.

WHEN THE TEACHER CALLS IT "SOCIAL STUDIES"

When you were in school, you probably studied history. The chances are that your child is enrolled, instead, in a course called "social studies." What is the difference? And does the new generation stand to gain or lose by the substitution?

In many schools, no real change has occurred. History is still being taught, and nothing but the label is different. In other schools, however, a great deal has happened, and the changes constitute a serious weakening of the school program. Moreover, the switching of labels has in itself done considerable harm, for parents now find it difficult to discover what is really being taught in this area, so vitally important for good citizenship.

"History" is a clear-cut term, describing a well understood subject of instruction. By contrast, the phrase "social studies" possesses no definite or certain meaning. It can be given a reputable definition: "the entire group of subjects dealing primarily with men and women in organized societies." So defined, it embraces history, geography, economics, political science, anthropology, sociology, jurisprudence and social psychology.

This is a formidable array of specialized disciplines, each with its particular techniques of investigation, its theoretical formulations, and its voluminous literature. In the learned world, a certain number of scholars are working on the interconnections of these different fields; few would claim anything like competence in more than two or three. Teacher-training programs in the United States allow barely enough time to enable a teacher to become familiar, at the level of a college undergaduate, with one of these fields. To ask a teacher to cover them all is to invite superficial and irresponsible teaching.

In constructing a course or a program in the social studies, furthermore, little scholarly guidance is available, and no established standards exist. Everyone has his own idea about what social studies ought to include; hence, teachers and administrators are free to add or subtract topics as they please.

No one can say what a student should know or be able to do at the end of even twelve years of elementary and high school work in the social studies. In each of the separate fields - history, geography, and political science, for example - a consensus exists with respect to bodies of knowledge that are fundamental. When all are thrown into a hodgepodge, however, the possibility of fixing minimum standards of understanding and competence vanishes. The fad of social studies in American schools does not constitute a new organization of the curriculum; it constitutes a new and dangerous DIS-organization.

Worst of all, topics that have no conceivable relationship to the social sciences (as scholars understand the term) are being pushed into the social-studies curriculum, simply because the word "social" can somehow be applied to them. This is particularly true where a so-called "problem approach" is used. Take, for example, the following collection of topics, offered in one California high school. I quote the principal's own description:

"Our present plans call for three problems courses during a student's high-school career: (1) Freshman problems with the ten units of work covering the State requirements of Morals and Manners, Civic Responsibility, Alcohol and Narcotics; (2) Sophomore problems with five or six units of work covering Driver Education, First Aid, Accident Prevention and World History; and (3) Senior problems with units of work covering Civics, Psychology and Sociology and other problems facing the eighteen-year-old."

The argument that the social studies should REPLACE history, geography, and political science (I am not speaking here of instances where a mere change of label is involved) boils down to the argument that the new approach will better prepare citizens to deal with the problems - political, social, and economic - of their own day. This argument must be met on its own ground, for no one would dream of denying that a well-educated young man or woman should be equipped BY HIS EDUCATION to deal intelligently with such questions. Indeed, each of the established and traditional disciplines came into existence with the avowed purpose of enabling citizens to handle more effectively the problems arising within its sphere.

Economics, for example, exists and is respected because men have found that its systematic methods of analysis are appropriate and useful in wrestling with economic problems. Political science has proved its value in handling problems connected with the structure and administration of government. And for two thousand years, history has been the recognized school of good citizenship. One commentator on the ancient historian Thucydides put the matter thus: "The statesman, the patriot, the friend to liberty and reason will be better enabled to plan and to regulate his OWN measures, when he can see the tendency and consequence of such as were followed on parallel occasions."

Advocates of the social-studies approach promise to accomplish all these things, and to accomplish them better. They propose to do so by breaking down the supposed "barriers" between the different fields and by concentrating the student's attention on contemporary, rather than historical problems. They decry as old-fashioned the systematic study of each field - the chronological study of history, for example, or the study of government by analyzing political structures and theories in the way the political scientist analyzes them. Instead, the advocates of social studies expect students to pick up the principles of the various disciplines casually, as they encounter them in "problem-solving" situations.

That well-educated, thoughtful citizens can be produced in this haphazard, hit-or-miss fashion is surely one of the most preposterous theories current in American education. When the social-studies approach is pushed to its logical extreme, graduates tend to have a smattering of knowledge about everything in general, but a clear and usable knowledge of nothing in particular. They have been on numerous field trips, to factories, housing projects, and government offices, and they have aired their opinions in discussions of current public problems. All these would have been fine as extracurricular activities. In the classroom, however, these young people have rarely worked in a continuous and orderly way to acquire mastery of any of the genuine tools of thought. They have looked at problems with economic aspects, but they have never learned to analyze the economic factors involved and to treat them systematically. They know a few provisions of the Constitution, but they never think about the Constitution as the product of a distinctive and consistent theory of government; nor can they point out clearly the logical differences between its principles and those of alternate systems. Far from having been trained to STUDY contemporary problems, they have been misled into believing they can go right ahead to SOLVE contemporary problems through a round of group discussions, without benefit of precise knowledge, logical analysis, or historical understanding.

The idea of pushing history aside to concentrate on contemporary problems may be plausible until one begins to think about it. Then one realizes that there is no such thing, strictly speaking, as a contemporary problem. Social and political problems do not, in fact, burst on us in any such sudden manner. They arise and alter and develop over long periods. To understand how they came into existence is usually the most important step in grappling with them.

Take, for example, the crisis over racial integration in Little Rock, Arkansas, last fall - a contemporary problem that appears to have been studied in many high schools. How can it be understood except in historical terms? How can anyone discuss this matter intelligently, let alone plan a future course of action, without knowing the history of slavery, of the Civil War and Reconstruction, and of the Fourteenth Amendment of 1868, on which the Constitutional issue in Little Rock hinges? Or, to take another example, what understanding can one have of current problems in France without knowing of the French Revolution and the bitter divisions it produced, and some comprehension of the situations that enabled two Napoleons to rise to power on the ruins of earlier French republics?

It will be argued, of course, that a student learns more by solving a contemporary problem than by studying one that time has already solved. This argument is largely nonsense. A student does not SOLVE a contemporary problem. At best, he merely clarifies his own opinions (or borrows his teacher's) concerning the way the problem might be or ought to be solved. His conslusions cannot be tested, because the returns may not be in until after he is dead. The reasoning behind his conclusions cannot be tested, either. His logic may look good enough on paper, but only the future can tell whether or not he has correctly estimated the factors at work and whether or not he has left out of his calculations certain historical forces that may in the end prove decisive. It is the problem of the HISTORICAL kind (and the historian is as much a problem-solver as anyone else) that furnishes truly rigorous training in the handling of social and political problems. There is, after all, an answer sheet. The student can enter into the problem as contemporaries entered into it. But he knows more than contemporaries could have known. He knows the consequences of the lines of action proposed and pursued. He knows what finally happened.

Wise citizenship without a sense of history is no more possible than wise navigation without a compass. The central question for education is whether this understanding of history is to be imparted to students by systematic teaching of history, or whether we may count on their picking up a sense of history as a result of casual encounters with snippets of historical data, presented merely as a background to one or another contemporary problem. No other nation is gambling the future of its institutions on the absurd expectation that the latter program (if anything so haphazard can be called a program) will work. Elsewhere, the systematic study of history AS HISTORY is a basic part of every elementary and secondary-school curriculum. In the United States, we are gravely imperiling our fundamental traditions of freedom - which require historical understanding for their proper appreciation and defense - by permitting educational theorists and administrators to curtail, to disguise, and to disorganize the study of history in our schools.

GOSPEL PREFACE

Lesson for October 5, 1958

The first three books of the New Testament were not the first to be written. Earlier than these gospels are the letters of Paul. If it had been left to him, there would have been no gospels, for he seems to have taken very little interest in the personal career of Jesus of Nazareth. But there must have been many early Christians who kept asking: Did Jesus do anything in this world but die? If he was a teacher what did he have to say? Where did he live, and how? Who were his friends and his enemies? What did he do or say that made some people hate him enough to kill him? What did he do or say that made other men believe he was the Son of God?

The first three gospels were all written to answer such questions. It is these gospels that will be the source-material for the lessons used by the eighty-plus denominations using the "international" lessons. They will be studying the One in whom we are all one.

The World

The spotlight of interest in the gospels is, of course, Jesus himself. The gospel writers do not include long chapters on historical background, as we might wish they did; for the first readers knew the background very well, they were a part of it. Luke, however, piles a lot of proper names into his third chapter, as if it were anchoring the gospel story in the general story of history, the story of mankind. The gospels are about a real person who lived in a real world. You could have followed him around with a movie camera. The time of Christ was not the "once upon a time" of fairy tales. He was a contemporary of certain Roman and Greek officials very well known, when Luke was writing, otherwise there would have been no sense in mentioning them. Those names, if we take the trouble to study them, set before us in one sentence the Roman empire, a great power system, its far-flung provinces controlled by career men in the pay of Rome, imposing peace on the world, holding even the priesthood of a little obscure people like the Jews as part of their great political system.

The Hope

In his empire, and so to speak underneath it, subjects but not citizens, lived the Jews. Most of them then, as now, lived outside of Palestine. But all Jews to some extent, and the Jews of Palestine intensely, looked forward to a New Age, a time when God would not only "restore the kingdom" to Israel but would make Jerusalem the center and capital of the whole world, in an age where all the best dreams and hopes of the prophets for an age of righteousness and justice and peace would come true.

Center of this hope was the "Messiah" or "Christ" (two words meaning the same thing), who in some way—they were not clear just how—would start that New Age and be its emperor forever.

The Story

The gospels tell the story of the man whose neighbors called him Jesus, and whose most intimate friends, under strict secrecy, called him Messiah. The general public, the Jews at large, kept dinging at him to say whether he was, or was not, the Messiah, but he kept public silence on that point almost to the end. You might say that the gospels are the story of the real Messiah came to the very people who were looking for him, but came in a way that shocked them into violent opposition and even hatred. All three "synoptic" gospels, Matthew, Mark and Luke, tell the story in much the same way; John has his own different way. Many characters come on and off the stage, and they are real enough; but the center, as was said, is always Jesus. In these stories he comes alive as a historical Person. Across the centuries the question comes to modern as to ancient man: Here is Jesus; are you for him or against him?

TOP TACKLES — New York — Columbia's two top tackles, Ed Eschenbaum (Left) and Brian Dennehy pose with a football during practice here. Eschenbaum, a 205-pounder from LaSalle, Ill., had the highest total of time played of any sophomore lineman on the 1957 varsity team. Dennehy, of Mineola, L.I., N.Y., is a 245-pounder who Coach Buff Donelli terms "our best lineman."

ON WAY TO RECOVERY — New York — Dodger Catcher Roy Campanella has a big grin and a wink for all at his first open press conference since he was paralyzed in an auto accident on last January 28th. Roy has regained partial use and control of his arms and a new neck brace permits greater freedom of his neck and upper extremities.

Homecoming At Spencerville Oct. 12

St. Peter Evangelical Lutheran Church in Spencerville will hold its annual homecoming on Sunday, October 12, according to an announcement by Pastor Ivan O. Miller.

Regular worship and church school hours will be observed on the homecoming day with worship held at 9 a.m. and church school at 10 a.m.

A pot luck dinner will be served at noon under the supervision of the Ladies Aid Society. "Old-timers," former members and friends are cordially invited to observe the occasion with the congregation.

Miss Barbara Miller of Detroit, daughter of pastor and Mrs. Miller, will be the guest organist for the service.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

THE MODEL T FORD

On October 1, 1908 Henry Ford, president of the five-year old Ford Motor Company of Detroit, announced that his new Model T car was available to the public. Up to that time the "horseless carriages" were largely expensive playthings of the rich. The Model T changed that. More — it changed the American way of life.

Henry Ford, then 45 years old, was an inventive genius with a big idea — an economical car for the masses of American people. He worked, tinkered, built and rebuilt until he got his Model T. And it worked out beyond even his most enthusiastic dreams.

The Model T was a homely car, something like a square black box, erect and dignified on its wheels. There were no frills about it. Henry Ford said it could be had in "any color so long as it's black." It was designed with a high clearance to make its way through the mud, rocks, ditches, gullies and rutted tracks which mostly passed for roads in those days. It was built for practicality rather than beauty.

Farmers, particularly, took it to their hearts. They, and their neighbors in small towns, made up more than half of the 87 million population of the United States in 1908. In the Model T they got an automobile that could be modified to plow the fields on weekdays and go country-riding on Sundays. It could be used to saw wood, pump water, store grain, and for other jobs a handy man could dream up. In country and in town nothing like it had ever been seen in America. It caught the popular fancy and came into great demand.

Of course, it was far from perfect. Its hand-cranked motor was hard to start on cold mornings. On very hot days or on steep hills its radiator boiled over. Over muddy roads it got poor mileage. On steep grades it did better in reverse than in low gear.

Still the Model T was as dependable as a pack mule if you carried a tool kit and checked your gas regularly. It took you where you wanted to go. Most Model T owners tinkered with their cars and out of necessity made their own emergency repairs with a screwdriver, a pair of pliers, a few wrenches and a bit of wire. Parts for the Model T were cheap and available everywhere.

People cursed the Model T and make jokes about it, but in fact everybody felt an affection for the "Tin Lizzie" and the "flivver," as the temperamental, efficient little cars came to be called. By 1920 the country roads swarmed with them. Almost everyone could afford a "Tin Lizzie" on the monthly installment plan, and second-hand models could be had from $25 up.

More thany other means of transportation the Model T Ford increased the range of the average American family's movement from a few to hundreds, or even thousands of miles. It opened a whole new world far from home, and welded together the towns and cities of America. The improved roads, the roadside hamburger stand, the motel, the consolidated country school — all got their start from the Model T.

So popular did it become that by 1914 the Ford factory was turning out almost as many cars as all other car manufacturers combined. For 19 years, until May, 1927, when the Model A replaced it, 15 million of the sturdy little cars rolled off the Ford assembly lines, or more than a car per minute. During all this time the Model T, though often modified, was never basically changed. The stream of "flivvers" seemed endless and the price dropped from around $800 in 1908 to $209 in 1924 for a runabout model.

Legends and jokes reflected the affection in which the indestructible little cars were held. A dying man requested on his deathbed that his Model T be buried with him because he had never been in a hole yet it couldn't get him out of.

The old Model T seems quaint and ridiculous now. But it was an instrument of historic destiny that in one generation helped to change the face of America. The legend of Henry Ford's "Tin Lizzie" will linger with us for a long time to come.

PICTURES OF THE WEEK

DRINKS ARE ON THE HOUSE – Offenbach, Germany – Providing a source of quick refreshment, this novel, leather-covered padlock turns into a bar at the twist of a key. As demonstrated by a pretty Miss at the International Leatherware Fair in Offenbach, Germany, the interior of the padlock contains a bar and the door folds down for use as a bar table. When closed, the padlock makes an interesting wall ornament for a man's den.

42ND BROADWAY BAR – Beirut, Lebanon – For U. S. Troops in Lebanon, a touch of home is provided by the "42nd Broadway" Bar, which is located conveniently near the port. For those who don't feel like drinking, it's at least a handy place for "standing on the corner, watching...etc."

LOS ANGELES – Swimmer Greta Anderson indicates the channel between San Pedro (top) and Catalina Island (lower left) which she will attempt to swim both ways, a round trip of 42 miles. This would be a remarkable accomplishment for the 30-year-old housewife who in 1953 was on crutches, the result of a crippling attack of Arthritis, but has twice conquered the English Channel.

LEARNING BY DOING – Miami Beach, Fla. – She's got a long way to go, but this three-year-old toddler is getting an early start on the road to Beauty Queen, as she apes her elders during a beauty contest at Miami Beach, Fla. The girls were competing for the title of Miss Chemise of 1958.

ETERNALLY YOURS – New York – Seductive Joi Lansing is shown in the role of Caroline Coats in "Fountain of Youth," to be seen on NBC-TV. "Fountain of Youth," an entire Orson Welles production, is a story of eternal life.

1. Railroad track in Indiana will reach from here to Tokyo. Answer: True. Indiana has 6,682 miles of railroad track, plus another 5,904 miles of multiple and yard tracks. Figured another way the 6,682 miles of track amounts to a mile of rails for every 5½ square miles of land area in the state.

2. 10% ☐ 30% ☐ 12% ☐ of the Nation's household furniture is made in Indiana. Answer: 12%. More than 60 Indiana communities have one or more furniture plants.

3. Automobile registration increases faster in Right to Work states. Answer: True. Between 1947 and 1956 the number of cars and trucks registered in states with Right to Work Laws increased 23 per cent faster than in states without such laws. There is one vehicle registered for every two people in Indiana.

Around the Town

With the Editor

I hear that a Democrat got bitten by a Republican dog and then the dog sat up and shook hands with the former.

From the story passed along to me, Harvey and Parlia Hull were canvassing in the country to get voters registered. At the Wilbur Collins home Harvey must have looked pretty inviting to the dog and the biting occurred. Before Harvey left, however, the dog was made to sit up and shake hands.

—Which may be an indication of something but I won't say because I don't want Republicans or Democrats on my back—not now, anyhow.

Free advertising for the benefit of the town—

Wanted—man or men for part time help in occasional town maintenance work. Contact Derwood Ridgway, Orville Coburn or Lester Pugsley.

Last week names of 4-H fair winners appeared in this paper. And I suppose there were some left out as usually happens when there are a lot of names involved. Adult fair winners were not listed because I don't know about them. One I do know about is Doris Yeiser 'cause she told me about her, what is it, 9 blue ribbons and some red and white ones won for her handwork efforts.

Mr. Treesh, the insurance man for Commonwealth, was in this week. He mentioned that he doesn't have a radio in his car and it's kinda rough not knowing how the world series is coming along. At one of his collection stops he asked the lady how the game was coming out. She said,

"Who's playing?"

—That's all, brother.

Homecoming At Spencerville Oct. 12

The annual homecoming of St. Peter Evangelical Lutheran Church at Spencerville will be held Sunday, October 12.

The worship service will be conducted by Pastor Ivan O. Miller at the regular 9:00 a.m. hour. Church School will convene at 10:00 a.m.

At noon a pot luck dinner will be served with the Ladies Aid in charge.

Former members and friends are invited to observe the homecoming with the congregation.

Miss Barbara Miller, daughter of Pastor and Mrs. Miller, will be guest organist for the worship service.

Scouts Invite Boys To Join

Calling all boys! Calling all boys 11 years of age and over!

Next Tuesday evening, October 14, there will be a Boy Scout Roll Call and Inspection at which time boys 11 years of age and over, who wish to participate in Boy Scout work, may register for membership in the local Scout troop. The meeting will be held at the Town Hall at 7:00 p.m.

Re-chartering of the Saint Joe troop will be made in a short time. It is necessary to have names of all boys who will participate in troop activities on file before that time so that the charter may be presented in complete form. The meeting next Tuesday, to which parents of the boys are also invited, will take care of the registration of the troop for the coming year.

In addition to regular meetings held every Tuesday, the troop holds occasional overnight camp-outs, participates in community projects from time to time, participates in area activities such as the annual Klondke Derby, in addition to other worthwhile and interesting activites.

Eligible boys and their parents are urged to attend the meeting.

SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club held their September 18 meeting at the home of Eula Mansfield. The president opened the meeting with everyone repeating the club collect.

Devotions were given by Dorothy Christman. The history of the song of the month was given by Dorothy Christman.

Roll call was answered by 17 members and 3 guests, Mrs. Fish, Mrs. Elizabeth Stemen and Mrs. Doris Yeiser.

The garden leader, Arden Dwyer, and outlook leader gave their reports for this month.

Election of officers was held with the following results:

President, Jean Moore.
Vice president, Paula Roberts.
Secretary, Leila Moore.
Treasurer, Sharon Bowser.
Song leader, Connie Hollabaugh.
News reporter, Beverly Mansfield.

Remainder of the evening was spent finishing wooden trays.

Refreshments were then served by the hostess.

Street Work Brings Protests

Members of the Town Board held a periodically stormy session Monday evening as a few residents of Saint Joe attended the meeting to protest the results of the recent street repairing and resurfacing. The greater portion of the meeting was devoted to registering of protests and discussions of same with occasional flurries of conflicting opinions and outspoken accusations. But the board indicated that the streets were to be worked on yet in the near future, particularly along a few curbs and parking areas where "gouging" of the street was evident, which would take care of some of the complaints.

A strong complaint was voiced about the alleged "taking over" of the repair operation by one of Saint Joe's residents. Questions asked of the board at this point indicated that there had been knowledge of the assumption of authority and with at least one member's consent to do so. Other complaints had to do with the methods used and procedures followed in repairing the streets.

In connection with the matter of street upkeep, the board indicated that it has been unsuccessful in finding help to do part-time work for the town. It is hoped that anyone who does want to do such work will contact a member of the board. Present pay rate for such work is $1.50 per hour.

Present at the meeting were board members Derwood Ridgway, Lester Pugsley and Orville Coburn, town clerk Willard Hurni and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Amstutz, Bob Miller, Andy Monroe, Fred Church, Maurice Kline and Ted Haberkorn.

CULTURE CLUB

The first meeting of the 50th year of the Saint Joe Culture Club was held at Eckhart Park in Auburn October 1. The committee of Mrs. Dewey White, Mrs. Robert Bishop and Mrs. Albert Wade planned a weiner roast and pot luck which was enjoyed by members and their families.

Two new members, Mrs. Joe Smith and Mrs. Donald Friend, their husbands and children also were present.

Mrs. Joe Baidinger gave the table grace. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bishop prepared some entertaining games for the children and prizes were distributed.

The next meeting will be on October 15 at the home of the club president, Mrs. Dewey White.

'Phone Company Works To Stop Dial Trouble

Saint Joe telephone subscribers have been experiencing difficulties in telephone service in the past two weeks. Principal complaint has been the inability to get the dial tone which is the signal for the telephone user to dial the number to be called. Continued pushing of the shut-off button has been partially successful in tripping the relay in the local office releasing the dial tone. But in many instances such action was to no avail.

A call to the Angola office of General Telephone Co. on Wednesday brought forth the information that the equipment is being worked on at the present time and the difficulties should be eliminated in a short time. Instances in which a subscriber's number has been changed is only a temporary measure to provide service until the equipment is in proper working order. Any numbers which have been changed will, in all probability, be returned to their original digits.

Apparently the present difficulties are caused as the result of the moving of equipment into a new building on telephone property in Saint Joe. In the moving operation something was done which is causing relays to stick. As was mentioned before, the telephone company expects to have the situation remedied in a short time.

GOP Meet Sunday

Cong. E. Ross Adair will be among the Republican dignitaries present Sunday afternoon, October 12, at a "Koffee Klatch" sponsored by the Women's Republican Club of Concord, Newville and Spencer townships. The meeting will be held at Chaney's Restaurant at Spencerville from 2 to 5 p.m.

Other candidates for office on the Republican ticket in the November election will also be present to meet with members and friends of the party. An invitation is extended to all to attend.

Riverdale Teacher Resigns

Mrs. Ruth Robbins, teacher of the 6th grade and junior high of the Riverdale school system, has resigned from the Riverdale faculty effective Friday, October 17, 1958. Announcement of the resignation was revealed by Richard Crow, president of the Riverdale School Board.

Mrs. Robbins was one of the new members of the school faculty this year. Her husband has been employed as assistant soil conservationist in Allen County. He has been transferred to Crawfordsville as chief soil conservationist. His tranfer forced the resignation of Mrs. Robbins from her teaching position at Riverdale.

Mr. Crow also revealed that Jerry Zonker of Corunna has been contacted to fill the vacancy in the teaching staff. Mr. Zonker will begin his duties Monday, October 20.

Historical Group Meets Sunday

The fall meeting of the Northeastern Indiana Historical Society will be held on Sunday, October 12, at the Alton School, near one of the earliest settlements in DeKalb County. The Alton School is 3 miles south of Road 8 on Road 101 or 2 miles east of Saint Joe. The meeting is open to the public.

The program will include talks on the early history of Spencerville, the Coburntown community, Orangeville and Newville or Vienna as it was first known. Speakers are Mrs. Audrey Wade of Spencerville, Clyde Hart of near Coburn's Corners, and Earl Husselman of Auburn. DeKalb County members of the society are serving as the host group and committee on general arrangements.

A pot luck dinner will be served promptly at 1:00 p.m. with the program and business meeting opening at 2:00 p.m. Election of officers will be held. Those attending are asked to bring food and table service. Coffee will be furnished.

Membership in the Northeastern Indiana Historical Society is open to all persons interested in local history and includes residents of DeKalb, Noble, LaGrange and Steuben counties. C. L. Bowers of Waterloo is president and Mrs. Clark Roberts of Pleasant Lake is program chairman.

Sizzling Citizens

"There'll Be A Hot Tme In the Old Town (Hall) Tonight" could have been the theme song of Saint Joe Monday of this week, if anyone wanted to be musical about the coming evening. For there was certainly a hot time as the Town Board met and a few of the local citizenry made their dissatisfaction known about the recent street repairs.

There were sparks flying for a while but the session ended on an amiable note as one member of the Town Board admitted at least twice that a mistake had been made and that steps were being taken to repair damage to streets where damage had been done. One thing that cannot be rectified, however, is the fact that several hundred dollars in tax funds has been spent and an unsatisfactory job will be redone in places, necessitating further expenditures.

If there is a moral to this story, it is that townspeople very often get what they ask for.

Last Monday evening was but another illustration of the fact that no one, well, almost no one, takes enough interest in town affairs to attend a Town Board meeting even if only once in a while and even if only to hear routine business. There is little more to be expected than the difficult situation which arose in the past few weeks concerning the street repairs if no one knows what is going on. Of course, the board itself could do better in keeping the public informed, but a greater responsibility, perhaps, lies with the Saint Joe Citizen to see to it that he knows what is going on, better still to let the board know what he wants to be done, not for selfish reasons but for the purpose of improving the town in which he lives.

Time after time it has been the board's experience to see no one at the meeting except those who have a bill to present or who have a complaint to register. And even on the occasions when there have been residents present at the meeting for a specific purpose, they invariably leave the meeting when their own immediate interests have been taken care of. "Why, I've been to board meetings" means "I had a complaint to register" - this after action has been taken, not before. Little wonder that the board sometimes makes a "mistake" as far as the public is concerned.

The matter of streets and their upkeep is not a new one. Enough comment has been heard from residents of Saint Joe to give the impression that a good many of them want the streets improved, not just kept up. But they say nothing at a board meeting about it; they are not there. So, in this particular instance, the cheapest way out as far as street repair is concerned was chosen. This means a lot to some who think only of the tax rate, and perhaps they are the ones who talk the loudest and are heard - outside board meetings. But this time the cheapest way is going to be not the cheapest. And in addition, there are ruffled tempers, profanity, threats, accusations, promises, etc., etc., all of which subtract from the well-being of the community. One of the most pronounced accusations which was disproved at the board meeting had to do with the impression gained by many and spread by others that one individual had taken supervisory authority upon himself when the street repairs were made. Indignation was expressed that he had moved vehicles from the streets and had "told" workmen where to go and what to do and so on. It was brought out at the board meeting Monday evening that, since the arrival of the repair equipment was indefinite as to date and since none of the board members were in town at the time the equipment did arrive, the individual in question was given the authority to "take over" by one of the board members, perhaps an informal granting of authority, but nevertheless official enough to make false the story of alleged usurping of power.

As long as townspeople give little hint as to their desires for Saint Joe and as long as they take little interest in town affairs except to complain about what has been done and never, as one board member pointed out, offer their services in any way to help the town progress, we suppose the board will continue to be satisfied, as every one seems to be, with the second lowest tax rate in the county.

Look around. This we should brag about?

GOOD EVENING

Christianity's insistence that a human being has the right to own property, even the necessity of owning it to permit his working out of his destiny, is an argument on behalf of the proper kind of capitalism, which Americans believe that they have at least for the most part. Unless an individual has the right to own property and the ability to exercise that right he becomes a chattel, not a free being able to serve both Man and God properly.

Those who are representative of our business associations in this country and attempt to convince the oncoming generations of the virtues of capitalism, too frequently teach only the mechanics of our capitalistic system. It is not sufficient to teach youngsters merely how to set up a corporation, to formulate a balance sheet, to run off a statement of income, to establish a sales organization, set up a production system or make a market survey. These things, although important, add up only to the mechanics of our kind of capitalism. Along with these things should be taught the basic philosophy that makes our system a moral one, and at the same time, an effective one.

Socialism and Communism both have in common the false notion that there is no inherent need for the individual himself to own property. Both have in common the idea that what is good for the state is necessarily good for the individual. Our kind of capitalism is based on the idea that nothing is good for the state which is not good for the individual. If the welfare of the state is put ahead of the welfare of the individual, then his right to worship God as his conscience dictates, his right to speak his mind freely and his right to liberty automatically go out the window when the welfare of the state seems to come ahead of his.

If schools exist to teach our children the ideas that we want them taught, which is our right, then why is it that any boys and girls can go through eight years of grade school, four years of high school and four years of college without anyone having taught them the basis on which our economic system operates, principally its philosophy?

Our economic system isn't an unholy thing. It is not something of which teachers in grade schools, high schools and colleges need be ashamed. It is the blood stream that nourishes those grade schools, high schools and colleges. It supplies the school buildings, the teachers' salaries and the high tuition which the parents of the students pay. To ignore it out of an unexpressed shame is like a child feeling ashamed that his parent has less education than he has, when what education he does have is a result of his parent's sacrifice.

It would be very difficult to find anyone in this country who is not a beneficiary of our economic system. Not only were all our grade schools, high schools and universities built out of the fruits of our economic system, but every church as well. Almost everything that everyone has in this country is a fruit of our economic system, which is capitalistic. Do you need to own anything or would it be sufficient if it were merely assigned to you by the state for your use? I think the answer would be obvious to any American who cherishes individual liberty.

There are enough people benefiting from our system. There should be more speaking up for its defense, not merely lauding its mechanics but stressing the philosophical principles underlying it.

THE WORLD'S HOPE

Lesson for October 12, 1958

Is there hope for the world? Is there hope for me? All human beings ask that question one way or another. For all citizens of this planet, with very few exceptions, can see that this world is not as it ought to be. The more unselfish, the more public-minded, the more sensitive to the needs of human beings a person is, the more deeply he will feel the woes of the world. All persons not smothered in the selfish enjoyment of their own private paradise (if they can afford one) will agree that this world sorely needs hope.

Prisoners of Hope

But is there hope? Here opinions differ. Some of those who are most keenly certain that the world is in a bad way, are sadly convinced that it will not grow better—it can't. The ancient Greeks, and many other races besides, thought of history as going around in circles. The world would go downhill and up by turns, around and around the wheel of fate. No disaster, and no improvement, would ever be permanent.

But the Jews were a peculiar people. They were peculiar among other things for their hope. Alone among the ancient peoples of the world, the Hebrews thought of history not as a circle but as a straight line, an arrow with a point, aimed and going somewhere. If ancient men thought of a Golden Age, they placed it in the far past. The Jews dreamed of a Golden Age, too, but theirs was never in the past.

This hope, as centuries went on, became centered in one Deliverer to come. They called him by various names: Messiah, Son of David, God's Chosen One, the Rescuer or Savior. It is clear from the stories Luke tells that even very old people like Anna and Simeon lived in hope that they might see the coming of the New Age. Somehow when they saw the baby Jesus they felt sure that the great Hope was now becoming deal, at last. Imprisoned in circumstances they might have been; but always as "prisoners of hope."

Hope Deferred

The sad thing was that the great majority of the Hebrew people, when the long-awaited Messiah really came, could not recognize him. Jesus the carpenter, Jesus the radical teacher, Jesus the friend of sinners, did not fit the patterns and the formulas by which they had described the Coming One. As they would have said, "He does not fulfill the Prophecies." Nevertheless, some did see that he fulfilled the deeper meaning of the ancient prophets' hopes. And so by degrees the number of believers in the Messiah (or Christ, which means just the same thing) grew and grew. Most of the Jewish people were left with a sense of hope deferred. And indeed many Christians were likewise disappointed. For it appears to have been the expectation of the early Christians that Christ's absence in heaven was only temporary, that is to say for a very short time, a few days, weeks, months, years perhaps. Every one hoped and most of them expected to live to see Jesus bursting through the blue sky, riding on a cloud, coming to be King of the World. But Jesus did not come that way. Even in our time some Christians expect to outlive the world's time.

Hope Abides

Nevertheless, and despite all the disappointments and misunderstandings, the hope lives on. Most Christians no longer expect to see Jesus coming on a space-ship. But all Christians do live by hope. That Christ will reign is a hope and a faith that will not down. That in the long run his cause will conquer, that "the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ," this the church believes. We have to be modest and humble, or we should be so, about the "how" of hope's fulfillment. For we remember how mistaken the Jews of Jesus' time were, in their interpretation of prophesy, and we know how many Christian interpretations have been smashed by history's matter-of-factness. But we shall not be dashed. We believe that God is not going to be defeated, we believe that against Christ and his church even the gates of hell shall not prevail.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

SERGEANT YORK'S HEROISM

A 29-year-old redheaded mountaineer from Tennessee became the greatest battlefield hero of World War I on October 8, 1918 in the Argonne Forest of France. His name was Alvin C. York, and his exploit as "Sergeant York, hero of the Argonne," became a legend in the annals of American heroism. "Well, York, I hear you've damn near captured the whole German army!" said his brigade commander on the night of that memorable October 8th.

Alvin Cullen York of Pall Mall, Tennessee, was a tall, strong mountain man in the prime of life when he was drafted into the army in 1917. He was a turkey-shooting marksman, a descendant of the famed Davy Crockett, and one of the finest men in his outfit — Company G, 328th Infantry Regiment of the 82nd Division. The division fought all summer of 1918 in the Lorraine part of France where York earned his corporal's tripes and command of an automatic rifle team. His remarkable marksmanship became the talk of the regiment.

In the fall the 82nd Division took part in the big Meuse-Argonne offensive, slashing at the German flank in the northern Argonne. Company G, in which Corporal York was a squad leader, was in the attack launched at six o'clock in the morning of October 8 behind a rolling artillery barrage.

The attack soon ran into a firm enemy entrenched on high ground. Out in front of the advance was part of a platoon belonging to Company G. A violent hail of machine gun fire cut down all but seven men. York, the only surviving noncom, took command. They overcame the first machine gun nest. Then York inched forward of his tiny group to see what lay ahead. A few yards more, and a line of 35 machine guns opened up and pinned him flat.

York was trapped. Cautiously he began firing his rifle into the nearest enemy position. And every time a German head reared up to get a shot off, York drilled a bullet into it! A dozen enemy gunners went down this way, and then six Germans charged out with fixed bayonets. York dropped them, one by one.

Again he turned to the machine gun pits. With each of his shots another enemy fell. York began calling on the Germans to surrender. At first it sounded like a joke, but after York had killed his 22nd man, a German major came forward under a white flag. Bringing his seven men with him, York, pistol in hand, followed the German officer back to the line of machine gun pits where 35 guns now stood silent. York and his seven men disarmed 90 Germans and began moving them out. Suddenly they realized they were inside the enemy line!

York took a bold move. He jabbed his pistol in the German major's back and with his seven men marched up to the front line trench where York called on the remaining Germans to surrender. And they surrendered!

Now, with a total of 132 prisoners, after having knocked 35 machine guns out of action, York returned to his regiment's lines. He left his prisoners with a neighboring battalion and quietly went back to his own outfit. And so ended the amazing feat of an entire enemy battalion destroyed by one brave American soldier armed only with a rifle and pistol. As the story spread and was verified, disbelief and astonishment gave way to the wonder that was to make "Sergeant York" (he was promoted to sergeant soon afterwards) an almost legendary figure to a generation of Americans.

He received the highest French and American decorations, including the Medal of Honor and the Croix de Guerre. "What you did," said Marshal Foch as he pinned the French medal on Sergeant York's tunic, "was the greatest thing accomplished by any soldier of all the armies in Europe."

With the Editor

Last week as I was deep in concentrated thought at the linotype, I became aware of somcone standing nearby waiting for me to come back from the other world. I looked up and said "Hi" and got up to wait on the young man. It vas a double-take I took because the young man was Jerry McMaken and I didn't recognize him at first glance. He is now a civilian again.

I mentioned to him that not many young men seem to be serving in the armed forces these days. The News had a mailing list of maybe two cozen men in service until the last few months. Now it's down to around eight. Either they aren't going or they or their families haven't notified me of their addresses. Remember, The News goes free to servicemen who want to receive it — servicemen from this area, that is. Most of the boys have expressed appreciation at least once of receiving The News while they were serving their hitch.

—Have you got a serviceman who would like to get this paper??

Once in a while does something bring a quick spur-of-the-moment chuckle? That happened to me last week. As I opened the shop door one morning, I picked up an envelope which had been pushed through the slot in the door and read on it: "News??"

There were some news items in the envelope.

Those question marks got me. I had to chuckle.

—And that's how Kate Bowser got the Editor to laugh.

Bill Beebe stopped in last week to visit for a while. The Beebe's are preparing for the big wedding; Richard and his young lady from Gaithersburg, Maryland, will become one pretty soon now, November 1, I think.

While we talked, Bill threw in a note of appreciation for the assistance our postmaster has given in getting mail service extended to 7 new customers on the rural route. The Beebe family is one of the 7 and they are quite pleased with the convenience of rural mail service.

Take a bow, Mr. Wilder.

On the way to Lions Club Monday evening, I passed the Christian Church. There were Bud and Jean Shockley slaving away at a pile of dirt, shoveling it on a trailer. I stopped and said, "Well!" Jean stopped short and looked a little ambarrassed. Bud said, "I like company!" And that was that.

I suppose Jean figured - - - "Now he'll put something in the paper about me shoveling dirt." So I'll fool her and just not say anything about it.

Further on down the road there was another industrious husband and wife team diligently at work. Pete and Gladys Akey were applying a coat of paint to their new country home.

Robert Heller of Corunna attended the Lions Club meeting and gave a short talk about the Wee Haven School For Retarded Children. His talk was followed by a film about the beginning of the Wee Haven school. The program was quite interesting. Mr. Heller knows something of the matter of exceptional children as one of the 6 Heller children is a student at Wee Haven. Incidentally, Mr. Heller is vice president of the board of directors of the school. He is engaged in farming near Corunna.

It is gratifying to know that DeKalb County has a "do-it-yourself" project like this in operation. We are taking a big step in caring for ourselves by making available a place for handicapped children to receive particular care and patient instruction. Keep in mind that you can see the film about the school and meet the head teacher of the school, Mrs. Joseph Catmpbell, at the P.T.A. meeting next November 18.

If you expose yourself to some of the information about the school and its work and workers, I don't think you can help but become interested in this DeKalb County pioneering project.

Next Tuesday's PTA meeting should be an interesting one with a film shown on television about 6 weeks ago scheduled to be shown at the high school gym. It is titled "Crowded Out."

Boosters Seek Signers For Park Petition

BULLETIN—A report received at press time indicates that 111 resident property owners of Saint Joe were contained in the list of residents to be contacted concerning the proposed park. Thus far 103 have been contacted. 102 have signed the petition with but one refusal being made. 8 property owners remain to be contacted.

The first major project of the Booster Club of Saint Joe is making headway this week as the committee seeking to lay out a public park circulates a petition for presentation to the Town Board of Saint Joe.

After many weeks of negotiations and preparation of necessary legal papers, the Booster Club is taking a big step to inaugurate a program of civic improvement as part of its overall community operations. The park committtee, including Donald Kinsey, Roy Bowser, Merl Guilford and Ed Storer, working in close cooperation with Frank Sechler, president of the Booster Club, is now circulating a petition to resident property owners in Saint Joe seeking their signatures to approve of petitioning the town board to purchase slightly more than 6 acres of ground at the northwest edge of Saint Joe. The property is owned by Roscoe and Jennie Walter of Spencerville.

Under the proposed plan as explained in the petition, the town of Saint Joe would lease the land for 10 years at $50 per year. At the end of that time the town would have sole ownership of the property. Any time during the 10 year lease period, the town may purhcase the land, with payments made under the lease applying toward the purchase price of $500. An easement clause in the lease would automatically terminate with the sale of the property.

In order to petition the town board to take action, 67 per cent of the resident property owners in Saint Joe must sign the paper now being circulated. According to reports early this week support of the petition is high and there appears the certainty that the board will be asked to assume the proposed lease.

Assisting the park committee and the president of the Booster Club in negotiating for the park property has been Orville Coburn, member of the town board and also a member of the board of directors of the Booster Club.

Although no solicitation for park funds has been made by the Boosters and no expenditures authorized in connection with the park, the promise of civic improvement prompted one of Saint Joe's "long-lost" citizens to become the first park-fund donor. Fairfield "Skeet" Meese, who has been visiting Saint Joe for the past several weeks, became the first to give specific support to the park project by contributing a ten-dollar bill Wednesday morning of this week. A boyhood resident of Saint Joe, Mr. Meese has not been in Saint Joe since 1919 having moved away in 1906 and returning for the one visit before his current stay. He, along with other native citizens of Saint Joe, has voiced remembrances of the "good old days" and expressed his pleasure at this latest community undertaking by making the first park contribution.

PTA Has TV Film, Project Vote On Tuesday Program

The Riverdale P.T.A. will meet next Tuesday evening, October 21, at the high school gym in Saint Joe. Meeting time is 7:30 p.m.

Featured on the program will be the showing of the film, "Crowded Out," a sound color movie showing the effects of increasing enrollment in a growing community, the breaking up of the teacher-student relationship when the number of pupils per class increases beyond efficiency.

The film appeared recently on television.

To be considered in the business meeting will be the purchase of an opaque projector for use principally by the elementary grades. This type of projetor is capable of reproducing on a screen or light wall any printed matter within the limits of its reproducing mechanism. A page from a book, a printed sheet, a type-written quiz, a map, any of these may be projected without damage to the paper itself or the book, magazine, etc., in which the reproduced page appears. Mr. Howard Hill, principal of the elementary grades, has presented the request to the P.T.A. for the purchase of the projector. He presented information about its use and the need for such a projector at the September meeting of the organization.

Cost of the projector which is recommended for the needs of Riverdale grade students is $314.00. Patrons of the school are urged to attend the meeting to decide on the matter of obtaining the projector.

Entertainment will be presented by the Senior Class of the high school and by the second grade students.

Those who wish to join the P.T.A. may do so at the meeting by presenting one dollar. A membership card will be issued to the member family.

Lutheran Men Meet Here On Wednesday

Men of the United Lutheran churches of this area and friends will attend a meeting of the Lutheran Men of Northeastern Indiana next Wednesday evening, October 22, at 8 p.m. at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. Guest speaker will be Dr. O. K. Jensen, an active layman in the Lutheran Church. He will present a first hand report of the fall convention of the United Lutheran Church in America.

The men's group includes members of Lutheran churches at Saint Joe, Spencerville, Butler, Corunna, Auburn, Albion, Mt. Pleasant of near Albion, LaOtto and Bethlehem near LaOtto. Outstanding leaders in the church have spoken at the meetings attended by over 150 men.

Dr. Jensen is a life-long resident of Cicero, Indiana. He has been active in Indiana State politics, serving in 1930 as examiner of the State Board of Accounts, as state examiner from 1941-1945 and 1949-1953, and as first director of the Indianapolis Redevelopment Commission in the field of slum clearance from 1945-1949.

Since 1936 Dr. Jensen has served as treasurer of the Mulberry Lutheran Home for the Aged. He has been a member of the board of Directors of Wittenberg College since 1939 and since 1943 has served as chairman of this board. He was awarded an Honorary L.L.D. from Wittenberg in 1949. From 1945-1948 Dr. Jensen served on the Board of Pensions, U.L.C.A. From 1948 to 1956 he was a member of the excutive board of the U.L.C.A. and served as chairman of the finance committee.

Something To Think About

On a recent Sunday afternoon we dropped in on a shoot at the local conservation club grounds and got into a conversation with one of the club's active members. After we had commented about the weather, the club member brought up a subject which had dropped from our thoughts in the past year. The subject was the matter of a community building and club house located on the conservation grounds.

In any building project the major problem is always money. In a small community the problem is more pronounced. While the conservation club itself would probably in time be able to finance the construction of a club house, participation by other organizations in financing such construction would possibly result in greater interest in the use and care of the building and the facilities surrounding it. The members of the conservation club who are interested in trap shooting are steadily improving their equipment. There are now two traps in use with a third being readied for use. A fourth trap will be installed in the future giving the local club one of the best layouts in the state for conducting trap shoots. This means lots of people and a source of activity to draw interest to this community. A building on the grounds would greatly enhance this particular phase of community activity.

While there are difficulties encountered in the programming of such a building project which requires the contribution of time and resources of other organizations, it appears that a sizeable amount of money given toward a building could grant a contributing organization the use of such a building for its regular meetings. Since the building would be a community project, there doesn't appear to be any need for worry of "who's going to run it" or "how will our interests be represented", as is often the case. An understanding beforehand as to certain nights for certain groups, miscellaneous rental fees, etc., would seem to solve the problem.

It has been apparent for some time that this community needs some sort of community building containing facilities suitable for not just routine meetings but also for such gatherings as political dinners and rallies, banquets, mixed gatherings such as the various clubs in the area participate in from time to time. Space is limited when one tries to find room for a banquet or a large meeting; dining facilities are limited. The only place which can be considered an auditorium is the school gym and gyms are notorious for their poor acoustics much less the inconvenience of moving chairs and tables to and from.

While there are many problems to be overcome in arriving at a suitable plan for providing a community building to fill the needs of organizations in this area, there appears to be merit in serious consideration of the matter. One of the criticisms often heard of Saint Joe is that nothing goes on here. Too often that criticism is justified. And it is justified because we have not provided the means by which things can be "going on."

The conservation club has not met much enthusiasm in the past in approaching other organizations in this community concerning the cooperative effort in building a community building. Consequently its members have allowed the proposal to lie dormant in the past year. But it appears that the interest and enthusiasm which brought forth the idea originally could be revived. This with the cooperation of the community in general could trigger a worthwhile building project.

Tot Dies Under Wheels Of Father's Tractor

A tragic accident occurred at the Virgil Smith farm last Thursday afternoon resulting in the death of Joyce Ellen Smith, year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Smith of southwest of Saint Joe.

The little girl was run over by her father's tractor as he backed it from the garage at the Smith home. She was rushed to the hospital in Auburn but was pronounced dead on arrival.

The victim was born August 28, 1957.

Survivors, in addition to the parents, are 2 brothers, Ronald and Melvin, at home; 2 sisters, Linda at home and Mrs. Marilyn Mann of Saint Joe; the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Warstler of Saint Joe; and the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Smith of Auburn.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. at Coburn Corners Church of Christ with the pastor, J. P. Hill, officiating. Burial was in Roselawn Cemetery near Auburn.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

BURGOYNE'S SURRENDER

October 17, 1777 is a great day in American history, marking the decisive victory of the battle of Saratoga.

The British had a big scheme for defeating the American colonies in the summer of 1777. A strong army under General Burgoyne was to sweep down from Canada along the Hudson River. From the south General Howe was to move up the Hudson until the two armies met at Albany. Then the colonies would be split, with New England cut off and the back of the Revolution would be broken. It was a fine scheme — on paper.

General John Burgoyne, known as "Gentleman Johnny," was a brave and able leader. His army of British regulars and Hessians, Canadians and Indians, sailed down Lake Champlain in high spirits. They captured Fort Ticonderoga at the end of June without a fight by scaling a rocky height that overlooked the fort and forcing the garrison to abandon it.

The news of the capture of Ticonderoga caused great rejoicing in England. King George became so excited at the news that he rushed into the Queen's apartment, shouting, "I have beat them! I have beat all the Americans!" He was, of course, crowing too soon.

The fall of Ticonderoga aroused the people of New York and New England as never before. The American forces under General Philip Schuyler gained many recruits. Washington sent some of his best generals, Benedict Arnold, Benjamin Lincoln and Daniel Morgan with his expert Virginia riflemen to join Schuyler.

Resistance to the British increased. They lost many men fighting their slow way onward through the woods and fields of upstate New York. Their supplies dwindled and by August they were suffering hunger. At the foot of the Green Mountains the Americans had stores of supplies in the Vermont village of Bennington. Burgoyne sent a force to capture the stores. But his troops were defeated at the battle of Bennington.

Burgoyne's situation soon became desperate. The Americans were around him on all sides like angry hornets. He longed for word from Howe who was to bring an army up the Hudson to join him according to the original plan. But Howe was far away, marching on Philadelphia, the "rebel capital", he wanted so much.

As Burgoyne's position grew worse he decided to risk a major battle and attacked the Americans, now commanded by General Gates, at Saratoga. Two battles were fought eighteen days apart. At the second battle General Arnold, who had been dismissed by Gates after a quarrel, watched the fighting from a distance until he leaped upon his horse and charged into the battle to the cheers of the Americans. In this battle of Saratoga Arnold was wounded and lost his left leg.

The British were completely defeated. Surrounded and bombarded day and night their position was hopeless. Gates demanded unconditional surrender, but the proud Burgoyne refused. He held out for several days more. On October 17 Gates gave better terms to be accepted at once — or else. To save Burgoyne's feelings the word "surrender" was not used. Instead, the document was called "a convention between Lieutenant General Burgoyne and Major General Gates." To this Burgoyne quickly agreed. It was a complete surrender in all but name.

This capture of a well-equipped and trained British army was a turning point in the Revolutionary War. It helped to bring France into the struggle on the American side. Altogether Saratoga was such an outstanding victory that it ranks among the decisive battles of world history.

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

I am enclosing a check for $6.00 that should bring our subscription approximately up to date. You may stop our subscription as of now, as we never get our paper until Mon. and most of the news is outdated by that time. I realize that this is due to poor mail service between St. Joe and Hicksville, but nevertheless, nothing is "staler and yesterday's news."

Thank you,

The Saint Joe News

VOLUME LXXIII | ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. | Thursday, October 23, 1958 | NUMBER 42

Around the Town

With the Editor

I have a copy of the Saint Joe News that's been around in the last two months.

A copy of the August 7 issue was sent to Rev. and Mrs. William Billow in Japan. They then used it (after reading it, I hope) to wrap a book which they sent to Dr. Allan Hauck in Fremont, Nebraska. Dr. Hauck then used it for a short bit of correspondence and sent it back to me last week.

So, roughly speaking, that paper has traveled, what, around 16,000 miles in the last couple of months?

Saint Joe vignette—

Scene: The News Office.

Time: last Thursday, 4:30 p. m.

The Editor sweeps the leaves off the sidewalk. Enter, Merle Holden.

Editor: Well, how'd the report card come out?

Merle: Pretty good - - - - - I lost it.

Jesse Loftus brought in a copy of a composition of which he is quite proud—not because he wrote it but because it was written about him. You can understand why when you read the following which was written by Jesse' grandson, Don Johnson, several years ago when Don was a junior in Auburn High School.
"Grandpa

"My grandfather, on my mother's side of the family, is Irish. He is still living at the age of 78.

"Much of a man's life can be told by looking at his hands. Grandpa's hands tell the story of hard work. His large knuckles tell of the years of farming. The large vein tells of the strain; the deep wrinkles tell of over 70 years of plowing, planting, and harvesting.

"His eyes tell more of his personality. The light blue, now grayed with age, still shows the spirit of brotherhood of men which he always practiced. His face though wrinkled and dull with age has a beauty no artist can create, a beauty all men should strive to obtain, a beauty of kindness and understanding.

Most men after seventy are content to sit and bore the younger people with 'What it was like when I was your age!' Not Grandpa! He lives for tomorrow. Something that even I, a high school junior, find hard to do."

Hallowe'n Parties Planned For 31st

The annual Halloween parties at Saint Joe and Spencerville are being prepared by the respective sponsoring units, the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department and the Spencerville Community Club, for presentation on Friday evening, October 31.

The program at Saint Joe includes a parade forming between 7:00 and 7:30 p.m. at Clauser's Trading Post followed by entertainment, prizes and treats at the high school gym.

Derwood Ridgway will serve as master of ceremonies.

Adults as well as young folk are invited to attend and compete in the contest for prize-winniing costumes.

The Spencervlle party will be held at the Fire Hall in Spencerville. The program includes awarding of prizes, free refreshments and a record hop.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met on October 8 at the home of Mrs. Claude Laub with 13 members responding to roll call.

The meeting opened with the club collect and the pledge of allegiance to the American flag.

"Israell, Yesteday, Today and Tomorrow" was the subject of the very interesting lesson presented by Mrs. Weldon Shaffer. Mrs. Shaffer gave the Biblical history of the country, the more recent political history, the present conditions and a little of what the future holds according to Bible phophecy.

Entertainment was conducted by Mrs. Forest Bevington.

A short business meeting was held. It was announced that the County Federation of Club Officers were to be guests at the next meeting at the home of Mrs. Maurice Kline on October 22.

Following adjournment the hostess served light refreshments.

CULTURE CLUB

The October 15 meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Dewey White. Club collect was repeated by members. Devotions from the Book of John were given by Mrs. White.

A lesson on Arkansas, Louisiana, Kansas and Nebraska was presented by Mrs. Virgil Laux.

Collection was taken for the Musical Pennies and Penny Art Fund which are state projects of the Federated Women's Clubs.

A delicious fruit salad and spice cake was served by the hostess.

CONCORD JR. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Concord Junior Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Dorothy Simanton with Gertrude Rinehart as co-hostess on the evening of October 6.

The meeting was called to order by the president. The club repeated the club collect. Devotions were given by Ellen Fetters. The history and song of the month, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," was led by Kathryn Crow. Response to roll call, "my favorite nursery rhyme," was answered by 13 members. Reports were given by special leaders. A card was read from Mary Wilder thanking the club for its support. The president announced several dates of interest for this month. The meeting was closed by all singing the club prayer.

Local Youths Face Juvenile Court-Vandalism

Halloween got off to an early start last week resulting in vandalism caused by several Saint Joe and Spencerville teen-agers. The sheriff's department issued a warning Saturday morning that juvenile court hearings face minors caught in destructive vandalism. 18-year-olds and older face regular court trials.

The local offenses involving Saint Joe and Spencerville youths included destruction of county road signs at 5 intersections.

Sheriff Frank Carpenter indicated this week that the boys involved will probably be taken in for hearing in juvenile court next week. This will be done after all of the group have been contacted and parents notified of the action.

Gary Stewart, Polio Victim, Approaches '7'

Friends of Gary Stewart, 7 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stewart, Jr., of Fort Wayne, can do the young man a favor by remembering him on his birthday on November 6. Such remembrances will be particularly welcome as Gary is now confined at the Shrine Hospital in Chicago, the victim of paralytic poliomyelitis. The young man has been in the hospital for the past 6 months and has undergone one operation thus far for the correction of a dislocated hip, an effect suffered from polio. To be undertaken in the future is another operation to repair a disease-damaged ankle.

Young Gary was stricken with polio 4 years ago on his third birthday. The paralysis affected his left arm and leg. He has use of the arm, but must yet wait for treatment to the ankle to bring the prospect of a useful leg.

The Stewart family formerly lived in Saint Joe. Mrs. Stewart is the former Barbara Harris. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stewart, Sr., of Saint Joe are Gary's paternal grandparents.

Gary's address is: Shrine Hospital, 2211 N. Oak Park Avenue, Chicago 35, Illinois.

Local News

The Spencerville Boy Scouts will hold a scrap paper drive on Saturday, November 1.

The Auxiliary of the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department will hold a bake sale on Saturday, October 25, in the News Office in Saint Joe.

The slap-happiest comedy to hit the Broadway stage in a decade, "The Happiest Milionaire," comes to the stage of the Fort Wayne Civic Playhouse starting Friday, October 24.

Formal dedication of the new Fort Wayne post of the Indiana State Police is set for Sunday, Ortober 26, at 2 p.m. The post is located 2 miles west of Fort Wayne on US24. Gov. Harold Handley will head the list of state dignitaries who will take part in the program. The public is invited to attend.

If you have items for the Spencerville News column, either call them in or send them to Janice Hollabaugh at Spencerville.

Funeral services were held Saturday for David Orsen Arnett, 80, a resident of the Saint Joe community for the past 14 years. Mr. Arnett died at 9:15 p.m. Wednesday, October 15, at Sacred Heart Hospital of complications of old age. Survivors include the widow, Pearl; 2 sons, Russell of Saint Joe and Leonard of Fort Wayne; a daughter, Mrs. Cleo Lee of Fort Wayne; 2 brothers, Clifford of LaGrange and Hershel of Fort Wayne; 3 sisters, Mrs. Mina Birt, Mrs. Daisy Nelson and Mrs. Fern Parnin, all of Fort Wayne; 12 grandchildren and 32 great-grandchildren. Services were conducted at the Baidinger-Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville with burial in Greenlawn Memorial Cemetery in Fort Wayne. The services were led by Rev. Ivan O. Miller and Rev. Carl Thompson.

The Riverdale PTA approved the purchase of an opaque projector, voting on the project at its Tuesday night meeting at the high school gym.

The Concord Methodist Church will serve a country-style chicken supper on Saturday, October 25, starting at 5 p.m. The menu includes chicken, mashed potatoes, dressing, gravy, string beans, cole slaw, pie, coffee and milk. Adult servings are $1.25 and servings for children 12 years of age and under are 65 cents.

L. G. Fetters of Saint Joe pleaded not guilty to charge of failure to yield right of way but was found guilty and fined $1 and costs of $14.75 in Auburn City Court Wednesday of last week.

Dilemma

One thing appears as a certainty - if only a half dozen voters were to show up at the polls on Tuesday, November 4, one could hardly blame them. This isn't a statement to excuse poor citizenship; it is a conclusion drawn from the observation of the campaigning done by the two major political parties in our Hoosier state. For the past six weeks or so, Indiana newspapers have been the recipients of reams (and we mean reams) of publicity from both Republican and Democrat headquarters in the senatorial campaign. The many speeches made each night by candidates and their supporters have each been given recognition in some instances with a single news release, resulting in a good many news releases. Of course, this is one way of indicating a degree of active campaigning; it also brings a full scrap paper bin for the newspaper.

Glancing through the topics contained within the publicized speeches, the impression is gained that we Hoosiers are in a terrible predicament - no matter which senatorial candidate we give the "X", we're sunk. That's why the conclusion has been arrived at that if few voters show up, one could hardly blame them. Possibly if each of the candidates were to go into a denial of each charge, there would be so much time spent denying and justifying that little else would be accomplished; they might not even be done by November 4, and that WOULD be a mess. So the Hoosier public has the unsavory job of deciding for itself whether or not the accusations and inuendoes now being cast about are worth consideration. It has little to go on from personal contact and experience because the candidates are so far removed. So, all the Hoosier can go by, and should go by, is what he knows from his own experience, which we pointed out is very little.

There actually is little the candidates can campaign on these days. If corruption is wanted, it can be found in both parties; if honesty is wanted, it, too, can be found in both parties; if mistakes are wanted, they're there in both places. The lack of material to go on seems to be indicated in the tripe that has been dished out for the past several weeks. What few good debatable campaign points there are get lost in the shuffle because they are drowned out and overwhelmed by other matters, leaving the Hoosier yet in the dark.

Going from the higher levels of government down to the lower offices, we find very few instances in campaign years when a candidate states specifically what he is for and what he is against. Usually vague generalities about unemployment and high taxes and good times and free enterprise, etc., etc., etc., are tossed around as a matter of routine, giving the voter a somewhat false buoyant pride in considering the casting of his vote for a particular candidate or for a particular party. Two other popular subject matters are "small business" and "right to work," and some of the opinions expressed on these subjects are fine. But when it comes down to practice, those ideas fly out the window, as witness the campaign cards distributed by the candidates, for one thing. Specifically, in DeKalb County, how many printers are there (this is a subject dear to our hearts, since we like to eat!)? Quite a few. Then why is it necessary to obtain campaign cards from printers anywhere up to 150 miles away? The reason - fear. There is a little mark on the cards only three-eighths of an inch long that strikes fear into the hearts of men. It's called a union label.

Free enterprise? Right to work? What do they mean???

It isn't easy to vote these days.

NSBA PRESIDENT BLASTS READERS DIGEST

Carl B. Munck, president of the National School Boards Association has vigorously challenged Readers Digest for printing an article which condemns local boards for building "palaces" instead of raising teachers' salaries. In a letter to DeWitt Wallace, editor of the Digest, Munck points out that the article by Dorothy Thompson, which originally ran 14 months ago in a leading woman's magazine, is part of what "seems to be a cynical campaign to shake the American citizen's faith in the good sense and integrity of his local school board member who must decide when, where, and how to build schools to serve the youngsters of his community."

The Digest praises Ardsley, New York for its economy in school construction. But here is what a member of the school board in Ardsley has to say about their "economy":

"If the Ardsley school board had lavishly splurged when the elementary school was built and added 50 per cent to the cost of the building by including such 'frills' as maintenance-free aluminum windows instead of rusting steel windows; maintenance-free vinyl tile instead of high waxing-cost asphalt tile; several teacher lounges instead of one cramped, poorly-equipped cubicle, larger classrooms to take the present bulge of students; a usable-size library instead of the present closet-type; and a built-in public address system for special announcements and emergencies so the principal would not have to spend three-quarters of an hour informing teachers in the far-flung classrooms of an emergency bus schedule; if the auditorium had been air-conditioned since it is used extensively all year long for all adult as well as summer functions . . . . all this could have been included for less than 50 per cent more than the initial cost. This 50 per cent increase in cost would add about $10,000 a year to the cost of paying for the school (on a 30-year mortgage). Compared to the additional facilities and usefulness, this would have been a bargain.

"Now let's see what this money would do if all of it was put into a wage increase. Of our almost a million dollar 1957 budget, 75 per cent is for salaries. Adding $10,000 to the $750,000 brings the salary total to $760,000. Dividing that by the 110 persons employed by the school, means an average of $6,909 instead of the present $6,818 a year. Teachers would hardly consider this compensation for cramped quarters and heavier teacher loads. In this rising economy, a raise of less than 10 to 20 per cent is considered nothing. Last year we gave a 12 per cent raise with a few of our teachers receiving as much as $1200 more."

—Hoosier School Board Journal, October '58.

IN MEMORIAM

In silent tribute to the democratic privilege of the right to vote lost by the thousands of Americans who failed to register by October 6, 1958.

BATTLE OF LEYTE GULF

For three days and nights between October 23-25, 1944 the greatest naval battle of World War II raged up and down the waters of the Philippine Islands. Known as the Battle for Leyte Gulf, it was really a series of three separate furious actions in which the U. S. Third Fleet led by Admiral "Bull" Halsey, and the U. S. Seventh Fleet under Vice-Admiral Tom Kincaid gave the combined Japanese fleet a terrible beating.

"I shall return," General MacArthur had said, and now his Sixth Army, commanded by General Krueger, had landed on Leyte Island in the central Philippines on October 20. The landings were backed up by the two American fleets.

Admiral Soemer Toyoda, fat commander-in-chief of the already battered Japanese Navy, planned to wipe out the invading Americans by naval gunfire. He divided his fleet into three task forces, northern, central and southern. The central group under Admiral Kurita was the big force with 5 battleships, 12 cruisers and 15 destroyers. Here were the world's biggest battleships, the Yamato and Musashi, pride of the Japanese Navy, 64,000 tons each and mounting 18-inch guns.

The southern group had 2 battleships and 12 cruisers and destroyers. Together with the central fleet it came up from the south to engage the Seventh Fleet guarding the Leyte beachhead. There are two main channels through the central Philippines, San Bernardino Strait to the north and Surigao Strait to the south. Swinging through these channels the two Japanese fleets outnumbered Kincaid's Seventh Fleet, and one of them would try to get at the helpless transports off Leyte.

The northern fleet of Admiral Ozawa made up the Japanese main carrier strength with 4 carriers, 2 battleship carriers and 7 cruisers and destroyers. This fleet was to act as a decoy to draw Halsey's Third Fleet away from the Seventh Fleet off Leyte.

On October 23 several Japanese ships were sunk by submarines and planes combing the seas around the Philippines. On the morning of the 24th Halsey's air force, commended by Vice-Admiral Mitscher struck at the Japanese central force approaching San Bernardino Strait. The American planes and dive bombers battered the Japanese fleet, sinking the mighty Musashi, and several other ships.

Then the approach of the northern Japanese fleet was discovered. Halsey turned his Third Fleet and charged north at high speed. The enemy fleet fled and during all day of the 25th Halsey's airmen pounded away, sinking all 4 Japanese carriers as well as a cruiser and two destroyers. This was the action off Cape Engano at the northern end of the islands.

Meanwhile, several hundred miles to the south at Surigao Strait, the Japanese southern force was ambushed by part of Kincaid's Seventh Fleet under Rear Admiral Jesse Oldendorf. Here in the 12-mile wide channel the Japanese ships fell into a concentrated fire and were all but wiped out. This was a tremendous blow with a vengeance, for the American ships included the old battleships West Virginia, Maryland, Tennessee, California and Pennsylvania which had been raised from the mud of Pearl Harbor.

Suddenly, on the same day, Kurita's central fleet, which was still strong despite the battering it had gotten, broke through San Bernardino Strait, left unguarded when the Third Fleet dashed north, and fell upon the American small escort ships and jeep carriers off Samar Island, inflicting heavy damage. In answer to the Seventh Fleet's frantic radio appeals, the Third Fleet sent its fast ships dashing back to help. But before they arrived the remnants of the Japanese central fleet suddenly drew off and fled, just when it appeared that it had the helpless American transports in its grasp.

And so ended the three engagements of the great Battle for Leyte Gulf, fought day and night amid wild, confused action. The Japanese lost 3 battleships, 4 carriers, 10 cruisers and 9 destroyers, with 35 other ships damaged, while the American losses were 3 carriers and 3 destroyers. The Japanese Navy had received its death blow.

"ALL-ELECTRIC living gives us so much more in comfort and convenience," says Mrs. Thomas Osborne, "and our average monthly electric bill is only $32.99."

"Our beautiful new recreation room is where the old furnace and fuel storage area used to be," commented Mr. Osborne.

"When I count all the things that electricity is doing for us—like heating our home, washing and drying our clothes and helping me in the kitchen—I realize how much we get in return for the money we pay."

Mr. Osborne says, "As a heating salesman I know that I&M electric rates have never been increased. We're getting a real bargain when we live electrically."

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

RAINBOW NEWS

The Rainbow girls held their regular stated meeting in October at the Masonic Hall in Spencerville. After the meeting was over, the members and adults retired to the basement where they enjoyed dancing and refreshments during the social hour of the evening.

The Rainbow girls held their October social event at Key Lanes in Fort Wayne for an evening of bowling. The group enjoyed supper in the luncheon room at the lanes.

The Assembly of the Order of the Rainbow for Girls recently held initiation for Judy Waters and Sharon Kreager. After the services the officers and visitors retired to the basement for a light lunch and dancing. The assembly congratulates the new members and hopes to see new girls join the order.

On a recent Saturday night the Rainbow Girls had their quarterly installation. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Means presented merit badges and bars to those girls who were entitled to them. Phyllis Baker, the Past Worthy Advisor, signed the Bible. The new Worthy Advisor was greeted with an escort and two vocal selections by Louise Zimmerman. After the installation, everyone enjoyed refreshments in the basement. New officers are as follows: Worthy Advisor, Esther Fetters; Worthy Associate Advisor, Leota Schrader; Charity, Judy Coddington; Hope, Carol Flesher; Faith, Judy Furnish; Recorder, Sharolyn Spiece; Treasurer, Joy McNabb; Chaplain, Judy Waters; Drill Leader, Lynda Fisher; Love, Judy Impton; Religion, Betty Dilley; Nature, Carol Graham; Immortality, Darlene Timmerman; Fidelity, Sharon Timmerman; Patriotism, Cheryll Collins; Service, Ruth Washler; Confidential Observer, Karen Chapman; Outer Observer, Lenare Jolly; Musician, Jean Zimmerman; Rose Lecturn, Phyllis Baker; Historian, Marie Woodring; Hoosier Pro. Staff Mem., Nancy Brown; Prompter, Sharon Beaty; Choir Director, Sharon Kreaker; Choir, Mary Jane Baker, Linda Harts, Randa Keeler, Barbara Conley, Judy Koch and Vickie Crow.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TRAINING CLASSES OPEN MONDAY

The DeKalb County Sunday School Association, continuing its service to Sunday schools of this area, has announced dates for a series of 7 cooperative training classes. All classes will be held on Monday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., beginning October 27 and continuing through December 8. The Phillips Street Church of God in Auburn will be host church for all classes.

The class to begin next Monday will be dealing with the basic fundamentals of teaching a Sunday school class in all age groups, and should be of interest to all teachers, prospective teachers and superintendents.

LET'S LOOK AT THE RECORD . . .

1. For complete retention of the Railroad Full Crew Bill. 2. For return of more State money to local governmental units. 3. For less invasion of the Federal Government into state and local units. Also less encroachment of the State government into local governments. 4. For better and more adequate educational facilities. 5. For raising Indiana among the States in Health Standing and more particularly for mental health patients. 6. For expanding the law enforcement program to insure preservation of our highways and to make them safer from unscrupulous drivers.

I attended schools in the local community.

It is my belief that under the American system of Free Enterprise an individual has the right to join an organizaton and insures that they not be compelled to join any organization.

I have served on the following Indiana House of Representative committees: Agriculture, Cities and Towns, Savings and Loan, Education, Insurance, Labor, Military Affairs, Public Health, Railroads, Roads, Social Security and Ways and Means.

In addition I have also served on the following special standing commissions: Highway Study Commission, Welfare Investigation Commission and State School Survey Commission.

At the present time I am a member, representing the public, on the advisory committee to the Employment Security Commission.

As a representative of the people of DeKalb County for many years, I now rank third in seniority in the state. Thus I am able to better serve the people of this area because my seniority rating gives me precedence over most other representatives for appointments to various committees which form the policies of government in Indiana and affect your everyday life.

VOLUME LXXIII ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. Thursday, October 30, 1958 NUMBER 43

Around the Town

With the Editor

Don't forget that date — November 6 — for Gary Stewart's birthday. If you want to make a bedfast boy happy, send him a card. The address? See last week's paper.

Cy Kline was telling about the hunting trip he and three others took last week. Harold Straley and I heard about it at the barber shop the other night.

That was some trip—a lulu of a snow storm (one hunter died in it), snow building up on road signs making them a foot thick, power lines built up with snow until they were as big as your fist—and millions of deer. , well, anyhow plenty of 'em.

The group included Cy, Don Hart, Joe Walter and Ben Krafft. They traveled to Montana for this adventure.

Speaking of deer, there's the big one that got killed by a car right here close to Spencerville. And I hear that Herb West hit one with his car between the Saint Joe and Spencerville blacktops last Monday.

I haven't had a chance to look it over yet, but Bill Beebe brought in an old book going 'way back when and telling about Indiana in the middle 1800's. The book belonged to Bill's grandfather and is a valuable possession. From what I did scan over, I can see that Saint Joe was hardly worth a mention and Spencerville and Newville were considered the prospering communities.

If you want a look, stop in.

—And there I've got items from Nancy Brown and Rev. Weber and Betty Bevington and Mr. Guinther about the Rainbow Girls and C.R.O.P. and the Literary Club and the 4-H club. But with all the politics this week, there just ain't room.

Local News

Driver license suspensions include that of Glenn E. Webb of R2, Auburn, and Charles Collingsworth of Auburn.

George Melachrino, the man who created "mood music," and his orchestra will appear at the Coliseum in Fort Wayne on Tuesday, November 11, at 8:15 p.m. Tickets can be obtained at the Coliseum ticket office.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Cook and two sons and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cook of Fort Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gee of Saint Joe and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gee and son, DuWayne, of Jewell, Ohio, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Grimes and two children of Defiance. The dinner was held in celebration of the birthdays of Mrs. Grimes and Mrs. Dale Cook.

Mrs. Maude Porter of Fort Wayne, mother of Mrs. H. L. McMaken of Saint Joe, underwent surgery Saturday at the Lutheran Hospital in Fort Wayne, the second such surgery in the past 8 months. If her friends would care to remember her, the room number is 419.

Mrs. M. Wilson of Royal Oak, Mich., Mrs. David Furnish of Ferndale, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wyatt of Fort Wayne were Tuesday evening dinner guests of Mrs. Neva Hursh. Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Furnish remained in Saint Joe until Friday.

The Saint Joe American Legion Post will entertain the Saint Joe Booster Club at a dinner on Tuesday evening, November 11.

Mrs. Dale A. Baker of Cleveland and Mrs. D. L. Shull of Tiro, Ohio, were guests last week of Mrs. C. M. Watt and the Clauser family.

Mrs. Mabelle Thornton of North Hollywood, Cal., sends the following item:

Local friends of Charles H. Thornton will regret to learn of the death of his wife, Ruth, on October 19, 1958, in Baltimore, Maryland. Surviving are the husband and three children, Robert, Diane Sue and Leta Jean, also her mother, Mrs. Frank Carper, and 2 brothers. Cancer was the cause of death. Mr. Thornton is the son of the late Fred M. Thornton and Mabelle Thornton and is a 1936 graduate of Saint Joe High School.

Surgery was performed last Wednesday on the crippled foot of Gary Stewart, 7, polio victim now confined in the Shrine Hospital in Chicago.

Hallowe'n Parties Planned For 31st

The annual Halloween parties at Saint Joe and Spencerville are being prepared by the respective sponsoring units, the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department and the Spencerville Community Club, for presentation on Friday evening, October 31.

The program at Saint Joe includes a parade forming between 7:00 and 7:30 p.m. at Clauser's Trading Post followed by entertainment, prizes and treats at the high school gym.

Derwood Ridgway will serve as master of ceremonies.

Adults as well as young folk are invited to attend and compete in the contest for prize-winning costumes.

Members of the Saint Joe Fire Department are asked to be on hand at the parade and party to assist in their presentation.

The Spencervlle party will be held at the Fire Hall in Spencerville. The program includes awarding of prizes, free refreshments and a record hop.

Work On Park Starts Saturday

Actual work on the public park, planned through efforts of the Saint Joe Booster Club, will get underway this coming Saturday. The park committee, composed of Donald Kinsey, Merle Guilford, Ed Storer and Roy Bowser, will be in charge of land-clearing operations which will mark the beginning of the park improvement. With almost 100 per cent approval of the project by resident property owners of Saint Joe, expressed through a petition asking the Town Board to enter into a lease-purchase agreement, renewed enthusiasm has resulted in the work day endeavor. Anyone interested in contributing their efforts to Saturday's work is asked to contact any one of the four park committee members, enabling the committee to lay general plans for the day with respect to manpower.

Another possible project was discussed at the Booster Club's quarterly meeting last Friday night. Discussion was held concerning investigation of drainage improvement. With several Saint Joe families represented at the meeting enough interest was shown to indicate the probability of an investigation and survey of town needs and recommendations for a new drainage system.

With several weeks of paper work and legal commitments behind it, the local Booster Club efforts are beginning to bear fruit. The eyes will soon see what the ears have heard about.

Men, men and more men are urged to help Saturday at the park site, first contacting the committee.

Cage Season Presents Big 'If'

Couch Price Brookfield has problems facing him and the Riverdale basketball squad as the opening game of the 1958-59 season faces them Saturday night. One problem relates to the presence of but 4 lettermen from last year's varsity squad with 2 of these considered from last year's starting five. The returnees are Clarence Bry, Dale Dowden, Larry Friend and Jerry Vinson. Dowden and Friend are the holdover starters.

Another problem facing the team is the means of overcoming a definite height disadvantage. Don Butler measures in at 6' 2", but lack of experience may be too great an obstacle to be overcome. Other members of the team stand at around the 6-foot mark but only one, Bry, can nick the mark. Coach Brookfield indicated this week that Riverdale could have one of its best teams despite lack of experienced height, but this will depend upon the efforts of the team.

The varsity roster includes the following (name, year in school, height):

Clarence Bry, Junior, 6-0.
Don Butler, Junior, 6-2.
Bob Clauser, Senior, 5-10.
Dale Dowden, Senior, 5-10½.

Tom McKown, Soph., 5-9.
Jerry Munsey, Fr., 5-9.
Lynn Robinson, Jr., 5-11.
Ronnie Smith, Soph., 5-10.
Orval Wallace, Soph., 5-9.

There are other workers adding to the luster of the basketball season in addition to the players themselves. These include the yell leaders and student managers. Leading Comet cheers for the varsity this season will be Nila LaRowe, Carroll Loucks and Vickie Crow. B-team leaders are Linda Lothamer and Dianne Mayer. Student managers are Frank Kessler, Bob Gick and Walter Goldsmith.

Assisting Coach Brookfield with directing of Riverdale's court efforts is Gene Buzzard.

Party Rallies To Climax Political Campaigns

Political rallies by both Republicans and Democrats will climax DeKalb County's pre-election activities this week end.

On Friday night of this week, county Democrats will gather in the court house assembly room at Auburn at 8 p.m. Phil Butler, candidate for prosecuting attorney, will be master of ceremonies for the program which includes the appearance of W. Robert Fleming, candidate for Representative in Congress, as guest speaker. Larry Brandon will also address the gathering. County and township candidates will be introduced and they will serve refreshments following the meeting.

On Saturday night the Republicans have their turn and will hear Robert S. Webb, candidate for judge of the Indiana Appellate Court, second district, who will be guest speaker. The rally will follow a torch light parade which will assemble at 7 p.m. at the court house.

At 8 p.m., following the parade, a meeting will be held in the assembly room of the court house for Mr. Webb's speech.

Cider, donuts and coffee will be served following the rally.

The public is invited to attend both political rallies and meet the candidates.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

STOCK MARKET CRASH

Tuesday, October 29, 1929 was the day when the bottom fell out of the stock market in Wall Street. It was an awful crash, ending the boom of the 1920s, and bringing despair to millions of Americans.

Only a few weeks before that, the prices of stocks had reached an all-time high. The big bull market in common stocks was the big deal of the booming 1920s. The stock market got off to its big spurt in 1926 and reached its grand climax in September, 1929. Figuring 1926 stock prices as 100, they had climbed to the dizzy height of 216 by September, 1929.

Everybody, it seems, was speculating in the stock market, not only bankers and businessmen, but millions of housewives, office workers, ranchers, clergymen, elevator operators, bootblacks, and others. It was so easy to buy stocks and make money. The market was always going up, up, up. Most of the buying was done on margin, putting up only a fraction of the price of the stocks bought. On a booming market that was easy and safe. How long would this good thing last? Forever, it seemed. If the stock market dipped a little, it always recovered quickly and moved up higher, higher.

The first uneasy suspicion that the boom might not last forever came early in September, 1929. Stock prices broke, and then recovered. It was hard for most people to believe that the boom would not continue. "Experts" spoke reassuringly of the soundness of business conditions. Some smart businessmen were uneasy, but long-nourished hope kept most speculators tied to their stock holdings. When the Federal Reserve Bank tried to restrict the bull market by limiting "call money" loans to brokers, private bankers rushed in and shoveled hundreds of millions of dollars into the market. Why not? "The price of stocks," said Professor Irving Fisher of Yale, an expert economist, "has reached what looks like a permanently high plateau."

With the first week of October came further breaks in the stock market, followed by more attempts to reassure everybody. But the walls were shaking now. The first big break came on October 24th when 13 million shares were frantically sold at a loss of $11 billion. "Big money" bankers tried to halt the panic by some show-off buying. It was like pumping gas into a bursting balloon.

The following Monday came another break, and this time the bankers made no effort to stop it. And then on the next day, black Tuesday, October 29, the bottom really fell out. Hardly had the opening gong sounded in the Stock Exchange before huge blocks of stocks were thrown on the market at any price they would bring. Sell, sell, sell! Every sale was frightfully lower than the one before. Thousands of stockholders from millionaires to bootblacks who had bought on margin, were sold out and ruined.

In the streets about the Stock Exchange crowded thousands of persons filled with bitter despair at the rumors and reports of the frantic scenes inside the Exchange. Other thousands rushed to pawn jewelry or silver in a last forlorn hope to raise "more margin" and save something from ruin. Many simply despaired and wept, and some were driven to suicide. "In Wall Street," wrote one newspaper, "every wall is wet with tears."

When the afternoon gong rang to close the wild scenes on the Stock Exchange floor, more than 16 million shares had been sold or rather dumped, which was a record. A total of $30 billion in paper values had been swept away, an amount larger than the national debt of that time.

And so the big bull market died. It was the worst financial crash in American history. The days of prosperity were over. The big depression loomed terrifyingly ahead.

Jr. High Prospects Bright

A 20-game schedule has been carded for the Riverdale Junior High basketball team, according to Coach Gene Buzzard. The schedule includes 10 games at the high school gym in Saint Joe and 10 on enemy floors. The team goes into the current campaign having established somewhat of an outstanding record in past years as 6th and 7th graders. As such they compiled a record of 26-won and 1-lost.

The opening game is Thursday, November 6 with Orland coming to Riverdale at 6:00 p.m. The 7th and 8th grades will play games.

An admission will be charged for home games, 15 cents for students and 25 cents for adults. The team will have new green suits this year. It is hoped that Riverdale fans will support the team throughout the campaign.

The roster includes:

Frank Ross 6-3, Joan Sco-ler 5-6, Norm Lothamer 5-4 Jerry Kline 5-5, Ronald Nusbaum 5-5, Aubrey Griggs 4-9, Ford Hudson 5-4, Jim Norris 5-1, Charles Harter 5-1, Allen Holman 5-6 and Dennis Ransom 5-3.

The complete schedule will be published in next week's paper.

An Open Letter

TO THE VOTERS

of DEKALB COUNTY

When you ask an individual for their vote, you ask of them one of their most valued possessions. One cannot, in all conscience, do this without giving in return the extent of one's gratitude and to speak frankly of the respect in which you will hold their vote of confidence after November 4.

The decision to run for Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court was not an easy one to make. I had to take into grave consideration the factors that I knew would be used against me in this campaign, namely: being a woman and my age. Therefore, I resolved to let the voters decide this question for me at the primary election. After being successful in the primary, it is now my considered opinion that the thing of importance to the voters at the present time is: AS A PUBLIC SERVANT, WHAT WILL MY CONTRIBUTION TO THE OFFICE AND TO MY COMMUNITY BE, IF I AM ELECTED AS CIRCUIT COURT JUDGE? Therefore, I go on record as follows:

1. I will hold as a sacred trust the rights and privileges of each individual; that which is bestowed upon them by their constitutional government.

2. I will strive to maintain the harmonious accord between this court and other area courts.

3. I will be ever mindful of the decorum and formality of the office which I now seek, and I will give to it my full time and attention.

4. I will endeavor to be available to assist the residents of DeKalb County at all times.

I have always felt it to be the utmost importance to keep abreast of current cases and events in the legal field and I would deem it even more important to do so if I am privileged to serve as your circuit court judge.

5. I will continue my work with the youth group, keeping in mind that the youth of today will be the citizens of tomorrow.

6. For the benefit of the voters who are not familiar with my personal background, I was born at Waterloo, Indiana. I am the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pliny Gratz, RFD 1, Waterloo, and a member of the Waterloo Methodist Church. I graduated from the Waterloo High School and obtained my pre-legal training at Indiana University. I received by Bachelor of Laws degree from The John Marshall Law School, Chicago, Illinois, and I was admitted to practice before the Indiana Bar and to the United States District Court for the Northern District of Indiana. I have maintained a law office in Auburn, since my admission to the Indiana Bar.

I am a member of the following organizations: The DeKalb County, Indiana State and American Bar Associations; Past President and a member of the Auburn Business and Professional Women's Club; DeKalb County American Red Cross Association; American Legion Auxiliary; Finance Committee of the Limberlost Girl's Scout; Sunday School Intermediate Teacher; Youth Secretary for the Waterloo Women's Society of Christian Service; Zeta Chapter of the Kappa Beta Pi Legal Sorority.

Justice, like a democracy, encompases both men and women, each dependent upon and important to the other.

The symbolic STATUE OF JUSTICE is a WOMAN, but she bears in her hands the MAN made implements of justice, the SCALES and the SWORD.

Ladies and Gentlemen, I would appreciate your support on November 4.

PHYLLIS R. GRATZ
Republican Candidate for Judge

Funeral services were set for Thursday for Ray W. Littlefield, 64, of Concord who died Monday at his home following a long illness. He had been bedfast for the past 12 years. Mr. Littlefield was the son of the late Amos Littlefield and Melissa Shilling Littlefield. On May 2, 1918, he married Mabel Knisley. Survivors include the widow; 2 sons, Frank M. of Berkley, Mich., and Ray W., Jr., of Rl, Saint Joe; 4 daughters, Edith M. Moore of Warren, Mich., Betty Wells of Corunna, Dorothy N. McGuire of Cadillac, Mich., and Maude L. Smith of Ashley; 12 grandchildren and 5 great-grandchildren. Services were conducted by Rev. Jean Paul Hill, pastor of the Coburntown Church of Christ. Burial was in South Park Cemetery at Columbia City.

Starting with the first home game Saturday, November 1, radio station WOWO will broadcast the 30 home games of the Fort Wayne Komet hockey team. This will be the 6th consecutive year of these broadcasts. Bob Chase will be the sports announcer for the games.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hull were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carpenter. In the afternoon they visited Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Hull and family at Sherwood, Ohio.

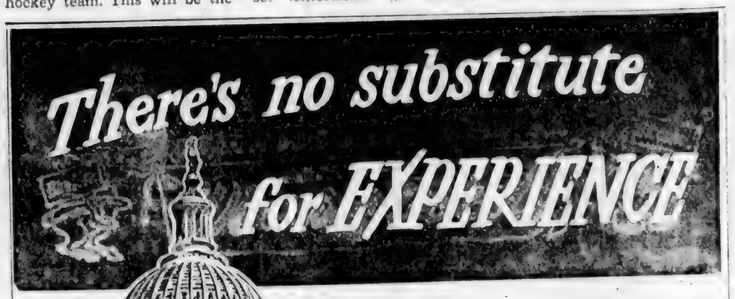
The left hand of Wilbur Hartung of Rl, Huntertown, was amputated Monday following an accident involving a corn picker. Mr. Hartung reached from his seat on his tractor to unplug the picker and his hand became entangled in the machinery. He drove the tractor a quarter of a mile to a farm gate before Wayne Surfus, a neighbor, heard the cries for help. Mr. Surfus and his brother then took the injured man to the hospital in Auburn where the hand was amputated.

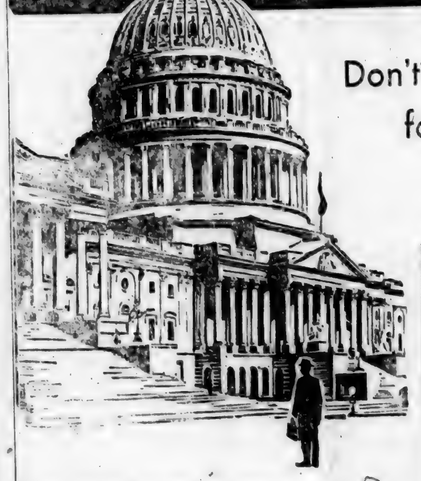
Glen Cole and Harvey Hull attended the chicken supper at the Concord Methodist Church Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clauser entertained at Sunday dinner Mrs. D. L. Shull, Mrs. Lela Northrup and Mrs. C. M. Watt.

The Saint Joe Lions Club held a Ladies Night meeting Monday evening at Brownie's Restaurant near Auburn. Ten guests representing the Auburn Lions Club were present. Guest speaker was Ezra Stoller of Woodburn who gave an interesting travelogue of his recent trip to Russia.

Clark L. Bassett, 52, suffered a fatal heart attack Monday while operating a corn picker on the Vera Elson farm in Concord Township. He died seconds after suffering the seizure but not before shutting off the implement engine. Funeral services were conducted Wednesday with Rev. Joseph Ferguson officiating. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe. Survivors include 4 brothers, Rheo and Lloyd of Auburn, Virgil of near Saint Joe and Glenn of Kendallville; and a sister, Mrs. Tracy Hawk of Auburn. Mr. Bassett was a bachelor.





Don't Trade a Record for a Promise

Dear Friend: During my service as your Congressman, it has been my effort to support such measures as would strengthen our beloved nation and, at the same time, reflect the views of the people of our district. For these - and many other reasons - I would appreciate your vote on November 4th.

Sincerely,
E. Ross Adair

Dear Voters:

I fundamentally believe that all the voters have the right to know and should know about the candidates who are asking to represent them in Government. It is their duty to get acquainted with the voters. It is humanly impossible to meet all of you personally. So I am suing the means of the printed word to visit with you.

I was born on the Marvin Leas farm near Hudson, Indiana, on July 12, 1911. I am the second son of the family of nine children of Warren and Leola Spangler Leas. My family moved around while I was a young boy and I attended grade school at Ashley, Hudson Clink one room school, Helmer and Salem Center. While in grade school I took up music, and along with other members of our family played in our own family orchestra. I played in the Steuben County band and orchestra, the Angola City Band and the Garrett Legion Band.

My family raised onions and potatoes as well as participating in general farming. As boy I spent my summers astride an onion row and winters in school, doing chores, cutting corn in the fall and wood in the winter. The old cross-cut is a very familiar tool to me. I attended and graduated from the Salem Center High School. While in high school I was on the basketball, baseball and track teams all four years. I played in the Orchestra and Band and won recognition in County Essay, Debate and Constitutional Oratorical and Music contests.

After high school I ran a gasoline service station and raised onions and potatoes. I organized and directed the Ashley Town Band which played concerts Saturday nights on the streets of Ashley. I also worked as an officer of the DeKalb County Sunday School Association and in its Young People's Division. I was superintendent of the Sunday School of the Reformed Church west of Ashley for a number of years.

I attended Indiana Law School one year and took the complete correspondence law course of LaSalle Extension University of Chicago. But due to the depression and getting married, I never went further with the study of law. I felt my first obligation was to my new family.

I married Miss Helen Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mason, dairy farmers of Jackson Township, DeKalb County, in 1934. I bought the Alvarado Country Store, located south of Metz, Indiana. These were rough years for those of us who remember them. Our store served as both business and home. My two older children, Beverly and Richard, were born at the Alvarado Store and not in a modern hospital room. I helped out with our meager resources by driving Richland Township School Bus and in the summer helping neighboring farmers. While at Alvarado I joined the Wittenberg Brotherhood and the Alvarado Methodist Church.

At the death of my father-in-law in a tragic tractor accident, we sold our store and moved to the farm in DeKalb County, where I worked on the farm and part-time in the Auburn Kroger Store.

In the fall of 1937 I obtained a full-time job at the Angola Kroger Store. We moved to Angola where Mrs. Leas kept students. This with my work in the store paid for a home in Angola. We lived there 5 years. I started in the basement working stock, was promoted to produce manager, to relief manager and manager of produce department of the Fort Wayne Kroger Drive-In Market at Wayne and Harrison streets in Fort Wayne. In 1942 I was appointed store manager of the Auburn Kroger Store and district manager of The Kroger Company with the supervision of 12 stores in Fort Wayne and surrounding territory. I was asked by the company to move to Marion and I asked to move back to Auburn as I liked the community and all my friends were located here. I had my choice and I took the Auburn store. I resigned in 1950 to go into business for myself. I bought the Star Theatre in Fremont, Indiana. Noting TV antennae shooting up, I saw the handwriting on the wall for theatres and sold out, then opening Leas Quality Market in 1951, located on the north side of the court house square in Auburn.

We have built our business to one of the finest independent super markets in Indiana. We have now incorporated and have stores in Auburn, Garrett and Angola. We have Donald Friend, manager of the Auburn Store; Wendell Emerson, manager of the Garrett Store; and David Timberlin, manager of the Angola Store. I am president and general manager of our new corporation.

Mrs. Leas and I have three fine children, Mrs. Beverly Leas Timberlin, wife of David Timberlin; Richard Lyle Leas, who is in the U.S. Army at Camp Ord, California; and Natalie Elaine Leas, in the fourth grade at Riley School in Auburn. We are very fortunate to have the privilege of sponsoring Miss Elizabeth Becker of Mainz-Gonsenheim, Germany, as a citizen of our great country. We are enjoying very much her stay with us.

I am a member of: The Auburn Methodist Church, the board of directors of the Auburn Chamber of Commerce, the Indiana State and national Chambers of Commerce, Union Township Farm Bureau, the Odd Fellows and K.P. lodges, the Auburn Lions Club, the Methodist Men, the Parent-Teacher Association, Gideon's International, Fort Wayne Chapter of Dale Carnegie Club where this year I won the prepared speech contest of the district and state and placed third in the midwestern contest. I am first vice-president of the Indiana State Grocers' and Meat Dealers' Association, treasurer of the DeKalb County Mental Health Association and headed the drive this year in DeKalb County. I belong to the DeKalb County Roadside Council and am very much interested in highway improvement, having served as president of the Steuben-DeKalb Road Improvement Association for 2 years.

No one lives by bread alone. I personally feel that we as laymen must take an active interest in Government. Too many of our laws are made for the interest of pressure groups and not for the greatest good to the greatest number. To have a poor, dishonest, selfish Government is for good men to do nothing. I know I will personally take a financial sacrifice in assuming this office which I seek. But I am tired of seeing the citizens of DeKalb County being used by an outside engineering firm to get contracts by a man who represents us in our State Legislature whose interest is more for his employer than for the people of DeKalb County. I fully realize I do not know all the answers to all the questions to be answered in our State Legislature. I feel confident there are people in DeKalb County who have the answers; they are as near as the telephone. I propose if elected to get all my answers from affected DeKalb County citizens and not from any lobby or pressure groups. I believe the farm and its welfare are still the basis of our American economy. Industry must thrive and the individual incentive and desire for advancement should never be hampered by primitive taxation. I believe the full crew bill must be on our statute books for safety and for the welfare of railroad workmen. I cannot condone our last legislature's passage of the mis-named "Right To Work Law." I cannot feel it was passed with the interest of Labor at heart. Organized labor has come a long way to lift up our standard of living. I cannot believe we should back up.

I believe our Government is the world's largest business and needs to be more businesslike to be successful. Government is for all the people and not for any select few. I recognize the need for taxes, but taxes must be equitable and characterized by justice and fairness. I believe Indiana is still a part of the United States and as we collect over 9 million dollars for the Federal Government from DeKalb County, we have a right to ask for some of those dollars back. Also, we should use the matching funds which accumulated by the 3 rents per gallon on gas we all send to Washington which is sent back to be used in matching funds on our roads. Steuben, Allen, Noble and Lagrange counties use all of their matching funds. I feel we should get all we can out of our tax dollars—God only knows taxes are plenty high. I feel our future is bright—we must go forward—there is no place for a "status quo" in an advancing America.

I tell you here and now my qualifications. If you sincerely feel I can do this job, vote for me. If not, I ask that you vote for Mr. Charles Miser who has held this office I seek for 18 years. His record speaks for itself just as my accomplishments and character give the sum total of what I am. I ask for your vote and support—I will not let you down.

Gratefully yours,
LYLE LEAS
Candidate for State Representative from DeKalb County

Mr. and Mrs. Worden Brandon of Auburn were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clauser.

Shirley Christlieb was granted a divorce this week from Dallas Christlieb and was awarded custody of the couple's three children. Also given the wife were possession of household goods and a judgment of $50. The husband was directed to pay $25 weekly support for his family and medical, hospital and dental bills.

Mrs. Ann Reed of Fort Wayne was a 3-day guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hall this week.

Funeral services were held Tuesday in Trinity Gospel Church in Fort Wayne for Fred E. Hile, 60, of Saint Joe. Mr. Hile died Saturday in St. Joseph Hospital at Fort Wayne. He had been employed for 7 years at Fruehauf Trailer Co. Survivors include the wife, Katherine M.; 2 sons, Lloyd of Saint Joe and Frederick of Chicago; 2 daughters, Mrs. Marjorie Edgar of Shelbyville and Mrs. Ruth Galloway of Kendallville; 5 brothers, Carl of West Carlton, O., Henry of Bradford, O., Cletus and Robert of Dayton and Homer of Fort Wayne; 3 sisters, Mrs. Lora Eximon and Mrs. Helen Wyan of Bradford, O., and Mrs. Florence Johnson of Greenville, O.; and 15 grandchildren. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery in Saint Joe.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Well, now if we get a day or so of warm weather, a little paint can be slopped on the slightly altered front of The News Office. "If" - - - -

Looks almost like a tavern, doesn't it. Oops! Sorry.

Last Wednesday as I watched the bowlers in the Classic League at Hicksville and The News' team, Dick Freeburn, Pete Storer, Pete Akey, Jim Robinson and Red Strombeck, was having its troubles, I wondered if Kyle Strombeck would grow up to be the splitting image of his father.

Harvey Carr gave the Town Board heart failure Monday night. It was 8:30 or so and there was some discussion going on when in strolls Harvey. He sits down and soon thereafter Derwood Ridgway asked, "Is there anything you wanted to ask about?"

Harvey replied, "No, I just came up to see what was going on."

—Which just about qualifies him for the Man of the Week Award.

Saint Joe had a visitor late this week, the likes of which you don't find many of — Clayton Hartman, a Republican still in office.

Fire Dep't Plans First Aid Class

The Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department is currently organizing a class for first aid instruction to begin early in December. Secretary of the department Roy Reidenbach announced this week that a combined class of Saint Joe and Spencerville men is the goal sought and men who are interested in receiving first aid instruction should contact Mr. Reidenbach.

Instruction will be given for 2 hours on each of 10 evenings to complete the 20-hour course. One night each week will be devoted to the class extending the course through a 10-week period. The night set aside for the meetings has not yet been chosen, there being an opportunity for interested men to indicate their preference at this time.

The class wil be open to all men of the area.

Town Board Meets, Advises On Sidewalks

The Saint Joe Town Board met in regular session Monday evening at the Town Hall. Five Saint Joe residents were also present at the meeting.

In addition to routine business, the board discussed the complaint registered concerning the repair of a few sections of streets in Saint Joe. It was announced that a change in procedure was necessary from that previously undertaken, but that fill-in of the designated spots would be taken care of.

Present at the meeting was Bud Shockley, representing the Booster Club. He appeared in behalf of the club to request suggestions concerning the improvement of sidewalks in Saint Joe. The board reviewed ordinances concerning sidewalks and pointed out the provision which gives the town the responsibility for providing the grading for the sidewalks. It was suggested that information be gathered concerning the cost under various conditions and a public meeting then be held.

It was pointed out during the meeting that some of the difficulties encountered in the recent street grading and graveling were apparently due to misunderstanding as to what was to be done and what was done.

Present at the meeting were Board members Derwood Ridgway, Orville Coburn and Lester Pugsley, town clerk Willard Hurni and Bud Shockley, Bob Miller, Herb Amstutz, Harvey Carr and Ted Haberkorn.

Legion To Entertain Club Tuesday Night

Members of the Saint Joe Booster Club will be guests of the Walter Whitehurst American Legion Post of Saint Joe at a dinner next Tuesday evening, November 11.

The dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. in the post home.

Members of both organizations are urged and invited to attend.

'Busco Beats Riverdale In Close Games

The Riverdale Comets opened the 1958-59 basketball season with a couple of thrilling games at Churubusco Saturday night, but dropped both contests. The score of the reserve game was 30-28 while the varsity were downed 49-46.

The Comet reserves could have won their game had they not failed miserably at the foul lane. They made only 4 out of 16 free throw attempts. Despite this dismal showing in free throws, they managed to come from an early 16-4 deficit to tie the game at 28-28 late in the final quarter. A lay-up attempt missed and Busco went on to win.

The varsity game also was a good contest with the Comets never quite able to take a lead. Quarter scores were 9-7 Busco, 21-18 Busco and a 34-all tie at the third quarter.

The Comets face Waterloo at Waterloo Friday night of this week.

COMET CNIPTIONS—The reserves really put on a rally in the second half, having trailed 21-13 at the end of the first half. — Play was periodically rough with the officials letting the boys go as they pleased, a lot of body contact evident with no fouls called. — With less than a minute to play and a need for points, the Comets passed away precious time and got only one try at the hoop, missing it. — A similar situation followed in the varsity game, concerning the officiating. Lots of leaning.—Coach Brookfield reported this week that Busco had at least a 3-inch height advantage in every position. So the Comets did right well for themselves even in defeat. — Busco is reported to be one of the two pre-season choices for Sectional honors next spring. Butler is the other choice. That ought to "jinx" 'em. — The varsity did a little better on their free throw shooting than did the reserves, hitting on 10 of 20.

Township Voting Has Interesting Results

DeKalb County voters followed the trend of the nation, generally but not completely, in Tuesday's election as they split tickets and placed both Republicans and Democrats in office.

In addition Vance Hartke of Evansville, candidate for U.S. Senator, was given the nod over Gov. Harold Handley while inclumbent Congressman E. Ross Adair won over his Democrat opponent, W. Robert Fleming.

In Concord Township interesting results were noted. A tie existed in the Congressional race for representative with Adair and Fleming each getting 201 votes. Lyle Leas, Democrat, defeated Charles Miser, Republican, in the race for state representative 238 to 169. In the race for county commissioner, southeast district, Glenn Heffley defeated incumbent Claude Laub 212 to 185. Leading vote-getter on the entire ballot was Ralph Sechler who received 260 of the votes in the race for county councilman at large. However, county-wise, he missed election by a slim margin as three other candidates topped his total of 6149 votes.

There was no race in township offices. Democrat trustee Walter Morr and the Democrat advisory board candidates, Ralph Keeler, Frank Sechler and Francis Sible were unopposed.

In Spencer Township Glenn Akey was elected trustee with Glenn Moore, William Hudson and Lynn Fisher elected to the advisory board.

Interesting results were obtained in Spencer Township. Most Republicans carried the majority of votes with voting going along party lines, except for the race for circuit court judge where Phyllis Gratz and Harold Stump tied with 184 votes each. Other exceptions included Democrat Lyle Leas' total of 186 to Miser's 181; Democrat Ralph Sechler's 195 and Democrat Henry Shook's 183, second and third highest totals for county councilman at large.

In Newville Township Democrat candidates won township offices. Wayne Benninghoff defeated Albert Impton for trustee and Frederick Gengnagel, Harold Miller and Gerald Schramm were elected to the advisory board.

Prohibition candidates polled from 2 to 6 votes in Concord Township, 4 to 6 votes in Spencer Township and 1 to 3 votes in Newville Township.

Governor Handley received 183 votes to Hartke's 181 in Spencer Township and Newville Township went to Hartke 105 to 57.

A tally of township and county voting appears elsewhere in this issue.

Saturday Regular Park Workday

With but a short notice to go by, local residents ready to help clear the land recently acquired for a public park began the job of clearing weeds, trees and brush last Saturday.

Donald Kinsey, chairman of the park committee, reported this week that despite the small number of workers, a good start was made in the preparation of the park grounds for further improvements. With the program of regular Saturday "work days" at the park, it is expected that the turn-out will be greater and progress wil be made at a faster rate. Members of the Booster Club and others interested in helping the club in its endeavors are invited to set aside as many Saturdays and as much of their Saturdays as possible to help with park work. It will help the committee in its plans if volunteers will contact the committee now and indicate when help can be given. Committee members, in addition to Mr. Kinsey, are Roy Bowser, Merl Guilford and Ed Storer.

The Booster Club recently presented a petition to the Town Board of Saint Joe requesting that body to obtain a lease-purchase agreement on a plot of land containing a little over 6 acres at the northwest edge of Saint Joe. The Booster Club is making payments on the land until an appropriation can be included in the town budget for purchase of the land.

Brass Tacks - 11th In A Series

It would be a much simpler world to live in if Almighty God had made evil understandable in terms of specifics rather than in terms of conditions. Indeed, it might be a much happier world, if not simpler, because mankind would have no major test facing him in pursuit of his daily life, for he could "look up" the standing of this or that possession or act or what have you, find out if it was an "evil" or not and then act accordingly, with the assurance that he was in the right in no uncertain terms. It appears at first that this would be a much more desirable condition than we now have; there wouldn't be as much room for conflict with one's self and with one's neighbor. There wouldn't be as much opportunity or freedom to have conflict with God. But under such a condition, there also would not be much purpose to life.

Fortunately, there are many people, certainly not enough but many at any rate, who consider the whole of life as such, one big picture. The Artist has made the whole picture a thing of beauty, but upon close inspection one can see imperfections in each character in the scene. If one of the characters would try to separate himself from the whole scene as representing a better portion of the picture, he would err in overlooking the flaw, no matter how little, that was in his make-up. There are such people in the world who have taken the term "righteousness" and changed it to something that becomes "self-righteousness." A feeling of betterness because of not doing what the next fellow does in his worldly existence then becomes a basis for passing judgment, consciously and unconsciously. Recognition of the imperfection in all mankind ceases to exist and the "wholeness" or the universality of evil in all men becomes unacceptable.

There would be more understanding of one another if each one were better able to accept the faults of another as easily as he accepts his own faults. This becomes rather difficult in an atmosphere wherein specifics have been allowed to replace mode. How can one understand the character of his fellow man if he has passed prior judgment based upon an act or acts which are a part of his fellow man's nature? Some of the so-called "sins" which are present in today's world have been present in the past and will be present in the future. They are, to some extent, so common that they become habit rather than a matter of yielding to what we call temptation. Waking each morning at a certain time in order to be on the job at a certain time quite often is a habit which the mind and body acquire through constant and repeated occurrence. It is done almost without thinking. In a like manner some of the "sins" can be explained, not necessarily justified, but explained by the same manner of occurrence. It beocmes a matter of habit, for instance, to curse, swear, use profane language to the point where it becomes meaningless to the user. It becomes a habit to sit in a tavern several times each week, consuming more beer than is necessary to enjoy the brew; thus such drinking becomes meaningless. It becomes a habit to sit before a television set for hours, watching more programs than are necessary for enjoyment; thus the enjoyment is lost. There is no way of explaining away the time lost in these and other instances of worldly pleasures and mannerisms; most men and women would be honest enough to admit that their time could very often be spent in other endeavors. But they are yet subject to the humanity of all men and do oftentimes what they know they should not.

At the same time it is possible to become so confirmed in the rightness of one's own ways that that person becomes as "sinful" as the man whom he himself considers sinful. A problem of Christianity is not only getting the message of its Gospel to the people but also keeping those who embrace it from losing their perspective, from becoming superior in attitude. Simply because a man never goes into a tavern or never touches a drop of alcoholic beverage does not mean he is a better man than the one who does, but many think so. With these people, including many of the clergy, the word "temperance," which is so aptly descriptive of the life of Christ, has become "abstainance." It isn't a matter of "how much" in this misinterpretation; it is a matter of the act itself. The Perfect Life that is Christ was concerned for all manner of people, concerned not for what they had been in the past but what they were going to do about themselves in the future. This is the kind of love that passes no judgment but seeks instead to help and to comfort. There is little help or comfort shown in the attitude that says, "This is bad; you must keep from it, period."

The judicial church-goer does his fellow men no good. The tavern recluse does himself and his fellow men no good. But a combination of church devotion and temperate enjoyment of worldly pleasures (not necessarilly that which is contained in a bottle) reflects a discovery of the fullness of a Christian life which fuses that which is of The Spirit with that which is of the flesh.

GETTING AWAY WITH MISTAKES IN ENGLISH

"He must do like you say."

"These kind of letters are scarce."

"Everyone was waiting when I arrived, and they greeted me courteously."

"Send the latest of the two editions."

"I never heard of him earning a dollar."

"Having looked at our watches, no time was lost in getting started on our way."

Do these examples of slovenly English bother you? Do you believe high-school graduates should at least have been told that such sentences contain offenses against grammar and usage?

If so, you are out of step with the current trend of permissiveness in the teaching of English. These six sentences are quoted from a manual prepared by the school officials of one Western state for the guidance of its eleventh and twelfth-grade teachers. The manual indicates by italics each error involved. However, over the entire list, which includes some forty similar violations of grammar or good usage, is the caption "Do Not Teach Corrections For These." (One is tempted to wonder how many of the teachers know, in the first place, that all are violations!)

To discourage a teacher from teaching seems an odd way of running a school system. Why do school officials go out of their way to block the process of learning for the high-school students entrusted to their care? Here are the reasons given in the manual: "Teaching corrections for these is .... a waste of time and a source of confusion to the students .... Only in formal literary writing and in formal speech are finer distinctions made."

In fairness, it must be said that the manual, which in many respects is excellent, does urge that teachers make corrections of certain other mistakes. These, however, are the so-called "substandard" mistakes: "I never bought none," "I lost that there book," "John, he won't come," "you was." Remember, this manual is addressed not to elementary-school teachers, but to teachers in the last two years of high school. And it is not saying that instruction in the finer points of English usage should be postponed until grosser blunders have been eliminated. Instead, it in effect tells teachers to call a halt to teaching when students reach a certain predetermined level. This level presumably is so low that graduates will not have been trained to make the distinctions required "in formal literary writing and in formal speech." In our system, these school authorities are in effect saying, "We are not trying to turn out well-educated young men and women. Why should we waste time teaching them to write and speak as if they were?"

Use of the terms "formal writing" and "formal speech" is misleading. The word "formal" suggests stiffness and pomposity. It calls up visions of engraved invitations, scholarly books, Presidential inaugurals. This is nonsense. Formal English simply means English written or spoken with due attention to the proper forms of language. It means, in other words, good English, English that has been put in shape to be understood clearly and exactly. Every well-written report in a newspaper, every article in this or any other good magazine, every good detective story is an example of formal writing, simply by virtue of the fact that it has been put in proper form for being understood. Every job interview, every talk to a club, every oral report on a business matter calls for the use of formal speech. An air of informality (in the popular sense) may be the end in view, but attention to the forms of the language is necessary if communication is to occur. One must use formal English even to create informality.

How are these things to be taught? Grammar is the foundation of effective writing and speaking, yet "grammar" is an evil word in the vocabulary of most professional educationists. Careful grammatical distinctions, they say, are "a source of confusion to the students." In point of fact, the source of confusion is not in the subject, not in the pupil, not even in the teacher. Confused thinking by educational theorists and school administrators is what has reduced instruction in English to its present chaos.

Let us see what the teaching of English grammar and composition involves.

Language is an art, rather than a science. This does not mean, however, that effective writing or speaking demands less accuracy in the use of words than arithmetic demands in the use of numbers. It calls for a different kind of accuracy and a different set of intellectual skills.

First of all, to write and speak well, we must understand the structure of language. Like the gears in an engine, the parts of speech must mesh to do their work effectively. Grammar is the study of their relationships. We pick up the simpler forms by ear. None of us says, "Them am a man." We don't need a grammarian to tell us that things have con completely wrong in this sentence. But with more complicated statements, accurate tools of analysis may be required to spot the trouble. To use language effectively, we must be able, when necessary, to identify the subject of a verb, to recognize number, person, case, or tense, to see the relationship between different elements in a sentence, to know which words are expected to agree with one another. To send a youngster out into the world without these grammatical tools (which can be and should be mastered in the elementary school) is like sending a workman to a job without his kit.

Let me illustrate by using one of the sentences quoted: "These kind of letters are scarce." Here is a mixture of singulars and plurals. Language must handle such mixtures if we are to say precisely what we mean. The basic fault of the quoted sentence is that it does not make clear what the writer is talking about. Many kinds of letter exist:italic, roman, black letter, script, and the rest. Is the speaker saying that one kind is scarce or that several kinds are scarce? By using the singular "kind," he seems to mean that one kind is scarce; but he immediately contradicts this impression by using the plurals "these" and "are." He confuses us, just as he would confuse us were he to say "these man."

Grammatical analysis tells us quickly what is wrong. The subject of the sentence is "kind" (not letters), and it is singular. The verb "are," however, instead of being in the singular, is in the plural, and so is the demonstrative adjective "these," though it qualifies and should agree with the noun "kind." Locating the trouble is easy (if you have the tools). What about correcting it? Here grammar differs from arithmetic. It does not give us one definitive answer. Instead, it offers several correct solutions to a problem, from among which we may choose the statement that expresses our meaning exactly:

(1) If I point to one letter, emphasizing its individuality, I naturally and correctly say, "This kind of letter is scarce."

(2) If I point to several letters, of several different kinds, I naturally and correctly say, "These kinds of letter are scarce."

(3) If I point to several letters, all of the same kind, I have a number of choices. It would be grammatically correct for me to say, "This kind of letters is scarce (just as it is correct for me to speak of "this group of boys"). The sentence, however, seems awkward. So I can, if I wish, remove the last wisp of confusion. I can forget about the number of letters and say (as before), "This kind of letter is scarce." Or I can preserve both the idea that there is one kind, and the idea that there are many letters, by saying, "Letters of this kind are scarce."

In the end, we come up with several different sentences, each of which conveys its particular meaning without a shadow of ambiguity and each of which satisfies all the rules of grammatical usage. From these, the writer is free to select the sentence that precisely fits his thought. In turn, the reader can grasp the idea quickly and effortlessly, for he need not slow down to answer a succession of unintended riddles. The result is "an easy style"—effortless for the reader, because it is the product of effort by the writer. The opposite is a lazy style.

The basis of good writing is the writer's ability to make distinctions. Taken one at a time, the distinctions are minute and seemingly unimportant. Taken together, they make the difference between writing that conveys meaning and writing that conceals it. Grammatical rules do not restrict freedom or destroy originality; they make the free expression of original ideas possible. It is ignorance, not knowledge, of grammar that chains a man's pen and his tongue.

Learning to write and to speak, like learning to think, is a continuous process. It must be started in the school at the very beginning. Grammatical foundations must be laid early. Thereafter, the school must insist that its students write, write, write. Throughout the high-school years, students should be called on for compositions and themes. They should engage regularly in formal debates. They should experiment with the various forms of prose and verse. They should write examinations in essay form. Every composition, written or oral, should be corrected and criticized, for its form as well as for its content.

Activities like these—practice of intellectual skills—are the only kinds of "learning by doing" that really count. The purpose—attained in the schools of other countries and attainable in our schools, too—is to train young citizens to be capable of expressing their own ideas, whatever the subject may be, with fluency, clarity, accuracy and vigor.

—Arthur Bestor, Ph. D., Professor of History, University of Illinois (November issue of Good Housekeeping).

COMMUNISTS WROTE AAA

Unable to find a single moral law or principle to uphold the recent seizure of Ethan Stangland's two tractors since returned while awaiting another court hearing Sept. 3, some citizens and officials have contended "Well, it's the law."

Acreage allotments and price supports are the law under the Agricultural Act of 1938, as amended. So let's take a closer look at this "law."

The Democrats claims that it was put in force during the last Republican administration. Spokesmen for the Republicans say that it was enacted by a Democratic Congress and retained on the books by the Democrats.

But an even closer look at the "law" reveals that the AAA Act of 1938 is a brainchild of a group of communists who worked for the original AAA.

In a report of the subcommittee to investigate the administration of the Internal Security Act and other Internal Security Laws, dated July 30, 1953, it is stated:

"The man who founded the first Communist cell in the United States Government was the late Harold M. Ware. Ware's mother, the late Ella Reeve Bloor, was openly advertised by Communist officals as 'the First Lady of the Communist Party, United States of America.' In her autobiography, 'We Are Many,' she tells how her son, Hal, served in the U.S. S.R. as aleader in the Soviet collective farm program under both Lenin and Stalin.

" Six members of Hal Ware's parent Communist cell, identified as such in sworn testimony, worked for the original Agricultural Adjustment Administration of the Department of Agriculture.

"They were Alger Hiss, Lee Pressman, John Abt, Nathan Witt, Nathaniel Weyl and Charles Kramer.

"George N. Peek, who was appointed by President Roosevelt as AAA's first administrator, wrote a book, 'Why Quit Our Own,' to tell what happened within the agency in the period when the members of the Ware cell were actively at work there. Pertinent passages from the book are included here.

" 'A plague of young lawyers settled on Washington .... in the legal division were formed the plans which eventually turned the AAA from a device to aid the farmer to a device to introduce the collectivist system of agriculture into this country (pg. 20) .... The inner ring was evidently out to get Mr. Brand; they also wanted to be rid of me. They wanted to purge the AAA of all businessmen or any others who did not welcome the coming of the new day of revolution.' (pg. 144).

"Peek tells his own story of what happened to him for standing out against the 'inner ring.'

" 'I resigned as Administrator of the AAA, setting out in my letter to the President that it was at his request.' (pg. 91).

"Peek's successor, Chester A. Davis, made a heroic effort to drive most of these people from Government, in the famous Triple-A Purge of 1935 (Washington Post, Feb. 6, 1935.) But they found lodgment elsewhere, as the record of our hearings abundantly demonstrates."

Against this background, we can better see how Stangland's tractors were taken away from him without trial by jury for such a "criminal" act as overplanting wheat. Man's inherent right to freedom of action as long as he does not injure others would not be understood by the likes of Pressman, Hiss, et al.

Our constitution which guarantees us this freedom cannot prevent us from making mistakes. But it does provide methods by which these mistakes can be erased. Let's urge our representatives in Congress to lose no time in wiping the state clean of this communist-tainted AAA Act of 1938!

CROP Organizes

Under the guidance of the CROP District Director, the Rev. Harold Oeschle, the DeGalb County CROP Campaign Committee has been formed. Interested persons from churches and farm groups participated. The Rev. John Dicken was named campaign director.

Also elected as campaign officers were: Lewis Walter, secretary; the Rev. Carl Thompson, treasurer; Bruce Goodwin, commodity manager; the Rev. Carl Bleckendorf, Thanksgiving Day manager; and the Rev. Henry G. Weber, publicity director.

"We are working for 100 per cent cooperation in the county to help reach our goal of two carloads of commodities," says Rev. Dicken. The Christian Rural Overseas Program has been a very effective foreign aid program administered by the churches of 35 denominations. In the past 11 years CROP has provided over 340,000,000 pounds of food and fiber for refugees and destitute people in more than 48 countries.

Township chairmen for 11 of the 15 DeKalb County townships have been secured. They are: William LaRowe, Concord; Joe Ober, Fairfield; Bruce Gurtner, Franklin; Ernest Hutton, Jackson; Harold Dannenburg, Keyser; Ivan Brown, Newville; James Conrad, Smithfield; Claude Laub, Spencer; Russell Camp, Troy; Joe Miller, Union; and Charles Ridge, Wilmington.

School Menu

Monday—whipped potatoes, cold meat, escalloped corn, fruit, bread and butter, milk.

Tuesday — spaghetti, cole slaw, mixed fruit salad, bread and butter, milk.

Wednesday— mashed potatoes, hamburger gravy, vegetable, ice cream, bread and butter, milk.

Thursday—chili and crackers, ginger bread, apple sauce, bread and butter, milk.

Friday— buttered potatoes, deviled eggs, buttered peas, cherry cobler, bread and butter, milk.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Maurice Kline on Wednesday, October 22. Special guests for the meeting were County Club Federation President Mrs. John Freeze of Garrett, first vice president Mrs. Shugart of Auburn and second vice president Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser of Saint Joe. 15 club members responded to roll call.

Mrs. Frank Shull presented a very interesting lesson on Roman Women in which she told of many of the famous women of early Rome, and how they lived in those times.

Following a short business meeting, Mrs. Lela Northrup conducted entertainment.

After adjournment the hostess served light refreshments.

Spencerville News

Janice Hollabaugh, Reporter

The Upstreamers Class, consisting of high school students from the Methodist Church at Spencerville, held their monthly party at Lynda Fisher's. The party was held with a Halloween theme. Members played games and were served cider and doughnuts by the hostess.

The Spencerville Community Club held a Halloween Party at the Spencerville Fire Hall on Friday evening with a very large group present. Contests, cake walks, and a record hop were the highlights of the evening of fun with many of the young people coming masked. Prizes were given for the ugliest, prettiest, funniest, oldest and youngest and most original. Mr. Bill Wilder was in charge of the dancing with Mr. Chalmer Beaty chairman of the entertainment. Mrs. Glenn Akey was in charge of the decorations all in harmony with the season. Mrs. Glenn Moore, Mrs. Kenneth Norris, Mrs. Max Markle and Mrs. Howard Alwood served coffee, cider and doughnuts to all. The club regrets the lack of room which somewhat hampered the evening's entertainment but thanks everyone who helped to make the evening a success, especially the sheriff's department for its splendid cooperation.

The Town and Country Club met at Chaney's Monday evening for their annual Christmas dinner and party, this because several of their members are leaving for Florida this week.

Mr. Russell Praul of Woodburn, son of the Carl Tustisons, has been quite ill this week.

The Ladies of the Lutheran Church had their annual Halloween Party Wednesday night with Mrs. George Doll, Mrs. Wilda Walters, Mrs. Roy Chaney and Mrs. Wayne Smith as hostesses.

Friday to Sunday Mrs. Angela Lloyd visited in the John Weidner home.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Ransom are the proud parents of a baby girl named Roxanne Lynn, born October 25 at the Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne. Mrs. Ransom is the former Gailanna Holman of Saint Joe. Proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Holman and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Ransom.

Frank Beams is now living at the Barkley Nursing Home in Auburn.

Ralph Baker is a medical patient at Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett.

The Methodist Ladies will serve a fried chicken supper on Saturday evening, November 22, from 5 p.m. until ? Also on the menu are mashed potatoes and gravy, dressing, corn, cranberry salad, relish plate, pie and coffee, all family style for $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Saturday night and Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hoover were their son, Carl, and wife and children from Muncie. Sunday dinner guests in the same home were the J. W. Hoovers and girls and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Kugler and son of LaOtto.

Mrs. C. J. Reed of near Wallen spent several days visiting her daughter and family, the J. W. Hoovers, last week.

REVIVAL AT HOPEWELL

The Rev. Donald Dibble of Warren, Indiana, is the evangelist for the Revival Days at the Hopewell United Brethren Church from November 4 to the 16. He has been a pastor for many years, serving the Zollar Tabernacle in Detroit for 8 years and entering the full time evangelistic field 3 years ago. He has worked in the field of evangelism with William Biederwolf, John Rice and Bob Jones. Sr.

The public is cordially invited to attend these services. Special music is presented each night. Congregational singing is under the direction of the pastor. Rev. William Skeldon. Services begin each evening at 7:30 p.m. The church is located 5 miles west of Spencerville.

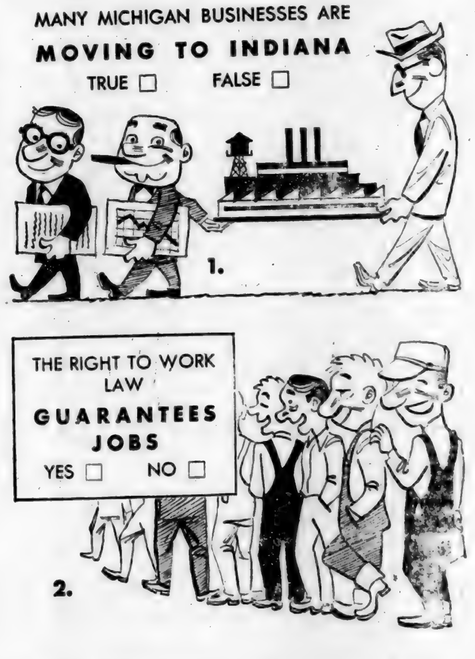
SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club held their October meeting at the home of Naomi Alwood. The president, Effiebell McCann, opened the meeting by leading 18 members in repeating the club collect. Devotions were given by Eula Mansfield.

The history of the song of the month was read by Dorothy Christman and Connie Hollabaugh led the group in singing. Old and new business were taken care of after which the finance and flower committees held auctions.

A delicious salad and coffee were served by the hostess.

YOUR JOB IN INDIANA



1. Many Michigan businesses are moving to Indiana. Answer: True. One-third of all letters received by the Indiana Department of Commerce which request industrial plant site information are from Michigan businessmen. They explain that Indiana's climate for industry is better than that in Michigan.

2. The Right to Work Law guarantees jobs. Answer: No. The Right To Work Law never was intended to guarantee a man a job. It does guarantee that a man does not have to join a union, as a condition of employment, unless he wants to of his own free choice. Enemies of the Right To Work Law may sometimes confuse people on this point. Actually, laws cannot guarantee jobs because laws do not create jobs. But laws do protect rights.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

ST. CLAIR'S DEFEAT

One of the worst defeats ever suffered by an American army occurred on November 4, 1791. On that day the Indians cut to pieces the army of General St. Clair on the east fork of the Wabash River in western Ohio.

The battle was part of the constant warfare between the westward pushing white settlers and the red men for possession of the land. The prize here was the great stretch of rich wilderness country between the river known by the beautiful Indian name of Ohio, and the Great Lakes.

In 1790 the government sent troops under General Josiah Harmar to Ohio to check the Indians who were attacking the white settlers. Harmar built a fort on the Muskingam River, near the spot where the city of Marietta now stands. He then made an expedition against the Indians. They drove him back in defeat.

A year later President Washington chose General Arthur St. Clair to lead an army against the Indians and avenge Harmar's defeat. St. Clair was governor of the Northwest Territory which included the Ohio country. He set out with an army of 2000 men to build a chain of forts and secure the Ohio country against Indian attacks.

President Washington had warned St. Clair to be alert against surprise and ambush, but the warning apparently wasn't heeded. The expedition had bad luck from the beginning. Discipline was bad. There were desertions. And St. Clair wasn't in good health. His army had been reduced to about 1400 men when it camped on the banks of the Wabash without taking proper precautions against a surprise attack.

For days St. Clair's movements had been watched by Indian scouts under the wily Tecumseh. The attack came at dawn, a favorite surprise hour of the Indians, upon the sleeping, unprepared troops. At the chilly sunrise of November 4th the fierce war whoop rang out from the woods and hundreds of warriors, led by Chiefs Little Turtle and Blue Jacket, swarmed upon St. Clair's army.

The surprised troops were quickly disorganized, despite the personal bravery of St. Clair and other officers, and slaughtered by the hundreds. Only a fraction of the army escaped by flight into the forest, leaving more than 600 dead, and all their supplies, on the field. St. Clair was lucky enough to be among the survivors.

When the news reached President Washington weeks later he burst into fury, crying, "Oh, God! Oh, God! St. Clair is worse than a murderer! How can he answer to his countrymen!" But when he calmed down, Washington said, "General St. Clair shall have justice . . . he shall have full justice."

St. Clair was severely censured for this terrible defeat. Though he continued to be governor, his name remained in bad repute and he never rose again in public esteem.

The Indians, flushed with their victories over Harmar and St. Clair, grew bolder in their raids and massacres. It remained for a Revolutionary War hero, General "Mad Anthony" Wayne, to defeat the Indians two years later and break their hold on the Ohio country. After that came the big rush of settlers from the East, and ten years later, in 1803, Ohio became the 17th state in the Union.

RAINBOW NEWS

The Rainbow Girls held their second stated meeting of October on the 23rd at the Masonic Temple in Spencerville. The assembly invited all Eastern Stars to be present at this meeting and the meetings in the future. There was special entertainment by Mary Lou Collins, an amateur tap dancer, who is the sister of a Rainbow Girl, Cheryll Collins. The basement was decorated with fall trimmings and the refreshments consisted of cider and doughnuts. We appreciate the attendance of the Eastern Stars and hope to see more of them. There were around 60 people present and all had a very enjoyable time.

On Saturday, October 25 a group of Rainbow Girls attended the School of Instruction for Districts 2 and 3 at Warsaw. Our Mother Advisor was presented and escorted to the East. Ruth Washler served as the Chaplain for the Initiation and closing. Judy Coddington served as Immortality for the Initiation and closing. Judy Furnish served as Faith during the opening. Nancy Brown served as Patriotism during the opening. Leota Schrader was a protem for our Worthy Advisor and was escorted to the East. Nancy Brown and Judy Furnish were candidates for Initiation. We enjoyed a pot luck dinner and had supper at a drive-in on the way home. We all had a wonderful time and learned a lot.

Nancy Brown, Rep.

MODERN MRS. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The October meeting of the Modern Mrs. Home Demonstration Club was held at the home of Gladys Smith with Mary Klepper as co-hostess.

The president, Phyllis Sipe, opened the meeting at 8:00 p.m. by having everyone repeat the home economics creed.

JoAnn Mettert gave devotions and Nancy McBride led in singing the song of the month, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot." The officers for the coming year are as follows:

President, Phyllis Sipe.

Vice president, Virginia Applegate.

Secretary, Phyllis Amaden.

Assistant secretary, Janice Burley.

Treasurer, Ruth Timbrook.

Song leader, Pat Griffin.

News reporter, Gay Varner.

Virginia Applegate and Gloria Inlow gave a very interesting lesson on family finances. Phyllis Amaden read roll call. There are 27 members with 3 vacancies to be filled by anyone wishing to join.

Virginia Applegate gave the treasurer's report. It was decided to have a square dance November 15 at the Mark Center Grange Hall. Everyone is welcome.

All sang the club prayer song and lunch was served by the hostess.

Around the Town

With the Editor

The Legion put on a nice dinner for the Booster Club Tuesday evening. Get-to-gether like that are a good thing. Gets us people to socialize a little instead of staying in our own back yard all the time.

Ed Washler got himself in a situation, though. While he was addressing the group and telling of the politicing going on at Boys' State last summer, he made a remark about dirty politics or politicians. He quickly apologized when he realized what he had said. "If there are any politicians here, I'm sorry."

Leighton Tombow, mayor of Butler was sitting in the room. —Everyone got a big laugh out of the situation.

During the evening Derwood Ridgway informed me that I had made Doc Hippensteel the county coroner, according to the tabulation of votes appearing in last week's paper. Glad he mentioned it so I can set the record straight —Republicans had a hard enough time as it was.

What happened was that I switched the totals by mistake; so it goes.

Sale Of Hardware Announced

The sale of the Amstutz Hardware and Furniture Company was announced this week by Herbert Amstutz of Saint Joe. With preliminary provisions of the sale taken care of, the sale will be formally completed this week end, according to Mr. Amstutz. Purchasers of the business firm are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Halt of near Huntertown.

Mr. and Mrs. Amstutz, who purchased the business from Herman and Mayola Zuber, will leave the ranks of Saint Joe business firms after 7 years of activity in the hardware and furniture business. No definite plans for the future have been announced by Mr. Amstutz.

Mr. and Mrs. Halt have purchased the Roy Chapman home in Saint Joe and will move in sometime next week, according to present plans. The Halts have three children and have been engaged in farming in the past. Mr. and Mrs. Chapman and daughter, Peggy, will move next week to their newly-purchased home just off the Saint Joe Road near Fort Wayne. Mr. Chapman is employed by the Magnavox Company at Fort Wayne.

Public Invited To PTA Meeting On Wee Haven

Mrs. Joseph Campbell, who is director of teaching at the Wee Haven School For Retarded Children at Garrett, will be the guest speaker at the November meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. to be held next Tuesday evening, November 18, at the high school gym in Saint Joe. Also on the program will be the showing of a film made when the school was originally founded and held classes in rooms offered for use by a Garrett organization. The school now is housed in its own building which is fast becoming too small for the needs of the community.

Mrs. Campbell has appeared at many meetings in the county bringing the story of the school to the local level. This is the first public eeting in the Riverdale school area at which information about the school will be presented. It is, therefore, a meeting of interest to parents and all adult citizens in the community.

Entertainment will be furnished by the second and eighth grades.

Also included on the program will be awards to be presented to the school bus drivers in recognition of their outstanding safety record.

The time of the meeting is 7:30 p.m.

Correction

An error was inadvertently made in the announcement in last week's issue of The News concerning the formation of the first aid instruction class for this community. It was reported that the class was for men only. Roy Reidenbach, secretary of the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department, indicated this week that the county Red Cross will conduct the instruction periods for the benefit of both men and women. Those interested are asked to contact Mr. Reidenbach as soon as possible.

Tentative plans call for meeting Monday or Tuesday nights for a 10-week period, beginning in December. The courses includes 20 hours of instruction, 10 class periods of 2 hours each.

Residents of the Saint Joe and Spencerville communities are invited to register for the class.

Free Throws Win Thriller For Comets, 40-39

Riverdale Comet fans came home half happy and half sad Friday night. Their boys dropped the reserve game by a close 26-25 score to Waterloo after having held the lead for most of the game. In the varsity game sadness turned to joy as the locals won by one point, 40-39.

The reserves held a 17-13 lead at the end of the first half. Waterloo yet trailed by 3 points at the third quarter by 21-18. The Wildcats then began creeping up in the final quarter and went ahead 24-23. Jerry Heyman tallied 2 points for his team to make it 25-24 Riverdale. Then Waterloo stalled before getting another bucket and regaining a 1-point lead at 26-25. Riverdale kept possession of the ball until the closing seconds. With 14 seconds to go they called time out on an out-of-bounds play. When play resumed, the Comets set up a perfect play but missed the shot. 3 or 4 rebounds flutered around the basket and one finally went through the hoop, but not until after the buzzer had sounded and Waterloo salvaged the win.

The varsity game was a continuation of the thriller-type which began last week. With 4 seconds remaining in the game, Dale Dowden sank 2 free throws and Riverdale downed the Wildcats 40-39.

Quarter scores were 8-5, 17-14 and 29-26 Waterloo.

COMET CNIPTIONS — The Riverdale boys did give fans "kniptions" in both games. After seeing a lead dwindle away in the last quarter of the reserve game, Riverdale boosters thought they were going to bring this one home. A perfect out-of-bounds play left Jerry Dowden wide open a few feet from the basket, but he missed his jumper. He shouldn't be considered the "goat," however, because rebound efforts of his teammates failed to go through, also. It was just one of those things. — One or two calls by the officials in the last quarter hurt the Comets - not an excuse, just another one of those things.

Trucks To Collect Rural Donations Monday For Aid To Needy - CROP

Next Monday morning, November 17, trucks will roll through DeKalb County on errands of mercy and international goodwill. The men driving the trucks will be waging a battle against an age-old enemy of mankind - hunger. The distended belly, dread signature of hunger, will be seen in many countries during the cold winter months that lie ahead. Christian Rural Overesas Program (CROP), the agency of over 35 church denominations, is seeking to minimize the number of these who will die of hunger this winter.

The trucks will roll into farmyards throughout the country and ask people to share their commodities with others. The decision on how much to give will be made, perhaps, on the basis of the need and ability to give, and perhaps not. The commodities donated will be taken to any of 9 county elevators and later shipped to Illinois. There it will be processed and shipped overseas where church agencies will distribute it according to the need of the families and orphans.

Tears of thanksgiving will roll down cheeks of many colored. Hope for the future will be rekindled and faith in the goodness of mankind will be strengthened. In these communities the distended bellies will not be seen this winter. The number of communities thus blessed will depend upon the depth of the concern manifested in the size of the gift. America's thankfulness for its abundance can be shown by its contribution of this early Christmas gift to those who will surely die without food - America's food.

The morning of November 17 is the canvas date. Gifts can be given to the canvassers or taken to any county elevator. Donations of money can also be utilized, these to pay for the cost of shipping. Contributions of money can be mailed to CROP treasurer Rev. Carl Thompson.

William LaRowe is the canvassing chairman for Concord Township, Ivan Brown for Newville and Claude Laub for Spencer.

Brass Tacks - 12th In A Series

One of the most perplexing challenges in life on this earth is that of accepting the happenings in the world and in the community, and the words and actions of the people therein, for the good that may be contained therein, without despairing over the misdirection of the whole lot of us. Much, or most, of the good which we accomplish, specifically, we in the United States, is done with or through an association of people which gains as much fame for its name as it accomplishes good. Oftentimes the fame for individuals and organizations is greater than the good accomplished. This is strange for a nation dedicated to Godliness, for in such a nation such dedication should establish that the acts of charity and love and compassion are done to the glory of God, not to the glory of man. What man appears to be doing is to attempt to accomplish some degree of "perfection" through his goodness, to recognize at the same time the existence of God, but to not yield completely to the Word of the Creator, holding out for himself a measure of glory and fame through his works.

Holding out in this manner manifests itself in many apparently different ways. But they are not too different from one another, actually, in essence. being exactly the same thing. This revelation is and will be offensive to some, for such a revelation can be taken as a criticism or an insult. This will depend on how "deep" one has engulfed himself in these manifestations. The most obvious manifestation. is man's dependence upon doing good through recognizable organizational ties. Another manifestation is man's apparent belief that Godly patriotism is most commendable and best accomplished through efforts of those who have served in the armed forces, that devotion to God and country is best fostered or should be fostered through a man's membership in a veterans' group. In both instances mentioned, man accomplishes good, certainly. But it is man's idea, or so he would think. This is more easily digested because it brings to the mortal mind that feeling of importance so necessary when God is forgotten or by-passed. The point is: whatever good man can accomplish is always subject to Divine Will. It is only an example of running away from The Truth when we must depend upon club or organizational associations in order to accomplish the good that God intended us to accomplish as charitable, loving and compassionate human beings, doing service in the name of God because of our love for Him and thankfulness to Him.

Whatever attempt man might make to put into words his aims or goals in his service to his fellow man, be it in by-laws or constitutions and such, falls short of its intent. This is simply because God made man good as He made everything good. The goodness is indescribable; it is just there. To try to "make up" a code of behavior that is superior to the Ten Commandments is impossible. So, too, is it impossible to even closely duplicate in words of intent the dedication to serving man that is shown in the life of Christ. We may think we have something "new" as we embark on mission of mercy and good will, or missions of high moral and patriotic intent; but actually the example or the idea has been here all the time. It is a part of creation that the Almighty made, a part of the "goodness" that cannot be destroyed even though it may not be properly recognized. A successful man has said, "I haven't had any 'new' ideas; other men have had the same ideas as I have. I realized long ago that I was just using the same idea only under different circumstances."

Doing good under any circumstances is commendable; someone benefits. What must be avoided is man's tendency to destroy his standing as an individual, to replace his feeling of responsibility as an individual with a feeling of responsibility as a member of some sort of group. Even organizations within churches sometimes become behoven unto themselves, their members more willing to do service for their fellow men in the name of a Sunday School class or a men's or women's group than as Christian men and women striving to be what their God wants them to be. "The Church" is often the recipient of criticism when it comes to a review of the good that is being done in the world. How often do we hear, "The Church is doing a good job" in this or that phase of today's living, "but - - - -." This is a way of taking the blame off one's shoulders and putting it elsewhere. The truth is, if "The Church" has failed, WE have failed.

It would be a rash and unreasonable solution to propose that men throw away their organizational ties, destroy membership cards, lapel pins and whatever means they have of identifying themselves and their accomplishments. But it is reasonable and Christian in character to realize that the good that is accomplished by these organizations is the means by which man can fulfill his desire to serve God and that to glorify the name of any other but God in serving his fellow men is to violate a sacred trust.

SALT MINE under metropolitan Detroit, Michigan, offers a unique civil defense opportunity for a large target city to provide both blast and fallout shelter for a substantial number of its citizens with a minimum amount of additional excavation. The mine—second largest rock salt mine in the world—is 1,137 feet under the surface. It would need more equipment and access ramps or elevators to serve as a mass shelter from attack. (Photo courtesy International Salt Co.)

THE ULTIMATE in family shelters is represented by this large and luxurious unit built by steel contractor Earl W. Reichert of Battle Creek, Michigan. The $10,000 structure has a 98-foot well, private electric generating plant, electric and hand-operated blowers for the filtered air system. Its steel reinforcement prepares it for use as a blast as well as fallout shelter. However, a small family fallout shelter may be built for a fraction of what this shelter cost. (Battle Creek Enquirer and News Photo)

New Civil Defense Shelter Designs Offer Survival to Many Families

Protection against the menace of radioactive fallout is now possible, and within the means of many American families.

For $1,000 to $1,500, depending on the part of the country and the construction season, families living outside target cities may now have an excellent underground fallout shelter equipped with adequate radiation shielding, ventilation and other necessities. It was designed by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization.

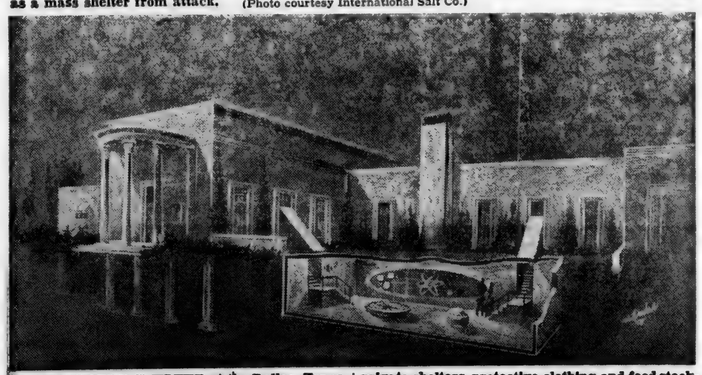
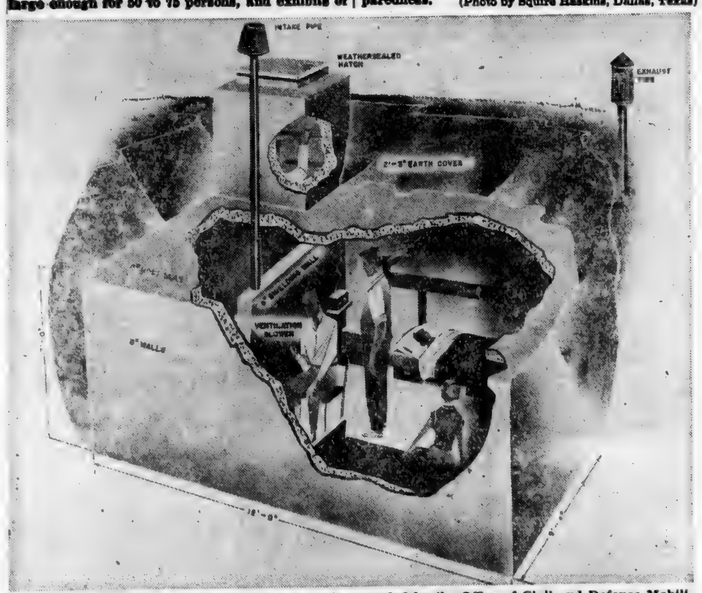
FOR FAMILIES who cannot afford such an elaborate shelter, OCDM has designed other less expensive shelters which would be built in basements—some of them by "do-it-yourselfers." They would not offer as complete fallout protection as the underground shelter, but would be adequate in all but the more dangerous fallout zones.

The shelter designs are a key part of the President's new five-point civil defense fallout shelter policy announced by OCDM Director Leo A. Hoegh:

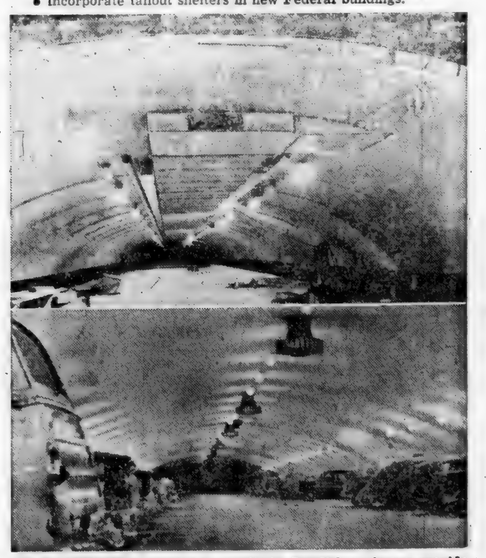
- Provide the public with the facts on fallout effects. This includes information on how people can protect themselves by building shelters and decontaminating anything exposed to fallout, and how they can protect supplies of food and water from radiation.
- Survey existing structures for fallout shelter, such as mines, subways, tunnels and basements.
- Speed up fallout shelter research to develop new designs adaptable to many situations.
- Build a number of new "demonstrator" shelter facilities in places such as underground parking garages, subways, schools, hospitals, factories and apartment buildings.
- Incorporate fallout shelters in new Federal buildings.



UNDERGROUND SHELTER at the Dallas, Texas, Health Museum will include a reinforced room large enough for 50 to 75 persons, and exhibits of private shelters, protective clothing and food stockpiling for training the public in civil defense preparedness. (Photo by Squire Haskins, Dallas, Texas)



FALLOUT SHELTER for a family of four to six shows how a layer of 2 feet 3 inches of earth over a 6-inch concrete roof slab offers good protection even in highly radioactive fallout zones. Cost of this backyard shelter would range from $1,000 to $1,500, including ventilation equipment. It is recommended by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization as the best family fallout shelter for a moderate price, but other less expensive basement designs are available. Further details appear in Technical Bulletin TB-5-3 issued by OCDM headquarters at Battle Creek, Michigan. (OCDM Photo)



VAST CAVERNS excavated in granite by Swedish engineers provide Stockholm and other cities with some of the world's best civil defense shelters today. Built for only about 25 per cent more than surface construction costs, they provide up to 20,000 persons per shelter with protection from radioactive fallout, and also the blast from all but a nearby nuclear hit. Many shelters have peacetime uses, too, such as underground parking garages. (Swedish Civil Defense Photos)

STILL WAITING FOR "PAY CALL" — Des Moines, Iowa — Eighty-year-old James Logan of Des Moines complained that he put in eight days of field training with the National Guard in 1900 and still hasn't been paid. He asked the state for $4, "plus interest" for his service time. He says that his Commander said they would be paid when they got home a[illegible] "We haven't heard from him since."

JARRING DISCOVERY — Silver Spring, Md. — Getting the feel of the past, 6-year-old Despina Theoharis examines a giant, shell-encrusted jar which her Grandmother brought back from her native home on the Greek Island of Samos. Mrs. Palpologos took the jar to the Smithsonian Institute in nearby Washington, D.C. An expert there told her the "souvenir" was actually an ancient wine jug which the Greeks called Amphora, and probably dated back to 300 B.C.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

On Wednesday evening, November 5, at 6:30 the annual Gentlemen's Evening of the Ladies Literary Club was held at the 113 Restaurant in Auburn. Those attending in addition to active members and husbands were Mrs. Lora Leighty, Mr. Marvin Poper and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Hart.

Mrs. Frank Shull asked the blessing, following which the guests enjoyed a turkey dinner, seated at tables decorated in Mexican style. Mexican dolls were used as centerpieces, and each place was marked with a miniature Mexican hat.

The welcome was given by Mrs. Robert Musser, and Mr. Frank Shull responded. The speaker of the evening was Mr. Glen Hart, a teacher in the Elkhart Junior High School. Mr. Hart spoke and showed slides of Mexico where he had travelled for 5 weeks as part of a college course. He also had several Mexican articles which he displayed. His presentation was both interesting and educational.

The committee for the evening was Mrs. Elwood Hart, Mrs. Harold Baker and Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser.

39 Attend Legion Dinner

The Walter Whitehurst American Legion Post was host Tuesday evening to members of The Booster Club of Saint Joe at a dinner meeting held in the post home in Saint Joe starting at 6:30 p.m.

After the program was opened by a welcome from Post Commander Forest Bevington, program chairman Ralph Sechler introduced Lehr Wilder who gave a few thoughts on what Americans have to be thankful for. Ed Washler gave a report of activities at Boys' State last summer on the Indiana University campus at Bloomington. Leighton Tombow, mayor of Butler, then spoke briefly about individual pride in one's own community.

Frank Sechler, president of the Booster Club, offered several thoughts about the work of the organizations and Rev. Ivan Miller spoke briefly. James Beck closed the meeting with a prayer.

Thirty-nine Legionnaires and guests were present.

This Week In American History

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

MAYFLOWER COMPACT

A most notable event marking the origin of government by free men in America occured on November 11, 1620. On that raw, wintry day off the bleak New England coast the Pilgrim Fathers signed the Mayflower Compact, the "first written constitution in the world."

Many weeks before that event the Pilgrim group had sailed from Plymouth, England, across "ye vast and furious ocean" in their cockleshell boat, the Mayflower. One hundred and two persons had sailed on that little boat, the Pilgrim Fathers with their wives and children. One died on the stormy voyage and one was born.

Now they had reached the shores of the New World to begin a new and free life. The perils of the ocean were behind them but the doubts and dreads of the unknown land loomed ahead. They were farther north than they had expected to be. For days they sailed slowly along the inhospitable-looking, wintry New England shore, looking for the best spot to land.

On the 11th of November the Mayflower entered Cape Cod harbor. And here, before landing, as their boat lay rocking at anchor, the Pilgrim Fathers met in the cabin. They chose John Carver, one of their older leaders, to be governor for the first year. Then they drew up and signed a compact by which they proposed to govern themselves on landing. The solemn words by which the Pilgrim Fathers pledged themselves to righteous government are majestic:

"In the name of God, Amen. We, whose names are underwritten, the Loyal Subjects of our dread Sovereign Lord, King James, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, etc.,

"Having undertaken for the Glory of God, and Advancement of the Christian Faith, and the Honour of our King and Country, a voyage to plant the first colony in the northern parts of Virginia; do by these Presents, solemnly and mutually in the Presence of God and one another, covenant and combine ourselves together into a civil Body Politick, for our better Ordering and Preservation, and Furtherance of the Ends aforesaid; And by Virtue hereof to enact, constitute, and frame, such just and equal Laws, Ordinances, Acts, Constitutions and Offices, from time to time, as shall be thought most meet and convenient for the General good of the Colony; unto which we promise all due Submission and Obedience.

"In Witness whereof we have hereunto subscribed our names at Cape Cod, the eleventh of November, in the Reign of our Sovereign Lord, King James of England, France and Ireland, the eighteenth, and of Scotland the fifty-fourth. Anno Domini, 1620."

With these few solemn words a new government came into existence. The compact signed by all the adult men, forty one in number, was a voluntary act. It was not imposed by outside authority. Here a group of free men made an agreement to govern themselves and to select officials of their own choosing to do the governing.

The Mayflower Compact set the spirit which has been the basis of the American ideal of free government ever since.

ANGLO - AMERICAN PEN CLUB

Dear Sir,

May I introduce myself?

I am a Scot, (hometown - Edinburgh) now a Civil Servant in London. During the war I was a radio operator in the British Merchant Navy and I visited America many times. I was always impressed by the kindness and hospitality shown to the "Limeys" like myself who were thrown up on your shores by the war.

I have now a lot of spare time and so as a hobby, I have started the above Club to enable children and teenagers in America and Britain to get to know each other better, exchange ideas, magazines, etc.

I already have a long list of young Britons who are eager to make pen friends in America but my difficulty is putting them in touch with young Americans of similar interests. I am, therefore, taking the liberty of writing to you in the hope that you will bring the Club to the attention of your readers.

I am sure you will agree that only good can come from such a flow of correspondence across the Atlantic and if any of your readers are interested would you please advise them to write to:-

Mr. H. Henry
38, Crawford Street
London, W. 1.

Trusting to hear from you shortly,

Yours sincerely,
H. Henry

Dear Ted,

Kenny and I both want to thank you for sendiny us the Saint Joe News. We really enjoy reading about everyone and whats going on in Saint Joe. Also thanks for putting our address in the paper to. We would enjoy hearing from anyone.

We will be so glad when we can come back to Saint Joe. As you can guess we don't care for Texas. The people are real nice but its too hot and dry in the summer.

Oh! By the way, Kenny and I saw Elvis Presley one Sunday. He was stationed here at Fort Hood before he went to Germany. We drove by his home and he was signing autographs. There was 100 girls that the police chased away after we had been there.

I hear the weather is kind of cool. We have had 80 degree weather for the past week. We have heard Jay Gould's Little Red Barn in the morning early, and he said it was cool one morning. But while we are getting sun tans, we'll think of everyone back home wading in the snow.

Well thanks again and say hello to your family for us.

Sincerely
Sandy Walters and Kenny

CULTURE CLUB

The November 5 meeting began with the club collect and pledge to the flag. Devotions were taken from Romans 12.

The lesson on Missouri, Oklahoma, New Merico and Texas was presented by Mary Lou Brockfield who gave personal observations on Texas, having lived there. She also showed an interesting movie on Texas.

Kenny Furnish, dressed in costume, performed an Indian rain dance.

Members voted to support the Mental Health Drive by donating Christmas gifts.

Hostess Marion Furnish served refreshments.

Services For Mrs. Hollopeter

Funeral services will be held Friday, November 14, at the Baidinger-Walter Funeral Home for Minnie D. Hollopeter, 81, of Spencerville. Mrs. Hollopeter died Wednesday having suffered a cerebral hemorrhage.

The deceased was born October 5, 1877. Her husband, Levi Hollopeter, preceded her in death. Mrs. Hollopeter had been taken to Souder Hospital in Auburn a week before her death.

Survivors are a son, Cecil, of New Madrid, Mo.; a grandson; and a brother, J. S. Hollabaugh of Spencerville.

Services will be conducted at 2 p.m. Friday with Rev. Ivan O. Miller officiating. Burial will be in Leo Memorial Cemetery.

Mrs. Hollopeter was a member of the Lutheran Church at Spencerville.

WOWO HISTORY AWARD

Radio station WOWO has established the "WOWO Heritage Award" in history. The award is based on the participating schools' curriculum in history and will not involve outside word by students or teachers. Eligibility will be based on the high school students' work in history during the regular school year. Each school will chose, near the close of the school term, the student who has shown the most interest in history and who has made the greatest effort to increase his or her knowledge of history. This student will then submit a short essay of not more than 150 words on what he or she personally gained from this class work. The board of judges will be selected by the radio station. The winner will receive the Heritage Award trophy and an expense-paid trip of historical interest.

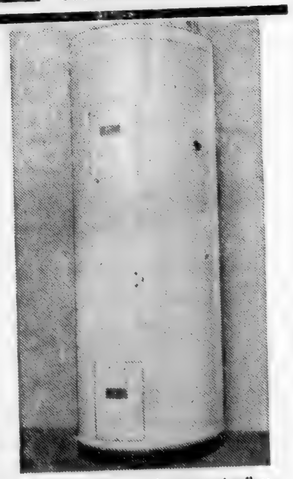
"Our electric water heater never makes us wait for hot water,"

SAYS MRS. DONALD EVA[illegible]

"To discover that there isn't enough hot water when you're in a hurry to do the washing or take a shower is exasperating, isn't it? We never have to wait now that we have our new 'quick recovery' electric water heater. Our family always has plenty of hot water."



Electric water heaters do not require flues or vents, so they can be installed anywhere.

PICTURES OF THE WEEK

RE-ENACTMENT OF CHICAGO FIRE — Chicago, Ill. — John Baldwin and Charles O'Connell (right), dressed as Catherine and Patrick O'Leary, owners of the cow that kicked over the lantern, beat a hasty retreat from the burning shed as they re-enact the start of the great Chicago fire of 1871 which virtually destroyed the city. This will be the last re-enactment on the actual spot where the fire started. The Chicago Fire Dept. will erect a $5,000,000 Fire Academy here.

ALL SPRUCED UP — East Madison, Me. — This towering White Spruce will grace Rockefeller Center in New York when Christmas rolls around. The 64-foot tall tree, found at East Madison was selected as the "perfect" Maine spruce after a search of nearly six months.

GRANDPARENTS OF THE YEAR — Chicago, Ill. — Holding their certificates in front of them, Frank Jackson, of Kansas City, Mo., named Grandfather of the Year, plants a kiss on Mrs. Charles S. Clark, of Chicago, Ill., named Grandmother of the Year, after their selection by the National Grandmother and Grandfather of the Year, Inc. Officials of the club hope that the selection of Mrs. Clark would emancipate Grandma from the rocking-chair stereotype into a world of activity and current affairs.

GOOD FORM — Paris, France — Tackling something different, pretty Ariel Audry, 22, who was recently elected "Miss Typist 1958-59," tries her touch on a teletype in a department store in Paris. She may have had a little trouble with the unfamiliar machine, but she still displayed a good form.

Washington — Pres. & Mrs. Eisenhower were hosts at a White House luncheon for more than 60 guests honoring Queen Frederika of Greece, the Crown Prince, and Princess Sophie.

Lions Club Aids Needy In Sight Project

The Saint Joe Lions Club has completed a project in its sight conservation program with the examination and treatment of two children from a Saint Joe family. The project was completed Monday, November 3, when the children were taken to the Mathew Clinic at Holly, Michigan. Two members of the Lions Club, Clifford Billow and Lynn Fisher, drove the children and their father to the clinic and back home again.

One child required only an examination while the other was given treatment to correct a crossed-eye condition.

VOLUME LXXIII — ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. — Thursday, November 20, 1958 — NUMBER 46

Indiana State Library

Around the Town
With the Editor

Johnnie Baker must be having trouble. He lost his glasses election night and hasn't found them yet. Maybe one of the Republicans swiped 'em and put 'em on so's nobody'd recognize him.

—Anyhow, the glasses are brown shell-rimmed and Johnnie needs them.

Carl Carpenter went down to the park sight last week with his 'dozer and really cut a big swipe. It takes a fraction of time with his machine compared to that required with a bunch of men. But it can't all be done with a 'dozer. So this coming Saturday is another day for volunteers to show up anywhere from 9 a.m. on and pitch in with clearing the land.

The last two Saturdays have been useless for such work what with the rain.

We were all on the way to the Wolf Lake basketball game - Pastor Miller, Dave Ruch, Allen Amstutz, our Mike and Dave and myself. The conversation veered to the fact that Mrs. Richard Davis finally made it and "Fat" was a poppa again. Mike piped up with the clicher:

"Yup, it wasn't a cannonball!"

The red glow in the car wasn't from the upper beam indicater.

Large Group At PTA Meeting

Attendance was good for the November Riverdale P. A. A. meeting Tuesday evening at the high school in Saint Joe. Their reward was an interesting program presented by Mrs. Joseph Campbell on the work of the Wee Haven School For Retarded Children.

Before showing a film concerning the early classes of the school, when it was originally founded, Mrs. Campbell gave a descriptive talk about the causes and effects which lead to a child's need for special and attentive care. She also played portions of a tape recording of the school singing and of classes in speech therapy.

The second grade gave a Thanksgiving prayer, sang a song and gave a recitation to entertain the group at the meeting. The eighth grade presented a pantomime quiz.

Charles Armstrong, Jr., was present to award school bus driver safety pins and cards to Wilbur Akey, Richard Davis and Harold Goldsmith, who were present representing the Riverdale bus drivers.

Wolf Lake Beats Comets, 57-48

Wolf Lake defeated both Riverdale reserves and varsity Friday night at the Wolf Lake "coliseum." The score of the first game was 49-33, the second game 57-48.

Wolf Lake led the reserves from Riverdale through the first half with the half score at 21-17. The Comets kept within striking distance until the end of the third period and the fourth quarter. Wallace fouled out in the third quarter and this seemed to have a demoralizing effect on the locals who had stayed within 4 or 5 points of their opponents to that time. Thereafter, Wolf Lake spread their lead to 10, 12, and 14 points, then to the final 16-point difference at the conclusion of the game.

The varsity ran hot and cold against Wolf Lake. The first quarter ended 14-10 in favor of Wolf Lake. Then the Comets pulled to within 2 points in the second period at 20-18. But their opponents' defense tightened and the half ended with the score 27-18.

Wolf Lake maintained their margin until the 2:58 mark in the third period when the Comets were behind by only 5 at 36-31. Wolf Lake again rallied and led 41-31, then 43-34 at the end of the third quarter. The Comets stayed within 6 or 7 points in the final period. Then with 49 seconds to go and trailing by only 5 points, the Comets called time out and it appeared that they might be able to cause more trouble. The "trouble" developed on the other side of the score board, however, and Wolf Lake scored 4 more points while holding the Comets without a point, the game ending at 57-48.

COMET CNIPTIONS—The reserves weren't moving too effectively, even though they made a respectable showing in the early stages of the contest. — When Wallace fouled out, the team ran out of gas and the game became a runaway. — It was good to see and hear Riverdale's growing band perform at the Comets' first "home" game. — Wolf Lake exhibited good sportsmanship from their cheering section as they gave a "good game" cheer when Wallace fouled out. (Or were they glad to see him leave????) — The varsity had trouble with Wolf Lake's defense, taking most of their first half shots from at least 15 feet out. For some reason few drive-in attempts were made, a condition that existed in previous games also. — In all fairness, it must be noted that Wolf Lake appeared to have an advantage of at least 2 inches in height at every position. — Prickett was a thorn in Riverdale's side again with his long set shots. This was a repeat performance from last year when his "25" shirt was seen at the beginning end of several long shots which swished the nets - and broke our backs. — "Happy Birthday" was sung by the cheering section for Mr. Buzzard. He acknowledged the recognition with a little "curtsey."

Riverdale Participates In Convention

Mrs. Violet Baker and Mrs. Blanche Middaugh inspect the exhibit prepared by the Riverdale fourth grade for the Indiana State Teachers' Convention at Fort Wayne.

Riverdale Schools represented DeKalb County at the recent Indiana State Teachers' Convention with an exhibit in the organization's workshop series. The fourth grade prepared the exhibit under the direction of fourth grade teachers, Mrs. Mabel Miller and Mrs. Blanche Middaugh.

Mrs. Violet Baker, also from Riverdale, was DeKalb County chairman in charge of arranging for the county's representation.

At the convention held October 23 and 24, projects in the elementary workshop series were presented by various schools. There are five divisions in the elementary workshop series: language, independent study, social study, mathematics and science. Riverdale's exhibit was in the independent study division, an Indian exhibit.

In addition to the exhibit the fourth graders presented an Indian dance during the convention. Students who participated were Pamela Holman, Cheryl Helbert, Peggy Hudson, Myra Munsey, Becky Stiver, Claudia Strombeck, Jerry Littlefield, Dennis Miller, Dale Harter, Larry Wilks, Jerry Furnish, Kenneth Furnish, Larry Faehnrich and James Derrow.

Parents who assisted the teachers were Mrs. Harold Faehnrich, Mrs. Merl Furnish, Mrs. Delbert Furnish and Mrs. Aaron Holman.

Local News

The Saint Joe Valley Home Demonstration Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser on November 21. This will be an all-day meeting with a carry-in dinner at 11:30 a.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hauke and sons of Cincinnati were Saturday night dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn and sons.

Electric Motors & Specialties Foundation at Garrett will sponsor a county-wide essay contest on the subject, "Our American Heritage." Letters will soon be sent to county school principals giving rules of the contest. First prize will be $50, second $30 and third $20. Worthy students in this area are given financial assistance by the foundation, receiving loans of up to $1,000 (not more than $500 in any one year) at no interest, repayment to be made in easy installments after graduation.

Dr. B. F. Greist, Mr. and Mrs. Claron Hilbert of Hicksville and Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hook of near Saint Joe were Saturday, November 8, dinner guests of Mrs. Daisy Sherman in Hicksville, honoring the birthdays of Dr. B. F. Greist, Ruth Hilbert and Elva Hook.

Licensed to wed: John Daniel Butler, 20, of Spencerville, and Janet Lee Stark, 24, of R1, Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Jarrett and Mrs. Marie Carnahan spent Sunday, November 2, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rushell Jarrett near Grass Lake, Mich.

Lyle Leas of Auburn spent $744.01 in his successful campaign for the office of state representative, according to a report of expenses filed by Mr. Leas with the county clerk.

Mrs. Virgil Laux is now serving as secretary to the principal of Riverdale high school, replacing Mrs. Norman Morr.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Davis are the proud parents of a son, Stan Eric, born Thursday, November 13, at Souder Hospital in Auburn. Weight 7 lbs. 5 ozs.

Dewey White suffered two smashed finger tips at work last week. The accident took the fingers at the first joint.

This Sunday evening, November 23, a special Thanksgiving service will be presented at the Coburn Corners Church of Christ. The program will feature the DeKalb County Home Demonstration Chorus under the direction of Mrs. Alice Yarian. The chorus numbers 25 members and will present a program centered on the Thanksgiving season. The service will begin at 7:30 p.m. The public is cordially invited to attend.

On November 8 and 9 Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Jarrett and son, Bob, visited Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Curie in their newly established home at R1, Brinkhaven, Ohio. The Union Grove Christian Church, the rural church where Carlton is minister, recently completed a one week revival, which proved quite fruitful. There were eight new converts. En route to Carlton's, the Jarretts stopped at Wellington to call on the Mellicks, who formerly ministered to the Coburn's Corners Church of Christ and were interested in hearing some of the local news which failed to reach "The St. Joe News."

Mary Wilder has returned to her home. In honor of her return from a trip to France this past summer, Mr. and Mrs. Lehr Wilder will hold open house at their home on Sunday afternoon. The Wilders invite their friends to visit them on this occasion.

Thanksgving eve services will be held at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, November 26.

Mrs. Phylls Joan Bittner of Saint Joe was fined $5 and costs of $6.75 last Wednesday in Auburn City Court on charges of failure to stop for a stop sign in Auburn.

Loren Waters of Spencerville has been granted a divorce from Mary Waters and has been given custody of 8 children.

All Things Considered

How to make the best use of tax money used for purposes of education is the most important consideration to be met in planning for new school construction. Shortages of classrooms, necessitating larger classes, in some extreme instances double-shifts of classes of but one-half day duration, and other inconveniences are the pushing force behind the current need for new school construction. When thinking in terms of "new school," however, there may be other circumstances which cloud those primary reasons and to some extent nullify the constructive idea of providing improved educational facilities.

In the state of Indiana, for instance, in the Riverdale School Corporation, for a closer instance, the shortage of classrooms is brought into focus in discussing the construction of a new school. We should keep this in mind when thinking in terms of "what are we going to build." This is pointed out because in the minds of a good many people, the new school is thought of in terms of upper grades and a gym. Since it is not possible, apparently, for us to finance a building program which would give us new classrooms for all grades from the first through high school, the new building must be in terms of what shall we to first.

Before deciding definitely what should be done, a few observations should be made. One is that a major item in the overall cost of constructing upper grade classrooms and the gym would be - the gym. The reason for the concern for a new gymnasium is obviously the Hoosier love for the game of basketball. But it has been our experience to note that attendance at basketball games in the past few years has not taxed too many times the facilities of the gyms in which the local team plays its opponents. Riverdale fans have been loyal to their team despite the inconvenience that is experienced in playing all games on foreign floors. In some instances, Riverdale has had more fans at the games several miles distant than has the "home" team in their own floor. Thus, a doubt enters our mind as to the relative need for a new gym as one of the first considerations for new school construction because of the apparent lack of fan interest. Another observation is that the reason for thinking about a new school is THE SHORTAGE OF CLASSROOMS. This shortage is evident first in the lower grades since increased enrollment appears first there. There is apparently no anticipated increase in enrollment in the next several years such as has been experienced in the past several years. In the local school, two class rooms are needed for each of the first six grades, with the possibility that better education would result if there were three rooms per grade in some cases. We do not have enough room for handling these lower grades at the present time in an efficient and truly beneficial manner. A third observation, and possibly the most important in the long run, is the fact that increasing numbers of educators are reaching the conclusion that small high schools are not capable of presenting a curriculum which is sufficient to fill the need of present day teen agers. One of the latest studies of the American educational system was completed by Dr. James Bryant Conant, president emeritus of Harvard University. Dr. Conant headed a two-year study of our schools, financed by the Carnegie Corporation. One of his conclusions is that a high school which has a graduating class of less than 100 students is not meeting the needs of its pupils and the nation, not by mere force of numbers but by the limitation in courses that a smaller class in a smaller school represents. More than half of the 23,000 high schools in the United States do not meet the criterion of a graduating class of 100. Dr. Conant says, "Citizens should face this situation realistically and resolutely. The small high school should be eliminated by district reorganization. When persons say that geography will not allow consolidation of high schools, we should be sure that it is not human nature that is the prohibiting agent."

Note that Dr. Conant speaks of consolidation of high schools. We have a consolidated school in the Riverdale School Corporation including three townships. This is not the end consolidation indicated in Dr. Conant's recommedation. To fulfill his general recommendation for all schools, our present high school would be consolidated further into a unit including other high schools in this area. At first, this does not appeal to many people. However, we must bear in mind that we are concerned for better education. If it will serve the purpose of attaining a wider program of education in the high school, we should seriously consider this proposal. We would still maintain our elementary school grades and perhaps the "junior high" grades at the comparative local level. But our high school students would attend a school serving high school age students from, for instance, Auburn and Waterloo, as one of our faculty mentioned recently.

Riverdale school patrons should seriously consider the needs of our youth. High school students are not getting a choice of programmed courses to prepare them for their needs and desires. Those desiring a college education must carefully plan their courses that they may receive in their four years of high school those subjects which they need for college entrance requirements. This is a problem since our school is not large enough to provide all necessary subjects every year. Thus, we impose a hardship on the student, the parent and the school officials who must plan ahead for courses to be furnished in the following year or two or three.

Much as our athletic program may be inconvenienced for lack of large gym facilities, especially for playing basketball games on a "home" floor, a handicap for any team, much as enjoyment of our own gym appeals to the local school patron and sport fan, the need for better academic education is far greater; this is the reason for today's concern about school systems and new school construction. If that concern is genuine, we will seriously consider (1) construction of a new elementary school rather than a new high school and gym, in anticipation of (2) consolidation of the high school with other nearby high schools into a better-equipped unit for education of our high school students.

SEVEN SINS WE SELDOM MENTION

Most of us feel that if we never rob anyone or never murder anyone, we are all that God intends us to be. But if you analyze them, these flagrant sins are responsible for a small part of the world's misery. It was the little sins that nailed Jesus to the cross; the sins of greed, immorality, envy, prejudice, hatred and dishonesty. And it is these little sins that still bring most of the heartache, misery and sadness to the world today.

But often we do not recognize these sins. In our sophisticated world, we call them by different names that "sound better." Or the sins themselves have become disguised. Thus, today, nervousness often is the label for anger, self-preservation the name for greed, and astuteness the modern label for dishonesty.

Lets' look for a moment at these sins-in-disguise — the sins the modern world seldom recognizes:

Unkindness. In our rat-race to exist in a competitive world, we have lost the noble art of just being kind to each other. How rarely do we hear a kind word in these hard-boiled, half-baked times! Instead, under such guises as "humor" and "objectivity," we hear the harsh word, the insult, the dig.

Unkindness can be a devastating thing. It is a killer and destroyer of friendships, a murderer of all that is noble and beautiful. Worse still, it can corrupt the life of the one who harbors it until he loses his friends, his influence, his soical standing and, most important, his soul.

Snobbery. Among the things listed in Proverbs that God hates is snobbery. In fact, it is the very first on the list. The bible says, "The Lord doth hate a proud look."

Snobbery, of course, is the modern word for the "proud look." Today we have all types of snobs — social snobs, religious snobs, racial snobs, intellectual snobs. All these "proud looks" God hates. Every kind of snob is marked for humiliation. For, the Bible says, "He that exalteth himself shall be abased."

White lies. This is a sin which has crept invidiously into the modern way of life. From the little boy in the joke who slips and says, "Mama said to tell you she isn't home," to the Hollywood writer who hides behind the Fifth Amendment, we have become a nation of adept prevaricators.

Worse yet, we have even come to believe that white lies are justified—even noble—when the cause is good. In the eyes of God there is no difference between the exaggerations of a minister who gets carried away with enthusiasm and the salesman who tells falsehoods to sell his wares. The phrase "white lies" does not appear in the Bible. The Bible says, "Whatsoever things are honest: think on these things."

Hostility. We have borrowed this word from psychology in order to make our feelings sound less controllable. In counseling hundreds of people, I have been constantly amazed at the feelings of hostility they harbor. Yet Jesus said, "Whosover shall be angry with his brother without a cause shall be in danger of the Judgment."

I know men who cannot hold a job, neighbors whose lives have been ruined, married couples whose homes have become battlefields, even churches which have lost their influence and usefulness—all because of hostility within people today. Yet Jesus told us to "Bless them that curse us, and do good to those that hurt us."

The drive for success. The word "success" to millions means only an abundance of money. Laborers have no zest for honest toil; their main objective is the pay check at the end of the week. Businessmen neglect their families, their principles and their God to achieve what they call success.

Often laborer and businessman alike delude themselves into believing they do this only for the welfare of their families. But when they find success they are poorer in true riches than before.

We have put keeping-up-with-the-Joneses ahead of keeping faith with our highest ideals. We have all but forgotten Jesus' words, "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesses."

The yen for power. This is the sin by which Lucifer and the angels fell, and it is still pulling men down from the heights today. And lust for power can consume the poor as well as the rich. The passion of labor to control politics, for example, can be as evil as the desire for big business to control and monopolize the market.

Commonly, we see this sin in quite a different way. It is the sin that afflicts those who would "get ahead" by trampling on the heads of others. Sometimes we dignify it with the word "ambition," which is not quite the same thing.

We need always to remember, as the Bible says, that "Power belongeth to God." We should not commit the sin of usurping that which is God's alone.

Hypocrisy. We usually associate this word with religious charlatans, but I would remind you that a hypocrite is any person who pretends to be what he is not. Sometimes, in our modern world, we call it "putting up a good front."

Thus the businessman who puts out his "Honest John" sign but resorts to false claims to close a sale is a hypocrite. The married couple who appears so devoted at a party but fuss all the way home are hypocrites. So is the girl who poses as the epitome of virtue but becomes quite another person in a parked automobile. And, indeed, that man is a hypocrite who claims he doesn't cotton to religion but knows, down in his heart, that he is just too morally weak to live up to his convictions.

These seven sins in modern dress may seem insignificant to you, but they are not. They are symptoms of a disease that has laid hold of human nature. You may say, "But I have none of these sins." But that does not mean that you do not have the disease. Your symptoms may appear in a milder or more serious form, but the disease of sin is still your problem.

The cure for this disease cannot be found in the files of your physician, on the couch of your psychiatrist or at the corner drugstore. It is found in a verse we all learned as children:

"For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

—Billy Graham in "Parade," Nov. 16, 1958.

CENSORSHIP BY TAXING

Many editors, who received Senator Kefauver's recent mailing, in which he chastised the Saturday Evening Post for its defense of the private electric companies' advertising program, must share our fear that the Internal Revenue Service is suddenly adopting police-state tactics to shut the mouths of those who dare to criticize their government.

The situation, which has aroused publishers and advertisers throughout the country, is this:

The private electric companies have been carrying on an advertising campaign to point out what they consider unfair competition of government-owned power projects, such as TVA. Urged on by Senator Kefauver, whose state of Tennessee gets more revenue from TVA than from any other source, the IRS dug out a little-used and highly ambiguous regulation from the Revenue Code of 1921 to disallow tax deductions for all of this advertising. Gist of the argument was that this advertising was "propaganda" and not a legitimate business expense.

In an editorial, the Saturday Evening Post went to the defense of the electric companies, stressing their right to defend themselves against competition, government or otherwise, which threatened their business life. Whereupon, Senator Kefauver lashed out at the SEP, revealed that it was one of the chief beneficiaries of the electric companies' advertising, accused the editor of being influenced by this fact, and defended the right of the IRS to use its tax powers to stamp out what he called "advertising abuses."

It is not our purpose, in this editorial, to discuss the pros and cons of government power projects. Nor is it our wish to pass judgment on the editors of the Saturday Evening Post. But we think we should mention, in passing, that Mr. Kefauver, whose state profits so much from TVA, is much more vulnerable to an accusation of selfish motives than is the highly respected Saturday Evening Post.

The thing that really concerns us, however, is the frightening prospect of all institutional advertising being faced with IRS censorship, with the "big stick" of tax penalties being used to keep advertisers hueing to the tax department's line.

To us, such a stand is a very serious form of censorship. For no company can afford to forego the 52 per cent tax deduction on a major business expense without serious loss—and the would-be censors know it. It is altogether too clear that these self-appointed judges of what constitutes a legitimate advertising business expense expect their action to curb messages which are distasteful to them.

We don't know how far the IRS might attempt to go with its newfound weapon for controlling advertising, but already it has challenged expenditures of over $1,000,000 for "public service" advertising by the Timken Roller Bearing Co.

Another obvious danger in the IRS stand is this: if they assume the right to disallow advertising costs, what is going to stop them from applying the same "treatment" to editorial material? Whether a message is in the form of an ad or an editorial wouldn't seem to matter in their broad interpretation of the word "propaganda."

We would, of course, like to see the IRS heads and the Senator from Tennessee admit that the advertising profession may be right—that they have overstepped the bounds of our Constitutional guarantees—instead of stubbornly insisting upon the rightness of a stand which is obviously dangerous, a blow to freedom and highly intolerable for businessmen.

But we don't think it will be as easy as that.

It is our hope, however, that coming hearings and possible court cases will right this wrong and that advertisers and editors will once again feel free to speak out in open meeting without the fear of having to face the IRS firing squad.

PICTURES OF THE WEEK

APPLE SOURCE — Kitchener, Canada — Apples with a unique flavor all their own grow on this tree near Kitchener, Canada. And for farmer Milton Pfohl, shown standing in the shade of the tree, the unusual apples provided a windfall of $2,750, after a lapse of 15 years. In 1943, farmer Pfohl noticed that the tree, unlike the other trees in his orchard, seemed to be remarkably resistant to prevailing insects and diseases. He remembered that the tree was only a seedling when moved on the farm and that it started to bear fruit when only about four feet tall. Pfohl took a graft from the tree, as well as some leaves and the apples themselves, and sent them to the Stark Bros. Nursery in the U.S. for experimentation. It took 15 years, but the Nursery finally paid Pfohl the money for all rights to any grafts taken from the unusual apple tree.

Physical Exams Benefit Students

Students in the Riverdale elementary grades have reaped the first benefits from the recently inaugurated program of providing a county school nurse for schools under the jurisdiction of county superintendent Roger Hess. Howard Hill, principal of the elementary grades, reported this week that eye and teeth examinations have been completed in the lower grades through the efforts of the county school nurse, Mrs. Esther Nessel.

As examination of Riverdale students disclosed physical handicaps or defects in eyes or teeth, notices were sent to parents of the students notifying them of the conditions and recommending doctors' consultation. Mr. Hill observed that five or six students have already been fitted with glasses as a result of the eye examination. And there probably are other students who have had or will have work done to improve the condition of their teeth.

Further tests are planned to assist in finding those children who are handicapped in their school work by impaired hearing.

This Is Retarded Children's Week

This is National Retarded Children's Week! The local unit, the DeKalb County Association for Retarded Children, has expressed its appreciation to people in this area who have so generously and faithfully supported the organization's efforts to provide training for the retarded children in the county and general vicinity.

It would appear at first that the group's goal has been reached - there is a beautiful new building in which specialized care is being given to handicapped children. But a second look will show that the school is already full, after only one year of operation. So the need yet remains to provide additional rooms and facilities to assist many other children who need this type of program.

A "Trade School or Department" is an immediate necessity, along with an addition to the present building. In addition the present approximate budget for operation per year is $6.000.00.

The DeKalb County Association for Retarded Children is - the public. The board of directors who are responsible for making decisions for the continued operation of Wee Haven School are elected from the general membership.

Though the membership drive will not be officially opened until February, those interested in helping in the program for retarded children can obtain a membership by contacting Mrs. Erma Beard, secretary, P.O. Box 233, Garrett, Indiana.

Letters to the Editor

November 16, 1958

Dear Friends:

The DeKalb County Association for Retarded Children, Inc., is again asking you support of Wee Haven School for retarded children.

Each day more than 300 such mentally retarded children are born in America. In every city, town and village there are children who are retarded. They may be called by more old-fashioned and often unkind names. But the fact remains that these children suffer from a handicap and are entitled to the same love and affection and training that other children receive. One of the misconceptions about mental retardation is that they are useless and helpless. We know this is not true! We know they can be helped.

Thank you for your previous donations of man hours, materials, checks and words and acts of kindness these past years.

Thank you for your future support.

Should your group want to adopt an item of our budget for your annual project, mail your inquiry to the post office Box No. 233, Garrett.

Yours sincerely,
DeKalb County Assn. for Retarded Children

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

DEATH OF BLACKBEARD

The most feared and hated pirate in American waters met his bloody doom off the coast of North Carolina in November 22, 1718. He was Edward Teach, better known as Blackbeard because of the long black beard that he wore braided and parted at the chin to give him a ferocious appearance.

Little is known of Blackbeard's early life. He served as an English privateer, commissioned to seize enemy ships during the War of the Spanish Succession. When the war ended in 1713 he turned pirate.

Blackbeard carried on his raids in the West Indies and then turned northward along the Atlantic Coast, capturing ships, looting and killing as he went. So daring and feared did he become that he actually blockaded the port of Charleston, South Carolina, where he appeared in May of 1717. After capturing several ships he sent messengers ashore to say that unless a big chest of medicines was sent out to him at once he would kill all his prisoners, burn all the shipping in the harbor, "and beat the town about our ears." The people of Charleston were afraid to resist. They obeyed the pirate's orders.

Blackbeard later turned up at Pamlico Sound, North Carolina, and made his headquarters at Ocracoke Island from where he carried out his raids on the coastal shipping. Governor Charles Eden of North Carolina seems to have been a corrupt official who winked at Blackbeard's piracy and shared some of his captured booty.

Now Blackbeard in his snug quarters at Teach's Hole, near the present village of Ocracoke, led a merry and depraved life. The neighboring planters were forced to supply his demands, and all ships entering the inlets of North Carolina had to pay him heavy tolls. In desperation the planters and ship-owners appealed to Governor Alexander Spotswood of Virginia for help.

Governor Spotswood was a strong and upright official. He lost no time in answering the appeal of Blackbeard's many victims and sent two war sloops manned by British sailors under command of Lieutenant Robert Maynard to seize the pirate in his den.

Sailing down to Pamlico Sound from the James River the two sloops arrived off Ocracoke Island on November 22, 1718 and moved up the inlet to Teach's Hole. Blackbeard was trapped in his lair, but he and his pirate crew put up a terrible battle. The pirates loaded their cannon to the muzzles with all kinds of shot and scrap iron. They fought like wild beasts, and many men, including all the officers of one sloop, were killed before the pirates were overcome. Blackbeard, fighting like a bearded devil, was wounded 25 times before he was shot dead by Lieutenant Maynard in a hand-to-hand struggle.

When Maynard sailed back to Virginia Blackbeard's bloody head dangled from his ship's bowsprit. The captured survivors of the pirate crew were brought to Williamsburg, capital of Virginia, where they were soon hanged.

Blackbeard's head was set upon a tall pole at a spot where the Hampton and James Rivers joined behind Old Point Comfort. And there, according to tradition, the black head swung for years as a warning to all other pirates.

"It's amazing how much better ALL-ELECTRIC living is,"

says Mr. Robert Boxell,

"yet our average monthly electric bill is only $27.18."

"Being a contractor, I knew the facts about all-electric living. But when we moved into our new home, even I was amazed at how much more convenient and comfortable it made our day-to-day living. We're convinced that living electrically is the modern way to live."

Mr. Boxell concluded, "Before actually counting our electrical appliances, we didn't realize how much they have helped us live better. Electricity even heats our house. Sometimes we take these electrical bargains for granted because they cost so little!"

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

NEWVILLE TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Newville Township Home Demonstration Club met for an all day meeting November 12 at the home of Mrs. Blanche Tomlinson with Mrs. Dorothy Meek and Mrs. Josephine Beree as co-hostesses. A bountiful pot luck dinner was served at the noon hour. There were 28 members, 5 children and 3 guests present. Guests were Mrs. Singer, Mrs. Milliman and Mrs. Mary Asbury who became a member at this meeting.

The meeting was opened with members repeating the club collect. Devotions were given by Grace Robertson. Edna Mickelson led the singing of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "For the Beauty of the Earth." Mrs. Kathryn Krieg and Mrs. Della McDonald gave a very informative lesson on "New Fabrics and Finishes" and "Know Your Finishes."

Roll call was then taken and the minutes of the previous meeting read and approved. Members voted to give a donation to the mental health patients. After the business meeting collections were taken and Elva Hook made a contribution to the birthday box.

The club members then sang the club prayer song to close the meeting. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Cynthia Sipe with Charlotte Kimmel and Leona Bender assisting

Around the Town

With the Editor

If anyone would like to use a couple of tickets for the International Livestock Exposition, just say the word. I've got a couple for the asking.

One of the boys from the junior high came in the shop this week to get some "paper for Mr. Buzzard." I wanted to know what kind of paper. It's kinda long, sez he. Poster board, asks me. Yeah, sez he. So I give him the poster board and he asks how much. Fifteen cents, sez I. Oh, sez he, I don't have any money with me. Well, sez I, take it anyhow and whoever is supposed to pay for it can stop in later. Do you have any other kind of paper, asks he, the kind you don't have to pay for.

—Some day I'm gonna get that kind.

If you don't take losing too seriously, you can see some very interesting ball games this year, not that the Comets are a losing team, but they lose some tough ones. Even at that, they present an interesting game. The one at Leo this week is a good example. It got rough and ragged for a while in the second half as the Comets, though sometimes 12 and 14 points behind, threw a little scare into Leo before the buzzer sounded.

The Comets are somewhat of an oddity. Just when they appear to have defeated themselves by letting the refs' decisions get the best of them, bang!bang! we've got a couple of baskets and everybody's back on the edge of the seat.

They were working hard right up to the buzzer Tuesday night, one of the boys flopping on the bench in front of us, exhausted, at the end of the game.

One of these days (preferably in March) they're going to get started a little earlier in the game and then - - -

We shall see what we shall see.

Miss Wins Bicycle

Candice Hile of Saint Joe is a winner in the $200,000 Family Contest sponsored by the Toilet Articles Division of the Colgate-Palmolive Company, according to an announcement by the company. Candice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hile, won a bicycle.

The contest featured separate contests for mothers, fathers, teenagers and youngsters. To win, each contestant had to complete a numbered dot outline and give an appropriate title to the finished picture.

Park Work Progresses; More Workers Needed

The trees came tumbling down Saturday morning and afternoon.

With Carl Carpenter and his bulldozer furnishing the power, work continued on the park site at Saint Joe last Saturday. Several trees along a low spot were felled and brush, dirt and limbs moved into the spot to help level it off. In addition several large piles of limbs and brush were burned, wholly and partially, in the land clearing operation. A tractor and scoop also were instrumental in getting a good bit of work done.

The first phase of park improvement includes the clear-out of excess trees and brush. Though progress has been made, there is still a lot to be done. Thereafter, grading will be done to pave the way for grass seeding and other necessities.

Volunteers are asked to contact Donald Kinsey, chairman of the park committee, to indicate when they can give a Saturday for work on the park.

Lions To Provide Community Yule Trees

The spirit of the Christmas season will be further enhanced this year with the display of two large lighted trees, one to be placed in Saint Joe, the other in Spencerville. Placement of the trees will be a project of the Saint Joe Lions Club as a result of action taken at its meeting Monday night held at Chaney's Restaurant.

Lehr Wilder, a member of the club, has volunteered to donate the trees and the club will finance the wiring and lights necessary for an attractive tree display.

The project is under the supervision of Dan Ransom and Derwood Ridgway, civic improvement committee, and Mr. Wilder.

Jr. High Takes 5

The Riverdale Junior High basketball team has won 5 consecutive games thus far in the current season. After opening with a 38-29 win over the Freshmen, they have defeated Butler 32-18, Garrett 24-10, Ashley 46-8 and Fremont 33-17.

Ross, 6'3" center, has totalled 53 points and gathered in 54 rebounds in the last 4 games. Lothamer has hit 26 points and Sechler has 21 points and 34 rebounds in 4 games.

Riverdale entertains Leo at Saint Joe Monday, December 1, at 4:00 p.m. On Monday, December 8, Riverdale plays Hamilton at 4:15 p.m. at Saint Joe with the 7th and 8th grades playing.

4 New Patrons

Postmaster Lehr Wilder announced this week that further improvement in rural mail service from the Saint Joe office has been made. The improvement comes in the form of expanded coverage including four new rural patrons.

With the increase in rural service, the rural route now covers 55.5 miles. The increase is effective November 29.

Benefitting from the extended service are the residences of Alva J. Miller, Albert Thimlar, Fordyce Engle and Lewis Guiff.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

DEATH OF WASHINGTON IRVING

It was a sad day for our country when Washington Irving died on November 28, 1859. He was first among American men of letters to gain an international reputation and make the world know that the United States had a worthy literature of its own American literature can be said to have begun with Washington Irving, and he was the best known and esteemed American author during the early decades of the 1800s.

He was born in New York City in April of 1783 not long before peace with England ended the Revolutionary War period, and he was named in honor of the great George Washington. His ancestry was Scotch and English, and he was the youngest of eleven children of a prosperous hardware merchant.

Washington Irving, who grew up to be a charming gentleman with a kind and lovable nature, trained for the law, but this did not interest him and he was to turn to writing and travel. Irving's first literary venture was Salmagundi in 1807, a series of essays in magazine form which he put out with his brother William and a friend, J. K. Paulding. This writing was a success but Irving gave it up after 20 issues, though not before the names of "Gotham" and "Gothamites" which he gave to New York and its inhabitants caught on with such intensity that they have stuck ever since.

Irving's Knickerbocker History of New York in 1809 established his reputation as a writer. This work, considered the most original, up to that time, of all books written by an American, set the form of his delightful, humorous and slightly sarcastic tales. From his Knickerbocker History of New York came the lasting name "Father Knickerbocker" as a figure of New York.

The work for which he is most famous is his Sketch Book, published in 1819, followed by Tales of a Traveller in 1824. From Irving's Sketch Book we got such quaint tales as "Rip Van Winkle" and "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow." This is Irving's best work, dealing with the history and legends of Dutch life along the Hudson River Valley. These tales became an important and entertaining part of our national literature, and made the world know that America had its own folklore, traditions and picturesque life.

Washington Irving was also to write in later years of the early West and its fur trappers and traders, in his Tour of the Prairies (1835), Astoria, written in 1836 from material given to him by John Jacob Astor, and Adventures of Captain Bonneville, U. S. A. (1837).

When Irving went to England, where his books sold in large volume, he was well received. He also served as secretary of the American legation in London for several years. He traveled widely in Europe, remaining abroad for 17 years, and sojourning a long time in Spain where he got his material for his books, Life of Columbus (1828), Conquest of Granada (1829), and The Alhambra (1832).

Washington Irving was widely acclaimed when he returned to the United States. Now at the peak of his career he selected and built his estate, "Sunnyside," along the Hudson River near Tarrytown and close to the Sleepy Hollow he had made famous in print. And as a token of national esteem he was appointed ambassador to Spain, serving from 1842 to 1846. There was one abiding sadness in Irving's life. He had been very much in love in his early twenties, but his sweetheart, Matilda Hoffman, daughter of a New York lawyer, died, and he never got over her loss. He remained a bachelor all his life.

Back on his Sunnyside estate Irving embarked on his last big literary work, the Life of George Washington in five volumes. It was a tremendous task for his later years and it strained him badly. He had barely completed the last of this work when he was seized with a heart attack, brought on by overwork, on the evening of November 28, 1859. He died at once. Death came at the close of a lovely autumn day, in harmony with the ripe and peaceful close of his life in its 77th year.

On a little elevation overlooking Sleepy Hollow and the Hudson River he loved so much, America's first man of letters was laid to eternal rest.

Comets Edged 55-53 By Belle

BULLETIN—Leo defeated the Riverdale Comets Tuesday at the Leo gym. The score was 56-46. The local reserve squad also lost, 43-33.

The Riverdale varsity came from far behind at Hamilton Friday night but were nosed out by Bellefountain in a thrilling contest by the score of 55-53. The reserves won their game easily although Bellefountain pulled up to 48-42 at the end of the game.

The reserves romped to a 15-2 first quarter lead. They had the situation under control with a definite height advantage. Bellefountain had but 2 points until midway in the second quarter. The half ended at 31-9 Riverdale.

In the third period the Comets held a lead of 40-16 before the period ended at 43-21. Coach Price Brookfield inserted his bench reserves to give the regulars a rest. They made several mistakes and Bellefountain narrowed the gap by leaps and bounds, the score being 48-29 with 2:05 to play. Riverdale was scoreless for the remainder of the game but the clock ran out and Riverdale won 48-42.

The varsity game started with a bang with the first quarter showing some inspired basketball by the locals, although the scoring didn't begin until 1 minute and 38 seconds had elapsed. Bob Clauser hit for the first 2 points and Bellefountain soon tied it up. Clauser drove in for a lay-up shortly thereafter and then scored again on a stolen pass on Bellefountain's play-in under the basket. The quarter ended at 11-11.

Riverdale ran out of gas in the second period, scoring only 4 points while their opponents racked up 19. The half ended at 30-15.

With Jerry Vinson and Gerry Heyman putting on a back court press and Dale Dowden leading the scoring, the locals began nibbling away at the Bellefountain lead. The score was 45-38 at the end of the third period after Riverdale had pulled up within 4 points at 41-37 during the quarter.

In the final period Comet pressing and scoring finally brought them the lead at 48-47. The teams see-sawed back and forth with the lead changing hands basket by basket. It was either team's game until the closing seconds and Bellefountain outlasted the Comets to win by 55-53.

COMET CNIPTIONS—After a scoring spree by the reserves, the confidence of the fans was shaken in the closing minutes of the first game as the reserve substitutes couldn't get rolling. Fortunately there was too little time for Bellefountain to catch up even though they scored at will, and Coach Brookfield left the subs get some valuable experience. — The varsity showed instances of driving play, going thru for several lay-ups, something seldom seen before in the current season. — The spark in the first quarter was Clauser. When he cooled off, Vinson and Heyman took over in harrassing their opponents and the second half was a team effort with everyone giving a bit in the uphill climb from a 15-point deficit to a 1-point lead. Bry and Butler sank a flurry of free throws that weighed a ton in the fourth quarter. — Bellefountain got through for several lay-ups coming around from the side before the Comets figured out how to stay between the ball and the basket. — Bellefountain's center wears a shoulder harness during play. Oddly enough, he uses his right hand to tip the ball on the jump though he jumps with his left side to the ball.

The time is here again to think - of what? Gifts for one and all.

Around the Town

With the Editor

There's always one good conversation piece, and that is the weather. The past week has been a good week for providing talking material, too. It was almost like the calendar skipped a month and we were into the end of December for a few days.

One of the prettiest scenes these eyes have seen came thru one of our big front windows at home Wednesday of last week. You remember that there was a Thanksgiving eve church service that night. When the service was over, we came out into a gentle snow storm. That was a nice scene in itself. But a few minutes later I was looking out that window at home and the scene was even prettier. There was the serenity of the yet descending snow pleasantly opposed by the bustle of people seen in the grocery across the street and the cars, cars, cars that lined the streets, belonging to church-goers, store patrons and members of the K.P. lodge which was having a pretty big meeting that night.

It was a real heart-warming experience to see our town so busy. It was good to see so much activity all being covered with the beauty of Mother Nature's soft white flakes.

It was a close as you could get to having the Christmas atmosphere present a month ahead of schedule. Later I thought about it and concluded that if we insist on rushing Christmas as we do, promoting it even before we have time to show proper thankfulness in our Thanksgiving season, it looks as if maybe Somebody was making the weather suit our habits.

The trouble is, when Christmas does arrive, all the fun may be gone out of it—and something else, too.

CULTURE CLUB

Hostess for the November 19 meeting was Lois Fisher who also gave the devotions with Thanksgiving as the theme. All those present sang a song entitled "Our Thanksgiving Song."

North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Wyoming were subjects of the lesson given by Marian Furnish. Movies of these states were also shown.

Members brought gifts for the Mental Health Christmas Drive.

Appetizing refreshments were served accompanied by clever Thanksgiving favors in the shape of cornucopias.

Leo Beats Comets 56-46

Though defeated by a margin of 10 points at Leo Tuesday, November 25, the Riverdale Comets made the closing minutes exciting for local fans. Pressing their opponents, they appeared to have an outside chance in the final quarter, but Leo always had a basket or two to fight off any challenge. The reserves lost by ten also. The score of the first game was 43-33, the second 56-46.

In the reserve contest Leo led by 10-2 halfway through the first quarter as they repeatedly stole the ball from the Comet seconds. It was 14-8 at the quarter.

Leo maintained their lead in the second quarter, holding at 16-9 halfway through the period. Half-time score was 18-13.

Leo led from 5 to 7 points in the third quarter which stood at 30-23. In the last period the Comets pulled to 32-29 with 3:17 to go. Leo then scored on a 3-point play and went on to extend their lead to the final 43-33 score.

The varsity led 3-0 on free throws to open their game. But Leo came back to lead 6-5 at the 4-minute mark. The quarter score was 12-9 Leo.

Leo extended its lead to 10 points in the second period, the half ending at 26-16.

The third and fourth quarters were ragged and rugged on occasion with both teams making mistakes. The players were exhausted at the end of the game as they ran the length of the floor going back and forth as each team lost possession of the ball, then regained it in a see-saw battle.

Riverdale plays Salem Center at Waterloo on Friday of this week.

22 Pct. Vote In Referendum

Only 22 per cent of the eligible voters in DeKalb County cast ballots in the corn referendum last week. A total of 720 farmers voted out of 3,200 eligible farmers.

The results of the voting showed 617 for no corn acreage allotments and 103 for. The voting followed the trend in the remainder of the corn belt favoring an end to acreage controls and favoring lower price supports.

At Saint Joe, for Concord, Spencer and Newville township voters, the vote was 64 to 10. Voting was conducted at 6 polls in DeKalb County.

Room Mothers Expand Work

Greater service to the schools, the theme of the Riverdale room mothers this year under the chairmanship of Mrs. Carlos Church, was outlined this week as a series of meetings is being held at the Riverdale elementary school in Spencerville. A meeting of the first grade parents was held Monday evening with approximately 55 parents and children present.

The room mothers are serving the school by sponsoring this series of "get-acquainted" meetings. Mrs. Frank Shull served as program chairman for the first grade meeting. The first grade teachers, Mrs. Platter and Mrs. Gobel, were introduced and parents introduced themselves. A few questions were asked of the teachers and a brief but informative session followed. Mrs. Church gave a resume of the room mothers program for the year, including assisting the school nurse in the school health program, assisting in class parties during holiday seasons and possibly setting up a series of meetings similar to the present series at which further discussion of school and parent responsibilities could be held.

One of the questions discusser was that concerning the amount of crayons needed and provided for the first grade pupils. It was pointed out that the school book rental plan provides a box of crayons in the list of supplies. If another box is needed the pupil must provide for his or her own needs. The teachers pointed out that they preferred that the children have boxes of but 8 crayons, the larger assortments leading to confusion when a color is indicated in class instruction but two or three shades are contained in the large boxes.

A meeting of the fourth grade was held Tuesday evening with Mrs. Dorothy Comfort as chairman. Mrs. Middaugh and Mrs. Miller told of their grade activities briefly and parents then introduced themselves. Refreshments were served at both meetings. Approximately 50 persons attended the fourth grade meeting.

A meeting for second grade parents and teachers is scheduled for Thursday of this week with other grades to hold similar meetings next week.

Local News

Rehobeth Church will hold a supper and auction on Saturday, December 6, starting at 5 p.m. and continuing thru 7:30 p.m. at the Jackson Center Hall. Adult servings are $1.00 and children's 60c. The menu is escalloped chicken and meat loaf, potatoes, vegetable, and beverage. All are invited to attend.

Included on the list of jurors for the December term of the DeKalb Circuit Court are Lehr Wilder of Spencer Twp., petit jury, and Hazel D. Washler and Merwin Place, Spencer Twp., talesmen.

Mrs. Baxter Bowling and Miss Diana Miller were recent visitors of Mrs. Lillian Buckingham who is in the Sheehy Rest Home in Butler. Mrs. Buckingham was most happy for their company and is hoping to see many more old friends and neighbors.

Mrs. Warren Clauser spent Friday until Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. Larry Liechty, in Berne.

Thanksgiving Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Shanks and family in Findlay, Ohio, were Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hook, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hedges of Ashville, Mr. and Mrs. Farrell Evans of Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. Don Cook and children, Billy, Patty Ann and Denny of Fort Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. Vance Hook and daughters, Lu Anne and Shari Lee, of Hicksville. A carry-in dinner was enjoyed at noon. In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Evans showed pictures taken on their recent trip through the southern states. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hilbert of Montpelier and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hook and son, David, of New Haven were unable to be present.

The following spent Thanksgiving Day in the home of Mrs Alice Inlow and family: Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Inlow and family of Louisville, Ky., Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd Anderson and family and Mr. and Mrs. Donold Inlow and daughter of Auburn, Harold Furnish of Leo, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Inlow and family of Hicksville, and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Inlow and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Inlow and daughters and Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Inlow and Irene of Saint Joe.

A county highway truck and an automobile collided on the overhead bridge spanning the B&O railroad tracks east of Saint Joe Saturday as they met at the crest of the bridge. Driver of the car was Gaylord Rediger. Driver of the truck was Ray Donat. Don Yeiser was also riding in the truck. Both drivers, fearing that braking would cause a skid, attempted to pass each other on the narrow span but could not do so. The car brushed the bridge wall before it hit the truck which was applying sand to the icy bridge. Damage to the Rediger Ford was estimated at $450. There was no damage to the highway truck but $100 damage to the sander attached to the left rear wheel of the truck.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clauser, Jr., and daughter, Susan, of St. Joseph, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. James Clauser and son, Gary, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Clauser and daughters, Sandra and Joyce, of South Bend, and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Baker and daughter, Cynthia Ann, and Mrs. C. M. Watt of Saint Joe were Thanksgiving Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clauser, Sr., and son, Bob.

Barbara Ann Busche of Spencerville has been granted a divorce from William Busche in DeKalb Circuit Court. Custody of a child and household goods were awarded the plaintiff. The husband was directed to pay $10 weekly support for the child. The couple married June 2, 1956, and separated December 3, 1957.

Miss Nancie Inlow and Miss Eileen Whalen of Cincinnati visited relatives here during a recent week end.

Sechler's pickle factory held a farewell party for Mrs. Marie Draggoo Wednesday. A dinner was prepared and served and a gift presented to Mrs. Draggoo who leaves the plant after over 10 years of service.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn and sons were Thanksgiving dinner guests of his parents near Fort Wayne. Other guests were Miss Augusta Haberkorn and Mrs. Tillie Buckwalter of Fort Wayne and Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Appleman of Bloomington.

Lions To Light Trees Thursday

Plans are still in the making for short tree-lighting ceremonies at Saint Joe and Spencerville to officially turn on the Christmas season in both communities. The Saint Joe Lions Club is sponsoring lighted community Christmas trees at both places and the committee, composed of Dan Ransom, Derwood Ridgway and Lehr Wilder, with the assistance of Glenn Moore, is making preparations for the erection and lighting of the trees.

A tentative date of Thursday, December 11, has been set for the evening of the official lighting. Saint Joe and Spencerville residents will be notified next week of the exact date when they will be invited to attend the lighting ceremonies.

The Band

Expanding activity and greater interest in the band have been the results thus far of the efforts of Riverdale's music director. This is good news for all patrons of the school.

In less than two years the size of the school band has more than doubled. It had decreased in membership until the low of around fifteen active members was reached two years ago. A get-acquainted night was held in the fall of 1957 in the present director's first year at Riverdale. At that time he invited pupils and parents to inspect various band instruments at the informal meeting and arrange for instruments for those boys and girls who wanted to play. Emphasis was placed on reaching pupils in the fifth and sixth grades, although all grade ages were invited. As a result of that first meeting, the band now numbers around 35 members.

A second get-acquainted meeting was held in October of this year. Again students showed their interest in music and band to the extent that there are now over 30 music pupils in the fifth and sixth grades this year, these in addition to the 35 in the band. With experience gained from early exposure to music and band activities, improvement in the band should be noted in the next two or three years.

The efforts of the band director to increase interest in music and pride in band membership have been fruitful. Included in his "promotions" have been a trip to a band instrument factory with band members to view the manufacture of the instruments they are playing, participation in a program at the county fair, presenting part of the Christmas program of music last year for the P.T. A., presenting again this year a part of the program of music at Christmas time for the December P.T.A. meeting.

Inexperience is to be noted at the present time in the band's work. But with the progress made to date under our director, there appears to be a much-needed revival of interest in music on the students' part. They deserve our interest and support.

GOOD EVENING

One of the things which I cannot prove, but which I suspect, is that an American child can go through grade school, high school and college today without anyone suggesting to him as part of his educational process that the principle of private enterprise is almost as important to the matter of his personal freedom as the Nicean creed is to Christianity.

The dignity of man as such, arising out of the Creator-Creature relationship, cannot be preserved unless he can own for himself at least a minimum of the material goods which his dignity demands. The principle of private ownership is so integral a part of personal freedom, which Man must be permitted in order to achieve the spiritual ends he sees for himself, that it seems almost incredible that 16 years of formal education should see him hearing nothing about it along the way in any formal fashion.

The acquisition of things is not Man's purpose, but the acquisition of them to a proper degree and not beyond that degree, is necessary to him if he is to experience a full flowering of his physical, mental and moral capabilities. The right of individuals to own property is injured as a principle, not merely by those who deny it completely, but by those who, in upholding the principle, think it is served when only a few possess property as in an improper capitalistic setup.

This country long ago passed the frontiers where socialism was something to be feared and entered a province in which socialism is a reality. We have to a large extent the evil that was feared, and the hope is to get rid of it. Can anyone note the fact that the federal government in the United States for all intents and purposes owns 52 per cent of every business earning a net profit of more than $25,000 a year, and deny that socialism is here?

Can anyone, noting the commonly-held philosophy that government must use taxation to equalize earnings and wealth, deny that we have given to the State a power which it was never intended to have, and which it has not the wisdom to wield?

It is shameful that children are being educated in this country in a manner that does not tell them that our political system is not just another political system on the face of the earth, but a political system which is unique in its foundations. No other nation on the face of the earth has ever formally said that human beings derive their rights from God, not from the State.

No other nation on the face of the earth by its traditions has ever espoused nor so well applied the concepts of justice which have for their purpose the full development of Man, not merely as a physical organism, but as an intellectual organism and as a moral organism. It, in effect, has said by its principles and its applications that man literally has a right to call his soul his own and a right to own property.

But the keystone in the whole arch that supports the entire political cathedral that we have is that one little three-letter word, God. Remove that word and Man is no creature, but instead a happenstance of not a something or a somebody, but a lot of nothings. Take the word out of our political vocabulary and you have taken out the words dignity, freedom, justice and even rights.

To be good again, maybe our people need to think again and to think again they must pay more attention to how they educate their young.

RAINBOW NEWS

On November 16, 1958, the Rainbow girls attended the Worthy Advisor's church. Her church is the Concord Methodist Church and our Worthy Advisor is Esther Fetters. There was a large attendance of Rainbow girls and the period of worship was pleasant.

The annual Doughnut Day was held on the 22nd day of November at the Masonic Hall. The orders were taken by the girls and doughnuts were sold in both communities. Over a hundred dozen doughnuts were sold.

On November 24, the Rainbow girls initiated Patty Strebig into the assembly. After the ceremony the group enjoyed refreshments, dancing, and games. There was a large attendance and everybody had a pleasant evening.

On December 2, 1958, the Rainbow girls went bowling at the Key Lanes Bowling Alley at Fort Wayne. The Rainbow girls go bowling the first Tuesday of every month.

The reception for the Grand Indiana Flag Bearer of The Rainbow for Girls in the state of Indiana will be held December 6, 1958, at the Masonic Temple at Spencerville. Miss Mary Jane Baker was appointed to this office last summer at Grand Assembly. The public is invited to attend this event of the Rainbow Girls.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

FIRST AMERICAN PRESIDENT

Born on December 5, 1782, Martin Van Buren, 8th President of the United States, was the first truly American President. He was the first President who had not been born a British subject that is, before the Declaration of Independence in 1776. A summary of his career is of interest because he held more high offices than any other man in American history, and is also considered to have been America's first real politician.

Martin Van Buren, of Dutch descent, was born in his father's tavern in the town of Kinderhook, New York, on the east bank of the Hudson. Becoming a successful lawyer and entering politics at an early age, he was able to retire at the age of 40 from law practice with a fortune of $200,000. He was a small, slender man with a bright blond complexion, dapper and elegant in dress and manners. Always polite and smooth in conversation, and a good public speaker, he was noted for seldom making a definite statement. His cleverness gained him such nicknames as "The Little Magician" and "The Fox." The origin of O. K. in American speech is said to have come from another nickname, "Old Kinderhook," from Van Buren's home.

Shrewdly, Martin Van Buren, a Democrat, became a firm friend and supporter of President Andrew "Old Hickory" Jackson. Van Buren, in due course, had served as Attorney-General of New York State, U. S. Senator, and became governor of New York in 1829. Soon after becoming governor he resigned that office to enter Jackson's cabinet as Secretary of State (1829-31). In 1832 he was elected Vice-President for President Jackson's second term. And when "Old Hickory" retired after his second term he chose Van Buren as his successor.

His opponents ridiculed Martin Van Buren as a perfumed and corseted dandy, "strutting and swaggering like a crow in the gutter." But with Jackson's strong backing he defeated his Whig Party opponent, William Henry Harrison, by a big margin, to become President in 1837. On inauguration day Van Buren rode in a fine carriage made of wood from the famous old fighting ship "Constitution." Old Andrew Jackson, ill and feeble now, but content, sat with him. And the huge crowd that turned out that bleak March day came to see and say farewell to the tough old warrior, "Old Hickory," who had been America's strong man for eight years, rather than to greet "Little Van," the new President.

Van Buren moved into the White House with his four sons. He had been a widower for 18 years, and the beautiful wife of his oldest son, Abraham Van Buren, a West Point graduate, became White House hostess. Washington at that time was a provincial city of about 40,000 people. Pigs and chickens roamed the streets, slaves were openly sold, the ground was swampy, criss-crossed by cowpaths and open sewers, and malaria was in the air. In this capital city President Martin Van Buren rolled around in a magnificent olive-green coach with silver-mounted harness and liveried footmen.

Jackson had left a prosperous country to his successor. But hardly had Van Buren taken office when he was faced with the great panic of 1837, brought on by speculation and other financial abuses. There was little he could do about it. He did achieve a notable accomplishment in establishing an Independent Treasury with "Subtreasury" branches in various cities to keep the funds of the government and make it independent of private banks. But he became the scapegoat for the panic of 1837 and was badly defeated at the next election by William Henry Harrison of the Whig Party.

Though he remained a power in national politics for some years after that, and ran twice more for the Presidency, Martin Van Buren never held high office again. He died where he was born, in Kinderhook, New York, in his 79th year.

Letters to the Editor

Nov. 23

Dear Ted,

Thank you for making it possible for all the nice birthday cards.

57 people sent me birthday cards and some gifts.

We had a birthday party and lots of fun here at the hospital.

I think I will be home before Christmas.

Yours truly,

Dear Ted,

We are staying in a beautiful Trailer Park on Highway US19 in Port Richey during our 3 week vacation.

We went Deep Sea Fishing last Monday at Tarpon Springs. Our boat was the Commander and its Captain John Billeris, who had taken Elwood fishing before.

The fish that we caught were considered small by the Floridians but I was really thrilled when I got an 8 1-2 lb. Black Grouper on my line. This was my first experience deep sea fishing and you can imagine my surprise as we started fof shore when the Captain took a look at the catch and said he though the one on the B stringer was second in size. I spoke up, well if it is you can be sure that it will be in the St. Joe News.

Now I had to write you this, Ted. I must keep my word, for as it so happened there were six others on the boat from DeKalb County.

Mr. Russell Daly from Auburn caught the largest fish, a Black Grouper weighing twelve pounds.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Elwood Hart

Around the Town

With the Editor

I was in Mt. Pleasant's church last Saturday, the first time in several years. The members of that congregation are steadily progressing in their church-rebuilding program. I was in the basement where several of the men were hurriedly making provisions for heat. Vic Kelley ano his crew were in the group drilling, measuring, etc. I was after Vic to try to solve a heat problem in our house. And as busy as the man has been, it seems that a lot of other people have the same trouble.

That church basement will be a nice roomy place for Sunday School, etc. The work has been going on for some time, but it will be worth it.

Sunday afternoon Mike and I were on the way back to Fort Wayne when we approached a young hitch-hiker. It was Wally Graham. We picked him up and asked where he was going. To Leo to play hockey, was the answer. Sunday was a pretty cool day, as you may recall, and Wally didn't appear to have too much clothing on for the freezing weather. He cleared the situation up, however, with the explanation that too many clothes hampered the progress of the hockey game. I observed that the professionals wear quite a bit of clothing and protective equipment.

"Yeah," said Wally, "but them guys are clumsy!"

Christmas Music At PTA Tuesday

A program of Christmas music will be presented at the December meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. The meeting will be held next Tuesday evening, December 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gym at Saint Joe.

As is the custom, no business meeting will be held Tuesday. The entire program will be under the direction of Mr. Robert Lowry, head of the Music Department in the Riverdale schools. Selections will be presented by the vocal and band groups.

The public is invited to hear this program of Christmas music presented by Riverdale school students.

Cold Hampers Many Things

For the first time in many a moon, Old Man Winter got off to a really wintery start and blasted this community and many parts of the nation with sub-zero weather and accompanying snowfall. Those in doubt of the severity of the icy blasts should interrogate operators of service stations and garages. One such establishment in Saint Joe had 23 calls for car-pushing Wednesday morning when the mercury dipped several degrees below zero. Another service station had around 25 calls in the same period of time up to the noon hour.

The anticipated official lighting of the large Christmas trees at Saint Joe and Spencerville, sponsored by the local Lions Club, was necessarily by-passed this week and club members will instead throw the switches as they are able to when preparations are complete.

Due to the unusually cold weather experienced in the past week, the tree at Saint Joe was not erected until this week. The tree at Spencerville is up and lights are installed, but it was not quite ready for lighting Thursday night, according to Dan Ransom, chairman of the committee taking care of the tree project. In addition, the cold weather put a damper on plans to have music furnished by music students from Riverdale. And there was a ball game scheduled for the junior high which dipped into the music department. As a result it was decided to drop plans for a short dedication of trees and lights in favor of lighting when ready.

If the weather should stay in true winter character, this could be one of the old fashionedest Christmases to be enjoyed for several years.

Some people, however, are not too happy with the hard cold experienced in the past week. These include students in Riverdale schools. Some have had to miss because of school bus failure due to cold weather. And naturally they are disappointed when they must miss class. —(?)

LEGAL NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the School Board of the Riverdale School Corporation, DeKalb County, Indiana, will receive sealed bids at the office of the Riverdale High School Principal in Saint Joe, Indiana, until 8:00 P.M. on the 5th day of January, 1959, on the following item:

Coal

Specifications may be obtained at the office of the Riverdale High School prncipal located in Saint Joe, Indiana, and all bids must be accompanied with a bid bond or certified check and filed with a non-collusion affidavit with the understanding that the school board reserves the right to accept or reject any bid.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Carl Sipe on December 3 with 14 members present.

Two interesting lessons were given. Mrs. Lela Northrup presented a lesson from Arizona Highways, describing points of interest in Nogales, Arizona, and Nogales, Sonora, Mexico. Mrs. Claude Laub gave a lesson on New Books, in which she gave brief reviews of recent best sellers. Mrs. Maurice Kline was in charge of the entertainment.

Mrs. Robert Musser presided at a short business meeting. The next meeting on December 17 will be a Christmas Party at the home of Mrs. Don Burley.

Mrs. Ray Baker conducted a critic's review at the close of the meeting.

Following adjournment the hostess served light refreshments.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank everyone who sent me cards and flowers during my stay in the hospital at Defiance. Your thoughtfulness is greatly appreciated.

Mrs. Foster Gee

Break-In At School

A break-in at the Riverdale High School was reported this week by Principal Joe Smith. The break-in occurred late Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning at the older of two high school buildings in Saint Joe.

4 loaves of bread, 20 pounds of butter and 32 servings of ice cream were taken from the cafeteria, and 5 gross of pencils were taken from another room.

Entry was gained through the furnace room where a window was broken. Doors to classrooms, book room and typing room were forced and the rooms ransacked.

Value of the stolen goods was estimated at $30.

Riverdale Takes Part In Joint School Survey

Dick Crow, president of the Riverdale School Board, revealed this week that Riverdale School Corporation will participate in a school survey to be conducted by Purdue University. The survey will be participated in jointly by the Riverdale, Waterloo, Jackson Township, Union Township and Auburn school districts. At a recent meeting attended by officials from these school districts, it was decided to request the survey. Officials from Richland, Fairfield and Smithfield townships also attended the meeting.

Dr. Norbert Nelson of Purdue, spokesman for the survey, indicated that the survey would reveal information on 5 important points relative to further expansion and growth of the school community. These 5 points are:

1. Past and present and predicted enrollments for school attendance from the various school districts.
2. Data on high school graduates, types of jobs they hold and their education status.
3. High school program and curriculum, teacher training and assignments.
4. The summary of the expenditures by functions and the per pupil cost of the educational program.
5. The complete appraisal of the school facilities in the various school districts.

Results of the survey and the recommendations made are to serve as guides for providing improved educational facilites for students in the participating schools.

VOLUME LXXIII — ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. — Thursday, December 18, 1958 — NUMBER 50

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

That's the way it goes.

What with our 11-foot ceilings at home, we thought we would get a nice big 10-footer to decorate this year as our Christmas tree. But you can't hardly find them kind of ceilings nowadays and the tree merchants don't have a lot of the big fellows on hand. We tried the Richmond brothers and Norman Morr, but they didn't have one quite big enough for our choicy taste So we were resolved to the purchase of one in the big city.

So the day after I bought a tree in Fort Wayne, in comes Bob Helbert to put an ad in the paper for late tree shoppers. I asked him how many trees he had.

"Oh, about 10,00."

—And here I could have gone through his 45 acres of trees and picked out the one I wanted, still growing au natural, or something, and he would cut it for me.

That's the way it goes.

—It pays to advertise.

The P.T.A. program was a short one Tuesday evening. No one could say they got to bed late because of it. But it was a good program and an encouraging program. The parents and students present are now fully aware of the tremendous advances made by Riverdale's music department. I'm naturally prejudiced because of our two tooters in the band. But there are others who were heard to remark at the end of the program about the department's growth and progress.

—And several wanted to hear more.

Next time you hear that the music department is presenting a program, get to it. And note the difference between just a couple of years ago and now.

An embarrassing moment occurred during the program. After the chorus had presented several numbers, Mr. Lowry announced that the junior band, composed of fifth and sixth graders, would perform next. So a bunch of the kids sitting in the bleachers, all glistening with scrubbed faces and white shirts, etc., came down and situated themselves in the chairs on the floor. Mr. Lowry tuned the band, then turned to the bleachers and looked — and looked — and looked.

After a few seconds of suspenseful silence, one of the bleacherites whispered (but everyone heard), "C'mon you guys!" And four young men—the whole drum section—made a mad scramble to their proper positions amid the chuckles of the audience.

2 More Thefts; Former Resident Confesses

Break-ins at Chaney's Restaurant and the Spencerville Elevator, following on the heals of a break-in at the Riverdale High School last week, were confessed this week by James A. Hensley, 18, a former resident of Saint Joe now living in Fart Wayne.

The restaurant was broken into Thursday night and the elevator entered Friday night. $9 in cash and $35 in merchandise were taken from the restaurant while the elevator netted 45 cents in change, 5 bottles of pop, another $1 in change from the cash drawer and a penny gum dispensing machine. A break-in the same night of the elevator theft was also admitted by the Hensley youth at Maxton Motors Body Shop at Butler.

The thefts were cleared this week by a confession from the apprehended young man. On Wednesday he pleaded guilty in the DeKalb Circuit to charges of second degree burglary. Another young man charged in the case asked the court to appoint an attorney for him. A 17-year-old Allen County youth is being detained at Fort Wayne in connection with the series of burglaries, also.

The case broke Saturday on a tip given Deputy Sheriff Dorsie Likens who notified Fort Wayne police. Hensley's arrest and subsequent confession were followed by his plea of guilty in court Wednesday of this week.

Firemen Re-elect Andy Monroe

The Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department held its annual Christmas Party at the regular monthly meeting Monday evening. The party included wives and children of the firemen. A pot luck dinner was served at 6:45 p.m.

Children and mothers participated in games while the firemen held a business meeting. Election of officers was held with the following results:

Andy Monroe, Chief.
Roy Bowser, Assistant Chief.
Don Yeiser, Secretary.

The firemen are planning for distribution of Christmas treats for shut-ins Wednesday, December 24, at 3 p.m.

Candlelight Service Planned For 24th

Services for the community on Christmas Eve have been announced by the Lutheran churches at Spencerville and Saint Joe. Young people of both congregations will assist Pastor Ivan O. Miller in conducting the candlelight service at 11:00 p.m. Wednesday, December 24.

An invitation has been extended to the community to attend the special service.

SPENCER TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Spencer Township Home Demonstration Club met December 8 at Chaney's Restaurant.

Lois Fisher returned thanks and a three-course dinner was then served by candlelight. A report of the Christmas workshop was given by Berniece Wilder, Ellen Hart, Dorothy Kimes and Nellie Allen.

The club donated to the TB fund and 2 gifts were sent to the Mental Health patients.

Lois Fisher thanked the committee for their work and devotions were given by Marilyn Laub. The club creed was led by Marilyn Laub. Song of the month, Joy to the World, was led by Valda Brown. Roll call response was, what I want for Christmas.

Secretary's report was given by Berniece Wilder. Lois Fisher called on the guest speaker, Mary Wilder. All enjoyed her pictures and talk.

A Christmas gift exchange was held.

24 members and 2 guests, Mary Wilder and Helen Resor, were present. The next meeting will be held January 14 with Izetta Chaney and Marjie Dwyer as hostess and co-hostess.

FIRST RADIO SIGNAL ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

High above Signal Hill, overlooking the port of St. John's, Newfoundland, a kite that was to help make radio history flew with wild dipping and plunging in a gusty wind on the morning of Thursday, December 12, 1901. Four hundred feet of aerial wire ran down from the kite and led to a room in an old former barracks building on top of Signal Hill. In that room Guglielmo Marconi sat at the other end of the wire, waiting, waiting, and hoping for what surely would prove to be a miracle.

Though only 27 years old, the Italian-born Guglielmo Marconi was already renowned as an electrical wizard. Wireless communication across great distances was his specialty. Already he had sent wireless signals a distance of 250 miles from ship to shore. Now, at the dawn of a new century, young Marconi had a vision of bringing America and Europe into instant communication with each other by an electrical spark sputtering across 2,000 miles of wide ocean.

It was considered a fantastic idea. People scoffed. It was one thing to send a wireless signal 100 or even 200 miles — and even that could be a freak incident — but to signal across the ocean was ridiculous. Marconi thought it could be done. And he set out to prove it.

First he set up his sending aerial at Poldhu, in Cornwall, England, a place of rocks jutting out into the Atlantic. After fighting wind and weather the crude sending aerial was set up. The signal this equipment was to send would be the Morse code "S," three dots, at a fixed time of the day, as soon as word was received that the receiving set at St. John's was ready.

Work was begun on Signal Hill on December 7th by Marconi and his two assistants, George S. Kemp and P. W. Paget. Kemp, an ex-Navy man, was Marconi's most valuable electrician. A balloon was sent up first to hold up the aerial wire weighing about 10 pounds, but gale winds blew it out to sea. A kite was then tried, and on the morning of December 12th it was sent up 400 feet despite the wind. Marconi had cabled Poldhu to begin sending its signals to reach St. John's at about noon of that day.

As the hands of the clock moved toward noon Marconi sat waiting in a room in the old barracks building. Pressed to his ear was a telephone receiver connected to a coherer. The critical moment had come. Would the kite wire receive the electric wave sent out from England? Marconi had no instruments to adjust the circuit to a specific wave length. He had to hunt for the wave. He appeared calm as he listened intently into the receiver. His assistant, Kemp, was excited.

Suddenly three clicks were heard in the receiver. Marconi listened for several moments, then handed the receiver to his assistant. "Can you hear anything, Kemp?" Kemp heard the same three short clicks, repeated over and over, the agreed upon signal "S." It was absolutely certain. The first radio signal across the Atlantic had been received!

Marconi knew then that the day was not far off when full messages could be sent by radio across the ocean. All that was necessary was further development of the sending and receiving instruments. On that he would work.

THE WRIGHTS FLY FIRST AIRPLANE

For centuries man had dreamed of flying, not just in a wind-blown balloon, but by controlled flight in a heavier-than-air mechanically propelled airplane. And on Thursday, December 17, 1903, the Wright brothers made the dream come true on the sand dunes at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina.

Kitty Hawk was a small fishing village up on the North Carolina coast. Sand dunes for take-offs and soft ground for landings were here around a convenient slope known as Kill Devil Hill. The constant winds that blew here were helpful, and Orville and Wilbur Wright had selected this spot as best suited for their flight experiments.

During the 1880s and 1890s considerable experimentation had been done with gliders. The Wright brothers had done a lot of this experimenting, and by 1902 they had built a real good glider. A flying machine with an engine and propellers would come next. The vision of flying stirred the minds and inventive spirit of many Americans, but most people were convinced that God never intended man to fly, at least until he won his angel's wings.

Wilbur and Orville Wright thought that man could fly on a practical basis, and they worked hard to prove it. At the time of their first successful flight Wilbur was a man of 36, and Orville was 32. Neither was a trained engineer, but they were natural mechanics who liked to tinker and experiment. In Dayton, Ohio, they were partners in a bicycle repair shop. First as a pastime, then in serious work, they combined their talents to build a machine that would fly.

Based on the knowledge gained from their numerous glider experiments, the Wright brothers built a suitable plane which was nothing more than a biplane glider with a four-cylinder engine, a rudder and propellers. The engine weighed 750 pounds and developed 12 horsepower.

On Thursday morning, December 17, 1903, everything was ready for the flight test. An invitation had been extended to all people living in the vicinity to witness the event, but only five persons came out in the cold December wind to see what they all thought would be another foolish attempt at flying. Only nine days previously Professor Samuel Langley had failed, up in Virginia, in his second and final attempt to fly a plane.

The Wright machine rested on a single rail track. Orville was the pilot. All set. The whirling propellers clattered. The machine slowly moved ahead on its track, with Wilbur running alongside to steady the wing. After a run of 40 feet the machine rose 10 feet in the air and in the next 12 seconds flew 120 feet before it dipped to the ground.

"Damned if they ain't flew!" exclaimed one of the natives looking on. It was true. For the first time in world history man had flown a machine raised by its own power! To satisfy themselves beyond doubt, the Wright brothers made three more flights, and on the fourth and last one, with Wilbur piloting, the machine stayed up in the air 59 seconds, flying 825 feet. The Wrights were satisfied. They had flown successfully.

The press, still ridiculing Langley's recent failure, gave little notice to the Wrights' success. Even when the two brothers proved by continued successes during the following days that their first flight was no freak, most people were still skeptical. Only years later did the world acknowledge fully the triumph of these two audacious and persevering Americans, the Wright brothers, on that cold December morning at Kitty Halk.

The Christmas program of the Saint Joe Church of Christ will be given Monday evening, December 22, at 7:30 p.m.

Gerald Lothamer, seaman apprentice, USCG, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lothamer of near Saint Joe, has completed 13 weeks of basic training at the U.S. Coast Guard Receiving Center, Cape May, N.J. He entered the Coast Guard last September. Seaman Apprentice Lothamer will now report to the Fifth Coast Guard District, Norfolk, Va., for further assignment. Before entering the Coast Guard, he graduated from Riverdale High School.

Driver license suspensions include that of Melvin Shaw of Auburn.

"Carols From the Skies," interludes of live and recorded music, are being presented by St. Mark Lutheran Church during the holiday season beginning Thursday this week. The music will be presented twice daily, 12:15 to 12:30 at the noon hour and 5:00 to 5:15 p.m.

Fairfield Meese, formerly of Alameda, California, now of Saint Joe, and Marie Draggoo of Saint Joe were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, December 13, 1958. The ceremony was performed by Pastor Ivan O. Miller of the Lutheran churches at the parsonage in Spencerville.

Richard L. Snyder, boilerman fireman, USN, of R1, Saint Joe is serving aboard the super attack aircraft carrier USS Forrestal, operating with the U.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean. The Forrestal relieved her sister ship, the super carrier USS Saratoga, in mid-September. Since leaving Norfolk, Va., September 2, the carrier has visited Sicily and Italy and between future exercises, expects to make stops in France, Greece and Spain.

Rose I. Means of Saint Joe is among the 1293 students enrolled this semester at Indiana University's Fort Wayne Center. Enrollment at the center this semester is up 5 per cent over that for the first semester last year.

The Christmas Program of the Lutheran Church School will be presented Sunday evening, December 21, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Mark Lutheran Church. Congregation and friends are invited to attend.

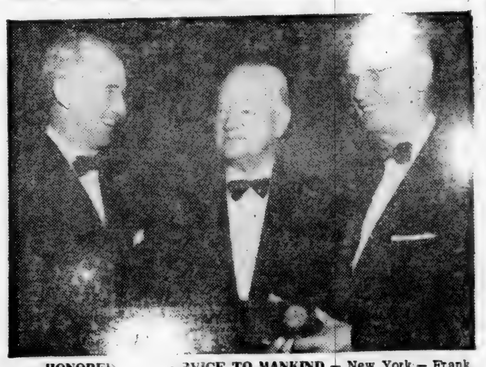
BROTHERS ARE CARDINALS — Vatican City — The College of Cardinals now includes two brothers. It's the first time in 43 years that it has. The new Cardinal is Amleto Giovanni Cicognani (at right in a 1957 file photo), who, as an Archbishop, has been serving as Apostolic Delegate to the U.S. He's one of 23 new Cardinals named by Pope John XXIII here. His brother, Gaetano Cardinal Cicognani (at left in a photo placed in New York files in Oct. 1958) has been a Cardinal since 1953.

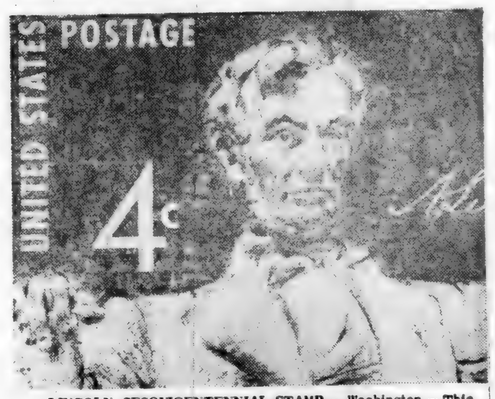
SEES NO WEEVIL — Phoenix, Arizona — Sunny Pat Fackenthall, 20, of Phoenix, newly chosen Queen of the Valley of the Sun Cotton Pickers, shows how to harvest this southern "snow." Bless her li'l cotton-picking hands.

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower, at a White House ceremony, presented Mrs. Iven C. Kincheloe, Jr. with a copy of his letter to the President of 1972, requesting whoever is President at that time to appoint her son, Iven C. Kincheloe III, now 19½ months old, to the Air Force Academy when he reaches the right age. Mrs. Kincheloe is the widow of Iven C. Kincheloe, Jr. who died last July from injuries received in testing the world's fastest military plane.



HONORED [illegible] SERVICE TO MANKIND — New York — Frank Pace, Jr., (...) President of the National Institute of Social Sciences, presents Gold Medals to former President Herbert Hoover (Center) and Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson (Right) at the Institute's Dinner. The Medals are being presented for distinguished service to humanity. This is the first time in the organization's history that it has awarded a second Gold Medal to the same man — Mr. Hoover — who received one in 1918 for his services to famine-stricken victims of World War I.

BUM DEAL — New York — Although this looks like nothing more than a friendly meeting of two derelicts, one of the "bums" is actually an actor essaying a realistic role. The actor is Bud McCrosson (Left), who appears in the "Naked City" television series over ABC. The other man is a real-live character living on New York's East Side. Portraying a moocher, McCrosson's performance was so realistic that he was promptly ejected when he strolled into a local bar.



LINCOLN SESQUICENTENNIAL STAMP — Washington — This impressive stamp, one of three being issued to commemorate the 150th Anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth, features a portion of the famed statue by Daniel Chester French, which is in the Lincoln Memorial in Washington. It also shows a facsimile of Lincoln's signature. The stamp will be placed on sale on May 30, 1959.

The Mt. Olivet Baptist Church in Barnard, Indiana, was the scene of a beautiful wedding Saturday, November 29, at 2:30 p.m. when Miss Patricia Lou Robbins became the bride of John Franklin Weninger. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. William O. Robbins and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Weninger of Roachdale. The Weninger family formerly resided at Spencerville where Mr. Weninger operated the Spencerville Elevator.

Rev. Thomas Faulkner of the Mt. Olivet Baptist Church and Rev. Clyde A. Myers of the Roachdale Presbyterian Church officiated at the impressive double-ring ceremony.

Preceding the ceremony a program of music was presented by Mrs. Gerald Jones of North Salem. During the ceremony Mrs. Raymond Keck of Roachdale sang three selections and Mr. Larry Page of North Salem also sang three selections.

Mrs. Harvey Graham of Roachdale was matron of honor and Mrs. Jackie Ray Jones of Roachdale ws bridesmaid.

Flower girls were Misses Kathryn and Karen Cox of Hammond, twin cousins of the bridegroom. Ringbearers were Miss Sherrie Nelson of Brownsburg, cousin of the bride, and Paul Cox of Hammond, cousin of the bridegroom. Mr. Harvey Graham served as best man. Ushers were Mr. Jackie Ray Jones, William Weninger, brother of the bridegroom, and Ronald Robbins, brother of the bride.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the church parlors.

The couple are graduates of Roachdale High School and the bridegroom is also a graduate of Indiana Central Business College in Indianapolis, now employed at the Brownsburg State Bank as teller. The couple's new address is 12 West Main Street, Brownsburg.

LET 'EM EAT CAKE — Paris — The U.S. Marines take the cake, according to Paris pastry cook Pierre Franchiolo. He whipped up this 150-pound tribute in honor of the 183rd Anniversary of the Marine Corps. The cake is decorated with historic scenes and insignia of the Marines, plus a replica of the Eiffel Tower, which Franchiolo, as a proud Frenchman, couldn't help adding.

SCENIC VIEW — Miami Beach, Florida — An umbrella, swing, palm fronds, plus shapely Myrna Webber, add to the scenery on the ocean front at Miami Beach.

SKYLINES — Governors Island, N.Y. — Against a background of the Manhattan skyscrapers it will defend, an Army Nike-Hercules Missile adds a futuristic touch to autos and a slow-moving ferryboat as it rests on Governors Island, N.Y. With atomic warheads capable of stopping whole formations of planes, the new weapons are adding their knockout punch to the defense of the New York area.

SOFT SOAPING — Chicago — Although it looks as if the snow has come to stay in this wintry scene, the deceptive white stuff stems from another source. It's nothing but soap suds flowing from sewers in this suburban area outside Chicago.

TIPPING TOWERS — Richardton, N.D. — The Leaning Tower of Pisa seems to have nothing on these twin steeples, which appear to be tipping over at Richardton, N.D. Actually, it's an optical illusion and the steeples, atop the St. Mary's Monastery, are in no danger of falling.

BIG DIPPER — Stockholm, Sweden — Fish don't seem to have a chance on the River Stroemmen, which runs through the Swe[illegible] Capital of Stockholm. WHAT IS Christmas?

Christmas is many things. It is the biggest thing there is and a lot of little things, too. It is festive and sober, ancient yet always new. Christmas means reunion and communion with one's own. Still it is not Christmas, really, unless there is a reaching out also to all men everywhere. It is personal yet universal. You can see Christmas in the sparkle of youthful eyes, in the mist of older ones. You can hear it in gay carols and in sermons and in prayers. You can sense it in a thousand ways. You can do just about everything with Christmas but put it into words, for Christmas stems not from tongue or pen but from the heart. From the heart then—and taking thought for all the many things that Christmas is—may we extend our fervent hope that yours will be a reflective and a very joyous one.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

BATTLE OF TRENTON

Christmas Day of 1776, and in Trenton, New Jersey, by the ice-choked Delaware River, the Hessians were making merry in their comfortable quarters. They were a part of the German troops hired by the British to fight the American patriots. Across the river, on the Pennsylvania side, Washington's ragged soldiers huddled in their camp.

It seemed as if this bitter winter might see the end of the patriot cause. Washington's army had fled across New Jersey before the stronger British forces. Soldiers had gone back to their homes by the hundreds. The rest of the shrinking American army, poorly equipped, unpaid, and often hungry, was held together mostly by the forcefulness of its great leader. A week before Christmas Washington wrote to a relative, "If every nerve is not strained to recruit the new army with all possible expedition, I think that the game is pretty near up."

Though the situation was bad, Washington decided on a bold stroke with the troops that he had. There was one hope left he decided — attack! He would cross the Delaware by night and attack the Hessians at Trenton on the morning of the day after Christmas before their merrymaking mood wore off. "It is necessity, dire necessity," Washington said.

While the Hessians were having a grand time the freezing Americans prepared to cross the icy river. At twilight of that cold Christmas night the little army of 2400 men in boats began its struggle with the ice floes and the rapid current. Washington had hoped to be across the river by midnight, but with the load of cannon and baggage it was past three o'clock in the morning before all the troops had crossed over.

Snow was falling. The night was very black and cold. At four o'clock it seemed too late to march on Trenton with hope of a surprise. Yet it was too late to turn back. Forward, then! The shivering troops began the nine mile march to Trenton.

They suffered severly as they marched down the river road. The snow had turned to freezing sleet and on the sharp slippery ice red stains showed where brave men marched with broken shoes. It was eight o'clock in the morning when the American advance began driving in the Hessian pickets. The enemy was unprepared. Colonel Rall, the Hessian commander, jumped out of bed to rally his men. He soon fell mortally wounded.

The battle was sharp and over in less than an hour. Over one hundred Hessians were killed and wounded, while almost a thousand with all their equipment, were captured. The American loss was two killed, a few dozen wounded, and two frozen to death on the march. That night Washington and his army were back in their camp across the Delaware with their prisoners and booty.

The victory at Trenton shattered British hopes for a quick end to the Revolution. The colonies rejoiced and took new courage for the struggle for liberty.

In Philadelphia the captured Hessians were marched through the streets so the people could see the proof of the American triumph. The patriots thanked God for the victory won by Washington's little army. Muhlenberg, the Lutheran patriarch, exclaimed "The Lord of Hosts has heard the cry of the distressed, and sent his angel to their assistance!"

Comets Win 1, Lose 2

The Riverdale Comets were edged in two games during the past few days, but did manage to salvage one win in their last three games.

Saturday night they blew a big early-game lead and were nosed out 52-50 by Arcola at the Leo gym. Then in a holiday tourney at Fremont they defeated Fremont 69-65 before being downed by Woodburn by 54-52 in the tourney final.

The Comets led by 15 points at 18-3 in the first quarter in Saturday's game. They led 18-7 at the end of the first period and still held an 11-point margin at the half, 34-23.

Arcola pulled up to 43-41 at the third quarter and then outscored Riverdale 11-7 in the final period to win 52-50.

Friend led the scoring with 17 points.

The Comets met Fremont in the opening game of the holiday tourney at Fremont Monday night and won a free scoring contest 69-65. Fremont trailed by 13 points at the end of the third quarter at 53-40 then, outscored the Comets in the final period 25-16.

Clauser led scoring with 22 points; Friend netted 16.

Woodburn defeated Bellefountain in the other Monday night contest on a two-handed jump shot with 2 seconds remaining in the game.

In the consolation game Tuesday night, Bellefountain defeated Fremont 59-57.

In the championship game the Comets again lost in the last quarter as Woodburn avenged an earlier 67-57 defeat by taking Riverdale 54-52.

Dowden led scoring with 21 points.

The Comets now rest until another holiday tourney to be held at Ashley on January 2 and 3. Participating teams will be Riverdale, Ashley, Waterloo and Bellefountain.

The next game on the regular season schedule is against Hicksville at Waterloo on January 9.

Local News

There will be no issue of this paper published next week. The next issue will be published January 8, 1959.

L. G. Fetters attended the funeral of his cousin, Dr. Jay Jones of Chicago, on Monday, December 15.

Two trucks were involved in a minor accident Wednesday at 1 p.m. on county road 59 1.1 miles north of Saint Joe. A Holsom Dairy truck, driven by Earl Chamberlin of Saint Joe was not damaged in the accident. Damage to a pick-up truck driven by Wayne Fogle was estimated at $75.

All non-citizens of the United States residing in Indiana must file a report of their addresses during January, according to a news release by the Immigration and Naturalization Service of the Department of Justice. Report cards will be available at all post offices beginning January 1, 1959.

School Survey Meet Monday

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Moore of Saint Joe have been selected as chairmen of the school survey in Saint Joe to be undertaken in the next week by the Riverdale School Corporation. Other members of the survey committee will be revealed at a meeting to be held Monday, December 29, at the high school in Saint Joe.

The appointment of the local chairmen was made this week by the Riverdale School Board with the assistance of County Superintendent of Schools Roger Hess. Results of the survey will be announced after information gathered by the solicitation committee has been sent to Purdue University for tabulation.

The survey wil be completed by January 15, 1959.

Questionnaires to be used in the survey contain queries about the size of the family, type of home, age of family members, occupations, size of farm or plot of land, place or places where the family does its buying and seeks entertainment, etc., and opinions of school patrons about the condition of the local school pertaining to currimulum, buildings, transportation, etc.

Patrons of Riverdale can assist in the survey by doing some advance thinking concerning their school in preparation for the time when a survey committeeman comes calling in their homes.

The meeting next Monday is being held for the benefit not only of those who will assist in making the survey but also for any patrons who may wish to learn of the workings of the survey. The school board extends an invitation to the community to attend the meeting which stars at 7:30 p.m.

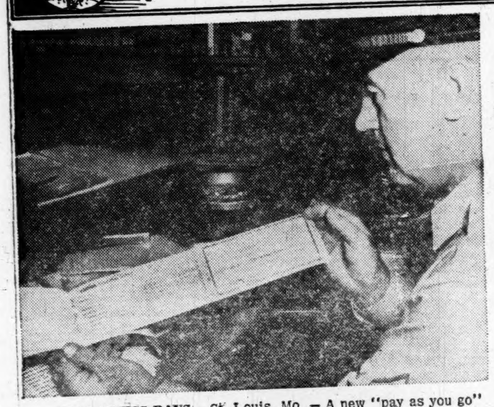
PICTURES OF THE WEEK



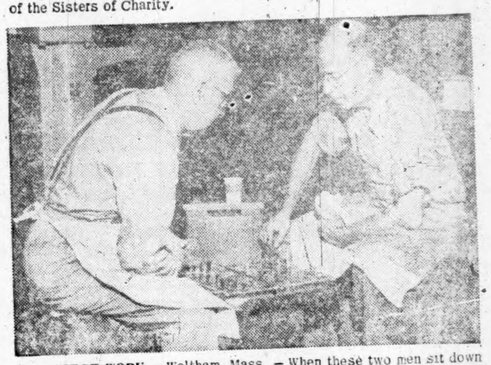
POLITENESS PAYS – St. Louis, Mo. – A new "pay as you go" form for parking violators, complete with "courtesy check" attached, is examined by Police Sgt. John Bauer in St. Louis. The violator fills in the name of his bank, pays the two dollar fine, and mails the check, thereby saving himself a trip to Police Headquarters.

PORTRAIT OF THE ARTIST – Las Vegas, Nev. – An artist who looks more like a model, shapely French painter Poucette, 23, works on a picture alongside the pool at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas. The pretty painter, whose works have been exhibited in cities in the U.S. and France, is touring the U.S.

COMING OUT PARTY – Rochester, N.Y. – Opening wide to display their soon-to-be-gone tonsils, seven members of the Bernard Martin family arrive at St. Mary's Hospital in Rochester. Examining the youngsters prior to the mass Tonsillectomy is Sister Simplicia of the Sisters of Charity.

MEN OF THE WHIRL – Winnipeg, Man., Canada – Bill Mosienko of the Winnipeg Warriors Hockey Team shows colleagues Steve Witiuk and Dick Lamoreaux how to perform and keep fit with the hula hoop here. Coach Alf Pike thought up the idea to keep the team fit and in shape for the coming season.

GAME FISH – Miami Beach, Fla. – Sharpening up on this handoff play is Corky, the trained Porpoise at the Miami Seaquarium, and Charlie Diamond, star player for the University of Miami Hurricanes Football Team. The seagoing mammal won't do the team much good on a dry field, but in case of a flash flood he might make a valuable "sub."



PIECE WORK – Waltham, Mass. – When these two men sit down to play a game of chess, their attention is really riveted to the board. The players, Horace Calhoun (Left) and Wilbur Hunter, use chessmen made of different size rivets manufactured at the Judson L. Thomson plant where they work in Waltham, Mass. Using "chess pieces" selected from the 8,000 different tubular and split rivets made by the company, the men sometimes need a month of lunch hours to finish a single game.

Jerry Haver Dies Suddenly

Gerald Leslie Haver, 55, of near Saint Joe died en route to a hospital Saturday morning after having suffered a heart attack while at Yeiser's Standard Service station in Saint Joe. His death was sudden and unexpected.

Efforts were made by members of the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department to revive the victim with the aid of the department's resuscitator, But their efforts were unsuccessful and Mr. Haver was pronounced dead on arrival at the Hicksville hospital.

Mr. Haver was born October 1, 1903, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Zeno Haver. He married Ruth Ladd in May of 1927 at Detroit. The Havers resided on Rt. 1, Saint Joe, for the past 13 years. The deceased was employed as a draftsman at International Harvester in Fort Wayne.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday at the Baidinger-Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville with Rev. Ivan O. Miller officiating. Burial was in Leo Memorial Cemetery.

Survivors include the wife; a daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Zimmerlee of Fort Wayne; his stepmother, Mrs. Zeno Haver of Kendallville; and two sisters, Mrs. Ruth Williams of South Bend and Mrs. Beverly Keeler of Kendallville.

Youths Get 8 Months

James Hensley and William Fett of Fort Wayne received identical 8-month sentences in DeKalb Circuit Court last week as they entered pleas of guilty to charges of second degree burglary. The young men admitted break-ins at the Riverdale High School in Saint Joe, Chaney's Restaurant and the Spencerville Elevator at Spencerville and Maxton's Body Shop at Butler.

Three 17-year-old Allen County boys are being held at Fort Wayne in connection with the same burglaries and a 16-year-old Saint Joe youth involved in ont of the burglaries is scheduled for a juvenile court hearing, according to Deputy Sheriff Dorsie Likens.

Fett admitted being involved in one of the four break-ins while Hensley admitted participation in all four. Conviction was made on third degree burglary charges after a request from the prosecutor that sentence be imposed on the lesser charge. Conviction on second degree burglary would have resulted in sentences of 2 to 5 years in the reformatory. In addition to the 8-month sentences, the youths were fined $1 and costs.

SAYS MRS. DONALD EVANS.
"To discover that there isn't enough hot water when you're in a hurry to do the washing or take a shower is exasperating, isn't it? We never have to wait now that we have our new 'quick recovery' electric water heater. Our family always has plenty of hot water."
